Nebuchadnezzar in Dan 4.34–37; Cyrus in Ezra 1.2). The Torah of the Jews is declared most righteous, anticipating permission granted to the Jews (v. 19) to live by it. 16.17–20 The king cannot annul the earlier decree but can align himself with the Jews and allow them to defend themselves. 16.21 The designation chosen people carries echoes of the 14 So the messengers on horseback set out with all speed to perform what the king had commanded; and the decree was published also in Susa. ¹⁵Mordecai went out dressed in the royal robe and wearing a gold crown and a turban of purple linen. The people in Susa rejoiced on seeing him. ¹⁶And the Jews had light and gladness ¹⁷in every city and province wherever the decree was published; wherever the proclamation was made, the Jews had joy and gladness, a banquet and a holiday. And many of the Gentiles were circumcised and became Jews out of fear of the Jews.

Victory of the Jews

9 Now on the thirteenth day of the twelfth month, which is Adar, the decree written by the king arrived. ²On that same day the enemies of the Jews perished; no one resisted, because they feared them. ³The chief provincial governors, the princes, and the royal secretaries were paying honor to the Jews, because fear of Mordecai weighed upon them. ⁴The king's decree required that Mordecai's name be held in honor throughout the kingdom.^m ⁶Now in the city of Susa the Jews killed five hundred people, ⁷including Pharsannestain, Delphon, Phasga, ⁸Pharadatha, Barea, Sarbacha, ⁹Marmasima, Aruphaeus, Arsaeus, Zabutheus, ¹⁰the ten sons of Haman son of Hammedatha, the Bougean, the enemy of the Jews—and they indulgedⁿ themselves in plunder.

¹¹ That very day the number of those killed in Susa was reported to the king. ¹²The king said to Esther, "In Susa, the capital, the Jews have destroyed five hundred people. What do you suppose they have done in the surrounding countryside? Whatever more you ask will be done for you." ¹³And Esther said to the king, "Let the Jews be allowed to do the same tomorrow. Also, hang up the bodies of Haman's ten sons." ¹⁴So he permitted this to be done, and handed over to the Jews of the city the bodies of Haman's sons to hang up. ¹⁵The Jews who were in Susa gathered on the fourteenth and killed three hundred people, but took no plunder.

¹⁶ Now the other Jews in the kingdom gathered to defend themselves, and got relief from their enemies. They destroyed fifteen thousand of them, but did not engage in plunder. ¹⁷On the fourteenth day they rested and made that same day a day of rest, celebrating it with joy and gladness. ¹⁸The Jews who were in Susa, the capital, came together also on the fourteenth, but did not rest. They celebrated the fifteenth with joy and gladness. ¹⁹On this account then the Jews who are scattered around the country outside Susa keep the fourteenth of Adar as a joyful holiday, and send presents of food to one another, while those who live in the large cities keep the fifteenth day of Adar as their joyful holiday, also sending presents to one another.

The Festival of Purim

20 Mordecai recorded these things in a book, and sent it to the Jews in the kingdom of Artaxerxes both near and far, ²¹telling them that they should keep the fourteenth and fifteenth days of Adar, ²²for on these days the Jews got relief from their enemies. The whole month (namely, Adar), in which their condition had been changed from sorrow into gladness and from a time of distress to a holiday, was to be celebrated as a time for feasting^o and gladness and for sending presents of food to their friends and to the poor.

23 So the Jews accepted what Mordecai had written to them ²⁴—how Haman son of Hammedatha, the Macedonian,^p fought against them, how he made a decree and cast lots^q to destroy them, ²⁵and how he went in to the king, telling him to hang Mordecai; but the wicked plot he had devised against the Jews came back upon himself, and he and his sons were hanged. ²⁶Therefore these days were called “Purim,” because of the lots (for in their language this is the word that means “lots”). And so, because of what was written in this letter, and because of what they had experienced in this affair and what had befallen them, Mordecai established this festival,^r ²⁷and the Jews took upon themselves, upon their descendants, and upon all who would join them, to observe it without fail.^s These days of Purim should be a memorial and kept from generation to generation, in every city, family, and country. ²⁸These days of Purim were to be observed for all time, and the commemoration of them was never to cease among their descendants.

29 Then Queen Esther daughter of Aminadab along with Mordecai the Jew wrote down what they had done, and gave full authority to the letter about Purim.^t ³¹And Mordecai and Queen Esther established this decision on their own responsibility, pledging their own well-being to the plan.^u ³²Esther established it by a decree forever, and it was written for a memorial.

10 The king levied a tax upon his kingdom both by land and sea. ²And as for his power and bravery, and the wealth and glory of his kingdom, they were recorded in the annals of the kings of the Persians and the Medes. ³Mordecai acted with authority on behalf of King Artaxerxes and was great in the kingdom, as well as honored by the Jews. His way of life was such as to make him beloved to his whole nation.

Some take the reference to the preceding Letter about Purim to refer not just to the document mentioned in 9.29, but to the Greek Esther to which this postscript is attached.

WISDOM OF SOLOMON

THE WISDOM OF SOLOMON is a hortatory discourse featuring a highly enthusiastic and eulogistic invocation of wisdom. It was written in Greek by a learned and profoundly hellenized Jew of Alexandria after that city's conquest by Rome in 30 B.C.E. The earlier optimism of the Alexandrian Jewish community for a rapprochement with the Greeks and for social and cultural acceptance by them had been replaced by a mounting sense of disillusionment and disappointment. In contrast to the mild criticisms of heathen cults in the earlier Letter of Aristeas, in the Wisdom of Solomon the wrathful exhibition of the crimes and corruptions connected with pagan idolatry and the unrestrained attacks on Egyptian animal worship are a clear indication of the complete break with the native Egyptians and Greeks.

Authorship, Language, and Style

The strongest argument for the unity of the Wisdom of Solomon may be elicited from its language and style. In spite of some Hebrew coloring, such as parallelism, Hebraisms, and the simple connection of clauses by conjunctions, the author's Greek is rich and spontaneous, and Jerome's judgment that his style is "redolent of Greek eloquence" is completely justified. The author's writing at times has the light touch of Greek lyric poetry, and he employs a wide array of Greek rhetorical figures. These characteristics, in addition to his many favorite theme words and expressions that recur throughout the book, argue for unity of authorship. The hypothesis that the Wisdom of Solomon is a translation of a Hebrew original is untenable for the same reasons.

There is no consensus regarding the date of the book, and various scholars have placed it anywhere between 250 B.C.E. and 50 C.E. The linguistic evidence points to a period not earlier than that of Augustus (30 B.C.E.). Further considerations seem to indicate the reign of Gaius "Caligula" (37–41 C.E.) as a likely setting for the book. The apocalyptic vision in which the author describes the annihilation of the wicked with such ferocious passion (5.16–23) could only be called forth by a desperate historical situation in which the security of the Alexandrian Jewish community was threatened by a power against which it was hopeless to put up any serious resistance. The anti-Jewish riots that broke out in Alexandria in 38 C.E. involved just such a situation. Most commentators have correctly assumed an Egyptian origin for the book. The intensity of the author's hatred of the Egyptians undoubtedly reflects the persecution of the Jewish community of Alexandria at the hands of the Greeks aided and abetted by the native Egyptians.

Religious Ideas

The centrality of the teaching on the immortality of the soul represents a new emphasis in Jewish tradition, although it must be seen as part of a continuous development in Hellenistic-Jewish thought. According to 1 Enoch 102.51, the spirits of the righteous descend to Sheol, but they will ultimately ascend to a life of joy as companions of the host of heaven (cf. Jubilees 23.31; Testament of Asher 6.5–6). The concept of the preexistent soul found in the Wisdom of Solomon (8.19), on the other hand, may be the earliest attestation of this teaching in Jewish literature.

The central figure striding across the book is Sophia or Woman Wisdom, appearing at first under a variety of names (ch. 1) and then gradually coming into sharper focus until she begins (in 6.12) to dominate the stage completely. Then, however, she recedes once again into the background and merges almost imperceptibly with the deity, only suddenly to emerge in full power under one of her alternate titles, that of Logos—the Greek word with broad range of meaning from "word" to "speech" to "reason" (18.15). She is no innovation of the author but had already made her appearance as a cosmic figure in Prov 8.22–31 and Job 28.12–28, and has obvious roots in ancient Near Eastern myth.

Wisdom appears again in Sirach (ca. 180 B.C.E.), a Jewish Palestinian work that left its distinct mark on the Wisdom of Solomon. Sirach (especially in 24.1–22) reaches the uneasy compromise of a divine wisdom that pervades the cosmos yet maintains its focus in Zion and in the teachings of the Torah, which thus achieves a new universal significance. In light of this wisdom tradition, it is easy to understand why our author chose the Wisdom figure as mediator of his own message. She was the perfect bridge between the exclusive nationalist tradition of Israel and the universalist philosophical tradition that appealed so strongly to the Jewish youth of Roman Alexandria.

In sketching his own spiritual odyssey, the author confesses to a passion for Sophia that had gripped him from early youth and had led him to cast his lot with her forever. There is no impression here of a mere literary artifice; readers are clearly confronting a genuine religious experience that has enveloped the author's mind and soul and has filled him with the divine presence (8.2–3). His unbridled love for Wisdom is vividly reflected in his magnificent fivefold description of her essence, in which she is conceived as an eternal emanation of God's power and glory (7.25–26, 29–30).

The author's highly charged language leaves the strong impression that he is very likely alluding to his own experience of union with the wisdom aspect of God. Moreover, he is convinced that it is an experience open to all and offers himself as a living paradigm for others to follow. In detailing his spiritual odyssey, he thus strikes a religious chord new to the Hebrew wisdom writings, echoing a type of religiosity characteristic of the contemporary Isis mysteries in the pagan world and the Dead Sea sect within the Jewish world. In contrast to both, however, he disdains the path of esotericism, constantly conveying instead the openness of wisdom's path, which requires neither secret initiations nor entry into the community of a holy elect.

Purpose

The author is primarily addressing his fellow Jews in an effort to encourage them to take pride in their traditional faith. By presenting Judaism in intellectually respectable terms, he seeks to shore up the faith against hostile anti-Jewish attacks from without and gnawing doubts from within, and through a determined counterattack against the immoral pagan world, which he threatens with divine retribution, he attempts to revive the flagging spirits of his hard-pressed people. David Winston aspects of God. 1.6 Kindly spirit, lit. “lover of humanity,” a Greek expression. 1.7 That which holds all things together is a Stoic expression adopted here to describe the spirit that holds the cosmos in existence. 1.10 Grumbling recalls the rebellion of Israel in the desert (Ex 15–17; Num 17.5–10), which epitomizes all rebellion against God. 1.12–13 Death, the lot of the sinner, is eternal separation from God; the author of Wisdom pays little attention to the reality of physical death. 1.14 Hades is personified (Job 38.17; Rev 6.8; 20.14). 1.15 Immortality is not a natural quality, but dependent on living in conformity with God’s will, i.e., according to righteousness (v. 1).

1.16–2.24 The author allows the wicked to speak for themselves in the manner of the Hellenistic diatribe, a popular philosophical discourse often making use of an imaginary adversary. The pessimistic tone is a frequent feature of the popular thought and poetry of Hellenistic and Imperial times. 1.16 The wicked covenant with Death (Isa 28.15). Their pining for Death is exemplified in Apocalypse of Abraham 13.23; in the Dead Sea Scrolls War Scroll (1QM) it is repeatedly stated that the wicked are attached to Belial (Satan) because their desire is for him (13.12; 15.9; 17.4). 2.1 Short and sorrowful is our life, a commonplace human lament (Job 14.1–2; Lucretius On the Nature of Things 3.914–15). 2.2 Chance played an important role in Epicurean cosmology. In a Greek epitaph from the third century B.C.E. we read, “like animals we are pulled hither and thither by chance, in life as in death.” A similar thought is prominent in Ecclesiastes where the Hebrew word miqreh (“fate”) refers to the common fate awaiting all, death, the timing of which is utterly concealed from human understanding

(cf. Eccl 2.14; 3.19; 9.2). The Stoics conceived of the soul as a spark, a fiery breath. 2.4 Plato refers to the childish fear that when the soul leaves the body the wind will blow it away and scatter it (Phaedo 77D). 2.6 Let us enjoy, a popular motif (Isa 22.13; Eccl 9.7; Horace Odes 1.11.8, carpe diem, Latin, "seize the day"). 2.9 Our portion, a prominent motif in Ecclesiastes (2.10; 3.22; 9.9).

2.12–20 The description of the suffering and vindication of the child of the Lord (v. 13) is based on the fourth servant song in Isaiah (52.13–53.12). The early church fathers saw in this description a prophecy of Christ's Passion. 2.17 When Joseph's brothers plot his death, they similarly say, "let us kill him . . . and we shall see what will become of his dreams" (Gen 37.20).

- 21 Thus they reasoned, but they were led astray,
for their wickedness blinded
them,
22 and they did not know the secret

and the Ungodly*

- 3 But the souls of the righteous are in the hand of God,
and no torment will ever touch
them.
2 In the eyes of the foolish they seemed to have died,
and their departure was thought to be a disaster,
3 and their going from us to be their destruction;
but they are at peace.
4 For though in the sight of others
they were punished,
their hope is full of immortality.
5 Having been disciplined a little,
they will receive great
good,

- because God tested them and found them worthy of himself;
6 like gold in the furnace he tried
them,
and like a sacrificial burnt

7 In the time of their visitation they will shine forth,
and will run like sparks through

3.13b–4.6 Status in the ancient Near East was deeply affected by the number of one's progeny. Sexual sin was believed to result in sterility (Gen 30.23; Ps 128; Lk 1.25; 1 Enoch 98.5; Pseudo-Philo Biblical Antiquities 50.5; Genesis Rabbah 45.4). The Wisdom of Solomon, however, emphatically

On Childlessness

- For blessed is the barren woman
who is undefiled,
who has not entered into a sinful
union;
she will have fruit when God
examines souls.
- 14 Blessed also is the eunuch whose hands have done no lawless
deed,
and who has not devised wicked
things against the Lord;
for special favor will be shown
him for his faithfulness,
and a place of great delight in the temple of the Lord.
- 15 For the fruit of good labors is renowned,
and the root of understanding
does not fail.
- 16 But children of adulterers will not come to maturity,
and the offspring of an unlawful
union will perish.
- 17 Even if they live long they will be held of no account,
and finally their old age will be without honor.
- 18 If they die young, they will have no hope
and no consolation on the day of judgment.
- 19 For the end of an unrighteous
generation is grievous.
- 4 Better than this is childlessness with virtue,
for in the memory of virtueⁱ is immortality.

because it is known both by God
and by mortals.

- 2 When it is present, people
imitate^j it,
and they long for it when it has gone;
throughout all time it marches,
crowned in triumph,
victor in the contest for prizes
that are undefiled.
- 3 But the prolific brood of the ungodly will be of no use,
and none of their illegitimate seedlings will strike a deep root
or take a firm hold.
- 4 For even if they put forth boughs
for a while,
standing insecurely they will be shaken by the wind,
and by the violence of the winds
they will be uprooted.
- 5 The branches will be broken off before they come to maturity,
and their fruit will be useless,
not ripe enough to eat, and good
for nothing.
- 6 For children born of unlawful unions
are witnesses of evil against their parents when God
examines them.^k

The Triumph of the Righteous

die early, will be at rest.

denies any necessary connection between sin and sterility. Sterility, if pure, will be redeemed by spiritual fertility. 3.14 The eunuch. See Isa 56.3–5, in which the prophet refers to those Jewish youth who were castrated at the hands of the Babylonians and consequently despaired of any share in Israel's future redemption (Deut 23.1). Isaiah gives them the divine assurance of a monument and a name better than sons or daughters. 3.16 It was believed that illegitimate children would not live long (Sir 23.25; 1 Enoch 10.9; Babylonian Talmud Yebamot 78b). 4.1 Better . . . is childlessness with virtue strikes a Platonic note. The life of the soul is paramount, so that physical childlessness is of little moment, provided the soul is productive (Plato Symposium 208E). 4.2 The sage's contest for virtue is contrasted with the unholy athletic contests (see 4 Macc 17.11–16; Plato Phaedrus 256B; Philo On Husbandry 113). 4.3 Strike a deep root. See Sir 23.25. 4.6 Witnesses . . . against their parents, a widespread motif (see Leviticus Rabbah 23.12; Pseudo-Phocylides The Sentences 178; Horace Odes 4.5.23; Gospel of Philip 78).

4.7–19 Premature death is justified by viewing it as a token of God's care. The author employs the popular philosophical conceit that one's true age is not measured chronologically, but by maturity of intellect and character (see Cicero Tusculans 5.5; Seneca Epistles 93.2), and further resorts to a Jewish tradition that Enoch had been removed by God early to forestall the imminent perversion of his character (Genesis Rabbah 25.1).

- 8 For old age is not honored for length of time,
or measured by number of years;
9 but understanding is gray hair
for anyone,
and a blameless life is ripe
old age.
- 10 There were some who pleased
God and were loved
by him,
and while living among sinners
were taken up.
- 11 They were caught up so that evil
might not change their understanding
or guile deceive their souls.
- 12 For the fascination of wickedness
obscures what is good,
and roving desire perverts the innocent mind.
- 13 Being perfected in a short time,
they fulfilled long years;
- 14 for their souls were pleasing to
the Lord,
therefore he took them quickly
from the midst of wickedness.
- 15 Yet the peoples saw and did not understand,
or take such a thing to heart,
that God's grace and mercy are
with his elect,
and that he watches over his holy ones.
- 16 The righteous who have died will condemn the ungodly who are living,
and youth that is quickly
perfected¹ will condemn the prolonged old age of the unrighteous.

- 17 For they will see the end of the wise,
and will not understand what the Lord purposed for them,
and for what he kept them safe.
- 18 The unrighteous^m will see, and will have contempt for
them,
but the Lord will laugh them to scorn.
After this they will become dishonored corpses,
and an outrage among the dead
forever;
- 19 because he will dash them
speechless to the ground,
and shake them from the foundations;
they will be left utterly dry and barren,
and they will suffer anguish,
and the memory of them will perish.

The Final Judgment

- 20 They will come with dread when their sins are reckoned up,
and their lawless deeds will convict them to their face.
- 5 Then the righteous will stand with great confidence
in the presence of those who have oppressed them
and those who make light of their labors.
- 2 When the unrighteousⁿ see them, they will be shaken
with dreadful fear,
and they will be amazed at the unexpected salvation of the righteous.

4.10 Some who pleased God and were loved by him, lit. "being well pleasing to God he was dearly loved." The reference is to Enoch. We have here the first example of the author's deliberate avoidance of proper names, revealing his disinterest in the historical differences between the biblical figures to whom he alludes and his concern only for the repeated manifestations of universal types, such as the righteous and the wicked. The same technique is employed in Philo On the Virtues 199–219 and the Testament of Orpheus 27–32, 41–42. 4.11 Seneca similarly consoles Marcia for the loss of her sons by noting that even noble natures do not maintain into old age the expectations of their youth (To Marcia 22). 4.12 Roving desire, a Greek expression, most likely a Stoic coinage (Marcus Aurelius Meditations 2.7). 4.18 Laugh them to scorn. See Prov 1.26; Ps 2.4; 1 Enoch 94.10; Sifre Numbers 117.

4.20–5.23 A tableau of the final judgment, colored by the language and imagery of Isa 52.13–15; 59.16–17. The speech of the wicked in vv. 4–13 is the counterpart to their monologue in 2.1–20. 5.1 The great confidence of the righteous

- 3 They will speak to one another in repentance,
and in anguish of spirit they will groan, and say,
4 "These are persons whom we once held in derision
and made a byword of reproach — fools that we were!
We thought that their lives were madness
and that their end was without honor.
5 Why have they been numbered among the children of God?
And why is their lot among the saints?
6 So it was we who strayed from the way of truth,
and the light of righteousness did not shine on us,
and the sun did not rise upon us.
7 We took our fill of the paths of lawlessness and destruction,
and we journeyed through trackless deserts,
but the way of the Lord we have not known.
8 What has our arrogance profited us?
And what good has our boasted wealth brought us?
9 "All those things have vanished like a shadow,
and like a rumor that passes by;
10 like a ship that sails through the billowy water,
and when it has passed no trace can be found,
no track of its keel in the waves;
11 or as, when a bird flies through the air,
no evidence of its passage is found;
the light air, lashed by the beat of its pinions
and pierced by the force of its rushing flight,
is traversed by the movement of its wings,
and afterward no sign of its coming is found there; 12 or as, when an arrow is shot at a target,
the air, thus divided, comes together at once,
so that no one knows its pathway.
13 So we also, as soon as we were born, ceased to be,
and we had no sign of virtue to show,
but were consumed in our wickedness." 14 Because the hope of the ungodly is like thistledown^o carried by the wind, and like a light frost^p driven away by a storm;
it is dispersed like smoke before the wind,
and it passes like the remembrance of a guest who stays but a day.
15 But the righteous live forever,
and their reward is with the Lord;
the Most High takes care of them.
16 Therefore they will receive a glorious crown
and a beautiful diadem from the hand of the Lord,
because with his right hand he will cover them,
and with his arm he will shield them.
17 The Lord^q will take his zeal as his whole armor,
and will arm all creation to repel^r his enemies;
18 he will put on righteousness as a breastplate,

contrasts with the speechlessness of the wicked (4.19). 5.9–14 Multiple similes illustrate the author's point. Similarly, in 7.25–8.1 he employs five metaphors to describe Wisdom's origin. 5.10 Like a ship. The image is of a light skiff gliding over the water's surface and leaving no impression, like the reed boats in Job 9.26.

5.14 Like . . . a guest who stays but a day, a vivid image of the transitoriness of the wicked (cf. Jer 14.8). 5.17–20 These verses are modeled on Isa 59.17, where God is presented as a warrior arming himself with his own attributes for chastisement of the wicked and deliverance of the godly. Similar imagery appears in Rom 13.12; 2 Cor 6.7;

- and wear impartial justice as a helmet;
 19 he will take holiness as an invincible shield,
 20 and sharpen stern wrath for a sword,
 and creation will join with him to fight against his frenzied foes.
 21 Shafts of lightning will fly with true aim,
 and will leap from the clouds to the target, as from a well-drawn bow, 22 and hailstones full of wrath will be hurled as from a catapult;
 the water of the sea will rage against them,
 and rivers will relentlessly overwhelm them;
 23 a mighty wind will rise against them,
 and like a tempest it will winnow them away.
 Lawlessness will lay waste the whole earth,
 and evildoing will overturn the thrones of rulers.

Kings Should Seek Wisdom

- 6 Listen therefore, O kings, and understand;
 learn, O judges of the ends of the earth.
 2 Give ear, you that rule over multitudes,
 and boast of many nations.
 3 For your dominion was given you from the Lord,
 and your sovereignty from the Most High;
 he will search out your works and inquire into your plans.
 4 Because as servants of his kingdom you did not rule rightly,
 or keep the law,

- or walk according to the purpose of God,
 5 he will come upon you terribly and swiftly,
 because severe judgment falls on those in high places.
 6 For the lowliest may be pardoned in mercy,
 but the mighty will be mightily tested.
 7 For the Lord of all will not stand in awe of anyone,
 or show deference to greatness;
 because he himself made both small and great,
 and he takes thought for all alike.
 8 But a strict inquiry is in store for the mighty.
 9 To you then, O monarchs, my words are directed,
 so that you may learn wisdom and not transgress.
 10 For they will be made holy who observe holy things in holiness, and those who have been taught them will find a defense.
 11 Therefore set your desire on my words;
 long for them, and you will be instructed.
 12 Wisdom is radiant and unfading,
 and she is easily discerned by those who love her,
 and is found by those who seek her.
 13 She hastens to make herself known to those who desire her.
 14 One who rises early to seek her will have no difficulty,
 for she will be found sitting at the gate.
 15 To fix one's thought on her is perfect understanding,
 and one who is vigilant on her account will soon be free from care,

Eph 6.14–17; Testament of Levi 8.2. 5.20 Creation will join with him, a favorite thought of the author (see also 16.17, 24; 19.6). Similarly, in Judg 5.20 the stars join the battle against Sisera (cf. Sir 39.28–31).

6.1–21 An exhortation to Wisdom with her gifts of immortality and sovereignty. 6.1 Judges of the ends of the earth refers to the spreading power of Roman rule. 6.3 Dominion translates a Greek term (kratēsis) frequently used in papyri to date the capture of Alexandria by Augustus Caesar. 6.4 The law, not Mosaic law, but the natural prin-

16 because she goes about seeking those worthy of her,
and she graciously appears to them in their paths,
and meets them in every thought.

17 The beginning of wisdom^s is the most sincere desire for instruction,
and concern for instruction is love of her,

18 and love of her is the keeping of her laws,
and giving heed to her laws is assurance of immortality,

19 and immortality brings one near
to God;

20 so the desire for wisdom leads to a kingdom.

21 Therefore if you delight in thrones and scepters, O monarchs over the peoples,
honor wisdom, so that you may reign forever.

Description of Wisdom

22 I will tell you what wisdom is and how she came to be,
and I will hide no secrets
from you,
but I will trace her course from the beginning of creation,

and make knowledge of her clear,
and I will not pass by the truth;

23 nor will I travel in the company
of sickly envy,
for envy^t does not associate with
wisdom.

24 The multitude of the wise is the salvation of the world,
and a sensible king is the stability
of any people.

25 Therefore be instructed by my words, and you will profit.

Solomon Like Other Mortals

7 I also am mortal, like everyone else,
a descendant of the first-formed child of earth;
and in the womb of a mother I
was molded into flesh, 2 within the period of ten months,
compacted with blood,
from the seed of a man and the pleasure of marriage.
3 And when I was born, I began to breathe the common air,
and fell upon the kindred earth;
my first sound was a cry, as is true of all.
4 I was nursed with care in swaddling cloths.

ciples of justice. 6.17–20 A six-part chain syllogism (in Greek sorites), in which statements proceed step by step to a climactic conclusion, each successive statement picking up the last key word or phrase from the one before. This stylistic device is common in Greco-Roman, Indian, and Chinese literature and also occurs in ancient Egyptian and Semitic wisdom writings.

6.22–25 Wisdom's mysteries revealed. In 1 Enoch 51.3 the Elect One is said to pour forth all the secrets of wisdom, and a favorite Qumran expression is "to give knowledge in the marvelous mysteries of God" (Dead Sea Scrolls Thanksgiving Hymns [1QH] 4.27; 7.27; 11.9). 6.23 Envy is personified (as in Ovid Metamorphoses 2.770–80). That envy does not associate with wisdom is a well-known Platonic motif (Phaedrus 247A; Timaeus 29E); it is also very prominent in Philo, who asserts that wisdom "never closes her school of thought but always opens her doors to those who thirst for the sweet water of discourse" (Every Good Man Is Free 13). 6.24 This vocation of the wise to be the salvation of the world is frequently referred to by Philo and the rabbis.

7.1–6 In keeping with the Jewish view, the author emphasizes the human side of the king, unlike pagan writers who often treated the king as divine (cf. Letter of Aristeas 352–63; 282). 7.1 First-formed, a standard epithet of Adam (cf. 1 Tim 2.13; Testament of Abraham A 11.9; Philo Questions on Exodus 2.46; Pseudo-Philo Biblical Antiquities 13.8). 7.2 A widespread view in the ancient world was that pregnancy lasted ten months. According to Roman law, ten lunar months made up the full period of gestation. Compacted with blood. A better translation is "curdled"; cf. Job 10.10; Aristotle Generation of Animals 739b21. That the menstrual blood is the material from which the seminal fluid produces the embryo was a common concept in ancient Greek science. Pleasure, part of the author's scientific description. See Aristotle Generation of Animals 728a10. 7.3 Kindred. A better translation is "that suffers the same from all," i.e., mother earth that all both use and misuse.

- 5 For no king has had a different
beginning of existence;
6 there is for all one entrance into life, and one way out.

Solomon's Respect for Wisdom

- 7 Therefore I prayed, and understanding was given me;
I called on God, and the spirit of wisdom came to me.
8 I preferred her to scepters and thrones,
and I accounted wealth as nothing in comparison
with her.
9 Neither did I liken to her any priceless gem,
because all gold is but a little
sand in her sight,
and silver will be accounted as clay before her.
10 I loved her more than health and beauty,
and I chose to have her rather than light,
because her radiance never ceases.
11 All good things came to me along
with her,
and in her hands uncouth
wealth.
12 I rejoiced in them all, because wisdom leads them;
but I did not know that she was
their mother.
13 I learned without guile and I
impart without grudging;
I do not hide her wealth, 14 for it is an unfailing treasure for mortals;

those who get it obtain friendship
with God,
commended for the gifts that come from instruction.

Solomon Prays for Wisdom

- 15 May God grant me to speak with
judgment,
and to have thoughts worthy of what I have received;
for he is the guide even of
wisdom
and the corrector of the wise.
16 For both we and our words are in his hand,
as are all understanding and skill
in crafts.
17 For it is he who gave me unerring knowledge of what exists,
to know the structure of the world and the activity of the elements;
18 the beginning and end and
middle of times,
the alternations of the solstices
and the changes of the seasons, 19 the cycles of the year and the constellations of the stars, 20 the natures of animals and the
tempers of wild animals,
the powers of spirits^u and the thoughts of human beings,
the varieties of plants and the virtues of roots;
21 I learned both what is secret and what is manifest,
22 for wisdom, the fashioner of all things, taught me.

^u Or winds

7.7–14 A passage reflecting Philo's position in its more moderate mood: one should seek wisdom for its own sake, but all other goods will inevitably follow. 7.7 Prayed. See 1 Kings 3.6–15; 8.12–53; Sir 51.13. 7.11 Came to me along with her. Cf. 1 Kings 3.13; Mt 6.33; Midrash Rabbah Song 1.1.9. 7.13 Without grudging. See Plato Symposium 210A; Pseudo-Aristotle On the Cosmos 391a17; Xenophon Symposium 4.43.

7.15–22a Divine wisdom is here identified with the full range of human science and philosophy. Cf. Aeschylus Prometheus Bound 436–506 and the striking parallel in Pseudo-Plato Axiochus 370B, where it is argued that it is only through the divine breath in the soul that such knowledge can be attained and immortality be assured. The passage is inspired by the Greek philosophical argument from design, in which God's works are seen as a manifestation of his existence and wise regime. 7.18 Beginning and end and middle, a phrase deriving from the Orphic theogony and one that recurs in the Hellenistic-Jewish poem Orphica, v. 39. 7.22a Fashioner, the Stoics defined nature as "an artistically working fire going on its way to create" (Diogenes Laertius Lives of Philosophers 7.156).

7.22b–24 Wisdom is described in a series of twenty-one epithets borrowed largely from

The Nature of Wisdom

- There is in her a spirit that is intelligent, holy,
 unique, manifold, subtle,
 mobile, clear, unpolluted,
 distinct, invulnerable, loving the good, keen,
 irresistible, ²³beneficent, humane,
 steadfast, sure, free from anxiety,
 all-powerful, overseeing all,
 and penetrating through all spirits
 that are intelligent, pure, and altogether subtle.
- 24 For wisdom is more mobile than
 any motion;
 because of her pureness she pervades and penetrates all things.
- 25 For she is a breath of the power
 of God,
 and a pure emanation of the glory of the Almighty;
 therefore nothing defiled gains
 entrance into her.
- 26 For she is a reflection of eternal
 light,
 a spotless mirror of the working
 of God,
 and an image of his goodness.
- 27 Although she is but one, she can do all things,

- and while remaining in herself,
 she renews all things;
 in every generation she passes
 into holy souls
 and makes them friends of God,
 and prophets;
- 28 for God loves nothing so much as the person who lives with
 wisdom.
- 29 She is more beautiful than
 the sun,
 and excels every constellation of the stars.
 Compared with the light she is found to be superior, 30 for it is succeeded by the night,
 but against wisdom evil does not prevail.
- 8 She reaches mightily from one end
 of the earth to the other,
 and she orders all things well.

Solomon's Love for Wisdom

- 2 I loved her and sought her from
 my youth;
 I desired to take her for my bride,
 and became enamored of her
 beauty.
- 3 She glorifies her noble birth by living with God,
 and the Lord of all loves her.

Greek philosophy. There are numerous parallels for such serial lists in the ancient world. 7.22b Anaxagoras (Fragment 12) describes cosmic mind as the most subtle of all things. 7.24 Pervades and penetrates, technical Stoic phraseology reflecting the principle of "body going through body." 7.25–26 The author employs a fivefold metaphor to emphasize the notion that Wisdom is an emanation from God's power and glory—a bold move for one writing within the biblical tradition; even the more philosophically ambitious Philo backs off from such explicit terminology in describing the origin of the Logos. 7.25 Emanation, the earliest attestation of the explicit application of this Greek term (aporroia) to Sophia as an effluence from God. 7.26 Heb 1.3 refers to Christ as a reflection of God's glory. Image, a favorite Platonic metaphor. Philo speaks of the Logos as the image of God. 7.27 Remaining in herself. Anaxagoras's cosmic mind similarly remains unmixed and motionless while moving all things (cf. Plato Timaeus 42E). 7.29 According to Philo, the sun is only an image of Wisdom, and according to his precursor Aristotulus "all light comes from Wisdom." In Pseudo-Philo Biblical Antiquities we read that Moses came down from the mountain covered with an invisible light that overcame the brightness of sun and moon (12.1–3). 8.1 From one end of the earth to the other. Cf. the similar description in Sir 24.3–6.

8.2–16 Solomon sought to make Wisdom his bride. In rabbinic literature, Torah is imaged as the daughter of God, a bride, and a mother. The bride image is based on a midrashic reading of the Hebrew word morashah, "possession," in Deut 33.4 as me'orasah, "betrothed." This feminine depiction is connected in some texts to the metaphorical depiction of the Sinai theophany as a wedding day. Cf. Prov 7.4; Sir 15.2. Similar sexual imagery is found in Philo's On Mating with the Preliminary Studies, where he develops an allegory in which Abraham, the Soul, is married to Sarah, Wisdom. 8.2 Sought her. Cf. Pseudo-Plato Epinomis 989A, "for I have sought this wisdom high and low." 8.3 Living with God. Philo similarly writes: "With his knowledge God had union, not as men have it, and begat created being" (On Sobriety 30).

- 4 For she is an initiate in the knowledge of God,
and an associate in his works.
5 If riches are a desirable possession in life,
what is richer than wisdom, the
active cause of all things?
6 And if understanding is effective,
who more than she is fashioner
of what exists?
7 And if anyone loves
righteousness,
her labors are virtues;
for she teaches self-control and prudence,
justice and courage;
nothing in life is more profitable
for mortals than these.
8 And if anyone longs for wide experience,
she knows the things of old, and
infers the things to come;
she understands turns of speech
and the solutions of riddles;
she has foreknowledge of signs
and wonders
and of the outcome of seasons
and times.
9 Therefore I determined to take her to live with me,
knowing that she would give me
good counsel
and encouragement in cares and
grief.
10 Because of her I shall have glory
among the multitudes
and honor in the presence of the elders, though I am young.
11 I shall be found keen in
judgment,
and in the sight of rulers I shall be admired.
12 When I am silent they will wait
for me,

- and when I speak they will give heed;
if I speak at greater length,
they will put their hands on their mouths.
13 Because of her I shall have
immortality,
and leave an everlasting remembrance to those who come after me.
14 I shall govern peoples,
and nations will be subject to me; 15 dread monarchs will be afraid of
me when they hear of me;
among the people I shall show myself capable, and courageous in war.
16 When I enter my house, I shall find rest with her;
for companionship with her has
no bitterness,
and life with her has no pain, but gladness and joy.

God's Gift of Wisdom

- 17 When I considered these things
inwardly,
and pondered in my heart
that in kinship with wisdom there is immortality,
18 and in friendship with her, pure delight,
and in the labors of her hands,
unfailing wealth,
and in the experience of her
company, understanding,
and renown in sharing her words,
I went about seeking how to get her for myself.
19 As a child I was naturally gifted,
and a good soul fell to my lot;
20 or rather, being good, I entered an undefiled body.

8.5–8 The four successive clauses beginning with if are another example of the author's striving for rhetorical effect. 8.7 Self-control and prudence, justice and courage. The four cardinal virtues go back to Plato (Phaedo 69C). Cf. 4 Macc 1.18. 8.16 Find rest, the same idea in Sir 6.28 and a central theme in Philo. Cf. Plato Republic 490B.

8.17–21 Wisdom is a sheer gift of God's grace. 8.17 Kinship with Wisdom is a characteristic teaching of Plato (Timaeus 90A) and the Stoics. Philo takes up the theme with equal vigor. 8.19 Moses too, according to Philo, had a naturally gifted soul (Life of Moses 1.9), and in general "God drops from above the ethereal wisdom upon minds that are naturally well endowed" (On Flight and Finding 138). 8.20 I entered an undefiled body clearly implies the notion of the soul's preexistence. Cf. 2 Enoch 23.4–5; 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 23.5; Philo On Dreams 1.135–41. In Testament of Naphtali 2.2 it is said that God implants the spirit according to the capacity of the body.

- 21 But I perceived that I would not possess wisdom unless God gave her to me—and it was a mark of insight to know whose gift she was—so I appealed to the Lord and implored him,
and with my whole heart I said:

Solomon's Prayer for Wisdom

- 9 "O God of my ancestors and Lord of mercy,
who have made all things by your word,
2 and by your wisdom have formed humankind
to have dominion over the creatures you have made,
3 and rule the world in holiness and righteousness,
and pronounce judgment in uprightness of soul,
4 give me the wisdom that sits by your throne,
and do not reject me from among your servants.
5 For I am your servant^v the son of your serving girl,
a man who is weak and short-lived,
with little understanding of judgment and laws;
6 for even one who is perfect among human beings
will be regarded as nothing without the wisdom that comes from you.

- 7 You have chosen me to be king of your people
and to be judge over your sons and daughters.
8 You have given command to build a temple on your holy mountain,
and an altar in the city of your habitation,
a copy of the holy tent that you prepared from the beginning.
9 With you is wisdom, she who knows your works
and was present when you made the world;
she understands what is pleasing in your sight
and what is right according to your commandments.
10 Send her forth from the holy heavens,
and from the throne of your glory send her,
that she may labor at my side,
and that I may learn what is pleasing to you.
11 For she knows and understands all things,
and she will guide me wisely in my actions
and guard me with her glory.
12 Then my works will be acceptable,
and I shall judge your people justly,
and shall be worthy of the throne^w of my father.

8.21 Unless God gave her to me. So too in Pseudo-Plato Epinomis 989D even those naturally gifted "cannot get this teaching either, unless God gives his guidance."

9.1–18 The prayer consists of three strophes (vv. 1–6, 7–12, 13–18) chiasmically arranged. The author presents his own version of Solomon's prayer (1 Kings 3.6–9; 2 Chr 1.8–10). 9.1 By your word. Cf. Ps 33.6; Sir 39.17; Sibylline Oracles 3.20. 9.2 By your wisdom, an emphatic theme in the Dead Sea Scrolls (cf. 2 Enoch A 30.8). 9.4 Wisdom . . . sits by your throne. In Greek literature, Justice is pictured as sitting with Zeus, and the same image is frequent in Philo. 9.5 Weak and short-lived. Cf. 1 Chr 29.15; Philo Who Is the Heir 58. 9.6 Philo also never tires of insisting that without divine help we could accomplish nothing. 9.8 Your holy mountain, Mount Moriah, which became identified with the place where Abraham was commanded to sacrifice Isaac, see 2 Chr 3.1. According to rabbinic tradition even before the creation of the world there already existed a supernal temple of which the earthly temple is a copy. The same notion is found in the Dead Sea Scrolls and in Heb 8–10 and is also widespread in the Pseudepigrapha. Philo too tells us that the tabernacle is a representation and copy of wisdom (Who Is the Heir 112). Moreover, the notion of heavenly archetypes of earthly things was well known in ancient Babylonia. 9.9 When you made the world. Cf. Prov 8.22, a verse cited both by Aristobulus and Philo. 9.10 In his famous Hymn to Zeus, the Stoic philosopher Cleanthes prays that Zeus bestow the wisdom by which he steers all

- 13 For who can learn the counsel
of God?
Or who can discern what the Lord wills?
14 For the reasoning of mortals is worthless,
and our designs are likely to fail;
15 for a perishable body weighs
down the soul,
and this earthy tent burdens the thoughtful^x mind.
16 We can hardly guess at what is on earth,
and what is at hand we find with labor;
but who has traced out what is in the heavens?
17 Who has learned your counsel,
unless you have given wisdom and sent your holy spirit from on high?
18 And thus the paths of those on earth were set right,
and people were taught what pleases you,
and were saved by wisdom."

The Work of Wisdom from Adam to Moses

10 Wisdom^y protected the first-formed father of the world, when he alone had been created;

- she delivered him from his
transgression,
2 and gave him strength to rule all
things.
3 But when an unrighteous man departed from her in his anger,
he perished because in rage he killed his brother.
4 When the earth was flooded
because of him, wisdom
again saved it,
steering the righteous man by a paltry piece of wood.
5 Wisdom^y also, when the nations
in wicked agreement had been put to confusion, recognized the righteous man
and preserved him
blameless before God,
and kept him strong in the face
of his compassion for his child.
6 Wisdom^y rescued a righteous man when the ungodly
were perishing;
he escaped the fire that descended on the Five things in justice. 9.13 For who can learn. Cf. Prov 30.2–4; Isa 40.13–14; Sir 1.1–10; Bar 3.29–37; 2 Esd 4; 1 Enoch 93.11–14. A similar note is already found in the Babylonian poem I Will Praise the Lord of Wisdom 36–38. 9.15 The adverse influence of the body on the soul is emphatically taught by Plato in Phaedo (66B). That the body weighs down the soul is another widespread Platonic motif (Phaedo 81C) and fairly common in Philo and the Roman Stoics. Earthy tent, a Greek expression for the body, very frequent in Neo-Pythagorean writings. 9.16 This verse expresses a widespread literary conceit (Jdt 8.14; 2 Esd 4.11; Jn 3.12; Testament of Job 38.5; Babylonian Talmud Sanhedrin 39a).

10.1–21 Wisdom's saving and punishing power is illustrated by the enumeration of seven righteous heroes and their wicked counterparts. Miraculous eruptions in history are reinterpreted and described as the providential ordering of Israel's history through Wisdom's continuous election of holy servants. The author has constructed his ode to Wisdom by the use of anaphora, repetition of the same word at the beginning of successive verses. He thus introduces Wisdom throughout the chapter with the emphatic Greek pronoun hautē ("she"), which marks off six sections each of which contains the word righteous once (vv. 1–4, 5, 6–8, 9–12, 13–14, 15–21). See the similar use of anaphora in Acts 7.35–38; Cicero's hymn to philosophy in Tusculans 5.5; Seneca To Marcia 20.2; and the Hellenistic aretalogies or hymns of praise discovered in Egypt. 10.1 Father of the world, Adam. 10.3 An unrighteous man, Cain. Killed his brother. Philo thrice applies the adjective "fratricidal" to Cain. 10.4 Because of him. As the first murderer, Cain serves as a paradigm of wickedness, so that the cause of the flood can be ascribed to him. The verb translated steering here is also employed by Stoics to describe the guiding power of Logos. According to the midrash Genesis Rabbah 34.8, the stars did not function during the flood, implying that Noah's ark was piloted by God. The righteous man here is Noah. 10.5 The righteous man, Abraham. According to Genesis Rabbah 38.6, Abraham was a contemporary of the generation of the Tower of Babel. 10.6 A righteous man, Lot.

- 7 Evidence of their wickedness still remains:
a continually smoking wasteland,
plants bearing fruit that does not ripen,
and a pillar of salt standing as a monument to an unbelieving soul.
- 8 For because they passed wisdom by,
they not only were hindered from recognizing the good,
but also left for humankind a reminder of their folly,
so that their failures could never go unnoticed.
- 9 Wisdom rescued from troubles those who served her.
- 10 When a righteous man fled from his brother's wrath,
she guided him on straight paths;
she showed him the kingdom of God,
and gave him knowledge of holy things;
she prospered him in his labors,
and increased the fruit of his toil.
- 11 When his oppressors were covetous,
she stood by him and made him rich.
- 12 She protected him from his enemies,
and kept him safe from those who lay in wait for him;
in his arduous contest she gave him the victory,
so that he might learn that godliness is more powerful than anything else.
- 13 When a righteous man was sold,
wisdom^a did not desert him,
but delivered him from sin.
She descended with him into the dungeon,
- 14 and when he was in prison she did not leave him,
until she brought him the scepter of a kingdom
and authority over his masters.
Those who accused him she showed to be false,
and she gave him everlasting honor.
- 15 A holy people and blameless race wisdom delivered from a nation of oppressors.
- 16 She entered the soul of a servant of the Lord,
and withstood dread kings with wonders and signs.
- 17 She gave to holy people the reward of their labors;
she guided them along a marvelous way,
and became a shelter to them by day,
and a starry flame through the night.
- 18 She brought them over the Red Sea,
and led them through deep waters;
- 19 but she drowned their enemies,
and cast them up from the depth of the sea.
- 20 Therefore the righteous plundered the ungodly;

10.7 Evidence . . . still remains. Both Philo and Josephus speak of vestiges of the divine fire as still visible. Fruit that does not ripen. See Josephus Jewish War 4.484; Tacitus Histories 5.7. A pillar of salt. Josephus writes: "I have seen this pillar of salt which remains to this day" (Antiquities 1.203–204). The erosion of the salt mountain along the south end of the Dead Sea has caused pinnacles to stand out, which many writers have likened to Lot's wife. 10.10 A righteous man, Jacob. Showed him the kingdom of God and gave him knowledge of holy things. According to Testament of Levi 9.3 Jacob saw a vision concerning Levi that he should be a priest unto God, and in 5.1–2 Levi is privileged with a vision of the heavenly temple. Our author may be alluding to such a vision by Jacob. 10.12 Arduous contest, a reference to Jacob's struggle with the angel (Gen. 32.25–33). So that he might learn. Jacob's struggle is given a symbolic meaning. 10.13 A righteous man, Joseph. 10.16 Servant of the Lord, Moses (see Isa 63.11–14). 10.17 The reward of their labors, the objects of silver and gold "borrowed" by the Israelites from the Egyptians before leaving Egypt (Ex 11.2; 12.35–36; cf. Ps 105.37; Jubilees 48.18; Ezekiel Exagoge 165; Philo Life of Moses 1.140–42). Shelter, starry flame. The pillar of cloud and of fire (Ex 13.21–22) is allegorized as Wisdom. 10.20 Plundered the ungodly. Demetrius, the earliest known Greco-Jewish writer, had already attempted to answer the ques-

- they sang hymns, O Lord, to your holy name,
and praised with one accord your defending hand;
21 for wisdom opened the mouths of those who were mute,
and made the tongues of infants
speak clearly.

Wisdom Led the Israelites Through the Desert

- 11 Wisdom^b prospered their works
by the hand of a holy prophet.
2 They journeyed through an uninhabited wilderness,
and pitched their tents in untrodden places.
3 They withstood their enemies and fought off their foes.
4 When they were thirsty, they called upon you,
and water was given them out of
flinty rock,
and from hard stone a remedy
for their thirst.
5 For through the very things by which their enemies were punished,
they themselves received benefit
in their need.
6 Instead of the fountain of an ever-flowing river,
stirred up and defiled with blood

- 7 in rebuke for the decree to kill
the infants,
you gave them abundant water
unexpectedly,
8 showing by their thirst at that time
how you punished their enemies.
9 For when they were tried, though they were being disciplined
in mercy,
they learned how the ungodly
were tormented when judged in wrath.
10 For you tested them as a parent^c
does in warning,
but you examined the ungodly^d
as a stern king does in condemnation.
11 Whether absent or present, they were equally distressed, 12 for a twofold grief possessed
them,
and a groaning at the memory of what had occurred.
13 For when they heard that through their own punishments
the righteous^e had received benefit, they perceived it was the Lord's doing.

tion raised as to how the Israelites, who left Egypt unarmed, managed to obtain arms (cf. Josephus Antiquities 2.349). With one accord. Cf. 2 Enoch 19.6; Ascension of Isaiah 7.15; Testament of Solomon 18.2; Midrash Rabbah Song 8.15. In Zoroastrian texts, the Bounteous Immortals are seven beings who are "of one mind, of one voice, of one act." Cf. also Hesiod Theogony 60. 10.21 The tongues of infants alludes to an early Jewish tradition that even the infants sang God's praises (Tosefta Sota 6.4).

11.1–14 After an introductory narrative (vv. 1–4), which speaks of the successful advance of the Israelites through the desert, we get an elaborate synkrisis or comparison, in which the author employs seven antitheses (the first one here, the other six in 16.1–19.22) to illustrate his theme that Egypt was punished measure for measure and Israel was benefited by the very things with which Egypt was punished. Already in the biblical account, the contrast between the fate of the Egyptians and the Israelites is clearly spelled out in five of the ten plagues. 11.6 An ever-flowing river, the Nile. 11.7 In rebuke. The same notion appears in Pirke Rabbi Eliezer 19, where it is stated that God plagued the waters of the Nile because the Egyptians had cast the children of the Israelites into the Nile. 11.8 The author here enunciates a principle that recurs in 16.4, that it was pedagogically necessary that the Israelites have a taste of their enemies' punishments. The medieval Jewish exegete Ibn Ezra (on Ex 7.24) similarly takes the absence of an explicit notice that the Israelites were exempt from the first three plagues to mean that they affected the Egyptians and Israelites alike. 11.9 Tried. See Deut 8.2–5. 11.11 The Egyptians suffered both when the Israelites were present with them in Egypt (they were afflicted by the plagues) and when the Israelites were absent from them in the wilderness (they were overwhelmed in the sea). 11.12 They were pained twofold, both at their own calamity and by the fact that it brought deliverance to the Israelites.

- 14 For though they had mockingly rejected him who long before had been cast out
and exposed,
at the end of the events they marveled at him,
when they felt thirst in a different way from the righteous.

Punishment of the Wicked

- 15 In return for their foolish and wicked thoughts,
which led them astray to worship
irrational serpents and worthless animals,
you sent upon them a multitude of irrational creatures to punish them,
16 so that they might learn that one is punished by the very things by which one sins.
17 For your all-powerful hand,
which created the world out of formless matter,
did not lack the means to send upon them a multitude of bears, or bold lions, 18 or newly-created unknown beasts
full of rage,
or such as breathe out fiery
breath,
or belch forth a thick pall of smoke,
or flash terrible sparks from their
eyes;
19 not only could the harm they did destroy people,^f

- but the mere sight of them could kill by fright.
20 Even apart from these, peoples^g
could fall at a single breath
when pursued by justice
and scattered by the breath of
your power.
But you have arranged all things
by measure and number and weight.

- 21 For it is always in your power to show great strength,
and who can withstand the might
of your arm?
22 Because the whole world before you is like a speck that tips
the scales,
and like a drop of morning dew
that falls on the ground.
23 But you are merciful to all, for you can do all things,
and you overlook people's sins, so that they may repent.
24 For you love all things that exist,
and detest none of the things that you have made,
for you would not have made anything if you had hated it.
25 How would anything have endured if you had not willed it?
Or how would anything not called forth by you have been preserved?

11.15–12.2 An excursus dealing with the nature and purpose of divine mercy. The Egyptians could have been smashed with one blow, but God never acts arbitrarily. His omnipotence guarantees his all-embracing love, and his very act of creation is a manifestation of this love, precluding the possibility of hatred toward any of his creatures. 11.15 Irrational serpents and worthless animals. Cf. Letter of Aristeas 138; Philo Decalogue 76–80. Roman ridicule of Egyptian animal worship is best illustrated by Octavian's remark when asked if he would like to visit the Apis bull: "My custom is to worship gods, not cattle" (Dio Cassius Roman History 51.16.5). 11.16 The law of retaliation occurs three times in the Pentateuch (Ex 21.23–25; Lev 24.18–20; Deut 19.21) and appears frequently in the Pseudepigrapha. The rabbis were equally fond of elaborating this principle (Tosefta Sota 3–4). 11.17 The doctrine is Platonic, but for the terminology of formless matter, see Aristotle Physics 191a10, and Posidonius frag. 92. Philo raises the same question as this author about whether God lacks the means to create, and his first answer is similar to that given in v. 23 (Life of Moses 1.109–12). 11.20 By measure and number and weight. God's actions always follow the mathematical laws by which he governs the entire cosmos. Disproportionate punishments such as those described in vv. 17–19 are therefore ruled out. Cf. Job 28.25; Isa 40.12; 2 Esd 4.36–37; Testament of Naphtali 2.3. Philo placed special emphasis on this notion (On Dreams 2.193; cf. Plato Laws 575B). 11.22 Cf. Isa 40.15. 11.24 Detest none . . . that you have made. Cf. Sir 15.11. This view is in sharp contrast with that of the Dead Sea sect.

26 You spare all things, for they are yours, O Lord, you who love the living.

12 For your immortal spirit is in all things.

2 Therefore you correct little by little those who trespass, and you remind and warn them of the things through which they sin, so that they may be freed from wickedness and put their trust in you, O Lord.

The Sins of the Canaanites

3 Those who lived long ago in your holy land

4 you hated for their detestable practices, their works of sorcery and unholy rites,

5 their merciless slaughter^h of children, and their sacrificial feasting on human flesh and blood. These initiates from the midst of a heathen cult,ⁱ

6 these parents who murder helpless lives, you willed to destroy by the hands of our ancestors, 7 so that the land most precious of all to you might receive a worthy colony of the servants^j of God.

8 But even these you spared, since they were but mortals, and sent wasps^k as forerunners of your army to destroy them little by little, 9 though you were not unable to give the ungodly into the hands of the righteous in battle, or to destroy them at one blow by dread wild animals or your stern word.

10 But judging them little by little you gave them an opportunity to repent, though you were not unaware that their origin^l was evil and their wickedness inborn, and that their way of thinking would never change.

11 For they were an accursed race from the beginning, and it was not through fear of anyone that you left them unpunished for their sins.

12 For who will say, "What have you done?" or will resist your judgment? Who will accuse you for the destruction of nations that you made?

Or who will come before you to plead as an advocate for the unrighteous?

13 For neither is there any god besides you, whose care is for all people,^m to whom you should prove that you have not judged unjustly;

12.3–18 An attempt to justify the Israelite conquest of Canaan. In Jewish-Hellenistic apologetics, this issue occupied no small place. The author of Jubilees rewrote Genesis to prove that the land of Canaan was originally allotted to Shem and illegally seized by Canaan (8.8–11; 9.14–15; 10.29–34; cf. Genesis Rabbah 56.14) and Philo's account of the conquest of Canaan is openly apologetic (Hypothetica 6.5; Special Laws 2.170). 12.3 Holy land. For this designation, which appears neither in Josephus nor in Tannaitic literature, see Zech 2.12; 2 Macc 1.7; 2 Esd 13.48; Pseudo-Philo Biblical Antiquities 19.20; 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 63.10; Testament of Job 33.5, where it is a metaphor for heaven. 12.5 Slaughter of children. The sacrifices of Molech described in the Bible (Lev 18.21; 20.2–5) are identical with the *mol*k sacrifices in North Africa and were kept up for a very long time. There is also evidence of human sacrifice in Egypt during the Roman period. Sacrificial, lit. "entail-devouring." The charge of feasting on human flesh and blood appears to be an exaggeration and turns the tables on those who, like Damocritus and Apion, had hurled the charge of cannibalism against the Jews. 12.8 Wasps. See Ex 23.28 (and text note there). 12.10 Their origin was evil. A similar notion is found in 2 Esd 4.30. 12.11 Accursed race refers to the curse laid upon Canaan (Gen 9.25–27), but there is no hint in the biblical text of a curse that entails moral degeneracy. Cf. Wis 3.12–13; Sir 33.12; Jubilees 22.20–21. 12.12 See Job 9.12; Eccl 8.4; Dan 4.32; Rom 9.20; Genesis Rabbah 1.2.

- 14 nor can any king or monarch confront you about those whom you have punished.
- 15 You are righteous and you rule
all things righteously,
deeming it alien to your power to condemn anyone who does not deserve to be punished.
- 16 For your strength is the source of
righteousness,
and your sovereignty over all
causes you to spare all.
- 17 For you show your strength when people doubt the completeness of your
power,
and you rebuke any insolence
among those who know it.ⁿ
- 18 Although you are sovereign in strength, you judge with mildness,
and with great forbearance you govern us;
for you have power to act
whenever you choose.

God's Lessons for Israel

- 19 Through such works you have taught your people
that the righteous must be kind,
and you have filled your children
with good hope,
because you give repentance for
sins.
- 20 For if you punished with such great care and indulgence^p
the enemies of your servants^p
and those deserving of death,
granting them time and opportunity to give up
their wickedness,
- 21 with what strictness you have
judged your children,
to whose ancestors you gave oaths
and covenants full of good promises!
- 22 So while chastening us you scourge our enemies ten thousand times more,

so that, when we judge, we may meditate upon your goodness,
and when we are judged, we may expect mercy.

The Punishment of the Egyptians

- 23 Therefore those who lived unrighteously, in a life of
folly,
you tormented through their own abominations.
- 24 For they went far astray on the paths of error,
accepting as gods those animals
that even their enemies^q
despised;
they were deceived like foolish
infants.
- 25 Therefore, as though to children
who cannot reason,
you sent your judgment to mock
them.
- 26 But those who have not heeded
the warning of mild rebukes
will experience the deserved
judgment of God.
- 27 For when in their suffering they became incensed
at those creatures that they had thought to be gods, being punished by means of
them,
they saw and recognized as the true God the one whom they had before refused to know.
- Therefore the utmost condemnation came upon
them.

The Foolishness of Nature Worship

ignorant of God were foolish by nature;

ⁿ Meaning of Gk uncertain ^o Other ancient 13.1–15.19 The theme of Egyptian animal worship leads the author to a long excursus on idolatry (chs. 13–15), whose major components are clearly discernible in the analogous passages in Philo (Decalogue 52–81; Special Laws 1.13–31).

Both accounts may well derive from a common Jewish-Hellenistic apologetic tradition, although direct dependence of the one on the other is not to be ruled out. Our author presents the three forms of false worship in the form of a gradation:

- and they were unable from the good things that are seen to know the one who exists,
nor did they recognize the artisan while paying heed to his works;
- 2 but they supposed that either fire
or wind or swift air,
or the circle of the stars, or
turbulent water,
or the luminaries of heaven were
the gods that rule the world.
- 3 If through delight in the beauty
of these things people
assumed them to be gods,
let them know how much better than these is their Lord,
for the author of beauty created
them.
- 4 And if people^r were amazed at their power and working,
let them perceive from them
how much more powerful is the one who formed them.
- 5 For from the greatness and beauty of created things comes a corresponding perception of their Creator.
- 6 Yet these people are little to be blamed,
for perhaps they go astray
while seeking God and desiring to find him.
- 7 For while they live among his works, they keep searching,
and they trust in what they see,
because the things that are seen are beautiful.
- 8 Yet again, not even they are to be excused;
- 9 for if they had the power to know so much

that they could investigate the
world,
how did they fail to find sooner
the Lord of these things?

The Foolishness of Idolatry

- 10 But miserable, with their hopes set on dead things, are those who give the name "gods" to the works of human hands,
gold and silver fashioned with skill,
and likenesses of animals,
or a useless stone, the work of an ancient hand.
- 11 A skilled woodcutter may saw
down a tree easy to handle
and skillfully strip off all its bark,
and then with pleasing workmanship
make a useful vessel that serves
life's needs,
- 12 and burn the cast-off pieces of his work
to prepare his food, and eat his fill.
- 13 But a cast-off piece from among them, useful for nothing,
a stick crooked and full of knots,
he takes and carves with care in
his leisure,
and shapes it with skill gained in idleness;^s he forms it in the likeness of a human being,
- 14 or makes it like some worthless
animal,

^r Gk they ^s Other ancient authorities read with intelligent skill

the nature worshipers are described as foolish (13.1), the idolators as miserable (13.10), and the Egyptian animal worshipers as most foolish (15.14).

13.1–9 Worship of nature. 13.1 The one who exists, lit. "he who exists," is derived from Ex 3.14. Unlike Philo, who uses both the personal masculine form (Greek ho ōn) and the impersonal neuter (to on), the author of the Wisdom of Solomon uses only the former. 13.5 This is a well-known Stoic argument (already used by Plato and Aristotle and repeated by Philo): we form the concept of divinity from our awareness of the world's beauty, since no beautiful thing happens by chance but is the product of creative art.

13.6 While seeking God, a widespread motif (Philo On Abraham 124–30; Bhagavad Gita 7.16). 13.7 Nature worshipers are overly impressed by what they see, whereas the ultimate reality is invisible (cf. Heb 11.3; Plato Sophist 246A–B; Philo On Abraham 69; Testament of Orpheus 4–5). 13.9 Investigate the world, better "infer the universe."

13.10–14.11 Wooden image making. 13.10 Useless stone. Philo of Byblos defined the bethels, rough stones regarded as the residence of a god, as "animate stones"; the animate quality referred to is magnetism, very common in meteorites. 13.12 To prepare his food. See Isa 44.16; Apocalypse of Abraham 5; Mekilta on Ex 20.3.

and covering every blemish in it
with paint;
- 15 then he makes a suitable niche
for it,
and sets it in the wall, and fastens
it there with iron.
- 16 He takes thought for it, so that it may not fall,
because he knows that it cannot
help itself,
for it is only an image and has
need of help.
- 17 When he prays about possessions
and his marriage and
children,
he is not ashamed to address a lifeless thing.
- 18 For health he appeals to a thing
that is weak;
for life he prays to a thing that is
dead;
for aid he entreats a thing that is utterly inexperienced;
for a prosperous journey, a thing
that cannot take a step;
- 19 for money-making and work and success with his hands
he asks strength of a thing whose hands have no strength.
- 14 Again, one preparing to sail and about to voyage over raging
waves
calls upon a piece of wood more fragile than the ship that carries him.
- 2 For it was desire for gain that planned that vessel,
and wisdom was the artisan who
built it;
- 3 but it is your providence,
O Father, that steers its course,
because you have given it a path
in the sea,
- and a safe way through the
waves,
- 4 showing that you can save from every danger,
so that even a person who lacks
skill may put to sea.
- 5 It is your will that works of your wisdom should not be without effect;
therefore people trust their lives
even to the smallest piece
of wood,
and passing through the billows
on a raft they come safely
to land.
- 6 For even in the beginning, when arrogant giants were
perishing,
the hope of the world took refuge on a raft,
and guided by your hand left to the world the seed of a new generation.
- 7 For blessed is the wood by which righteousness comes.
- 8 But the idol made with hands is accursed, and so is the one who made it —
he for having made it, and the perishable thing because it was named a god.
- 9 For equally hateful to God are the ungodly and their ungodliness;
- 10 for what was done will be punished together with the one who did it.
- 11 Therefore there will be a visitation also upon the heathen idols,
because, though part of what God created, they became an abomination,
snares for human souls
and a trap for the feet of the foolish.

14.1 Calls upon a piece of wood. The divine twins, Castor and Pollux, the youths of Zeus (Dioscuri), were especially popular as rescuers from danger at sea. St. Elmo's fire, the electric discharge from the ship's mast during a thunderstorm, was regarded as their corporeal epiphany. According to Cyril of Alexandria (commenting on Acts 28.11), it was especially an Alexandrian custom to have pictures of the twins to right and left of the ship's pro. 14.3 Your providence . . . that steers, Platonic/Stoic terminology. 14.5 Works of your wisdom should not be without effect. God wishes to allow for a better distribution of nature's products (cf. Euripides Suppliant Women 209; Philo On Providence 2.65). 14.6 The hope of the world, Noah and his family (cf. 4 Macc 15.31). 14.7 Wood, Noah's ark. The church fathers applied this verse either directly or symbolically to the cross.

The Origin and Evils of Idolatry

- 12 For the idea of making idols was the beginning of fornication,
and the invention of them was
the corruption of life;
13 for they did not exist from the beginning,
nor will they last forever.
14 For through human vanity they entered the world,
and therefore their speedy end
has been planned.
- 15 For a father, consumed with grief
at an untimely
bereavement,
made an image of his child, who had been suddenly taken
from him;
he now honored as a god what was once a dead human being,
and handed on to his dependents
secret rites and initiations.
- 16 Then the ungodly custom, grown strong with time, was kept
as a law,
and at the command of monarchs carved images were worshiped.
- 17 When people could not honor monarchs^t in their presence, since they lived at a distance,
they imagined their appearance
far away,
and made a visible image of the
king whom they honored,
so that by their zeal they might flatter the absent one as though present.

- 18 Then the ambition of the artisan impelled
even those who did not know the king to intensify their worship.
- 19 For he, perhaps wishing to please
his ruler,
skillfully forced the likeness to take more beautiful form, 20 and the multitude, attracted by the charm of his work,
now regarded as an object of worship the one whom shortly before they had
honored as a human being.
- 21 And this became a hidden trap
for humankind,
because people, in bondage to misfortune or to royal authority,
bestowed on objects of stone or wood the name that ought not to be shared.
- 22 Then it was not enough for them
to err about the knowledge
of God,
but though living in great strife
due to ignorance,
they call such great evils peace.
- 23 For whether they kill children in their initiations, or celebrate secret mysteries,
or hold frenzied revels with strange customs, 24 they no longer keep either their lives or their marriages
pure,
but they either treacherously kill
one another, or grieve one another by adultery,

14.12–31 To bolster his attack on idolatry, the author argues that it did not exist from the beginning but arose in the course of time through human error. The two explanations adduced for its origins probably derive from a pagan Hellenistic source, a highly rationalized euhemeristic account of the origins of the idol cult. 14.13 Idols will not last forever. See Isa 2.18; Ezek 30.13; Mic 5.12; Zech 13.2; Let Jer 50–73. 14.14 Human vanity, better “empty imagining,” an Epicurean term. Since the origin of idols is rooted in total emptiness, their speedy end has been planned, i.e., the moment their vacuous character is disclosed, idolatry will evaporate into thin air and completely disappear (cf. Jer 16.19; Gospel of Truth 26.25). 14.15 Fulgentius provides an Egyptian analogue to the explanation given in this verse, and we have a reference to it in Mekilta on Ex 12.30 (cf. Cicero To Atticus 12.35–36). 14.21 Ought not to be shared. See Isa 42.8. 14.22 Call such great evils peace. Cf. Jer 6.14; Tacitus Agricola 30. The theme of war-in-peace was common in the Cynic-Stoic philosophical discourses of the first century C.E. (see Pseudo-Heraclitus Epistle 7). 14.26 Sexual

- 25 and all is a raging riot of blood and murder, theft and deceit, corruption,
faithlessness, tumult,
perjury,
26 confusion over what is good,
forgetfulness of favors,
defiling of souls, sexual perversion,
disorder in marriages, adultery,
and debauchery.
27 For the worship of idols not to be named
is the beginning and cause and
end of every evil.
28 For their worshipers^u either rave
in exultation,
or prophesy lies, or live
unrighteously, or readily commit perjury;
29 for because they trust in lifeless
idols
they swear wicked oaths and expect to suffer no harm.
30 But just penalties will overtake them on two counts:
because they thought wrongly
about God in devoting themselves to idols,
and because in deceit they swore unrighteously through contempt for holiness.
31 For it is not the power of the things by which people swear,^v
but the just penalty for those who sin,
that always pursues the transgression of the unrighteous.

Benefits of Worshipping the True God

- 15 But you, our God, are kind and true,
patient, and ruling all things^w in
mercy.
2 For even if we sin we are yours,
knowing your power;
but we will not sin, because we know that you acknowledge
us as yours.
3 For to know you is complete
righteousness,
and to know your power is the root of immortality.
4 For neither has the evil intent of human art misled us,
nor the fruitless toil of painters,
a figure stained with varied colors,

yearning in fools,
so that they desire^x the lifeless
form of a dead image.
6 Lovers of evil things and fit for such objects of hope^y
are those who either make or desire or worship them.

15.1–19 Israel's immunity from idolatry. The writer is thinking of his own period. The consensus among the rabbis of the third century was that all idolatrous impulses had been eradicated from Israel as early as the beginning of the Second Temple period (Babylonian Talmud Yoma 69b; cf. Jdt 8.18; Tacitus Historiae 5.5). 15.1 For the four divine attributes enumerated here, see Ex 34.6. 15.2 We are yours. According to Rabbi Meir (Sifre Deuteronomy 96), whether the Jews sin or do not sin, they are God's children (cf. Philo Special Laws 4.180–81). 15.4 The choice of the Greek word skiagraphos—here translated painter—is deliberate, since it refers to "painting with the shadows" so as to produce an illusion of solidity at a distance and is frequently used to indicate that which is illusory. The fourth-century Christian bishop Epiphanius connected the beginnings of idolatry with painting or shadow sketching (Panarion 3.4–5; Ancoratus 102.1; cf. Pliny Natural History 35.151). 15.5 See Ovid Metamorphoses 10.243–97 for the story of Pygmalion, who, having fashioned an ivory statue of a woman, fell in love with it. 15.7 That serve clean uses and those for contrary uses. This theme is reminiscent of the story about Amasis (often quoted by Christian writers), who made an image of a god out of his golden foot bath (Herodotus History 2.172; cf.

- but which shall be the use of each of them
the worker in clay decides.
- 8 With misspent toil, these workers form a futile god from the same clay —
these mortals who were made of earth a short time before and after a little while go to the earth from which all mortals are taken,
when the time comes to return
the souls that were borrowed.
- 9 But the workers are not concerned that mortals are destined to die
or that their life is brief,
but they compete with workers in gold and silver,
and imitate workers in copper;
and they count it a glorious thing to mold counterfeit gods.
- 10 Their heart is ashes, their hope is cheaper than dirt,
and their lives are of less worth
than clay,
- 11 because they failed to know the
one who formed them
and inspired them with active souls
and breathed a living spirit into
them.
- 12 But they considered our existence
an idle game,
and life a festival held for profit,
for they say one must get money
however one can, even by base means.
- 13 For these persons, more than all others, know that they sin
when they make from earthy matter fragile vessels and carved images.
- 14 But most foolish, and more
miserable than an infant,
are all the enemies who oppressed your people.
- 15 For they thought that all their heathen idols were gods,
though these have neither the use of their eyes to see with,
nor nostrils with which to draw
breath,
nor ears with which to hear,
nor fingers to feel with,
and their feet are of no use for walking.
- 16 For a human being made them,
and one whose spirit is borrowed formed them;
for none can form gods that are
like themselves.
- 17 People are mortal, and what they make with lawless hands is
dead;
for they are better than the
objects they worship,
since^z they have life, but the idols^a never had.
- 18 Moreover, they worship even the most hateful animals,
which are worse than all others
when judged by their lack of intelligence;
- 19 and even as animals they are not so beautiful in appearance
that one would desire
them,
but they have escaped both the praise of God and his blessing.

Philo Contemplative Life 7). 15.8 When the time comes to return the souls that were borrowed, a very popular Platonic image (Timaeus 42E; cf. Pseudo-Phocylides The Sentences 106; Josephus Jewish War 3.372–74; Philo On Abraham 257 and frequently; Lk 12.20). 15.12 For the metaphor of an idle game, cf. Plato Laws 644D; Cicero On Duties 1.103; Qur'an 57.19. Life as a festival is another widespread motif (Epictetus Discourses 4.1.105; Cicero Tusculans 5.9). However one can, even by base means, another commonplace (Sophocles Antigone 312; Horace Epistles 1.1.65; Philo Every Good Man Is Free 65). 15.19 Escaped both the praise of God and his blessing, not a Jewish teaching; the author seems to be alluding to a characteristic Zoroastrian doctrine.

16.1–4 The second antithesis (see note on 11.1–14): the Egyptians hunger but Israel enjoys exotic quail food. The author has adapted the biblical version of this event (Num 11) to serve his

they desired food,
might lose the least remnant of

because of the odious creatures
sent to them,
while your people,^d after suffering want a short time, might partake of delicacies.

while to these others it was merely shown how their enemies were being

The Bronze Serpent

- 5 For when the terrible rage of wild animals came upon your people^e
and they were being destroyed by the bites of writhing
serpents,
your wrath did not continue to the end;
- 6 they were troubled for a little while as a warning,
and received a symbol of deliverance to remind them
of your law's command.
- 7 For the one who turned toward it was saved, not by the thing
that was beheld,
but by you, the Savior of all.

- 8 And by this also you convinced
our enemies
that it is you who deliver from every evil.
- 9 For they were killed by the bites
of locusts and flies,
and no healing was found for
them,
because they deserved to be punished by such things.
- 10 But your children were not conquered even by the fangs of venomous
serpents,
for your mercy came to their help
and healed them.
- 11 To remind them of your oracles
they were bitten,
and then were quickly delivered,
so that they would not fall into deep forgetfulness
and become unresponsive^f to your kindness.
- 12 For neither herb nor poultice
cured them,
but it was your word, O Lord,
that heals all people.
- 13 For you have power over life and
death;
you lead mortals down to the gates of Hades and back again.
- 14 A person in wickedness kills
another,
but cannot bring back the
departed spirit,
or set free the imprisoned
soul.

own purposes by omitting all mention of the people's murmuring and gluttony and the divine anger that culminated in the destruction of many of them.

16.5–14 The third antithesis (see note on 11.1–14). 16.6 A symbol of deliverance, the bronze serpent (Num 21.9). Philo similarly interprets the serpent of Moses as a symbol of steadfast endurance (On Husbandry 98). Cf. Jn 3.14; Justin First

Apology 60. 16.7 The author replaces the principle of homeopathic magic that appears to be operative in Num 21.8–9 with a spiritual conception (a similar interpretation is in Mishnah Rosh ha-Shanah 3.8). 16.13 Cf. 1 Sam 2.6; Tob 13.2.

16.15–29 The fourth antithesis (see note on 11.1–14): the Egyptians are plagued by thunderstorms (Ex 9.13–26), but Israel is fed by manna

- 16 for the ungodly, refusing to know you,
were flogged by the strength of
your arm,
pursued by unusual rains and hail and relentless storms,
and utterly consumed by fire.
- 17 For—most incredible of all—in water, which quenches all
things,
the fire had still greater effect,
for the universe defends the
righteous.
- 18 At one time the flame was restrained,
so that it might not consume the creatures sent against the
ungodly,
but that seeing this they might
know
that they were being pursued by
the judgment of God;
- 19 and at another time even in the midst of water it burned
more intensely than fire,
to destroy the crops of the unrighteous land.
- 20 Instead of these things you gave your people food of angels,
and without their toil you supplied them from heaven
with bread ready to eat,
providing every pleasure and suited to every taste.
- 21 For your sustenance manifested
your sweetness toward your
children;
and the bread, ministering^g to the desire of the one who took it,
was changed to suit everyone's liking.
- 22 Snow and ice withstood fire
without melting,
- so that they might know that the crops of their enemies
were being destroyed by the fire
that blazed in the hail
and flashed in the showers of rain;
- 23 whereas the fire,^h in order that
the righteous might be fed,
even forgot its native power.
- 24 For creation, serving you who made it,
exerts itself to punish the
unrighteous,
and in kindness relaxes on behalf
of those who trust in you.
- 25 Therefore at that time also,
changed into all forms,
it served your all-nourishing
bounty,
according to the desire of those who had need,ⁱ
- 26 so that your children, whom you loved, O Lord, might learn that it is not the production of crops that feeds humankind
but that your word sustains those who trust in you.
- 27 For what was not destroyed by fire
was melted when simply warmed
by a fleeting ray of the sun,
- 28 to make it known that one must rise before the sun to give you thanks,
and must pray to you at the
dawning of the light;

person will melt like wintry
frost,
and flow away like waste water.

Although there were varying traditions concerning the number and order of the plagues, there is no known parallel to our author's particular scheme. 16.20 Food of angels reflects the unusual phrase lechem abbirim (lit. Terror Strikes the Egyptians at Night

- 17 Great are your judgments and hard to describe;
therefore uninstructed souls have gone astray.
- 2 For when lawless people supposed that they held the holy nation in their power, they themselves lay as captives of darkness and prisoners of long night, shut in under their roofs, exiles from eternal providence.
- 3 For thinking that in their secret sins they were unobserved behind a dark curtain of forgetfulness, they were scattered, terribly alarmed, and appalled by specters.
- 4 For not even the inner chamber that held them protected them from fear, but terrifying sounds rang out around them, and dismal phantoms with gloomy faces appeared.
- 5 And no power of fire was able to give light, nor did the brilliant flames of the stars avail to illumine that hateful night.
- 6 Nothing was shining through to them except a dreadful, self-kindled fire, and in terror they deemed the things that they saw to be worse than that unseen appearance.

- 7 The delusions of their magic art lay humbled, and their boasted wisdom was scornfully rebuked.
- 8 For those who promised to drive off the fears and disorders of a sick soul were sick themselves with ridiculous fear.
- 9 For even if nothing disturbing frightened them, yet, scared by the passing of wild animals and the hissing of snakes
- 10 they perished in trembling fear, refusing to look even at the air, though it nowhere could be avoided.
- 11 For wickedness is a cowardly thing, condemned by its own testimony;^k distressed by conscience, it has always exaggerated^l the difficulties.
- 12 For fear is nothing but a giving up of the helps that come from reason;
- 13 and hope, defeated by this inward weakness, prefers ignorance of what causes the torment.
- 14 But throughout the night, which was really powerless

17.1–18.4 In this elaborate antithesis, the fifth (see note on 11.1–14), the author employs all his rhetorical skill to provide readers with a living impression of the psychological terror occasioned by the plague of darkness (Ex 10.21–23). He deftly moves from the physical contrast between darkness and light to the spiritual one that sees in the Egyptians moral villains obsessed with a bad conscience and in Israel ethical heroes destined to illumine the world with the light of the Torah. He was undoubtedly influenced by the literary genre of the “descent into Hades.” The rabbis similarly identified the darkness that plagued the Egyptians as coming from Gehenna (Exodus Rabbah 14.2). 17.2 Lawless people, the Egyptians. 17.3 Another example of the principle of talion: the Egyptians sought to conceal their sins in darkness and were therefore plagued by darkness. Appalled by specters. Cf. Sir 40.5–7. 17.10 The air, better “the dark haze.” The haze (Greek aēr) in which Apollo hides Hector is described in the Iliad (20.446) as thick, and Achilles strikes it three times with his spear. 17.11 Distressed by conscience. The same phrase appears in Testament of Reuben 4.3. The notion of conscience (syneidēsis) appears in the writings of the Greek poets and popular moralists, such as Euripides and Menander, and above all in the Epicurean stress on the pangs of conscience suffered by the guilty (Lucretius On the Nature of Things 3.1018). 17.14 From the recesses of powerless Hades. Cf. Apollonius of Rhodes Argonautica 4.1694–1700.

Hades,
they all slept the same sleep, 15 and now were driven by monstrous specters,
and now were paralyzed by their souls' surrender;
for sudden and unexpected fear
overwhelmed them.
16 And whoever was there fell
down,
and thus was kept shut up in a prison not made of iron; 17 for whether they were farmers or shepherds
or workers who toiled in the wilderness,
they were seized, and endured
the inescapable fate;
for with one chain of darkness
they all were bound.
18 Whether there came a whistling
wind,
or a melodious sound of birds in
wide-spreading branches,
or the rhythm of violently
rushing water,
19 or the harsh crash of rocks
hurled down,
or the unseen running of leaping
animals,
or the sound of the most savage
roaring beasts,
or an echo thrown back from a hollow of the mountains,
it paralyzed them with terror.
20 For the whole world was illuminated with brilliant
light,
and went about its work
unhindered,
21 while over those people alone
heavy night was spread,
an image of the darkness that was destined to receive them;

- but still heavier than darkness
were they to themselves.

was very great light.
Their enemies^m heard their voices but did not see their precise meaning is uncertain, but the following translation yields a satisfactory sense: "the elements were transposed, as on a harp the notes vary the key while holding to the melody." The reference is to the variation of a musical key by the transposition of the notes within it, and the analogous heightening or lowering of the tension of the elements through a change in the proportions of fire and air constituting their pneumata or breath currents, in accordance with Stoic physical theory (cf. 16.24).

Author and Title

SIRACH TAKES ITS TITLE FROM the name of its author, Jesus son of Eleazar son of Sirach, given in the signature (50.27). The name Jesus, a Greek transliteration of the Hebrew Yeshu'a, is also mentioned in the prologue written by his grandson on the occasion of his translation of the book into Greek. In rabbinic tradition through the eleventh century the book was frequently referred to as "The Book (or Instruction) of Ben Sira." In Christian tradition the book has been referred to as "The Wisdom (or Book) of Jesus son of Sirach" (most Greek and Old Latin manuscripts) or as "Ecclesiasticus," a title found in many Latin Vulgate manuscripts meaning "churchly" or "belonging to the church."

Text and Canon

Ben Sira's book of wisdom was eagerly read and widely used as a handbook for study and instruction in educational settings. It was copied many times over in Hebrew and in its Greek, Latin, and Syriac translations. In the course of its transmission, as was customary with collections of proverbial material, teachers felt free to add explanatory notes, compare translations, revise and retranslate difficult sayings, and even add to the collection. The variant readings given in the NRSV text notes as well as the added verses and italicized material given in the text in chs. 26 and 51 are only some of the more obvious instances of important differences among the various manuscript traditions.

Portions of the Hebrew text have been found at Masada and Qumran dating from the first centuries B.C.E. and C.E., but the major Hebrew texts were found late last century in the Cairo synagogue genizah, or "storeroom," dating from the eleventh and twelfth centuries. When combined, these manuscripts provide a Hebrew text for approximately two-thirds of the book. The Greek, Syriac, and Latin translations, on the other hand, provide complete texts. The reason is that Sirach was included in the Septuagint, the Greek translation of the Hebrew scriptures, and thus was preserved in the canon of the Christian church. Because of differences between the Jewish and Christian canons of the Hebrew scriptures, Sirach has been assigned to the Apocrypha by Protestants and to the deuterocanonical writings by Roman Catholic and Orthodox Churches. The NRSV translation is based on a critical comparison of the Hebrew manuscripts with the Greek text edited by Joseph Ziegler in the Göttingen edition of the Septuagint.

Date and Times

Ben Sira, a teacher in Jerusalem, wrote sometime between 200 and 180 B.C.E., in the shadow of the shift in hegemony that occurred in 198 B.C.E. when the Seleucid successors to Alexander the Great in Antioch wrested control of Judea from the Ptolemies of Egypt. In ch. 50 Ben Sira mentions the high priest Simon son of Onias (50.1) as if he were a contemporary who had recently died, and in the prologue his grandson reports that he moved to Egypt in the thirty-eighth year of the reign of (Ptolemy) Euergetes ("Benefactor"). Simon II, "The Just," was high priest from 219 to 196 B.C.E., and the grandson's arrival in Egypt can be dated at 132 B.C.E. Taking two generations into account and noting that Sirach contains no allusions to the Maccabean-Seleucid conflict that broke out under Antiochus IV in 175–164 B.C.E., Ben Sira must have completed his writings by 180 B.C.E.

Trouble was already brewing, nonetheless, for the Jews in Jerusalem. The Seleucid victory aggravated two issues that had been threatening the Jewish social system: the rule of foreign kings (hegemony) and the intrusion of an alien culture (Hellenism). Combined with conflicts internal to the aspirations of leading priestly families who jockeyed for patronage between the Ptolemies and the Seleucids, these threats set the stage for the wars and bloody intrigues that soon broke out under Antiochus IV.

Sirach clearly reflects Ben Sira's assessment of these threats to the Jewish temple system and way of life, but he does not address them directly. Instead, he offers a book of instruction that assumes the integrity and glory of the Jewish way of life, a way of life to which he was fully committed and to which he devoted his life as a scholar and teacher. Social and cultural threats are handled obliquely by allusion, repeated emphasis upon injunctions related to critical social relations, and warnings about foreign rulers and strangers.

Content and Achievement

Ben Sira's achievement was to combine the learning typical for the ancient Near Eastern and Israelite wisdom traditions with the commandments of Moses found in the Torah ("instruction," regularly translated "law"). He did this, moreover, in the interest of supporting the Second Temple system of governance with its priestly codes of law and sacrifice. The term he uses to combine the wisdom of Proverbs with the law of Moses is the "fear of the Lord," a term capable of naming an ethical piety appropriate to the culture of Second Temple Judaism.

Ben Sira's intellectual achievement is demonstrated by his knowledge and employment of a large literature. His study of the Hebrew scriptures is mentioned in the prologue. Allusions to this literature throughout Sirach show that he was acquainted with all of the books now contained in the Hebrew Bible except Ezra, Daniel, Esther, and Ruth. He also shows knowledge of Greek and Egyptian literature and thought. His achievement was to draw upon this learning to create a conceptual framework in support of an ethic of Jewish piety for Second Temple times.

Literary Forms

Ben Sira combines proverbs and precepts in compositions typical for Hebrew poetry. Parallel lines (or bicola) are used creatively in various combinations to yield units of poetry with thematic and rhetorical coherence. He also wrote hymns of praise on the model of Hebrew psalms and prayers, as well as narrative, autobiographical, and exegetical poems on a wide range of topics. Among his more famous accomplishments are a number of poems in praise of the personified figure of wisdom and the long epic poem in chs. 44–50 in praise of the ancestral fathers.

The book as a whole does not have a tight structure. However, the wisdom poem in ch. 1 works well as an introduction, and the first several chapters show signs of deliberate design and sequence. There also seems to be some design to the sequence and placement of the wisdom poems in the first half of the book, through ch. 24, as well as purpose to the position of the hymn in praise of the fathers at the end of the book. Many smaller units are highly crafted and arranged in sequences to form larger coherent sections. But the nature of the material in this large collection of wisdom proverbs and poetry prohibits neat organization and frustrates prolonged linear reading. It is doubtful that the book was meant to be read from beginning to end as if it developed a narrative or logical theme. It was a resource of instructional material meant to be used as a handbook for consultation in the preparation of lessons. Burton Mack

THE PROLOGUE

Many great teachings have been given to us through the Law and the Prophets and the others^a that followed them, and for these we should praise Israel for instruction and wisdom. Now, those who read the scriptures must not only themselves understand them, but must also as lovers of learning be able through the spoken and written word to help the outsiders. So my grandfather Jesus, who had devoted himself especially to the reading of the Law and the Prophets and the other books of our ancestors, and had acquired considerable proficiency in them, was himself also led to write something pertaining to instruction and wisdom, so that by becoming familiar also with his book^b those who love learning might make even greater progress in living according to the law.

You are invited therefore to read it with goodwill and attention, and to be indulgent in cases where, despite our diligent labor in translating, we may seem to have rendered some phrases imperfectly. For what was originally expressed in Hebrew does not have exactly the same sense when translated into another language. Not only this book, but even the Law itself, the Prophecies, and the rest of the books differ not a little when read in the original.

When I came to Egypt in the thirty-eighth year of the reign of Euergetes and stayed for some time, I found opportunity for no little instruction.^c It seemed highly necessary that I should myself devote some diligence and labor to the translation of this book. During that time I have applied my skill day and night to complete and publish the book for those living abroad who wished to gain learning and are disposed to live according to the law.

Prologue The prologue was written by Ben Sira's grandson, who explains the importance of the book, the difficulty of translating it into Greek, and the circumstances of its publication for those living abroad. The Law and the Prophets and the other books refers to the Hebrew scriptures and is the earliest clear reference to such a three-fold classification. Instruction and wisdom is a reference to the combination of Torah instruction and proverbial wisdom characteristic of the book. There may be an allusion to Deut 4.6. Living according to the law is a Greek formulation of the Jewish idiom "to keep (observe, or obey) the law."

1.1–10 A poem about personified wisdom as the creation of the Lord. It combines the theme of wisdom's hiddenness from humans (characteristic of Job 28) with the theme of wisdom's availability to humans (characteristic of Prov 8.22–25) and may be compared with the poem in Sir 24.1–12. Wisdom is personified in Job 28; Prov 1–9; Wis 6.12–10.21; Bar 3.9–37; the works of Philo of Alexandria; Jewish apocalyptic texts; Gnostic texts; and early Christian texts. 1.2–6 The rhetorical questions in these verses are typical of the theme of hidden wisdom, a theme that recurs throughout Sirach and in other literature. See 3.21–23; 16.20–22; 17.30; 18.4–7; 24.28–29; Job 28; Eccl 7.23–24; Wis 9.13–17; Bar 3.29–37. The questions imply that no one except the Lord has such knowledge. See Sir 42.18–21. 1.3 Heaven . . . earth . . . abyss. Wisdom is aligned with the horizons of the created world typical of ancient cosmology. 1.4 That wisdom was created before all other things is a recurring motif in the mythology

1.11–30 A long poem of twenty-two bicola (the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet) is composed of a thesis statement that identifies wisdom with the fear of the Lord (v. 11), a shorter poem that draws upon wisdom metaphors to promise blessings and long life (vv. 12–20), a hint of the need for patience under testing (vv. 22–24), a definition of wisdom as the keeping of the commandments (vv. 25–27), and a warning about the dishonor that disobedience brings

See Prov 4.7–9; 8.15–16. 1.12–20 The metaphors of rain, tree, produce, health, happiness, and long life in this passage are typical of the poetry of personified wisdom and her “fruits” in Prov 1–9, Sirach, Wisdom of Solomon, and the works of Philo of Alexandria. Long life in vv. 12, 20 forms an inclusio (repetition of a phrase to mark the beginning and end of a unit). 1.14 Whereas the first line of this verse is traditional wisdom (Job 28.28; Ps 111.10; Prov 1.7; 9.10), created with the faithful in the womb plays on a prophetic tradition. See 49.7; Isa 44.24; Jer 1.5. 1.15 This allusion to wisdom’s residence in Jerusalem is made explicit in 24.8–12. 1.23 The right moment (Greek kairos) is a concept distinctive to Sirach and its mention here announces a theme. See note on 4.20. 1.30 Dishonor states the consequences of not adhering to wisdom piety; the whole congregation defines the social arena within which honor and shame functioned. Honor and shame were highly nuanced ethical categories in the cultures of antiquity, expressly elaborated in Greek tradition as signs of a person's virtue or lack of it. The theme of honor and shame courses through all of Sirach, but comes to express formulation in such sayings as 3.2–11; 4.21; 7.7; 10.19–11.6; 41.17–42.8. Cf. note on 39.10.

2.1–18 A poem of three stanzas introduces the theme of testing and elaborates on the need to remain obedient to the law. The theme of testing, or undergoing trial, is common in the OT and recurs throughout Sirach. See the wisdom poem in 6.18–31; cf. Gen 22; Gen 39–50; Job; Daniel; Wis 2.17. 2.1 My child is a typical introduction for a unit of instructional material in wisdom literature. See Ben Sira's own list in chs. 44–50. 2.11 Compassionate and merciful, taken from Ex 34.6–7. The theme of the Lord's compassion is common in Psalms and the prophets. See Pss 86.5, 15; 103.3–4; 145.8–9; Joel 2.13. That the Lord saves in time of distress those who call upon him is

- 14 Woe to you who have lost your nerve!
What will you do when the Lord's reckoning comes?
- 15 Those who fear the Lord do not
disobey his words,
and those who love him keep his ways.
- 16 Those who fear the Lord seek to please him,
and those who love him are filled with his law.
- 17 Those who fear the Lord prepare
their hearts,
and humble themselves
before him.
- 18 Let us fall into the hands of the Lord,
but not into the hands of
mortals;
for equal to his majesty is his
mercy,
and equal to his name are his works.^q

Duties Toward Parents

- 3 Listen to me your father,
O children;
act accordingly, that you may be kept in safety.
- 2 For the Lord honors a father
above his children,
and he confirms a mother's right over her children.
- 3 Those who honor their father
atone for sins,
4 and those who respect their mother are like those who lay up treasure.
- 5 Those who honor their father will have joy in their own
children,
and when they pray they will be heard.
- 6 Those who respect their father
will have long life,
and those who honor^r their mother obey the Lord;
- 7 they will serve their parents as their masters.^s
- 8 Honor your father by word and
deed,
that his blessing may come
upon you.
- 9 For a father's blessing strengthens
the houses of the children,
but a mother's curse uproots
their foundations.

^q Syr: Gk lacks this line ^r Heb: Other ancient authorities read comfort ^s In other ancient authorities this line is preceded by *Those who fear
the Lord honor their father*, another theme common to Psalms that recurs in Sirach. See 4.6; 11.12–13, 22; 21.5; 33.1; 34.15; 35.16–26; 39.33; 48.20; Ex 22.23; Pss 34; 57; 61; 81.7. Wisdom also rescues those in trouble (Wis 10.9). 2.14 The Lord's reckoning refers to times in life when accounts will be settled, usually in chastisement or punishment for wrongdoing. This is a traditional notion about divine rewards and punishment in support of piety and in answer to the question of why sinners prosper; it does not refer to a day of divine judgment after life or at the end of history. See 5.1–8; 16.5–23. 2.18 Equal to his name is a play on the Hebrew term “Merciful One” referring to the Lord in Ex 34.6.

3.1–16 A poem in three stanzas elaborates on the commandment to honor one's father and mother (Ex 20.12; Deut 5.16). Its position suggests that the preceding poem may have been written with the first commandment in mind. The connection between the “fear of the Lord” and the honor of one's parents is made in the first four verses and recurs as a conclusion, or period, in v. 16. 3.2 The curious formulation of this verse results from the desire to keep the Lord in view as the ultimate author of the commandment to honor one's parents. It nevertheless expresses the ranking basic to ancient Jewish family structure and ethic. 3.3 To atone for sins, or failures to keep the law, one could offer a sacrifice or perform an act of mercy such as almsgiving. Cf. note on 4.1–10; 28.5; 35.5. 3.4 To lay up treasure. See note on 29.11. In v. 14 such a kindness to a father will be credited to you against your sins; see note on 3.14. 3.6 Long life, an allusion to the reward for honoring parents in Ex 20.12; Deut 5.16, as well as a resonance with the long life promised by

- 10 Do not glorify yourself by dishonoring your father,
for your father's dishonor is no
glory to you.
- 11 The glory of one's father is one's own glory,
and it is a disgrace for children
not to respect their mother.
- 12 My child, help your father in his
old age,
and do not grieve him as long
as he lives;
13 even if his mind fails, be patient
with him;
because you have all your faculties do not despise him.
- 14 For kindness to a father will not be forgotten,
and will be credited to you
against your sins;
15 in the day of your distress it will be remembered in your favor;
like frost in fair weather, your sins will melt away.

a blasphemer,
and whoever angers a mother is cursed by the Lord.

Humility

humility;^t
then you will be loved by those whom God accepts.

you must humble yourself;
so you will find favor in the

Lord;
but by the humble he is glorified.
- 21 Neither seek what is too difficult
for you,
nor investigate what is beyond
your power.
- 22 Reflect upon what you have been

and wrong opinion has impaired their judgment.

and whoever loves danger will perish in it.
- 27 A stubborn mind will be burdened by troubles,
and the sinner adds sin to sins.

wisdom in Sir 1.12, 20. 3.9 For the importance of the father's blessing, cf. Gen 27.27–29 (Isaac); 48.15–20 (Israel); 49.8–12 (Jacob). 3.14 Credited . . . against your sins refers to the common view that God kept an account of one's sins and transgressions as well as one's deeds of mercy. See note on 28.1. 3.16 This harsh conclusion may allude to the death penalty prescribed for one who curses father or mother (cf. Ex 21.17; Lev 20.9; Prov 19.26). But it may also be Ben Sira's attempt to integrate an ethic of honor (wisdom) with his religious piety (fear of the Lord).

3.17–4.10 A longer poetic unit on humility and almsgiving brings the needy and society into view. It completes the triad of relationships under consideration in the first major section of the book (1.1–4.10): duties to God, family, and society. 3.17–29 Humility is the essential virtue, an attitude appropriate to all three traditions of thought combined in Ben Sira's ethical system: wisdom, Mosaic law, and temple worship. Cf. 2 Chr 7.14; Job 22.29; Prov 15.33; Mic 6.8. 3.21 What is beyond your power draws upon the theme of hidden wisdom as a way to express human limitation. See 18.4–7; Ps 131; Eccl 7.24. As developed in vv. 22–24, a subtle warning against Greek philosophy may also be implied. 3.27 Adds sin to sins, a reference to the (sinful)

and an attentive ear is the desire of the wise.

Alms for the Poor

- 30 As water extinguishes a blazing
fire,
so almsgiving atones for sin.
31 Those who repay favors give thought to the future;
when they fall they will find
support.

Duties Toward the Poor and the Oppressed

- 4 My child, do not cheat the poor of their living,
and do not keep needy eyes
waiting.
2 Do not grieve the hungry,
or anger one in need.
3 Do not add to the troubles of the desperate,
or delay giving to the needy.
4 Do not reject a suppliant in distress,
or turn your face away from
the poor.
5 Do not avert your eye from the needy,
and give no one reason to curse you;
6 for if in bitterness of soul some
should curse you,
their Creator will hear their prayer.
7 Endear yourself to the congregation;
bow your head low to the great.

- 8 Give a hearing to the poor,
and return their greeting
politely.
9 Rescue the oppressed from the oppressor;
and do not be hesitant in giving
a verdict.
10 Be a father to orphans,
and be like a husband to their
mother;
you will then be like a son of the Most High,
and he will love you more than does your mother.

The Rewards of Wisdom

12 Whoever loves her loves life,
and those who seek her from

with joy.
13 Whoever holds her fast inherits
glory,

14 Those who serve her minister to
the Holy One;
the Lord loves those who love her.

presumption that sins make no difference. See 5.5. 3.30–31 Almsgiving atones for sin, the statement of a basic theme elaborated in the next section (4.1–10). On almsgiving see 7.10, 32–36; 12.3–7; 14.13; 17.22; 18.15; 29.1–20; 35.4; 40.17. Almsgiving was the cornerstone of Jewish social ethic at this time. See Tob 4.10–11.

4.1–10 An ancient standard for social justice lies behind this section: the care of widows, orphans, aliens, and the poor. This standard was used to measure the righteousness of a king's rule, the health of a society, and the piety of the individual Jew. It was basic for prophetic social critique. Cf. Ex 22.22; Lev 19.9–10; 23.22; Deut 10.18; 24.17–22; 27.19; Job 29.11–16; 31.13–22; Isa 1.17; Am 5.10–15; Zech 7.10; Tob 1.3, 8; Jas 1.27. See also Sir 35.16–19. 4.9 Giving a verdict, an indication that Ben Sira's students were being prepared for a legal vocation. See 38.31–33. This unit completes that first section of the book (1.1–4.10) concerned with the programmatic relation of wisdom to ethical piety.

4.11–31 A poem on personified wisdom as a teacher (vv. 11–19) introduces the topic of considered speech (vv. 20–31) and sets the stage for much of the material in chs. 5–6. 4.11–19 The poem echoes the speech of personified wisdom in Prov 1.20–9.6. 4.13 The place she enters is the temple (24.10–11) as her "house." Cf. Prov 9.1–6. 4.15 To judge the nations was a widespread ideal, namely, that the righteous wise ones would rule the world. Cf. Prov 8.15–16; 29.9; Wis 3.8; 9.12; Lk 22.30; 1 Cor 6.2. In the Greek tradition of popular philosophy the wise were the true

Precepts for Everyday Living

- 5 Do not rely on your wealth, kings. 4.17 At first, the first stage of a two-stage process in education: first hard work, finally accomplishment (v.18). In Greek tradition the standard metaphor for education (paideia, meaning both "education" and "culture") was sowing seed and cultivating vines. The labor of farming occurs as the metaphor of wisdom's discipline in 6.18–31. Here in 4.17–18 the metaphor of the path is used. Cf. Wis 6.13–16. The phrase her ordinances merges wisdom instruction with the commandments of the Torah as if the commandments were ordained by personified wisdom. Cf. Wis 6.18. 4.19 She will forsake them, reminiscent of Prov 1.24–32. 4.20–31 Negative injunctions now appear as an appropriate form of instruction. The common theme is considered speech, the goal of ancient education in both the ancient Near East and in Greece. See v.24. The theme continues in chs. 5–6, interwoven with the codes of honor/shame and sin. 4.20 Watching for the opportune time refers to knowing when to speak, what to say on a specific occasion, and when to keep silent. See 1.23; 4.23; 20.7, 20. Proverbs were formulated as general statements, but in fact were observations on particular sets of circumstances ("cases"). Knowing when a proverb applied was also considered a mark of wisdom. See 20.20. 4.29 Speech and deeds are the two modes of human behavior that must correspond in a person of integrity.

5.1–6.4 A twenty-two-line poetic arrangement of warnings on the ruinous consequences

- 4 Do not say, "I sinned, yet what has happened to me?"
for the Lord is slow to anger.
- 5 Do not be so confident of forgiveness^b
that you add sin to sin.
- 6 Do not say, "His mercy is great,
he will forgive^c the multitude of my sins,"
for both mercy and wrath are
with him,
and his anger will rest on
sinners.
- 7 Do not delay to turn back to the Lord,
and do not postpone it from day to day;
for suddenly the wrath of the Lord will come upon you,
and at the time of punishment
you will perish.
- 8 Do not depend on dishonest
wealth,
for it will not benefit you on the day of calamity.
- 9 Do not winnow in every wind,
or follow every path.^d

and let your speech be consistent.

but deliberate in answering.
- 12 If you know what to say, answer
your neighbor;
but if not, put your hand over
your mouth.
- 13 Honor and dishonor come from speaking,
and the tongue of mortals may be their downfall.

6.5–17 A unit that contrasts true and false friends shifts the preceding reflections on integrity away from the student and focuses upon one's associates. Friendship was an important concept in social relations during the Hellenistic period. See 9.10; 11.29–14.2; 22.19–26; 37.1–6. In Greek literature of the time, a friend was one who remained true in times of distress and could therefore be trusted with one's official or private interests and affairs. This unit completes a section of instructions and admonitions concerned with situations that test one's resolve, integrity, and capacity for making judgments in keeping with wisdom piety (4.11–6.17).

- 6 Let those who are friendly with you be many,
but let your advisers be one in a thousand.
- 7 When you gain friends, gain
them through testing,
and do not trust them hastily.
- 8 For there are friends who are
such when it suits them,
but they will not stand by you
in time of trouble.
- 9 And there are friends who change into enemies,
and tell of the quarrel to your disgrace.
- 10 And there are friends who sit at your table,
but they will not stand by you
in time of trouble.
- 11 When you are prosperous, they become your second self,
and lord it over your servants;
12 but if you are brought low, they turn against you,
and hide themselves from you.
- 13 Keep away from your enemies,
and be on guard with your friends.
- 14 Faithful friends are a sturdy
shelter:
whoever finds one has found a treasure.
- 15 Faithful friends are beyond price;
no amount can balance their worth.
- 16 Faithful friends are life-saving medicine;
and those who fear the Lord
will find them.
- 17 Those who fear the Lord direct
their friendship aright,
for as they are, so are their neighbors also.

Blessings of Wisdom

- 18 My child, from your youth choose discipline,
and when you have gray hair
you will still find wisdom.
- 19 Come to her like one who plows
and sows,
and wait for her good harvest.
For when you cultivate her you will toil but little,
and soon you will eat of her produce.
- 20 She seems very harsh to the
undisciplined;
fools cannot remain with her.
- 21 She will be like a heavy stone to test them,
and they will not delay in casting her aside.
- 22 For wisdom is like her name;
she is not readily perceived by many.
- 23 Listen, my child, and accept my
judgment;
do not reject my counsel.
- 24 Put your feet into her fetters,
and your neck into her collar.
- 25 Bend your shoulders and carry her,
and do not fret under her
bonds.
- 26 Come to her with all your soul,
and keep her ways with all your might.
- 27 Search out and seek, and she will become known to you;
and when you get hold of her,
do not let her go.
- 28 For at last you will find the rest
she gives,
and she will be changed into
joy for you.

6.18–37 A twenty-two-line poem on personified wisdom elaborating on the theme of discipline first, honors at last. Cf. 4.17–19. The first stanza (vv. 18–22) emphasizes the harshness of wisdom's discipline; the second (vv. 23–31) promises rewards for those who accept it; and the last (vv. 32–37) applies the metaphors to the teacher-student relationship. 6.19 Toil but little draws upon the common Greek maxim: "The root of education is bitter (referring to toil), but the fruit is sweet (referring to honor and accomplishment)." On toiling with wisdom, cf. Wis 8.7; 9.10. On toiling but little, see Sir 51.27. 6.22 Like her name refers to a wordplay on the Hebrew musar meaning "instruction," which can also be used to mean "withdrawn," a subtle reference to the hiddenness of personified wisdom. The twofold reference to both wisdom and instruction (or discipline) in vv. 18, 22 forms a poetic unit, or period. 6.23–31 The two stages of education are described as toiling under wisdom's yoke as one who plows (vv. 23–27), followed by a change of status as one who appears in the garments of a royal priest (vv. 28–31). 6.24 On wisdom's collar, or yoke (vv. 24–25, 29–30), see 51.26; Mt 11.29–30. 6.26 With all your soul . . . and might.

you may be partial to the powerful,
and so mar your integrity.

public,
and do not disgrace yourself
among the people.
- 8 Do not commit a sin twice;
not even for one will you go unpunished.
9 Do not say, "He will consider the

On the glorious robe and crown, see 50.11; Prov 4.8–9. 6.32–37 This stanza applies the preceding metaphors to enrollment as a student in the company of the elders, or wise teachers, whose intelligence encompasses both proverbial wisdom and the law. On the elders as sages, cf. 8.8–9. 6.34 Attach yourself to such a one may reflect the Greek custom of becoming a student of a particular teacher, but it is also reminiscent of later rabbinic practice. This may be an early bit of evidence for such an institution of education in formative Judaism. See note on 51.23.

The translation follows the Greek text, which has partially obscured the logic of the Hebrew, especially in v. 16 where to enroll in the ranks of sinners is unclear. The original point was not to esteem oneself better than those who do manual labor (v. 16), but to practice humility in one's own (scribal, bureaucratic, or managerial) vocation (v. 17). 7.15 Work was considered good in the wisdom tradition and by Ben Sira. See 38.24–34. Labor is mentioned in the Decalog (Deut 5.13). But cf. Gen 2.15, where labor is a result of sin. Created translates the Greek; the Hebrew reads "assigned"

See 31.27; 38.1; 39.25; 40.1; 44.2. 7.17 The Hebrew does not contain any allusion to postmortem punishment or fire; the reference to the punishment of the ungodly and fire reveals the influence of Hellenistic eschatologies on those who translated Sirach into Greek.

Prudence and Common Sense

- 8 Do not contend with the powerful,
or you may fall into their hands.
- 2 Do not quarrel with the rich,
in case their resources outweigh yours;
for gold has ruined many,
and has perverted the minds of kings.
- 3 Do not argue with the loud of mouth,
and do not heap wood on their fire.
- 4 Do not make fun of one who is ill-bred,

- or your ancestors may be insulted.
- 5 Do not reproach one who is turning away from sin;
remember that we all deserve punishment.
- 6 Do not disdain one who is old,
for some of us are also growing old.
- 7 Do not rejoice over anyone's death;
remember that we must all die.
- 8 Do not slight the discourse of the sages,
but busy yourself with their maxims;
because from them you will learn discipline
and how to serve princes.
- 9 Do not ignore the discourse of the aged,
for they themselves learned from their parents;^u
from them you learn how to understand and to give an answer when the need arises.
- 10 Do not kindle the coals of sinners,
or you may be burned in their flaming fire.
- 11 Do not let the insolent bring you to your feet,
or they may lie in ambush against your words.
- 12 Do not lend to one who is stronger than you;
but if you do lend anything,
count it as a loss.
- 13 Do not give surety beyond your means;
but if you give surety, be prepared to pay.

9.1–9 Warnings about seduction and sexual promiscuity. The male point of view prevails. The topic was both ancient and timely, given the heightened Jewish concern during this period for stable families and ethnic purity as ways to guarantee distinctive social identity. 9.3 A loose woman is mentioned in Prov 2.16–19; 5.3–6; 7.5–27; 9.13–18. 9.4 A singing girl implied an entertainer, customarily viewed as a prostitute in the Greek tradition of the banquet. Cf. Isa

Greek practice frowned upon the presence of wives at meals where guests were invited. Ben Sira knew about the Greek convention of the banquet and its after-dinner symposium. Sirach does not include warnings about women in attendance in the description of mealtime etiquette in 31.12–32.13. Plunged into destruction may refer to the death penalty for adultery (Lev 20.10; Deut 22.22).

Concerning Rulers

- 17 A work is praised for the skill of the artisan;

wise by his words.

- 18 The loud of mouth are feared in their city,
and the one who is reckless in speech is hated.
- 10 A wise magistrate educates his

that predominates in chs. 7–9.

10.6–18 A discourse on the sin of pride directed toward those in power. A first stanza shows pride to be foolish in the light of human mortality (vv. 6–11). A second stanza forms a poetic unit on the consequences of pride because of its close relationship to sin (vv. 12–18). 10.8 Insolence, the Greek notion of arrogance and violence (hubris), is added to the Jewish concern for justice and a social critique of wealth as factors in the rise and fall of kingdoms. Insolence may be an oblique reference to Hellenistic ideologies of kings as gods.

the heart has withdrawn from its Maker.
- 13 For the beginning of pride is sin,
and the one who clings to it pours out abominations.
Therefore the Lord brings upon them unheard-of calamities,
and destroys them completely.
- 14 The Lord overthrows the thrones of rulers,
and enthrones the lowly in their place.
- 15 The Lord plucks up the roots of the nations,^d
and plants the humble in their place.
- 16 The Lord lays waste the lands of the nations,
and destroys them to the foundations of the earth.
- 17 He removes some of them and destroys them,

It contrasts with the preceding section on the pride of those who do not fear the Lord (9.17–10.18). 10.19–25 Four riddles establish the theme that only those who fear the Lord are truly honorable (v. 19). Vv. 22–25 define those who fear the Lord as the poor, oppressed, and subservient. 10.25 To serve a wise servant draws upon a topic common to the Hellenistic period, namely, that slaves may be more learned than their masters. This was frequently the case because of the widespread enslavement of peoples by conquest.

Concerning Humility

- 26 Do not make a display of your wisdom when you do your
work,
and do not boast when you are in need.
- 27 Better is the worker who has goods in plenty
than the boaster who lacks

- 28 My child, honor yourself with while the rich are honored for their wealth.

- 31 One who is honored in poverty,

And one dishonored in wealth,

The Deceptiveness of Appearances

- 11 The wisdom of the humble lifts
their heads high,
and seats them among the great.
- 2 Do not praise individuals for their good looks,
or loathe anyone because of appearance alone.
- 3 The bee is small among flying
creatures,
but what it produces is the best
of sweet things.
- 4 Do not boast about wearing fine
clothes,

and do not exalt yourself when you are honored;
for the works of the Lord are wonderful,
and his works are concealed
from humankind.

- 5 Many kings have had to sit on the ground,
but one who was never thought
of has worn a crown.
- 6 Many rulers have been utterly disgraced,
and the honored have been handed over to others.

Deliberation and Caution

- 7 Do not find fault before you investigate;
examine first, and then
criticize.
- 8 Do not answer before you listen,
and do not interrupt when another is speaking.
- 9 Do not argue about a matter that does not concern you,

10.26–31 A small collection of proverbs concerned with the problem of relating the notion of honor with humility, a cultural code and an ethic of piety at odds with one another.

11.1–6 A cluster of warnings and proverbs about pretention and false appearances supports the suggestion that the tables will be turned on the proud and mighty (10.14) and that the humble

(pious) will be vindicated by the Lord. Cf. 1 Sam 2.7–8; Ps 113.7–8. 11.5 Possibly an allusion to the story of David's selection to be king (1 Sam 16.6–13). 11.6 Handed over was a common idiom for defeat in war, related to "falling into the hands of" one who gains power over another.

- 22 The blessing of the Lord is the reward of the pious,
and quickly God causes his blessing to flourish.

- 23 Do not say, "What do I need,
and what further benefit can be

- 24 Do not say, "I have enough,
and what harm can come to 11.29–12.18 Cautionary advice on close relationships with scoundrels, strangers, sinners, and enemies. They are not to be trusted.

- 31 for they lie in wait, turning good
into evil,
and to worthy actions they attach blame.
32 From a spark many coals are
kindled,
and a sinner lies in wait to shed
blood.
33 Beware of scoundrels, for they devise evil,
and they may ruin your reputation forever.
34 Receive strangers into your home
and they will stir up trouble
for you,
and will make you a stranger to your own family.

- 12 If you do good, know to whom you do it,
and you will be thanked for your good deeds.
2 Do good to the devout, and you will be repaid—
if not by them, certainly by the Most High.
3 No good comes to one who persists in evil
or to one who does not give alms.
4 Give to the devout, but do not help the sinner.
5 Do good to the humble, but do not give to the ungodly;
hold back their bread, and do not give it to them,
for by means of it they might subdue you;
then you will receive twice as much evil
for all the good you have done
to them.
6 For the Most High also hates
sinners
and will inflict punishment on the ungodly.^l
7 Give to the one who is good, but do not help the sinner.
8 A friend is not known^m in prosperity,
nor is an enemy hidden in adversity.
9 One's enemies are friendlyⁿ
when one prospers,
but in adversity even one's friend disappears.

- 10 Never trust your enemy,
for like corrosion in copper, so
is his wickedness.
11 Even if he humbles himself and walks bowed down,
take care to be on your guard
against him.
Be to him like one who polishes a mirror,
to be sure it does not become completely tarnished.
12 Do not put him next to you,
or he may overthrow you and take your place.
Do not let him sit at your right
hand,
or else he may try to take your
own seat,
and at last you will realize the truth of my words,
and be stung by what I have said.
13 Who pities a snake charmer when he is bitten,
or all those who go near wild
animals?
14 So no one pities a person who associates with a sinner
and becomes involved in the other's sins.
15 He stands by you for a while,
but if you falter, he will not be there.
16 An enemy speaks sweetly with his lips,
but in his heart he plans to throw you into a pit;
an enemy may have tears in his
eyes,
but if he finds an opportunity
he will never have enough
of your blood.
17 If evil comes upon you, you will find him there ahead
of you;
pretending to help, he will trip
you up.
18 Then he will shake his head, and clap his hands,
and whisper much, and show
his true face.

Caution Regarding Associates

- 13 Whoever touches pitch gets dirty,
and whoever associates with a proud person becomes like him.
- ² Do not lift a weight too heavy for you,
or associate with one mightier and richer than you.
How can the clay pot associate with the iron kettle?
The pot will strike against it and be smashed.
- ³ A rich person does wrong, and even adds insults;
a poor person suffers wrong, and must add apologies.
- ⁴ A rich person^o will exploit you if you can be of use to him, but if you are in need he will abandon you.
- ⁵ If you own something, he will live with you;
he will drain your resources without a qualm.
- ⁶ When he needs you he will deceive you,
and will smile at you and encourage you;
he will speak to you kindly and say, "What do you need?"
- ⁷ He will embarrass you with his delicacies,
until he has drained you two or three times,
and finally he will laugh at you.
Should he see you afterwards, he will pass you by
and shake his head at you.
- ⁸ Take care not to be led astray and humiliated when you are enjoying yourself.^p
- ⁹ When an influential person invites you, be reserved,
and he will invite you more insistently.

- 22 If the rich person slips, many
come to the rescue;
he speaks unseemly words, but
they justify him.
If the humble person slips, they even criticize him;
he talks sense, but is not given
a hearing.
- 23 The rich person speaks and all
are silent;
they extol to the clouds what he says.
The poor person speaks and they say, "Who is this fellow?"
And should he stumble, they even push him down.
- 24 Riches are good if they are free
from sin;
poverty is evil only in the opinion of the ungodly.

Responsible Use of Wealth

- 25 The heart changes the countenance,
either for good or for evil.^s
- 26 The sign of a happy heart is a cheerful face,
but to devise proverbs requires
painful thinking.
- 14 Happy are those who do not blunder with their lips,
and need not suffer remorse
for sin.
- 2 Happy are those whose hearts do
not condemn them,
and who have not given up
their hope.
- 3 Riches are inappropriate for a small-minded person;
and of what use is wealth to a miser?
- 4 What he denies himself he
collects for others;

- and others will live in luxury on his goods.
- 5 If one is mean to himself, to whom will he be generous?
He will not enjoy his own riches.
- 6 No one is worse than one who is grudging to himself;
this is the punishment for his
meanness.
- 7 If ever he does good, it is by mistake;
and in the end he reveals his
meanness.
- 8 The miser is an evil person;
he turns away and disregards
people.
- 9 The eye of the greedy person is not satisfied with his share;
greedy injustice withers the
soul.
- 10 A miser begrudges bread,
and it is lacking at his table.
- 11 My child, treat yourself well,
according to your means,
and present worthy offerings to
the Lord.
- 12 Remember that death does not
tarry,
and the decree^t of Hades has not been shown to you.
- 13 Do good to friends before
you die,
and reach out and give to them
as much as you can.
- 14 Do not deprive yourself of a day's enjoyment;
do not let your share of desired
good pass by you.
- 15 Will you not leave the fruit of your labors to another,
and what you acquired by toil
to be divided by lot?
- 16 Give, and take, and indulge
yourself,

predation (Isa 11.6–9). 13.24 An exception to the preceding statements about the rich is made for wealth that is free from sin. This probably refers to almsgiving; see 3.30–4.6.

13.25–14.19 Reflections on the proper use of wealth. 13.25 The heart was understood as the seat of sentiment, desire, thought, and will.

14.3–10 A poetic unit on the miser as a contrast to the wise use of wealth. 14.12 The decree of Hades may refer either to death's appointed time or to the decree that one must die as expressed in 14.17. 14.15 Divided by lot refers to a method for distributing an inheritance. 14.16 Indulge yourself is reminiscent of Eccl 7.14; 9.7–10.

- because in Hades one cannot look for luxury.
- 17 All living beings become old like
a garment,
for the decree^u from of old is,
"You must die!"
- 18 Like abundant leaves on a spreading tree
that sheds some and puts forth
others,
so are the generations of flesh
and blood:
one dies and another is born.
- 19 Every work decays and ceases to
exist,
and the one who made it will pass away with it.

The Happiness of Seeking Wisdom

- 20 Happy is the person who meditates on^v wisdom
and reasons intelligently, 21 who^w reflects in his heart on her ways
and ponders her secrets, 22 pursuing her like a hunter,
and lying in wait on her paths;
23 who peers through her windows
and listens at her doors;
24 who camps near her house
and fastens his tent peg to her walls;
25 who pitches his tent near her,
and so occupies an excellent lodging place;
26 who places his children under her
shelter,
and lodges under her boughs;
27 who is sheltered by her from the heat,
and dwells in the midst of her
glory.

- 15 Whoever fears the Lord will do this,
and whoever holds to the law
will obtain wisdom.^x
- 2 She will come to meet him like a
mother,
and like a young bride she will welcome him.
- 3 She will feed him with the bread
of learning,
and give him the water of wisdom to drink.
- 4 He will lean on her and not fall,
and he will rely on her and not be put to shame.
- 5 She will exalt him above his neighbors,
and will open his mouth in the midst of the assembly.
- 6 He will find gladness and a crown
of rejoicing,
and will inherit an everlasting
name.
- 7 The foolish will not obtain her,
and sinners will not see her.
- 8 She is far from arrogance,
and liars will never think
of her.
- 9 Praise is unseemly on the lips of a sinner,
for it has not been sent from
the Lord.
- 10 For in wisdom must praise be uttered,
and the Lord will make it prosper.

14.20–15.10 A poem on personified wisdom in two stanzas that develop the theme of seeking (14.20–27) and finding (15.1–10). 14.21–22 On wisdom's ways, or path, cf. 51.15; Prov 3.17; 8.20, 32. 14.23–25 On the metaphor of approaching wisdom's house, cf. 51.13–14; Prov 8.34; 9.1–6. 14.26–27 On wisdom as a tree, cf. 1.20; 24.13–17; Prov 3.18. 15.2 On wisdom as mother and bride, cf. 15.11–20 A diatribe, or fictional debate, introduces the question of responsibility for sin in the light of its devastating consequences, a theme that has surfaced with increasing frequency in the preceding chapters. The position argued against is that God ultimately must be responsible because he created the world in such a way as to make sin possible. Ben Sira argues that God is not responsible because humans have free choice. This is a theodicy similar to that argued by the friends of Job, but quite different from that proposed by the

- for he does not do^y what he hates.
- 12 Do not say, "It was he who led me astray";
for he has no need of the sinful.
- 13 The Lord hates all abominations;
such things are not loved by those who fear him.
- 14 It was he who created humankind in the beginning,
and he left them in the power of their own free choice.
- 15 If you choose, you can keep the commandments,
and to act faithfully is a matter of your own choice.
- 16 He has placed before you fire and water;
stretch out your hand for whichever you choose.
- 17 Before each person are life and death,
and whichever one chooses will be given.
- 18 For great is the wisdom of the Lord;
he is mighty in power and sees everything;
- 19 his eyes are on those who fear him,
and he knows every human action.

- 20 He has not commanded anyone to be wicked,
and he has not given anyone permission to sin.

God's Punishment of Sinners

and do not rejoice in ungodly offspring.
- 2 If they multiply, do not rejoice in them,
unless the fear of the Lord is in them.
- 3 Do not trust in their survival,
or rely on their numbers;^a
for one can be better than a thousand,
and to die childless is better than to have ungodly children.

author of Job. 15.14 Free choice translates the Hebrew yetzer, a term for the "design," "plan," or "intention" one has in mind when preparing to form, craft, or create something. Yetzer is used of evil design, or imagination, in Gen 6.5; 8.21; and of good design in 1 Chr 29.28; Isa 26.3. Sirach documents an early use of the term to define human nature. Cf. 17.6; 21.11; 27.6; 37.3. Later rabbinic tradition sometimes refers to two yetzers, meaning that each person has both a good and an evil "inclination." The Greek is diaboulion, meaning "deliberation." V. 15 and the context show that free choice is an appropriate translation. Cf. 6.32. 15.16 Fire and water are metaphors for destruction and the generation of life. 15.17 Life and death. Cf. Deut 30.19. The image of choosing between two ways, one of life and one of death, was also common in Greek tradition. 15.18 That the Lord sees everything is a notion essential to Ben Sira's theodicy, with its insistence upon divine reward (or rescue) for the righteous and punishment for sinners. See 16.17–23; 17.15–19; 23.19–21; 34.19–20; 39.19–20; 42.16–20; cf. Job 34.21–22; Pss 33.13–15; 90.8;

Prov 5.21; 15.3; Heb 4.13.

16.1–23 A set of three arguments for the certainty of divine recompense: that the large number of the ungodly does not count (vv. 1–4); that history provides examples of the destruction of sinners (vv. 5–14); and that the Lord sees everything (vv. 17–23). 16.1–4 A challenge to the traditional view that many children are a blessing: this is not so if they are worthless or ungodly. In Sirach, only godly children are worthwhile. 16.3 This radical view of the acceptability of childlessness is an indication of social distress. It is repeated in Wis 4.1–3. 16.4 The importance of one intelligent person for the well-being of a city recurs as a theme in the writings of Philo of Alexandria; cf. Eccl 9.15. Filled with people may be an allusion to Abraham's blessing (Gen 17.5–6; 22.17–18). Abraham was considered a wise man in legendary accounts such as those documented in the works of Philo of Alexandria. Desolate may be an allusion to the Sodomites (Gen 18.16–32). 16.5–14 A series of examples from the epic history of Israel prepares for a programmatic statement about the Lord's mercy and wrath

- and my ear has heard things more striking than these.
- 6 In an assembly of sinners a fire is
kindled,
and in a disobedient nation
wrath blazes up.
- 7 He did not forgive the ancient giants
who revolted in their might.
- 8 He did not spare the neighbors
of Lot,
whom he loathed on account of their arrogance.
- 9 He showed no pity on the doomed nation,
on those dispossessed because of their sins;^b
- 10 or on the six hundred thousand foot soldiers
who assembled in their stubbornness.^c
- 11 Even if there were only one
stiff-necked person,
it would be a wonder if he remained unpunished.
For mercy and wrath are with the Lord;^d
he is mighty to forgive—but he also pours out wrath.
- 12 Great as is his mercy, so also is his
chastisement;
he judges a person according to his or her deeds.
- 13 The sinner will not escape with plunder,
and the patience of the godly
will not be frustrated.
- 14 He makes room for every act of
mercy;
everyone receives in accordance with his or her deeds.^e

- 17 Do not say, "I am hidden from
the Lord,
and who from on high has me
in mind?

unknown,
for what am I in a boundless creation?"
- 18 Lo, heaven and the highest

- 19 The very mountains and the foundations of the earth

Sir 46.8. 16.12 The Hebrew word for chastisement also means punishment. The Greek term is elenkos, "conviction," in the sense of instructional correction. At a somewhat later time chastisement for the godly was distinguished from punishment for the ungodly, as in the Wisdom of Solomon. The mention of mercy in vv. 11–12 and the shift to a consideration of rewards and punishments according to one's deeds in this section as a whole may have called for a Greek term other than "punishment" and probably lie behind the additions in some manuscripts to v. 10 that emphasize chastising and discipline (text note c). Cf. 18.13. 16.17–23 The theme of hidden wisdom is used ironically to characterize the speech of the foolish person who draws the wrong conclusion from the inscrutability of God's ways. 16.18 Visitation was an important concept for Jewish theodicies of the time. It refers to a time when God "visits" the earth and looks upon it to render judgment. See 18.20. Cf. Ps 104.32; Wis 3.7; 14.11.

16.24–18.14 A long didactic poem on the Lord's creation with a focus upon the creation of human beings, their capacity to know and keep the law, and their ability to repent should they fall into sin. 16.24–30 An account of creation emphasizing the stability, order, and "obedience" of God's works. Cf. Gen 1.1–31; Ps 104. 16.29 Good things is an allusion to the repeated statement in Gen 1 that "God saw that it was good." To affirm that God's creation is good was a characteristic of the wisdom tradition. Cf. Wis 1.14. Among the Greeks, and especially with the Stoics, good things was a common technical term for beneficial goods and human values. 16.30 Must return. Cf. Gen 3.19.

90.10. 17.3 His own image. Cf. Gen 1.26–27. 17.4 Dominion. Cf. Gen 1.28. Ben Sira combines the two accounts of the creation of humankind (Gen 1.26–27; 2.7) and interprets the image of God as authority (v. 2), strength (v. 3), and dominion (v. 4), thus developing a hierarchy of power: God, humans, living beings. Cf. 10.4 (God, rulers, people); 3.2 (God, fathers, children). In Philo's works and later literature a distinction between the two creation accounts led to elaborate, speculative anthropologies. Cf. 1 Cor 15.45–49. 17.6 This list of faculties for perception is similar to that common to the Stoic tradition. See the addition in v. 5, (text note p) which is clearly in reference to Stoic psychologies: the "five faculties" were sight, touch, smell, hearing, and taste. Discretion probably translates yetzer (the Hebrew text is missing at this point); see note on 15.14. 17.7 Showed them good and evil. Cf. Gen 2.17; 3.5. 22. Sirach overlooks the transgression in the Gen-

- and showed them good and evil.
 8 He put the fear of him into^q their hearts

 and he will bring their recompense on their heads.
 24 Yet to those who repent he grants a return,
 and he encourages those who are losing hope.

A Call to Repentance

- 25 Turn back to the Lord and forsake your sins;
 pray in his presence and lessen your offense.
 26 Return to the Most High and turn away from iniquity,^y
 and hate intensely what he abhors.
 27 Who will sing praises to the Most High in Hades
 in place of the living who give thanks?
 28 From the dead, as from one who does not exist, thanksgiving has ceased;
 those who are alive and well sing the Lord's praises.

- 29 How great is the mercy of the Lord,
and his forgiveness for those who return to him!
30 For not everything is within human capability,
since human beings are not immortal.
31 What is brighter than the sun?
Yet it can be eclipsed.
So flesh and blood devise evil.
32 He marshals the host of the

but all human beings are dust

The Majesty of God

- 18 He who lives forever created the whole universe;
2 the Lord alone is just.^z
4 To none has he given power to proclaim his works;
and who can search out his mighty deeds?
5 Who can measure his majestic
power?
And who can fully recount his
mercies?
6 It is not possible to diminish or increase them,
nor is it possible to fathom the wonders of the Lord.
7 When human beings have finished, they are just
beginning,
and when they stop, they are still perplexed.
8 What are human beings, and of what use are they?
What is good in them, and what is evil?
9 The number of days in their life
is great if they reach one hundred years.^a

- 10 Like a drop of water from the sea
and a grain of sand,
so are a few years among the days of eternity.
11 That is why the Lord is patient
with them
and pours out his mercy upon
them.
12 He sees and recognizes that their end is miserable;
therefore he grants them
forgiveness all the more.
13 The compassion of human beings
is for their neighbors,
but the compassion of the Lord
is for every living thing.
He rebukes and trains and teaches them,
and turns them back, as a shepherd his flock.
14 He has compassion on those who accept his discipline
and who are eager for his precepts.

The Right Spirit in Giving Alms

- 15 My child, do not mix reproach
with your good deeds,
or spoil your gift by harsh
words.
16 Does not the dew give relief from the scorching heat?
So a word is better than a gift.
17 Indeed, does not a word surpass
a good gift?
Both are to be found in a gracious person.

Wis 10.20–21; 18.1. 17.30 A clear statement of Ben Sira's position against the Greek idea of immortality, an idea that was later found attractive by Jewish thinkers. See the addition to Sirach in 19.19 (text note h); cf. Wis 8.13.

18.1–14 An assurance of God's mercy. The frailty of humans, demonstrated by the inability to fully understand and praise God's creation (vv. 2–7), the inability to understand themselves (v. 8), and by mortality (vv. 9–10), is the reason for God's mercy and compassion (vv. 11–12). 18.8 The rhetorical questions are reminiscent of Ps 8.4. 18.13 That the Lord turns them back by rebuke, training, and teaching contrasts with the exercise of his punishment upon sinners. As a shepherd draws upon a common image for kings and gods. Cf. Isa 40.11.

and the gift of a grudging giver
makes the eyes dim.

The Need of Reflection and Self-control

- 19 Before you speak, learn;
and before you fall ill, take care
of your health.
- 20 Before judgment comes, examine
yourself;
and at the time of scrutiny you will find forgiveness.
- 21 Before falling ill, humble yourself;
and when you have sinned,
repent.
- 22 Let nothing hinder you from paying a vow promptly,
and do not wait until death to be released from it.
- 23 Before making a vow, prepare
yourself;
do not be like one who puts the Lord to the test.
- 24 Think of his wrath on the day of
death,
and of the moment of vengeance when he turns
away his face.
- 25 In the time of plenty think of the time of hunger;
in days of wealth think of poverty and need.
- 26 From morning to evening
conditions change;
all things move swiftly before
the Lord.
- 27 One who is wise is cautious in
everything;
when sin is all around, one
guards against wrongdoing.
- 28 Every intelligent person knows
wisdom,
and praises the one who finds her.
- 29 Those who are skilled in words
become wise themselves,
and pour forth apt proverbs.^b

SELF-CONTROL ^c

- 30 Do not follow your base desires,
but restrain your appetites.

- 31 If you allow your soul to take pleasure in base desire,
it will make you the laughingstock of your enemies.
- 32 Do not revel in great luxury,
or you may become impoverished by its expense.
- 33 Do not become a beggar by feasting with borrowed money,
when you have nothing in your purse.^d

19 The one who does this^e will not become rich;
one who despises small things
will fail little by little.

- 2 Wine and women lead intelligent men astray,
and the man who consorts with prostitutes is reckless.
- 3 Decay and worms will take possession of him,
and the reckless person will be snatched away.

Against Loose Talk

- 4 One who trusts others too quickly
has a shallow mind,
and one who sins does wrong
to himself.
- 5 One who rejoices in wickedness^f
will be condemned,^g
- 6 but one who hates gossip has less evil.
- 7 Never repeat a conversation,
and you will lose nothing at all.
- 8 With friend or foe do not report it,
and unless it would be a sin for
you, do not reveal it;

 10 Have you heard something? Let it die with you.
 Be brave, it will not make you burst!
 11 Having heard something, the fool suffers birth pangs like a woman in labor with a child.
 12 Like an arrow stuck in a person's thigh,
 so is gossip inside a fool.
 13 Question a friend; perhaps he did not do it;
 or if he did, so that he may not do it again.
 14 Question a neighbor; perhaps he did not say it;
 or if he said it, so that he may not repeat it.
 15 Question a friend, for often it is slander;
 so do not believe everything you hear.
 16 A person may make a slip without intending it.
 Who has not sinned with his tongue?
 17 Question your neighbor before you threaten him;
 and let the law of the Most High take its course.^h

True and False Wisdom

- 20 The whole of wisdom is fear of the Lord,
 and in all wisdom there is the fulfillment of the law.ⁱ 22 The knowledge of wickedness is not wisdom,
 nor is there prudence in the counsel of sinners.
 23 There is a cleverness that is detestable,
 and there is a fool who merely lacks wisdom.
 24 Better are the God-fearing who lack understanding than the highly intelligent who transgress the law.

- 25 There is a cleverness that is exact but unjust,
 and there are people who abuse favors to gain a verdict.
 26 There is the villain bowed down in mourning,
 but inwardly he is full of deceit.
 27 He hides his face and pretends not to hear,
 but when no one notices, he will take advantage of you.
 28 Even if lack of strength keeps him from sinning,
 he will nevertheless do evil when he finds the opportunity.
 29 A person is known by his appearance,
 and a sensible person is known when first met, face to face.
 30 A person's attire and hearty laughter,
 and the way he walks, show what he is.

Silence and Speech

- 20 There is a rebuke that is untimely,
 and there is the person who is wise enough to keep silent.
 2 How much better it is to rebuke than to fume!
 3 And the one who admits his fault will be kept from failure.
 4 Like a eunuch lusting to violate a girl
 is the person who does right under compulsion.
 5 Some people keep silent and are thought to be wise,
 while others are detested for being talkative.
 6 Some people keep silent because they have nothing to say,

^h Other ancient authorities add and do not be angry.

¹⁸The fear of the Lord is the beginning of acceptance, and wisdom obtains his love. ¹⁹The knowledge of the Lord's commandments is life-giving discipline; and those who do what is pleasing to him enjoy the fruit of the tree of immortality. ⁱ Other ancient authorities add and the knowledge of his omnipotence. ²¹When a slave says to his master, "I will not act as you wish," even if later he does it, he angers the one who supports him.

19.20–30 A contrast between true wisdom and cleverness. 19.22 Knowledge of wickedness is not wisdom may be an allusion to Gen 3.1–7.

20.1–31 This passage is a loosely connected set of sayings on the topic of timely and appropriate speech.

- while others keep silent because they know when to speak.
- 7 The wise remain silent until the
right moment,
but a boasting fool misses the
right moment.
- 8 Whoever talks too much is detested,
and whoever pretends to authority is hated.^j

Paradoxes

- 9 There may be good fortune for a person in adversity,
and a windfall may result in a loss.
- 10 There is the gift that profits you
nothing,
and the gift to be paid back double.
- 11 There are losses for the sake of
glory,
and there are some who have raised their heads from humble circumstances.
- 12 Some buy much for little,
but pay for it seven times over.
- 13 The wise make themselves beloved by only few words,^k
but the courtesies of fools are wasted.
- 14 A fool's gift will profit you nothing,^l
for he looks for recompense
sevenfold.^m
- 15 He gives little and upbraids
much;
he opens his mouth like a town
crier.
Today he lends and tomorrow he asks it back;
such a one is hateful to God
and humans.ⁿ
- 16 The fool says, "I have no friends,
and I get no thanks for my good deeds.
Those who eat my bread are evil-tongued."
- 17 How many will ridicule him, and how often!^o

Inappropriate Speech

- 18 A slip on the pavement is better than a slip of the tongue;

- the downfall of the wicked will occur just as speedily.
- 19 A coarse person is like an inappropriate story,
continually on the lips of the ignorant.
- 20 A proverb from a fool's lips will
be rejected,
for he does not tell it at the proper time.
- 21 One may be prevented from
sinning by poverty;
so when he rests he feels no
remorse.
- 22 One may lose his life through
shame,
or lose it because of human respect.^p
- 23 Another out of shame makes promises to a friend,
and so makes an enemy for nothing.

Lying

- 24 A lie is an ugly blot on a person;
it is continually on the lips of
the ignorant.
- 25 A thief is preferable to a habitual liar,
but the lot of both is ruin.
- 26 A liar's way leads to disgrace,
and his shame is ever with him.

PROVERBIAL SAYINGS^q

- 27 The wise person advances himself
by his words,
and one who is sensible pleases
the great.
- 28 Those who cultivate the soil heap
up their harvest,
and those who please the great
atone for injustice.
- 29 Favors and gifts blind the eyes of the wise;
like a muzzle on the mouth
they stop reproofs.

- Various Sins

- 21 Have you sinned, my child? Do so no more,
but ask forgiveness for your past sins.
2 Flee from sin as from a snake;
for if you approach sin, it will bite you.
Its teeth are lion's teeth,
and can destroy human lives.
3 All lawlessness is like a two-edged sword;
there is no healing for the
wound it inflicts.
4 Panic and insolence will waste
away riches;
thus the house of the proud
will be laid waste.^s 5 The prayer of the poor goes from their lips to the ears of God,^t
and his judgment comes speedily.
6 Those who hate reproof walk in the sinner's steps,
but those who fear the Lord
repent in their heart.
7 The mighty in speech are widely known;
when they slip, the sensible
person knows it.
8 Whoever builds his house with other people's money
is like one who gathers stones
for his burial mound.^u

- 9 An assembly of the wicked is like
a bundle of tow,
and their end is a blazing fire.
10 The way of sinners is paved with smooth stones,
but at its end is the pit of Hades.

Wisdom and Foolishness

- 11 Whoever keeps the law controls
his thoughts,
and the fulfillment of the fear
of the Lord is wisdom.
12 The one who is not clever cannot
be taught,
but there is a cleverness that increases bitterness.
13 The knowledge of the wise will increase like a flood,
and their counsel like a life-giving spring.
14 The mind^v of a fool is like a broken jar;
it can hold no knowledge.
15 When an intelligent person hears
a wise saying,
he praises it and adds to it;
when a fool^w hears it, he laughs
at^x it
and throws it behind his back.
16 A fool's chatter is like a burden
on a journey,
but delight is found in the speech of the intelligent.

21.1–10 A loose collection of sayings on sin. 21.5 That the prayer of the poor will be heard is a form of the common theme about the cry of the righteous in distress. See 2.10–11; 35.16–26. In Sirach the lowly or oppressed God-fearer is frequently called poor. 21.8 Builds his house is probably meant literally, but “building a house” was also a metaphor for amassing wealth. 21.10 Paved with smooth stones may be an oblique reference to Greco-Roman road building in Palestine.

21.11–28 A loosely connected set of sayings about the fool. 21.11 Thoughts translates the Hebrew yetzer, thus “impulses,” or “designs”; see note on 15.14. The fear of the Lord is used as a synonym for ethical piety, or obedience to the law, and thus can be “fulfilled.” Cf. 1.28, where the fear of the Lord can be obeyed or disobeyed. 21.15 Throws it behind his back means disregards it. 21.17 Ponder his words is a reference to deliberation in an assembly charged with making decisions. See notes on 15.5; 38.32–33; cf. Wis 8.10–12.

and my tongue may not

23 O Lord, Father and Master of my life,
do not abandon me to their designs,
and do not let me fall because
of them!

2 Who will set whips over my thoughts,
and the discipline of wisdom
over my mind,
so as not to spare me in my errors,
and not overlook my g sins?

3 Otherwise my mistakes may be multiplied,
and my sins may abound,
and I may fall before my adversaries,
and my enemy may rejoice
over me.^{h}

4 O Lord, Father and God of my
life,
do not give me haughty eyes,
5 and remove evil desire
from me.

6 Let neither gluttony nor lust
overcome me,
and do not give me over to shameless passion.

DISCIPLINE OF THE TONGUE ^{i}

7 Listen, my children, to instruction
concerning the mouth;
the one who observes it will never be caught.

8 Sinners are overtaken through their lips;
by them the reviler and the arrogant are tripped up.

9 Do not accustom your mouth to oaths,
nor habitually utter the name of the Holy One;

10 for as a servant who is constantly under scrutiny

will not lack bruises,
so also the person who always swears and utters the Name
will never be cleansed ^{j}
from sin.

11 The one who swears many oaths
is full of iniquity,
and the scourge will not leave
his house.

If he swears in error, his sin
remains on him,
and if he disregards it, he sins
doubly;

if he swears a false oath, he will not be justified,
for his house will be filled with calamities.

Foul Language

12 There is a manner of speaking comparable to death;^{k}
may it never be found in the inheritance of Jacob!
Such conduct will be far from the godly,

and they will not wallow in sins.

13 Do not accustom your mouth to coarse, foul language,
for it involves sinful speech.

14 Remember your father and mother
when you sit among the great,
or you may forget yourself in their presence,
and behave like a fool through
bad habit;
then you will wish that you had never been born,
and you will curse the day of
your birth.

prayer of petition that the Lord be a guardian or teacher to help control one's speech, thoughts, and desires.

23.7–11 Advice against swearing. 23.9 The Holy One is an epithet, not a proper name, occurring frequently in Isaiah. Cf. Isa 1.4. 23.10 It is unclear whether the problem is the habitual practice of swearing, a misuse of taking an oath, or the breaking of a taboo against uttering the divine name. On taking God's name "in vain," see Ex 20.7; Lev 19.12; Deut 5.11. 23.11 Sins doubly may refer to Lev 5.4.

23.12–15 Advice against the use of coarse speech. 23.12 The meaning of speech comparable to death is unclear. It may mean "rivaling death" or "meriting death" and so intend a reference to blasphemy, the punishment for which was death. See Lev 24.11–16.

- Weep less bitterly for the dead,
for he is at rest;
but the life of the fool is worse
than death.
- 12 Mourning for the dead lasts
seven days,
but for the foolish or the ungodly it lasts all the days
of their lives.
- 13 Do not talk much with a senseless
person
or visit an unintelligent
person.^d
Stay clear of him, or you may have trouble,
and be spattered when he
shakes himself off.
Avoid him and you will find rest,
and you will never be wearied
by his lack of sense.
- 14 What is heavier than lead?
And what is its name except “Fool”?
- 15 Sand, salt, and a piece of iron
are easier to bear than a stupid
person.
- 16 A wooden beam firmly bonded
into a building
is not loosened by an earthquake;
so the mind firmly resolved after due reflection
will not be afraid in a crisis.
- 17 A mind settled on an intelligent thought
is like stucco decoration that makes a wall smooth.
- 18 Fences^e set on a high place
will not stand firm against the
wind;
so a timid mind with a fool’s resolve
will not stand firm against any fear.

The Preservation of Friendship

- 19 One who pricks the eye brings tears,

- and one who pricks the heart
makes clear its feelings.
- 20 One who throws a stone at birds
scares them away,
and one who reviles a friend
destroys a friendship.
- 21 Even if you draw your sword
against a friend,
do not despair, for there is a way back.
- 22 If you open your mouth against your friend,
do not worry, for reconciliation
is possible.
But as for reviling, arrogance,
disclosure of secrets, or a treacherous blow —
in these cases any friend will take to flight.
- 23 Gain the trust of your neighbor
in his poverty,
so that you may rejoice with him in his prosperity.
Stand by him in time of distress,
so that you may share with him
in his inheritance.^f
- 24 The vapor and smoke of the furnace precede the fire;
so insults precede bloodshed.
- 25 I am not ashamed to shelter a friend,
and I will not hide from him.
- 26 But if harm should come to me
because of him,
whoever hears of it will beware
of him.

discourse. 22.12 Seven days was the traditional period of mourning. See Gen 50.10; Jdt 16.24; but Cf. Sir 38.17. 22.13 Shakes himself off is unclear. The Hebrew is missing, but the Syriac reads “pig” for the unintelligent person, which means that the Hebrew may have used a derogatory label such as “dog,” an animal that shakes itself off. 22.14 On the fool as a heavy burden, see 21.16.

the next stanza. The poem stands in the tradition of Job 28; Prov 8.22–31 (cf. Bar 3.9–37) and brings to a climax the wisdom poems in Sirach: 1.1–20; 4.11–19; 6.18–37; 14.20–15.10. These poems answer the problem of hidden wisdom by imagining the wisdom of God in creation to be present and available to Jews in the tradition of Israel with its covenants and Mosaic law. Ch. 24 expands upon this claim by locating wisdom in the temple society of Ben Sira's time. This feature makes the poem distinctive and prepares for the express identification of wisdom with the books of Moses in 24.23, as well as her location in the vocation of the scribe in 39.1–11, the history of Israel's leaders in chs. 44–49, and the office of the high priest in ch. 50. 24.1–2 An introduction of the speaker. 24.1 Praises herself is Ben Sira's acknowledgment of the distinctive characteristic of the poem, called an aretalogy (a recital of one's virtues or achievements), a genre associated primarily with the Egyptian goddess Isis. 24.2 The assembly of the Most High is a curious formulation, suggesting that both her people (v. 1) and his [heavenly] hosts (v. 2) are present as she speaks. His hosts are the heavenly bodies and court of the Most High; see 17.32; cf. Gen 2.1; Pss 82; 103.19–22. 24.3–7 The first stanza tells of Wisdom's origin (v. 3), her part in the creation of the world (vv. 4–6), and her quest for rest and residence (v. 7). 24.3 From the mouth is an image common in Egyptian poems of creation; it perhaps alludes to Gen 1 ("And God said"). Cf. Pss 29.2; 33.6. Like a mist, an image common to Egyptian mythologies of creation that perhaps alludes to the spirit of God in Gen 1.2. 24.4 The throne . . . in a pillar of cloud is an allusive interpretation of Ex 13.21–22. 24.5 A mythological image meaning that wisdom traversed the great circle and so "described" (created) the world, an image common in Egyptian mythology. Cf. Prov 8.27–29. 24.6 Held sway means she ruled as queen. The Egyptian goddess Isis makes a similar claim in one of her aretalogies, "I am the queen of every land." Cf. Wis 8.1. 24.7 That Wisdom sought a resting place is reminiscent of Isis mythologies and may allude as well to God resting on the seventh day (Gen 2.2–3). Wisdom's quest for recognition and habitation among humans complements the human quest for wisdom, thus making the theme of seeking and finding capable of inversion. 24.8–12 The second stanza tells of Wisdom finding a resting place in Jerusalem. 24.8 My Creator domesticates the preceding mythological imagery by using the preferred language of creation. Cf. 1.4; Prov 8.22. My tent refers to the tabernacle in the wilderness (Ex 25.8–9); cf. v. 10. 24.10 Ministered before him as priest is a rare attribution. Traditionally, the social location of wisdom was the palace or the school; but see 4.13. Zion was a designation for Jerusalem as the location for God's house and presence in Israel; see 36.18–19. 24.13–17 The third stanza tells will never become disciplined as long as they live.

Concerning Sexual Sins

- 16 Two kinds of individuals multiply
sins,
and a third incurs wrath.
Hot passion that blazes like a
fire
will not be quenched until it
burns itself out;
one who commits fornication with his near of kin
will never cease until the fire
burns him up.
- 17 To a fornicator all bread is sweet;
he will never weary until he dies.
- 18 The one who sins against his marriage bed
says to himself, "Who can
see me?
Darkness surrounds me, the walls
hide me,
and no one sees me. Why should I worry?
The Most High will not remember sins."
- 19 His fear is confined to human
eyes
and he does not realize that the eyes of the Lord
are ten thousand times brighter
than the sun;
they look upon every aspect of human behavior
and see into hidden corners.
- 20 Before the universe was created,
it was known to him,
and so it is since its completion.
- 21 This man will be punished in the streets of the city,

and where he least suspects it,
he will be seized.

- 22 So it is with a woman who leaves
her husband
and presents him with an heir
by another man.
- 23 For first of all, she has disobeyed
the law of the Most High;
second, she has committed an offense against her husband;
and third, through her fornication she has committed adultery
and brought forth children by another man.
- 24 She herself will be brought before
the assembly,
and her punishment will extend
to her children.
- 25 Her children will not take root,
and her branches will not bear fruit.
- 26 She will leave behind an accursed memory
and her disgrace will never be blotted out.
- 27 Those who survive her will recognize that nothing is better than the fear of the Lord,
and nothing sweeter than to heed
the commandments of the Lord.^l

THE PRAISE OF WISDOM^m

24 Wisdom praises herself, and tells of her glory in the midst of her people.

23.16–27 A narrative poem on the sexual license of a man (vv. 16–21) and a woman (vv. 22–27), introduced by a numerical proverb (Two kinds . . . and a third). 23.21 Punished in the streets means that his sin will become public knowledge. In the streets may refer to the marketplace or the city gates where trials took place. According to Lev 20.10; Deut 22.22–24, the penalty for adultery was death, but Ben Sira does not allude to it. Thus the penalty referred to is probably dishonor. 23.24 Brought before the assembly refers to a court hearing. As with the case of the man (v. 21), it is not clear what the woman's punishment would have been. That her punishment will extend to her children seems to imply disgrace, the point made in the following lines. For a similar picture, cf. Wis 4.3–6.

24.1–22 A poem of twenty-two lines in praise of personified wisdom, with three stanzas (vv. 3–7, 8–12, 13–17), plus introduction (vv. 1–2) and conclusion (vv. 19–22). The three stanzas tell the story of wisdom from creation, through Israel's epic history, to her flourishing in Jerusalem. The poem is tightly constructed and the narrative logic is controlled and complete. The last line of each stanza introduces an image that prepares for the next stanza. The poem stands in the tradition of Job 28; Prov 8.22–31 (cf. Bar 3.9–37) and brings to a climax the wisdom poems in Sirach: 1.1–20; 4.11–19; 6.18–37; 14.20–15.10. These poems answer the problem of hidden wisdom by imagining the wisdom of God in creation to be present and available to Jews in the tradition of Israel with its covenants and Mosaic law. Ch. 24 expands upon this claim by locating wisdom in the temple society of Ben Sira's time. This feature makes the poem distinctive and prepares for the express identification of wisdom with the books of Moses in 24.23, as well as her location in the vocation of the scribe in 39.1–11, the history of Israel's leaders in chs. 44–49, and the office of the high priest in ch. 50. 24.1–2 An introduction of the speaker. 24.1 Praises herself is Ben Sira's acknowledgment of the distinctive characteristic of the poem, called an aretalogy (a recital of one's virtues or achievements), a genre associated primarily with the Egyptian goddess Isis. 24.2 The assembly of the Most High is a curious formulation, suggesting that both her people (v. 1) and his [heavenly] hosts (v. 2) are present as she speaks. His hosts are the heavenly bodies and court of the Most High; see 17.32; cf. Gen 2.1; Pss 82; 103.19–22. 24.3–7 The first stanza tells of Wisdom's origin (v. 3), her part in the creation of the world (vv. 4–6), and her quest for rest and residence (v. 7). 24.3 From the mouth is an image common in Egyptian poems of creation; it perhaps alludes to Gen 1 ("And God said"). Cf. Pss 29.2; 33.6. Like a mist, an image common to Egyptian mythologies of creation that perhaps alludes to the spirit of God in Gen 1.2. 24.4 The throne . . . in a pillar of cloud is an allusive interpretation of Ex 13.21–22. 24.5 A mythological image meaning that wisdom traversed the great circle and so "described" (created) the world, an image common in Egyptian mythology. Cf. Prov 8.27–29. 24.6 Held sway means she ruled as queen. The Egyptian goddess Isis makes a similar claim in one of her aretalogies, "I am the queen of every land." Cf. Wis 8.1. 24.7 That Wisdom sought a resting place is reminiscent of Isis mythologies and may allude as well to God resting on the seventh day (Gen 2.2–3). Wisdom's quest for recognition and habitation among humans complements the human quest for wisdom, thus making the theme of seeking and finding capable of inversion. 24.8–12 The second stanza tells of Wisdom finding a resting place in Jerusalem. 24.8 My Creator domesticates the preceding mythological imagery by using the preferred language of creation. Cf. 1.4; Prov 8.22. My tent refers to the tabernacle in the wilderness (Ex 25.8–9); cf. v. 10. 24.10 Ministered before him as priest is a rare attribution. Traditionally, the social location of wisdom was the palace or the school; but see 4.13. Zion was a designation for Jerusalem as the location for God's house and presence in Israel; see 36.18–19. 24.13–17 The third stanza tells

- and like a cypress on the heights of Hermon.
 14 I grew tall like a palm tree in Engedi,^o and like rosebushes in Jericho; like a fair olive tree in the field, and like a plane tree beside water^p I grew tall.
 15 Like cassia and camel's thorn I gave forth perfume, and like choice myrrh I spread my fragrance, like galbanum, onycha, and stacte, and like the odor of incense in the tent.
 16 Like a terebinth I spread out my branches, and my branches are glorious and graceful.
 17 Like the vine I bud forth delights, and my blossoms become glorious and abundant fruit.^q 19 "Come to me, you who desire me, and eat your fill of my fruits.
 20 For the memory of me is sweeter than honey, and the possession of me sweeter than the honeycomb.
 21 Those who eat of me will hunger for more,

- and those who drink of me will thirst for more.
 22 Whoever obeys me will not be put to shame, and those who work with me will not sin."

Wisdom and the Law

- 23 All this is the book of the covenant of the Most High God, the law that Moses commanded us as an inheritance for the congregations of Jacob.^r
 25 It overflows, like the Pishon, with wisdom, and like the Tigris at the time of the first fruits.
 26 It runs over, like the Euphrates, with understanding, and like the Jordan at harvest time.
 27 It pours forth instruction like the Nile,^s of Wisdom "taking root" in Jerusalem, flourishing like a tree. Most of the trees mentioned were prized for their beauty, utility, and fragrance, and some were symbolic of the grandeur of their districts, reaching from Lebanon in the north (cedar) to Judea in the south (olive). Several were used in the preparation of perfumes and incense, suggesting a connection to the temple ritual mentioned in v. 15. The addition of the vine and its fruit in v. 17 enables a shift to the metaphor of cultivation and prepares for the concluding invitation that follows in vv. 19–22. 24.18 See text note q. Some ancient manuscripts have this verse describing Wisdom as a mother; cf. Prov 8.32; Wis 7.12; Lk 13.34; it also occurs in Philo's writings and in Gnostic texts. 24.19–22 Wisdom's invitation to her feast. On Wisdom's fruit see 1.16–17; 6.19; 15.3; Prov 8.19; 9.2, 5.

24.23–34 The author acknowledges that personified wisdom is a metaphor for the wisdom available in both the Mosaic law (vv. 23–29) and the instruction of the teacher (vv. 30–34).

24.23–29 The wisdom of the Torah is unfathomable. 24.23 The express identification of wisdom with the Torah is given in prose, not poetry, an extremely odd feature of this transition between the poem and its interpretation. It is the earliest statement of this kind in Jewish literature; but cf. Deut 4.5–8. In later rabbinic tradition the identification of wisdom and Torah was common and even the mythology of personified wisdom was transferred to the Torah. The reference to the book of the covenant is uncertain, but cf. Ex 24.7. For the law that Moses commanded, see Deut 33.4. 24.25–27 The rivers are those flowing from the garden of Eden (Gen 2.10–14), plus the Jordan and the Nile. 24.27 Pours forth like the Nile is a simile derived from Egyptian lore about the first cataract (Elephantine, modern Aswan) as the "source" of the Nile and its periodic inundations. The principal temple of Isis was located at Philae, an island at the first cataract. See 24.30–31 and the image of "pour forth" in 24.33. The metaphor is used of wisdom (1.9); of the scribe (39.6); of the

 28 The first man did not know wisdom^t fully,
 nor will the last one fathom her.
 29 For her thoughts are more abundant than the sea,
 and her counsel deeper than the great abyss.
 30 As for me, I was like a canal from a river,
 like a water channel into a garden.
 31 I said, "I will water my garden and drench my flower-beds." And lo, my canal became a river, and my river a sea.
 32 I will again make instruction shine forth like the dawn, and I will make it clear from far away.
 33 I will again pour out teaching like prophecy, and leave it to all future generations.
 34 Observe that I have not labored for myself alone, but for all who seek wisdom.^t

Those Who Are Worthy of Praise

- 25 I take pleasure in three things, and they are beautiful in the sight of God and of mortals:^u agreement among brothers and sisters, friendship among neighbors,

- and a wife and a husband who live in harmony.
 2 I hate three kinds of people, and I loathe their manner of life:
 a pauper who boasts, a rich person who lies,
 and an old fool who commits adultery.
 3 If you gathered nothing in your youth,
 how can you find anything in your old age?
 4 How attractive is sound judgment in the gray-haired,
 and for the aged to possess good counsel!
 5 How attractive is wisdom in the aged,
 and understanding and counsel in the venerable!
 6 Rich experience is the crown of the aged,
 and their boast is the fear of the Lord.
 7 I can think of nine whom I would call blessed,
 and a tenth my tongue proclaims:
 a man who can rejoice in his children;
 a man who lives to see the downfall of his foes.
 8 Happy the man who lives with a sensible wife,

Lord's blessing (39.22); of Solomon's wisdom (47.14–15); and of Ben Sira's own instruction (50.27). 24.28–29 On the limits of human understanding, a theme related to that of hidden wisdom, see 1.6. 24.30–34 Ben Sira assumes the voice of personified wisdom. 24.32 To make instruction shine forth is an expression of Ben Sira's desire, perhaps in the awareness that his program was new and that it countered the skepticism documented in Ecclesiastes. On the Torah as light, cf. Ps 119.105; Prov 4.18; 6.23. On wisdom as light, see Wis 7.26, 29. 24.33 To pour out teaching like prophecy is a novel notion that merges two concepts of effective speech, that of the sage, which leads to understanding, and that of the prophet, which predicts or effects change in a political or social situation. The combination is based on Ben Sira's conception of personified wisdom as the source of enlightenment and thus identifiable with the spirit (of God) as the agent of prophetic inspiration. On pour out, see note on 24.27. On prophecy as wisdom, see note on 39.1; 39.6. 24.34 This saying is repeated in 33.18.

25.1–2 Two contrasting numerical proverbs on acceptable and unacceptable relationships. 25.3–6 A unit in praise of mature wisdom. 25.7–11 A numerical proverb introducing a series of beatitudes. 25.8 To plow with ox and ass together was a legal prohibition, used here as metaphor for an incompatible marriage or perhaps for two incompatible wives. See Deut 22.10; cf. Sir 26.6. To serve an inferior was considered a disgrace.

- and the one who does not plow

Happy is the one who does not sin with the tongue,
and the one who has not served
an inferior.
- 9 Happy is the one who finds a friend,^w
and the one who speaks to attentive listeners.
- 10 How great is the one who finds
wisdom!
But none is superior to the one who fears the Lord.
- 11 Fear of the Lord surpasses
everything;
to whom can we compare the one who has it?^x

Some Extreme Forms of Evil

- 13 Any wound, but not a wound of the heart!
Any wickedness, but not the wickedness of a woman!
- 14 Any suffering, but not suffering
from those who hate!
And any vengeance, but not the vengeance of enemies!
- 15 There is no venom^y worse than a snake's venom,^y
and no anger worse than a woman's^z wrath.

The Evil of a Wicked Woman

- 16 I would rather live with a lion
and a dragon
than live with an evil woman.
- 17 A woman's wickedness changes
her appearance,
and darkens her face like that of a bear.
- 18 Her husband sits^a among the
neighbors,
and he cannot help sighing^b bitterly.

- 19 Any iniquity is small compared to a woman's iniquity;
may a sinner's lot befall her!
- 20 A sandy ascent for the feet of the aged —
such is a garrulous wife to a quiet husband.
- 21 Do not be ensnared by a woman's
beauty,
and do not desire a woman for her possessions.^c
- 22 There is wrath and impudence
and great disgrace
when a wife supports her
husband.
- 23 Dejected mind, gloomy face,
and wounded heart come from an evil wife.
Drooping hands and weak knees
come from the wife who does not make her husband happy.
- 24 From a woman sin had its
beginning,
and because of her we all die.
- 25 Allow no outlet to water,
and no boldness of speech to
an evil wife.
- 26 If she does not go as you direct,
separate her from yourself.

The Joy of a Good Wife

- 26 Happy is the husband of a good wife;
the number of his days will be doubled.
- 2 A loyal wife brings joy to her
husband,
and he will complete his years
in peace.

25.13–26.27 A large collection of proverbs about bad and good wives. 25.13–15 Sayings about a woman's wrath. 25.14 The vengeance of enemies may refer to two wives in a single household; see 26.6. 25.16–26 The bad wife was a topic traditional to proverbial wisdom. See Prov 21.19; 25.24; 27.15. 25.24 From a woman sin had its beginning alludes to Eve (Gen 3.1–24). Cf.

2 Cor 11.3; 1 Tim 2.14. Alternate interpretations of the Genesis story were that sin originated from the devil, as in Wis 2.24, or from Adam, as in Rom 5.12–14. Ben Sira does not mention the sin of either Adam or Eve in his interpretation of the Genesis account in 17.7. 25.26 The advice to separate her from yourself implies divorce: cf. The Worst of Evils: A Wicked Wife

- 5 Of three things my heart is frightened,
and of a fourth I am in great fear:^d
Slander in the city, the gathering
of a mob,
and false accusation—all these
are worse than death.
- 6 But it is heartache and sorrow
when a wife is jealous of a rival,
and a tongue-lashing makes it known to all.
- 7 A bad wife is a chafing yoke;
taking hold of her is like grasping a scorpion.
- 8 A drunken wife arouses great
anger;
she cannot hide her shame.
- 9 The haughty stare betrays an
unchaste wife;
her eyelids give her away.
- 10 Keep strict watch over a headstrong daughter,
or else, when she finds liberty,
she will make use of it.
- 11 Be on guard against her impudent eye,
and do not be surprised if she sins against you.
- 12 As a thirsty traveler opens his mouth
and drinks from any water
near him,
so she will sit in front of every tent peg

and open her quiver to the arrow.

The Blessing of a Good Wife

- 13 A wife's charm delights her
husband,
and her skill puts flesh on his bones.
- 14 A silent wife is a gift from the Lord,
and nothing is so precious as
her self-discipline.
- 15 A modest wife adds charm to charm,
and no scales can weigh the value of her chastity.
- 16 Like the sun rising in the heights
of the Lord,
so is the beauty of a good wife
in her well-ordered home.
- 17 Like the shining lamp on the holy
lampstand,
so is a beautiful face on a stately figure.
- 18 Like golden pillars on silver
bases,
so are shapely legs and steadfast feet.

Other ancient authorities add verses 19–27:

- 19 *My child, keep sound the bloom of
your youth,
and do not give your strength to strangers.*
- 20 *Seek a fertile field within the whole plain,
and sow it with your own seed,
trusting in your fine stock.*

Three Depressing Things

- 28 *At two things my heart is grieved,

comes over me:
a warrior in want through
poverty,
intelligent men who are treated

- 14 Their cursing and swearing make one's hair stand on end,

- 15 The strife of the proud leads to bloodshed,

Betraying Secrets

- 16 Whoever betrays secrets destroys confidence,
and will never find a congenial friend.
- 17 Love your friend and keep faith with him;
but if you betray his secrets, do not follow after him.
- 18 For as a person destroys his enemy,
so you have destroyed the friendship of your neighbor.
- 19 And as you allow a bird to escape from your hand,
so you have let your neighbor go, and will not catch him again.
- 20 Do not go after him, for he is too far off,
and has escaped like a gazelle from a snare.
- 21 For a wound may be bandaged,
and there is reconciliation after abuse,
but whoever has betrayed secrets is without hope.

Hypocrisy and Retribution

- 22 Whoever winks the eye plots mischief,
and those who know him will keep their distance.
- 23 In your presence his mouth is all sweetness,
and he admires your words;
but later he will twist his speech
and with your own words he will trip you up.
- 24 I have hated many things, but him above all;
even the Lord hates him.
- 25 Whoever throws a stone straight up throws it on his own head,
and a treacherous blow opens up many wounds.
- 26 Whoever digs a pit will fall into it,
and whoever sets a snare will be caught in it.
- 27 If a person does evil, it will roll back upon him,
and he will not know where it came from.
- 28 Mockery and abuse issue from the proud,
but vengeance lies in wait for them like a lion.
- 29 Those who rejoice in the fall of the godly will be caught in a snare,
and pain will consume them before their death.

Anger and Vengeance

- 30 Anger and wrath, these also are abominations,
yet a sinner holds on to them.
- 28 The vengeful will face the Lord's vengeance,
for he keeps a strict account of their sins.

The Evil Tongue

- 12 If you blow on a spark, it will

- 29 The merciful lend to their neighbors;
by holding out a helping hand they keep the commandments.
- 2 Lend to your neighbor in his time of need;
repay your neighbor when a loan falls due.
- 3 Keep your promise and be honest with him,
and on every occasion you will find what you need.
- 4 Many regard a loan as a windfall,
and cause trouble to those who help them.
- 5 One kisses another's hands until he gets a loan,
and is deferential in speaking of his neighbor's money;
but at the time for repayment he delays,
and pays back with empty promises,
and finds fault with the time.

- 6 If he can pay, his creditor^k will hardly get back half,
and will regard that as a windfall.
If he cannot pay, the borrower^k has robbed the other of his money,
and he has needlessly made him an enemy;
he will repay him with curses and reproaches,
and instead of glory will repay him with dishonor.
- 7 Many refuse to lend, not because of meanness,
but from fear^l of being defrauded needlessly.
- 8 Nevertheless, be patient with someone in humble circumstances,

On Guaranteeing Debts

- 14 A good person will be surety for his neighbor,
but the one who has lost all sense of shame will fail him.
- 15 Do not forget the kindness of your guarantor,
for he has given his life for you.
- 16 A sinner wastes the property of his guarantor, 17 and the ungrateful person abandons his rescuer.
- 18 Being surety has ruined many who were prosperous,
and has tossed them about like waves of the sea;
it has driven the influential into exile,
and they have wandered among foreign nations.
- 19 The sinner comes to grief through surety;
his pursuit of gain involves him in lawsuits.
- 20 Assist your neighbor to the best of your ability,
but be careful not to fall yourself.

Home and Hospitality

- 21 The necessities of life are water, bread, and clothing,
and also a house to assure privacy.
- 22 Better is the life of the poor under their own crude roof
than sumptuous food in the house of others.
- 23 Be content with little or much,
and you will hear no reproach for being a guest.^m
- 24 It is a miserable life to go from house to house;

- as a guest you should not open your mouth;
25 you will play the host and provide drink without being thanked,
and besides this you will hear rude words like these:
- 26 "Come here, stranger, prepare the table;
let me eat what you have there."
- 27 "Be off, stranger, for an honored guest is here;
my brother has come for a visit, and I need the guest-room."
- 28 It is hard for a sensible person to bear scolding about lodgingⁿ and the insults of the moneylender.

CONCERNING CHILDREN^o

- 30 He who loves his son will whip him often,
so that he may rejoice at the way he turns out.
- 2 He who disciplines his son will profit by him,
and will boast of him among acquaintances.
- 3 He who teaches his son will make his enemies envious,
and will glory in him among his friends.
- 4 When the father dies he will not seem to be dead,
for he has left behind him one like himself,
- 5 whom in his life he looked upon with joy
and at death, without grief.
- 6 He has left behind him an avenger against his enemies,

29.21–28 Supporting oneself is better than dependence upon others. 29.21 Another list of the necessities of life is given in 39.26. 29.25 To See 22.6; cf. Prov 13.24; 23.13–14. 30.6 An avenger refers to the son who will defend the father's name and interests. Honor, obligation, and 30.14–25 A miscellany on attitudes in the face of illness. 30.18 A mouth that is closed probably refers to one who is sick, but the language is suggestive of one who has died; the Hebrew reads “one who cannot eat.” The hyperbole is followed by three examples of those incapable of enjoying the pleasures of life: the dead (v. 18), idols (v. 19), and the eunuch (v. 20). Offerings of food placed upon a grave refers to the Eastern Mediterranean custom of placing food and pouring out drink on the burial stones of the dead. Cf. 7.33; Deut 4.28; 26.14; Ezek 24.17; Tob 4.7. 30.19 That sacrificial offerings are of no use to an idol is ridicule.

Concerning Illness

Criticism of idolatry was a characteristic attitude of the Jews. The critique is based upon the second commandment (Ex 20.4; Deut 5.8), and phrased as a comparison between the Lord as a living God and idols, which were lifeless things, made by human artisans. The ridicule is aimed at the way in which idols were treated as if they were alive (clothed, served with offerings of food and drink, conversed with, and handled) when in fact they were lifeless objects. Cf. Ps 115.4–7; Isa 44.9–11; 57.6; Wis 13; Let Jer 27; Bel 3–22. 30.21 Do not give yourself over to sorrow is the language of mourning, used as a transition from the imagery of death (vv. 17–19) to the topic of enjoyment. On mourning, see 38.17–20. 30.23 Indulge your-

and no advantage ever comes from it.

and anxiety brings on self, advice common to the Epicurean tradition. Cf. 14.11, 16; Eccl 2.24. 30.25 Merry at table is a weak attempt to bridge between the images of mourning and eating in vv. 17–23 in order to return to the theme of gladness in vv. 14–16. The translation follows the Greek text, since the Hebrew appears uncertain, and v. 25 occurs at a break in the Greek text where several pages of a Greek codex were mistakenly transposed, thereby reordering some chapters in the manuscript tradition of the Septuagint. Instead of continuing with ch. 31 (as does the Hebrew and the NRSV), the Septuagint inserts the text from (Hebrew/NRSV) 33.16–36.13 at this point, thus giving rise to messy textual seams both here and at 36.13 (see text note ^x there). It is possible that the Greek 30.25 was rephrased after the transposition in the attempt to round off the preceding proverbial unit.

31.1–11 A troubled set of sayings on acquiring, protecting, and using wealth. Two ethical considerations underlie Ben Sira's attempt to deal with the widespread Hellenistic critique of the rich. One is that avarice is to be condemned

(vv. 5–8); the other is that almsgiving is to be commended (vv. 9–11). 31.2 Wakefulness was a common idiom, both as a sign of anxiety and as a sign of legitimate concern. Kings were expected to stay awake out of concern for their people, and in the case of impending crises wakefulness (as watchfulness) was enjoined for all. Anxiety, on the other hand, was usually thought detrimental (cf. Lk 12.22). The phrase wakeful anxiety is a combination of the two terms based on their occurrence in v. 1. 31.3–4 This is a common form of couplet, used to compare two sets of opposing categories (rich/poor; sufficiency/need) by relating each to a third and common factor (toil). In this case, the resulting observation is merely clever, not judgmental. 31.8 Found blameless refers to Ben Sira's notion of the pious rich: cf. 13.24. The Greek word for gold translates the Hebrew mamon; this is the earliest example of this Aramaic loanword which also occurs in Mt 6.24; Lk 16.9, 11, 13. 31.9–11 The rhetorical questions may be intended as irony, illustrating the difficulty of knowing how to assess legitimate and illegitimate wealth.

Table Etiquette

- 12 Are you seated at the table of the great?^z
Do not be greedy at it,
and do not say, "How much

- 13 Remember that a greedy eye is a bad thing.
What has been created more greedy than the eye?
Therefore it sheds tears for any reason.
- 14 Do not reach out your hand for everything you see,
and do not crowd your

- 15 Judge your neighbor's feelings by
your own,
and in every matter be thoughtful.
- 16 Eat what is set before you like a

The banquet in question corresponds to the Greek tradition of dinner with guests followed by a symposium. Features in common are the mention of honor (31.23–24); the wine-drinking contest (31.25–26); license for merrymaking (31.31; 32.2); the master of the feast (32.1); ranking (32.1–2; 32.3, 7); entertainment (32.4); display of cleverness (32.4); music (32.5–6); and a blessing to the gods at the conclusion of the feast (32.13). number.

Take care of them first and then sit down;

duties, take your place,
so that you may be merry along
with them
and receive a wreath for your excellent leadership.

- 3 Speak, you who are older, for it is your right,
but with accurate knowledge,
and do not interrupt the music.

- 4 Where there is entertainment, do not pour out talk;
do not display your cleverness
at the wrong time.

- 5 A ruby seal in a setting of gold
is a concert of music at a banquet of wine.

- 6 A seal of emerald in a rich setting
of gold
is the melody of music with good wine.

- 7 Speak, you who are young, if you are obliged to,
but no more than twice, and
only if asked.

- 8 Be brief; say much in few words;
be as one who knows and can still hold his tongue.

- 9 Among the great do not act as their equal;
and when another is speaking,
do not babble.

- 10 Lightning travels ahead of the thunder,
and approval goes before one

- 11 Leave in good time and do not be

- 13 But above all bless your Maker,
who fills you with his good gifts.

The Providence of God

The advice was not for the elders, who would know this, but to the youth who were being taught the rules of social etiquette. Cf. 32.7–9.

32.14–33.6 A loosely connected set of sayings on being deliberate in one's judgments. 32.14 Rise early to seek him is a reference to prayers at sunrise, a sign of piety. Cf. 39.5. 32.16–17 To form true judgments was the goal of instruction in wisdom, transferred here to instruction in Mosaic law (32.15; 33.3–4). The contrast is that the sinner . . . will find a decision according to his liking (v. 17). On rendering judgments as a judge, one of the goals of Ben Sira's instructions, cf.

- 16 Those who fear the Lord will form true judgments,
and they will kindle righteous
deeds like a light.
- 17 The sinner will shun reproof,
and will find a decision
according to his liking.
- 18 A sensible person will not suggestion;

an insolent^h and proud person
will not be deterred by fear.ⁱ
- 19 Do nothing without deliberation,
but when you have acted, do not regret it.
- 20 Do not go on a path full of hazards,
and do not stumble at an obstacle twice.^j
- 21 Do not be overconfident on a smooth^k road,
22 and give good heed to your paths.^l
- 23 Guard^m yourself in every act,
for this is the keeping of the commandments.
- 24 The one who keeps the law preserves himself,ⁿ
and the one who trusts the Lord will not suffer loss.

33 No evil will befall the one who fears the Lord,
but in trials such a one will be rescued again and again.

2 The wise will not hate the law,

- but the one who is hypocritical
about it is like a boat in a

- 4 Prepare what to say, and then you will be listened to;
draw upon your training, and give your answer.
- 5 The heart of a fool is like a cart

38.31–33. Righteous deeds correspond to the thoughts and words of those who seek the law and are filled with it (32.15). 32.23 A curious identification of the wisdom of caution with ethical piety (obedience to the law), perhaps with an eye to Deut 4.9. On the wisdom of caution, see 8.1–19. 33.1 On rescue as a theme, see 2.6–11; cf. Wis 10.1–21. 33.2 Like a boat in a storm means without rudder or control, a very common metaphor in late antiquity. 33.3 That the law is as dependable as a divine oracle is unclear. Oracles were predictive. Perhaps the saying refers to the blessings promised in the Torah (Lev 26.3–13; Deut 28.1–14), or the promises attached to the covenants in the biblical epic (see 44.21), or simply that the Torah is as trustworthy in its own way as a divine oracle is in its way. Cf. 34.6. The oracle used by the priests was the casting of dice called

Urim and Thummim. Cf. Ex 28.30; Lev 8.8; Num 27.21; Deut 33.8; 1 Sam 14.41–42; Ezra 2.63; Neh 7.65. On attitudes toward divination, see Sir 34.1–20.

The logic behind this list merges Greek conceptuality, with its penchant for classification into categories of opposition, with the wisdom categories of ranked pairs (e.g., foolish/wise; bad/good; better/best). See 42.24. 33.7–9 Exalted and ordinary days refers to the Jewish calendar of weeks, months, and festivals based on the lunar year. See 43.6–8; cf.

39.12; 50.6; Gen 1.14; Ps 104.19. 33.12 Some he blessed probably refers to the blessing promised to Abraham (Gen 12.2–3; 15.5; 22.17; 24.60; 28.14; Ex 32.13; Deut 1.10); cf. Sir 44.20–23. Some he made holy and brought near to himself probably refers to the priests of Israel whose privilege was to “approach” the Lord. Cf. Num 16.5; Ezek 40.46. Second Temple society was organized largely by orientation to priestly families and their genealogies. Some he cursed . . . out of their place may refer to the Canaanites. Cf. Gen 9.25–27; 12.6–7; Ex 33.1–3; Deut 34.1–4. 33.13 Clay in the hand of the potter, a common metaphor for the divine determination of human destinies. Cf. Isa 29.16; 45.8; 64.8; Jer 18.4; Wis 15.7–8; Rom 9.21. The word potter, meaning “one who forms,” is from the same Hebrew root as the word yetzer. See note on 15.14. 33.14–15 The works of the Lord was a common idiom for creation, with particular reference to the sun, moon, and astrophysical and geophysical phenomena. See 42.15–43.33. That they come in pairs is a novel notion. See 42.24–25. The concept of pairs is probably taken from the ethical dualism of wise/foolish, righteous/sinner, good/bad, life/death, which has been transferred to “all the works” in the interest of a theodicy of divine power and judgment. See 34.14–20; 39.16–31; 40.8–10; cf. Wis 16.24–26; 17.20–21; 18.24–25; 19.6–22. 33.16 Ben Sira refers to himself by using the first person, a practice common in Greek literary traditions. On authorial self-reference in Sirach, cf. 24.30–34; 34.12–13; 39.12–15, 32–35; 41.16; 43.32; 50.25–29; 51.1–30. The last to keep vigil means to stand at the end of a line of teachers; vigil may imply an association with the prophets who “watched out” for the well-being of the people. Cf. Ezek 3.17; 33.7; Hab 2.1. 33.17 I arrived first implies privilege or honor. Cf. “The last will be first” (Mt 19.30). Filled my wine press is a metaphor of wisdom. Cf. 1.15; 24.17–21; 39.6; 51.15. 33.18 The verse repeats 24.34.

33.20–24 A small unit offers advice on controlling one’s own property.

- 22 For it is better that your children should ask from you
than that you should look to the hand of your children.
23 Excel in all that you do;
bring no stain upon your honor.
24 At the time when you end the days of your life,
in the hour of death, distribute your inheritance.

The Treatment of Slaves

- 25 Fodder and a stick and burdens
for a donkey;
bread and discipline and work
for a slave.
26 Set your slave to work, and you will find rest;
leave his hands idle, and he will seek liberty.
27 Yoke and thong will bow the neck,
and for a wicked slave there are racks and tortures.
28 Put him to work, in order that he may not be idle,
29 for idleness teaches much evil.
30 Set him to work, as is fitting for him,
and if he does not obey, make his fetters heavy.
Do not be overbearing toward anyone,
and do nothing unjust.
31 If you have but one slave, treat
him like yourself,
because you have bought him
with blood.

- If you have but one slave, treat
him like a brother,
for you will need him as you need your life.
32 If you ill-treat him, and he leaves
you and runs away,
33 which way will you go to seek him?

Dreams Mean Nothing

- 34 The senseless have vain and false hopes,
and dreams give wings to fools.
2 As one who catches at a shadow
and pursues the wind,
so is anyone who believes in^p
dreams.
3 What is seen in dreams is but a reflection,
the likeness of a face looking at itself.
4 From an unclean thing what can be clean?
And from something false what can be true?
5 Divinations and omens and dreams are unreal,
and like a woman in labor, the mind has fantasies.
6 Unless they are sent by intervention from the Most High,
pay no attention to them.
7 For dreams have deceived many,
and those who put their hope
in them have perished.
8 Without such deceptions the law
will be fulfilled,

^p Syr: Gk pays heed to

33.25–33 Advice on controlling one's slaves. 33.31 Bought him with blood is an exaggeration based on the idiom of "life" as one's "livelihood." Cf. 29.15; 34.27.

34.1–8 A decidedly negative judgment on the predictive value of dreams. In contrast, cf. the important role of dreams in the stories of Joseph (Gen 37–50), Gideon (Judg 7.13–15), Job (Job 33.15–18), and Daniel. During the Hellenistic period dreams were generally thought to contain predictions, and dream interpretation was considered a critical and scientific occupation. Ben Sira ranks dreams with omens and other forms of divination as fantasies (34.5). 34.2 To pursue the wind was a metaphor for impossible projects. Cf. Eccl 1.14; Hos 12.1. 34.6 Unless they are sent by intervention from the Most High grants an exception, explaining Ben Sira's hesitation in consigning all dreams to the realm of the occult and thus classed as evil or taboo according to Jewish standards. How one distinguished dreams that were sent from the Most High is not explained. Cf. the similar problem of true and false prophecy in Deut 18.15–22. 34.8 That the law will be fulfilled echoes 33.3. That wisdom is complete probably relates to Ben Sira's view that wisdom, in addition to knowing the Lord's instructions, promises, and covenants, includes knowing the Lord's "ways," namely, that he will protect, rescue, and restore the righteous and Israel to states of well-being. Cf. 24.33; 36.1–22; 39.33; 50.24. Thus one does not need to pursue divination.

mouth of the faithful.

Travel as a Teacher

- 9 An educated^q person knows
many things,
and one with much experience
knows what he is talking about.
10 An inexperienced person knows
few things,
11 but he that has traveled acquires much cleverness.
12 I have seen many things in my travels,
and I understand more than I can express.
13 I have often been in danger of
death,
but have escaped because of these experiences.

Fear the Lord

- 14 The spirit of those who fear the Lord will live,
15 for their hope is in him who saves them.
16 Those who fear the Lord will not be timid,
or play the coward, for he is
their hope.
17 Happy is the soul that fears the Lord!
18 To whom does he look? And who is his support?
19 The eyes of the Lord are on those who love him,
a mighty shield and strong
support,
a shelter from scorching wind
and a shade from noonday sun,

a guard against stumbling and
a help against falling.

- 20 He lifts up the soul and makes
the eyes sparkle;
he gives health and life and
blessing.

Offering Sacrifices

- 21 If one sacrifices ill-gotten goods,
the offering is blemished;^r 22 the gifts^s of the lawless are not acceptable.
23 The Most High is not pleased with the offerings of the
ungodly,
nor for a multitude of sacrifices
does he forgive sins.
24 Like one who kills a son before his father's eyes
is the person who offers a sacrifice from the property
of the poor.
25 The bread of the needy is the life
of the poor;
whoever deprives them of it is a murderer.
26 To take away a neighbor's living
is to commit murder;
27 to deprive an employee of wages is to shed blood.
28 When one builds and another tears down,
what do they gain but hard
work?
29 When one prays and another curses,
to whose voice will the Lord
listen?

34.9–13 On the value of travel. 34.9 A traveled person (text note q) is a more appropriate translation than an educated person for the sense of this section. Learning through travel was a common idea in Hellenistic times, made famous by writers from Herodotus to Pausanias. 34.13 In danger of death was idiomatic for lack of protection away from home, a common theme in entertainment literature such as the Joseph story (Gen 37–50) and the Hellenistic romance.

34.14–20 On the protection of the pious.

34.14 That the spirit . . . will live does not refer to spiritual or postmortem destiny, but to a sense of courage that is "lively." 34.15 The Lord saves them from trouble, or distress. Cf. 2.6–11. 34.19 On the eyes of the Lord, see 42.16–20. On the Lord as a shelter and a guard, cf. Ps 91.1–16.

34.21–31 A unit on ritual observances relates wisdom piety to temple worship. 34.21 That ill-gotten goods are blemished merges Ben Sira's ethic of acquisition (cf. 31.1–9) with the prescription that sacrificial offerings were to be made from "per-

what has been gained by washing?
31 So if one fasts for his sins, and goes again and does the same things,

The Law and Sacrifices

- 35 The one who keeps the law makes many offerings;
2 one who heeds the commandments makes an offering of well-being.
3 The one who returns a kindness offers choice flour,
4 and one who gives alms sacrifices a thank offering.
5 To keep from wickedness is pleasing to the Lord,
and to forsake unrighteousness is an atonement.
6 Do not appear before the Lord empty-handed,
7 for all that you offer is in fulfillment of the commandment.
8 The offering of the righteous enriches the altar,
and its pleasing odor rises before the Most High.
9 The sacrifice of the righteous is acceptable,
and it will never be forgotten.
10 Be generous when you worship the Lord,
and do not stint the first fruits of your hands.

- 11 With every gift show a cheerful face,
and dedicate your tithe with gladness.
12 Give to the Most High as he has given to you,
and as generously as you can afford.
13 For the Lord is the one who repays,
and he will repay you sevenfold.

Divine Justice

- 14 Do not offer him a bribe, for he will not accept it;
15 and do not rely on a dishonest sacrifice;
for the Lord is the judge,
and with him there is no partiality.
16 He will not show partiality to the poor;
but he will listen to the prayer of one who is wronged.
17 He will not ignore the supplication of the orphan,
or the widow when she pours out her complaint.
18 Do not the tears of the widow run down her cheek
19 as she cries out against the one who causes them to fall?
20 The one whose service is pleasing to the Lord will be accepted, and his prayer will reach to the clouds.

fect," or "unblemished," animals or produce. Cf. Lev 22.21. 34.30 Touching a corpse made one ritually impure. Cf. Num 19.11.

35.1–13 Advice concerning the offering of sacrifices. Ben Sira regards ethical piety (keeping the commandments, especially almsgiving) as effective as ritual observance (vv. 1–5), but does not conclude that the sacrificial system is therefore unimportant or ineffective (vv. 6–13). Cultic practices recommended in Sirach include temple worship, support for the priests, tithes, sacrificial offerings, prayers, praise, and oaths. See 4.13–14; 7.9–10, 31; 14.11; 23.9–11; 28.5;

34.21–31; 35.14–26; 38.9–15; 45.6–22; 50.1–21. 35.6 To appear before the Lord means to approach the temple with offerings.

35.14–26 A unit on divine justice that builds upon the ethic of helping the poor, the widow, and the orphan, confidence in the effectiveness of the prayer of supplication from one in distress, and a theology of divine judgment in history. On the Lord's provision for the poor, the widow, and the orphan, see 4.1–10. For the cry of one in distress, see 2.10–11. The theme of divine intervention in history appears unexpectedly but prepares for the prayer to follow in 36.1–22.

23 and repays vengeance on the
nations;
until he destroys the multitude of
the insolent,
and breaks the scepters of the
unrighteous;
24 until he repays mortals according to their deeds,
and the works of all according
to their thoughts;
25 until he judges the case of his people
and makes them rejoice in his
mercy.
26 His mercy is as welcome in time
of distress
as clouds of rain in time of drought.

36.1–22 A prayer for the deliverance of Jerusalem and the people of Israel from foreign oppression. Such a prayer comes as a surprise within a book of wisdom and brings to expression political judgments and hopes that are extremely veiled elsewhere in Sirach. In form it draws upon the Psalms and shares many features with prayers and poems found in somewhat later apocalyptic literature. Foreign nations (v. 3), the enemy (v. 9), those who harm your people (v. 11), and the hostile rulers (v. 12) refer to the Seleucid overlords at the time. 36.4 To show your holiness refers to divine deliverance in the idiom of cultic practices. Cf. Ezek 20.41; 28.25. 36.5 Then they will know, a common expression of theodicy related to divine deliverance. See v. 22; cf. 1 Sam 17.46–47; 1 Kings 8.60; 1 Chr 17.20; Isa 45.14; Wis 4.20–5.8; 12.26–27. 36.6–7 Signs and . . . wonders, hand and right arm, common shorthand allusions to the exodus story of deliverance from Egypt; cf. Ex 15.6; Deut 4.34; 7.19; 3.11; Neh 9.10; Isa 63.12; Pss 78.43; 98.1. 36.16 Their inheritance, the land promised to the children of Abraham (Gen 17.8). 36.17 Called by your name, a common designation for the people of Israel. Cf. Deut 28.10; Isa 63.19; Jer 14.9; 15.16. The name Israel means "God rules." That Israel was named your firstborn evokes a common idiom. Cf. - 22 Hear, O Lord, the prayer of your servants,

Concerning Discrimination

- 23 The stomach will take any food,
yet one food is better than another.
- 24 As the palate tastes the kinds of game,
so an intelligent mind detects false words.
- 25 A perverse mind will cause grief,
but a person with experience will pay him back.
- 26 A woman will accept any man as a husband,
but one girl is preferable to another.
- 27 A woman's beauty lights up a man's face,
and there is nothing he desires more.
- 28 If kindness and humility mark her speech,
her husband is more fortunate than other men.

- 29 He who acquires a wife gets his best possession,^e
a helper fit for him and a pillar of support.^f
- 30 Where there is no fence, the property will be plundered;
and where there is no wife, a man will become a fugitive and a wanderer.^g
- 31 For who will trust a nimble robber
that skips from city to city?
So who will trust a man that has no nest,
but lodges wherever night overtakes him?

False Friends

- 37 Every friend says, "I too am a friend";
but some friends are friends only in name.
- 2 Is it not a sorrow like that for death itself
when a dear friend turns into an enemy?
- 3 O inclination to evil, why were you formed to cover the land with deceit?
- 4 Some companions rejoice in the happiness of a friend,
but in time of trouble they are against him.
- 5 Some companions help a friend for their stomachs' sake,
yet in battle they will carry his shield.

It is unique in Sirach, though the idea became programmatic for the somewhat later Qumran community, some Jewish authors of apocalyptic literature, and some early Christian authors such as Mark. A somewhat related idea does occur in Sir 48.10, where Elijah is expected to return as it is written. Elsewhere in Sirach prophecies are referred to as a source of wisdom, insight, and instruction. See 24.33. In chs. 44–50 prophets are depicted as those whose insights and words were effective agents in the events of their times that determined the epic history of Israel. See 46.13.

Caution in Taking Advice

- 7 All counselors praise the counsel
they give,
but some give counsel in their own interest.
- 8 Be wary of a counselor,
and learn first what is his interest,
for he will take thought for
himself.
- 9 He may cast the lot against you
and tell you, "Your way is
good,"
and then stand aside to see what happens to you.
- 10 Do not consult the one who regards you with suspicion;
hide your intentions from those who are jealous of you.
- 11 Do not consult with a woman
about her rival
or with a coward about war,
with a merchant about business
or with a buyer about selling,
with a miser about generosity^j
or with the merciless about kindness,
with an idler about any work
or with a seasonal laborer about completing his work, with a lazy servant about a big task—
pay no attention to any advice
they give.
- 12 But associate with a godly person
whom you know to be a keeper
of the commandments,
who is like-minded with yourself,
and who will grieve with you if you fail.
- 13 And heed^k the counsel of your own heart,
for no one is more faithful to you than it is.

- 14 For our own mind sometimes keeps us better informed than seven sentinels sitting high on a watchtower.
- 15 But above all pray to the Most High
that he may direct your way in truth.

True and False Wisdom

- 16 Discussion is the beginning of every work,
and counsel precedes every undertaking.
- 17 The mind is the root of all
conduct;
it sprouts four branches,^l
good and evil, life and death;
and it is the tongue that continually rules them.
- 19 Some people may be clever enough to teach many,
and yet be useless to themselves.
- 20 A skillful speaker may be hated;
he will be destitute of all food,
for the Lord has withheld the gift
of charm,
since he is lacking in all
wisdom.
- 22 If a person is wise to his own advantage,
the fruits of his good sense will be praiseworthy.^m
- 23 A wise person instructs his own
people,
and the fruits of his good sense
will endure.
- 24 A wise person will have praise
heaped upon him,
and all who see him will call
him happy.
- 25 The days of a person's life are numbered,
but the days of Israel are without number.

Concerning Moderation

- 27 My child, test yourself while you live;
see what is bad for you and do not give in to it.
28 For not everything is good for everyone,
and no one enjoys everything.
29 Do not be greedy for every delicacy,
and do not eat without restraint;
30 for overeating brings sickness,
and gluttony leads to nausea.
31 Many have died of gluttony,
but the one who guards against it prolongs his life.

Concerning Physicians and Health

- 38 Honor physicians for their services,
for the Lord created them;
2 for their gift of healing comes from the Most High,
and they are rewarded by the king.
3 The skill of physicians makes them distinguished,
and in the presence of the great they are admired.

skillful speaker. 37.27–31 Caution about over-indulgence introduces the theme of sickness as a preparation for the following sayings on the value of physicians.

38.1–15 A meditation on physicians recommends their services (vv. 1–8) but advises not to forget the traditional approach to illness as the more fundamental consideration (vv. 9–15). The science and practice of medicine, developed by the Greeks, threatened the ancient Near Eastern view of illness as caused by personal fault and its remedy by means of sacrifice for sin and healing. Ben Sira struggled to find a place for each approach by arguing that medicines were the works of the Lord (vv. 4–8) and that the physician should be consulted after offering one's sacrifice at the temple (vv. 9–15). 38.1 The statement that the Lord created physicians, both here and in v. 12, translates the Greek; the Hebrew reads "allotted" with the sense that God ordained the profession as part of his plan for human society. See note on 7.15. 38.4 Medicines out of the earth, medicinal plants, the knowledge of which belonged to ancient Near Eastern and Egyptian wisdom traditions. 38.5 Water made sweet with a tree alludes to the miracle in Ex 15.23–25. 38.10 Faults and sin were thought to be the cause of illness. Cf. Deut 28.22; Job; Prov 3.7–8; Jn 9.2. 38.11 Flour. The cereal offering is described in Lev 2.1–3.

On Mourning for the Dead

- 16 My child, let your tears fall for the dead,
and as one in great pain begin
the lament.
Lay out the body with due ceremony,
and do not neglect the burial.
17 Let your weeping be bitter and your wailing fervent;
make your mourning worthy of
the departed,
for one day, or two, to avoid criticism;
then be comforted for your
grief.
18 For grief may result in death,
and a sorrowful heart saps one's strength.
19 When a person is taken away,
sorrow is over;
but the life of the poor weighs
down the heart.
20 Do not give your heart to grief;
drive it away, and remember
your own end.
21 Do not forget, there is no coming back;
you do the dead^x no good, and
you injure yourself.
22 Remember his^y fate, for yours is like it;

yesterday it was his,^z and today
it is yours.

- 23 When the dead is at rest, let his remembrance rest too,
and be comforted for him
when his spirit has departed.

Trades and Crafts

- 24 The wisdom of the scribe depends on the opportunity of leisure;
only the one who has little business can become wise.
25 How can one become wise who handles the plow,
and who glories in the shaft of
a goad,
who drives oxen and is occupied
with their work,
and whose talk is about bulls?
26 He sets his heart on plowing
furrows,
and he is careful about fodder
for the heifers.
27 So it is with every artisan and master artisan
who labors by night as well as
by day;
those who cut the signets of seals,
each is diligent in making a great variety;
they set their heart on painting a
lifelike image,
and they are careful to finish
their work.
28 So it is with the smith, sitting by 38.16–23 Injunctions to observe the traditions of mourning and burial (vv. 16–17) yield to advice on appropriate attitudes and thoughts about death (vv. 18–23). The advice is remarkable in that it presents a realistic attitude toward death as an argument against excessive grief. 38.16 The lament was an ancient tradition. Cf. 2 Sam 1.17; Jer 7.29; 9.9, 19; Ezek 19.1; 26.17; 27.32; 32.16; Am 5.1; 8.10. Burial was a religious duty. Cf. Tob 1.17–18; 4.3–4; 6.15; 12.12; 14.12–13. 38.17 That one should mourn one day, or two is a striking curtailment of the customary requirement of seven days. See 22.12.

38.24–34 A tightly crafted poem describing those who work with their hands. The poem has been compared with the Egyptian Instruction of Duauf, sometimes called a "Satire on the Trades," which was written from the elitist perspective of the scribal vocation. But Ben Sira's poem does not engage in satire. The crafts are set in contrast to the vocation of the scribe (vv. 24, 32–33) without ridicule. The point of contrast is that artisans must concentrate their attention upon their handiwork and therefore have no time for the pursuit of learning which requires "leisure." The examples given, farmer, artisan, smith, and potter, when combined with the mention of rulers, judges, scribes, and public assemblies, provide a

- intent on his iron-work;
the breath of the fire melts his
flesh,
and he struggles with the heat
of the furnace;
the sound of the hammer deafens
his ears,^a
and his eyes are on the pattern
of the object.
He sets his heart on finishing his
handiwork,
and he is careful to complete its decoration.
- 29 So it is with the potter sitting at his work
and turning the wheel with his
feet;
he is always deeply concerned
over his products,
and he produces them in quantity.
- 30 He molds the clay with his arm
and makes it pliable with his
feet;
he sets his heart to finish the glazing,
and he takes care in firing^b the kiln.
- 31 All these rely on their hands,
and all are skillful in their own
work.

- 32 Without them no city can be inhabited,
and wherever they live, they will not go hungry.^c
Yet they are not sought out for the council of the people,^d 33 nor do they attain eminence in the public assembly.
They do not sit in the judge's seat,
nor do they understand the
decisions of the courts;
they cannot expound discipline or
judgment,
and they are not found among the rulers.^e
- 34 But they maintain the fabric of the world,
and their concern is for^f the exercise of their trade.

sketch of the productive society of Ben Sira's time. 38.32–33 The mention of rulers, courts, and public assemblies describes the social setting for the professional activity of the scribe, the one who can read, write, and speak well. Missing only is any mention of a school, Ben Sira's own social location. Cf. 51.23. The professional goals of instruction in wisdom, assumed in these verses, explain the emphasis throughout the book on effective speech, sound judgment, knowledge of and consideration for conventional codes of law, piety, and ethics, as well as the repeated reference to the assembly as the place where praise and honor are won or lost. On references to the assembly, see note on 15.5. 38.34b If the second line of the bicol in v. 34 is treated as an inclusio by returning to the themes announced in v. 24, the poem on the trades is composed of twenty-two lines framed by statements of contrast with the vocation of the scribe. The half-verse 34b also serves as an introduction to the following poem on the scribe, however, and so must be seen as a carefully crafted transitional statement intended both to sum up the previous unit and to lead into the following reflection. Transitional statements of this kind were common in literary compositions of the time.

38.34b–39.11 A poem on the activity of the scribe includes mention of his study (vv. 1–3), professional role (v. 4a), wide experience (v. 4b), piety (v. 5), inspiration (vv. 6–7), learned achievements (v. 8), and honor among the people (vv. 9–11). 38.34b The law refers to the Torah, or books of Moses. Cf. 24.23. 39.1 The wisdom of all the ancients probably intends a reference to literature in general, other than the books of Moses, and without respect to cultural constraints. It was common in antiquity to trace the collective knowledge of a people to its source in the discoveries and revelations of culture-bringers and sages who lived at the beginning of time. To seek out this wisdom refers both to an intellectual quest in general that could include cross-cultural experience (v. 4) as well as to concerted research in the literatures of the time. The genres of wisdom for which one looked are given in the following verses. The mention of prophecies has been taken to refer specifically to the books of the Hebrew prophets,

- and is concerned with

he travels in foreign lands
and learns what is good and

5 He sets his heart to rise early to seek the Lord who made him,
and to petition the Most High;
he opens his mouth in prayer
and asks pardon for his sins.
6 If the great Lord is willing,
he will be filled with the spirit
of understanding;
he will pour forth words of wisdom of his own
and give thanks to the Lord in
prayer.
7 The Lord^g will direct his counsel

as he meditates on his mysteries.
8 He will show the wisdom of what

- he has learned,
and will glory in the law of the 9 Many will praise his understanding;

it will never be blotted out.
His memory will not disappear,
and his name will live through all generations.
10 Nations will speak of his wisdom,
and the congregation will proclaim his praise.
11 If he lives long, he will leave a enough^h for him.

A Hymn of Praise to God

but the more probable reference is to prophecies, oracles, and omens in whatever literature they may be found. Ben Sira lists prophecies along with sayings, parables, and proverbs (vv. 2–3) as if they were all various formulations of wisdom (v. 1). Also in 44.3–5 prophecies are included in a list of scribal accomplishments, and in 24.33 Ben Sira promises to pour out teaching like prophecy. On prophets and prophecy, see 36.20–21; 46.13. 39.2–3 Parables refers to metaphors, similes, and comparisons typical for wisdom discourse. The Hebrew is missing, but probably used the term mesalim, a general designation for wisdom sayings of all kinds, including proverbs, riddles, rhetorical questions, and maxims. 39.6 The spirit of understanding is an application of a prophetic idiom (speaking by the spirit of God) to the accomplished scribe. The wisdom he pours forth, however, is said to be his own. Cf. 24.27. 39.8–9 A Greek concept underlies the connection between these verses, namely, that if an author writes or delivers a well-crafted encomium, or work of praise, the author also will be praised. 39.10 That the congregation will proclaim the speaker's praise refers to honor as the scribe's ultimate reward. Honor was the public recognition of one's status and of behavior and accomplishment appropriate to one's social position. Honor before the congregation or people is a theme in Sirach. Cf. 1.24; 1.30 and note; 7.7, 14; 15.5–6; 21.17; 24.2; 33.19; 44.15. Sir 44.15 is a close parallel to 39.10. 39.11 To leave a name means to be remembered, the Jewish correlate to the Greek notion of immortality.

39.12–35 A lengthy poem in praise of the works of the Lord (vv. 16–31) introduced by an invitation to recite it (vv. 12–15) and concluded by a personal statement from the author (vv. 32–35). The poem follows upon the description of the scribe in 39.1–11 as if to exemplify Ben Sira's own accomplishments on its model. 39.12–15 The metaphors used to depict the author's thoughts and the congregation's recitation, being full like the full moon and blossoming forth with fragrance, are reminiscent of the flourishing of wisdom in 24.13–34.

 but for sinners good things
 and bad.ⁱ
- 26 The basic necessities of human life
 are water and fire and iron and salt
 and wheat flour and milk and honey,
 the blood of the grape and oil
 and clothing.
- 27 All these are good for the godly,
 but for sinners they turn into evils.
- 28 "There are winds created for
 vengeance,
 and in their anger they can dislodge mountains;^j on the day of reckoning they will pour out their strength
 and calm the anger of their Maker.
- 29 Fire and hail and famine and pestilence,
 all these have been created for
 vengeance;
- 30 the fangs of wild animals and
 scorpions and vipers,
 and the sword that punishes
 the ungodly with destruction.

39.16–31 The hymn of praise focuses upon the works of the Lord in both creation and history and argues that the works are good for the godly but turn to vengeance for sinners. 39.16 That the works are very good is a common view in the traditions of wisdom. Cf. 16.26–29; Gen 1. The appointed time refers to a divine visitation as planned and in keeping with the calendrical ordering of natural and historical events. Cf. 16.18;

36.10; 39.34; 48.10. 39.17 The waters stood in a heap. Cf. Gen 13.10; 19.24–28; Deut 29.23; Ps 107.34; Wis 10.7. 39.28–31 A catalog of geophysical and natural phenomena that obey their creator to punish the ungodly. Human Wretchedness

The Joys of Life

- 19 Children and the building of a city establish one's name,
but better than either is the one who finds wisdom.

- 26 Riches and strength build up confidence,
but the fear of the Lord is better than either.
- There is no want in the fear of
the Lord,
and with it there is no need to seek for help.
- 27 The fear of the Lord is like a garden of blessing,
and covers a person better than any glory.

The Disgrace of Begging

- 28 My child, do not lead the life of a beggar;
it is better to die than to beg.
- 29 When one looks to the table of
another,
one's way of life cannot be considered a life.
- One loses self-respect with another person's food,
but one who is intelligent and well instructed guards
against that.
- 30 In the mouth of the shameless
begging is sweet,
but it kindles a fire inside him.

who has nothing to worry about
and is prosperous in
everything,

is only ungodliness that will come to naught. 40.18–27 A reflection on the good things in life composed as a unit of ten sayings that develop the comparative degree, frequently called the “better than” proverb, an ancient form of proverbial wisdom. The poem comes to a climax in vv. 26–27 with the thought that the fear of the Lord is better than any other good. 40.28–30 Several sayings warn against begging. It is improbable that the students of Ben Sira would need to be warned against leading the life of a beggar due to economic exigency, given the elitist constituency of the profession. It is possible, therefore, that the warning inveighs against the Cynic practice of begging as a form of social critique. 41.1–4 A meditation on the thought of dying recognizes its gravity

- and still is vigorous enough to enjoy food!
- 2 O death, how welcome is your sentence
to one who is needy and failing
in strength,
worn down by age and anxious
about everything;
to one who is contrary, and has lost all patience!
- 3 Do not fear death's decree
for you;

before you and those who will come after.
- 4 This is the Lord's decree for all
flesh;
why then should you reject the will of the Most High?
Whether life lasts for ten years or
a hundred or a thousand,
there are no questions asked in Hades.

The Fate of the Wicked

- 5 The children of sinners are abominable children,
and they frequent the haunts of
the ungodly.
- 6 The inheritance of the children
of sinners will perish,
and on their offspring will be a perpetual disgrace.
- 7 Children will blame an ungodly
father,
for they suffer disgrace because
of him.
- 8 Woe to you, the ungodly,
who have forsaken the law of

- the Most High God!
- 9 If you have children, calamity will be theirs;
you will beget them only for groaning.
When you stumble, there is lasting joy;^s
and when you die, a curse is your lot.
- 10 Whatever comes from earth
returns to earth;
so the ungodly go from curse
to destruction.
- 11 The human body is a fleeting thing,
but a virtuous name will never be blotted out.^t
- 12 Have regard for your name, since it will outlive you longer than a thousand hoards
of gold.
- 13 The days of a good life are

41.5–14 A set of reflections on the fate of the ungodly (vv. 5–10) in contrast to the memorial of the godly (vv. 11–14). 41.6 That a perpetual disgrace rests upon sinners and their children was a very serious consideration in the light of Jewish concern for progeny, memorial, and honor. The thought of disgrace continuing in one's children is developed in Wis 3.12–13, 16–19; 4.3–6. 41.13 To have a good name, or honorable reputation, and be remembered by subsequent generations was the Jewish way of transcending death. See 39.11. 41.14 The thought seems to be that, in view of the previous reflections about death, one need not do more to assure lasting honor than be true to one's training. If hidden wisdom has no value, it may refer to Greek philosophies of transcendent worlds and postmortem destinies. notions that are not necessary in Ben Sira's view. Cf. 3.21.

41.15–42.8 A poem in two stanzas on the topic of shame, consisting of an introduction (41.15–16), a stanza on shameful behavior (41.17–42.1a), and a stanza on things about which one should not be ashamed (42.1b–8). The poem uses the language of honor and shame customary for the public recognition of shared values in ancient societies, but it mentions such a mixture of actions and attitudes that one cannot be sure whose values Ben Sira had in mind. The curious twist in the second stanza is that many of these items may actually have been matters about which

and of dividing the inheritance of friends;
- 4 of accuracy with scales and weights,
and of acquiring much or little;
- 5 of profit from dealing with merchants,
and of frequent disciplining of children,
and of drawing blood from the back of a wicked slave.
- 6 Where there is an untrustworthy wife, a seal is a good thing;
and where there are many hands, lock things up.

many were ashamed. 42.1 To find favor (honor) with everyone by showing proper shame is a succinct definition of the honor/shame system. To save face indicates that social forces may have been running against Ben Sira and his students on the following list of things about which one should not be ashamed.

42.9–14 A reflection on the danger of falling into public disfavor through the actions of a daughter, with advice on protecting her from promiscuity. The harsh measures recommended may indicate that traditional customs were being severely challenged by the social and cultural forces of the time. The protection of a daughter's

- and worry over her robs him of sleep;
 when she is young, for fear she may not marry,
 or if married, for fear she may be disliked;
 10 while a virgin, for fear she may be seduced
 and become pregnant in her father's house;
 or having a husband, for fear she may go astray,
 or, though married, for fear she may be barren.
 11 Keep strict watch over a headstrong daughter,
 or she may make you a laughingstock to your enemies,
 a byword in the city and the assembly of^w the people,
 and put you to shame in public gatherings.^x
 See that there is no lattice in her room,
 no spot that overlooks the approaches to the house.^y 12 Do not let her parade her beauty before any man, or spend her time among married women;^w 13 for from garments comes the moth,
 and from a woman comes woman's wickedness.
 14 Better is the wickedness of a man than a woman who does good;
 it is woman who brings shame and disgrace.

The Works of God in Nature

 18 He searches out the abyss and the human heart;
 he understands their innermost secrets.
 For the Most High knows all that may be known;

virtue and the arrangement of a successful marriage for her were basic for the Jewish concern to retain ethnic identity and cultural independence in the face of Hellenistic culture and hegemony.

42.15–43.33 A hymn of praise to the Lord and his creation. It consists of a concise poem on the inscrutable knowledge and power of the creator (42.15–21) followed by a lengthy poem on the wonders of the natural order (42.22–43.26) and concludes with an invitation to join the author in singing the Lord's praises (43.27–33).

42.15–21 The Lord is praised for his wisdom and power as revealed in his works. 42.15 By the word of the Lord alludes to the account of creation in Gen 1.1–31. 42.17 His holy ones refers to astro-

physical phenomena as creatures of the Lord who know his mind, obey his will, keep their appointed places, and stand watch over the orderly arrangement of the created order. Cf. 43.5, 10, 13, 16, 26. 42.18 The Most High knows everything because he sees all. The notion was basic to the thought of the Lord's wisdom and to Ben Sira's theodicy of divine rewards and punishments. Cf. note on 15.18. The notion drew upon the ancient Near Eastern system of governance whereby the king's men were his "eyes and ears," as well as upon a fascination with solar mythology whereby the sun represented the eye of the high god. Note the importance and role of the sun in 42.16; 43.1–5.

42.22-43.33 The works of the Lord are arranged in a list that begins with the sun as the highest visible creature, descends through moon, stars, and geophysical phenomena (rainbow, lightning, clouds, winds, snow, frost, ice, and dew), to end with a notice about the ocean as "the deep." This arrangement was typical for onomastica, or lists of natural phenomena. Cf. the similar arrangement in Job 38.1-38. was common in antiquity to imagine storehouses in the heavens, beyond the horizon, where the Lord kept the winds, clouds, and storms until he needed them. He then opened the doors and sent them out to perform their missions. 43.23 That the Lord stilled the deep is derived from an ancient myth of creation, according to which God had to slay the monster of the deep or still the chaotic waters in order to let the dry land appear and construct upon it his house. Cf. Pss 104.24–26; 107.23–24. 43.26 This verse, which serves as a conclusion to the poem of praise for the natural order (42.22–43.26), brings together two cosmologies, or mythologies of the way in which the world is ordered. Messengers refers to all of the natural phenomena as servants of the Lord who do his bidding so that the universe may stand firm (42.17). His word by which all things hold together derives from the Stoic view of the logos (Greek "word" or "logic") that permeates the natural world (kosmos) as a principle of cohesion and order. It is probable that Ben Sira had the Genesis account of creation in mind, according to which God spoke the world into being, and that both mythologies were understood as explications of God words, as commands (to his "messengers") and as expressions of rhyme and reason for the world he had in mind ("logos"). In somewhat later literatures, such as the works of Philo of Alexandria and the Gospel of John (Jn 1.1–18), the Stoic logos became the primary concept for interpreting the Genesis account. 43.27 The statement that "He is the all" also derives from Stoic philosophies of the world as an organism generated and held together by a single (divine) principle. 43.30 To praise and glorify the Lord is a demonstration of one's own wisdom, that one has come to see how marvelous his works are despite the limitations of human capacity to plumb their mysteries. According to 15.10, in wisdom must praise be uttered.

HYMN IN HONOR OF OUR ANCESTORS^h

 our ancestors in their generations.

 those who spoke in prophetic oracles;

 they were wise in their words of instruction;
 5 those who composed musical tunes,
 or put verses in writing;
 6 rich men endowed with resources,

 i Heb: Gk created

43.33 This is a transitional verse, providing a summary for the hymn to creation and pointing ahead to the hymn in praise of the famous men to follow. It shows that Ben Sira intended the two poems to be taken together, now to call the works of the Lord to mind (42.15), now to sing the praises of famous men (44.1). The combination follows a recognizable pattern in certain psalms and other poems that begins with a meditation upon creation and comes to focus upon the sweep of epic history. Cf. Pss 135; 136.

44.1–51.24 A long poem eulogizing the great leaders of the people throughout the epic history of Israel. It consists of an introductory poem in praise of all the ancestors, even those who left no name (44.1–15), a series of poetic units dedicated to specific figures from Enoch to Nehemiah (44.16–49.16), and a concluding encomium, or work of praise, on the high priest Simon from Ben Sira's own time (50.1–24). The epic is divided into three parts, the period during which the covenants were established, the period of the kings and their kingdoms, and the Second Temple period following the return from exile. The three periods of the epic are joined together by descriptions of the two transitional periods, one under the judges (46.1–12) and one under the leaders of the restoration (49.11–13). The hymn as a whole is patterned on the model of Hellenistic encomia, eulogistic histories in commemoration of local shrines and cities, in this case with an eye on the temple at Jerusalem. The individual units are patterned on the model of Hellenistic encomia in praise of famous persons and leaders. The encomium opened with an introduction and a mention of the person's birth and genealogy, then went on to describe the person's pursuits, virtues, accomplishments, and blessings, and concluded with acknowledgment of his death and memorial. Ben Sira modifies this pattern in keeping with Jewish culture and values. A leader's election to office is more important than an account of his genealogy and pursuits. Piety counts more than personal virtues. And a leader's deeds are not noted as heroic achievements. Instead, he is eulogized for correct performance of social and religious offices established by the covenants and consistently evaluated in keeping with the consequences of his performance as it affected the well-being of the people. His reward is the honor he received from both God (by election and favor) and the people (who sang his praises).

44.1–15 The ancestors are glorious because of their recognition by God (v. 2), their honorable achievements (vv. 3–6), their recognition by their own generations (vv. 7–8), their godliness (vv. 9–10), their legacy to their children (vv. 11–12), and their lasting name and memory (vv. 13–14). 44.3–6 The list of social roles includes several offices traditional for ancient Hebrew society, such as king and prophet, that appear in the following verses. However, the purpose of the list is not to present a full and balanced typology of the offices, but to create a general picture of glory and honor worthy of the ancestors and characteristic for the grand tradition Ben Sira wishes to claim for the Jews. These verses are heavily weighted toward the accomplishments of the wise, the intellectuals, the creative, and the wealthy; not all the leaders praised in the following verses have all these characteristics. The epic sections of the hymn (see note on 44.1–51.24) are more concerned with the covenants underlying the social structure of Israel, the failure of the kingdoms to actualize the ideal order, and the claim that a society organized around the temple and its systems is what God originally intended for Israel. Thus patriarchs, priests,

- living peacefully in their homes—7 all these were honored in their generations,
 and were the pride of their times.
 8 Some of them have left behind a name,
 so that others declare their praise.
 9 But of others there is no memory;
 they have perished as though they had never existed;
 they have become as though they had never been born,
 they and their children after them.
 10 But these also were godly men,
 whose righteous deeds have not been forgotten;
 11 their wealth will remain with their descendants,
 and their inheritance with their children's children.^j 12 Their descendants stand by the covenants;
 their children also, for their sake.
 13 Their offspring will continue forever,
 and their glory will never be blotted out.
 14 Their bodies are buried in peace,
 but their name lives on generation after generation.

- 15 The assembly declares^k their wisdom,
 and the congregation proclaims their praise.

Enoch

 an example of repentance to all generations.

Noah

- 17 Noah was found perfect and righteous;
 in the time of wrath he kept the race alive;^l
 therefore a remnant was left on the earth
 when the flood came.
 18 Everlasting covenants were made with him
 that all flesh should never again be blotted out by a flood.

Abraham

 and no one has been found like him in glory.
 20 He kept the law of the Most High, kings, and prophets dominate the history. Scribes, teachers, and sages are hardly in view. 44.12 The covenants, contracts or agreements between God and the patriarchs or leaders of Israel who initiated institutions and offices constitutive for the social and religious structure of Israel. Most covenants were associated with ritual occasions and their stories therefore served as charters for contemporary ritual practices. In the poem to follow, covenants are mentioned for Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob-Israel, Moses, Aaron, and Phinehas from the archaic period before the entrance into the land, when the plans for Israel were being formulated, and for David from the period of the kings after Israel is located in the land.

44.16 A single bicola is dedicated to Enoch, based upon an allusion to Gen 5.24. The significance of Enoch to the poem as a whole is unclear, since he does not represent a covenant (as do the next seven figures) and is set forth as an example (something not true of the other twenty-nine figures in the poem). Since v. 16 is missing in the earliest Hebrew fragments from Masada as well as in the Syriac text and since the mention of Enoch disrupts the covenantal logic of the first section of the poem, it is probably a later addition. Thus the original poem must have opened with the figure of Noah.

44.17–18 The epic starts with Noah, the righteous man who survived the flood and with whom God made a covenant never again to destroy humankind. Cf. Gen 6–9. That Noah was found to be righteous is taken from Gen 6.9; 7.1. For the covenants and the rainbow as sign, see Gen 9.8–17.

44.19–21 Abraham is praised as the blessed father of a multitude of nations. See Gen 17.4–8. 44.20 Certified the covenant in his flesh refers to circumcision. See Gen 17.9–14. When he was tested alludes to the binding of Isaac (Gen 22.1–14).

45.23–26 Phinehas is glorified as priest in the line of Aaron with whom the covenant of friendship (Hebrew, "peace") was confirmed. Cf. Num 25.7–13. 45.23 Third in glory may refer to being third in the sequence of the poem from Moses through Aaron or third in the line from Aaron, cf. Num 25.10. 45.25 Mention of the covenant . . . with David is out of place here. Cf. 47.11. The point, however, is to link the two covenants, of kingship and priesthood, as fundamental for the ideal structure of Israel's society. That Aaron's heritage is for his descendants alone may indicate an ideological battle for the priesthood in Ben Sira's time between the Oniads and the Tobiads, two leading families who fought for political control of Jerusalem during the shift from Ptolemaic to Seleucid hegemony.

46.1–10 Joshua and Caleb are praised for leading Israel into the land. 46.1 On the successor of Moses, see Deut 34.9; Josh 1.1, 5; 3.7. The prophetic office is Ben Sira's designation for the social role of teachers, scribes, counselors, and prophets who instruct both kings and priests as well as the people in the law. As his name implies refers to the meaning of Joshua in Hebrew, "The Lord is salvation." 46.2 He lifted his hands . . . against, an idiom for going to war, a reference to Joshua taking the land (Josh 6–11). 46.4 The sun stood still. 47.1 Nathan is mentioned as the prophet associated with David. Cf. 2 Sam 7.2–17; 12.1; 1 Chr 17.1. 47.2–11 David is given a covenant of kingship. 47.2 Set apart refers to God's choice of David to be king (1 Sam 16.1–12). 47.3 Played with lions . . . and with bears is a euphemism for the easy kill (1 Sam 17.34–36). 47.4 Killing a giant, Goliath, is related in 1 Sam 17.49–51. 47.6 Tens of thousands alludes to 1 Sam 18.7. 47.8–10 That David sang praise, installed singers in the temple, and arranged the festivals is an anachronism taken from Chronicles, a postexilic account of the royal history that recast the image of David to include care for the institution of the temple systems. Cf. 1 Chr 16.4; 23.5, 31–32. It is this tradition that resulted in the attribution of the Psalms to David. 47.11 On David's sins, cf. 2 Sam 12.1–15. For the covenant of kingship, see 2 Sam 7.12–16; cf. Ps 89.28–29; Sir 45.25.

47.12–22 Solomon is praised for his wisdom and remembered for the consequences of his sin. Cf. 1 Kings 1–11. 47.13 Solomon's reign was an age of peace in contrast to the wars of David. Cf. 1 Kings 4.20–21; 5.3–4. He was therefore privileged to build a house (for God), the famous temple

You overflowed like the Nile^g with understanding.
- 15 Your influence spread throughout the earth,
and you filled it with proverbs having deep meaning.
- 16 Your fame reached to far-off islands,
and you were loved for your peaceful reign.
- 17 Your songs, proverbs, and parables,
and the answers you gave astounded the nations.
- 18 In the name of the Lord God,
who is called the God of Israel,
you gathered gold like tin
and amassed silver like lead.
- 19 But you brought in women to lie at your side,
and through your body you were brought into subjection.

So he gave a remnant to Jacob, of Solomon. Cf. 1 Kings 5–8. 47.16 Fame reaching far-off islands (Hebrew, “distant coasts”) may be an allusion to the queen of Sheba (1 Kings 10.1–12). 47.17 Solomon’s wisdom was proverbial. Cf. 1 Kings 3.3–14; 4.29–34; 10.1–10, 23–25. Attributed to him were the book of Proverbs, the Song of Songs, the Wisdom of Solomon, a first-century B.C.E. collection of prayers and meditations called the Psalms of Solomon, and a late first-century C.E. book of esoteric Christian devotions called the Odes of Solomon, as well as other poems, prayers, riddles, and lore scattered through Jewish and early Christian literature of the Greco-Roman period. See Prov 1.1; Song 1.1; Wis 7–9; Lk 11.31. 47.18 On Solomon’s gold and silver, cf. 1 Kings 10.21, 27. 47.20 Stained your honor refers to Solomon’s taking of foreign wives and building of shrines to foreign gods, practices against which the Lord had warned him. Cf. 1 Kings 11.1–11. 47.21 The Divided Kingdom was thought to be the result of Solomon’s sin. Cf. 47.23–25; 1 Kings 11.9–11; 12.12–20. After Solomon there were two kingdoms, Judah, centered in Jerusalem, and Israel, centered at Shechem. Ephraim is another name for Israel, the Northern Kingdom. Ephraim was preferred by writers loyal to Jerusalem who wanted to claim the name and traditions of Israel as their own heritage. 47.22 Despite Solomon’s sin and the division of the kingdoms, the promise to David remained in force. Cf. 2 Sam 7.12–16; 1 Kings 11.12–13, 34–39. Remnant refers to a Jewish theology of survival: despite oppression, wars, and exile, some would remain true to the Lord and survive. Root, a metaphor for Davidic genealogy. Cf. 2 Kings 19.30; Isa 11.10; 37.31; 53.2. The combination of remnant and root is Ben Sira’s own interpretation and hope.

47.23–25 The kingdom of David and Solomon was divided between Rehoboam, Solomon’s son at Jerusalem, and Jeroboam, who established himself as king at Shechem. There is manuscript evidence that wordplays instead of proper names were originally used to refer to each of them in v. 23. That would agree with Ben Sira’s care in the use of proper names throughout the poem, a concern related to the importance of memory and memorial and governed by his intention only to praise those worthy of honor. 47.23 Rehoboam’s folly was an increase in forced labor (1 Kings 12.1–24). The sin of Jeroboam was to set up shrines at Dan and Bethel as rivals of the tem-

Elijah

- 48 Then Elijah arose, a prophet
like fire,
and his word burned like a torch.
2 He brought a famine upon
them,
and by his zeal he made them
few in number.
3 By the word of the Lord he shut
up the heavens,
and also three times brought down fire.
4 How glorious you were, Elijah, in your wondrous deeds!
Whose glory is equal to yours?
5 You raised a corpse from death

6 You sent kings down to destruction,
and famous men, from their

Elisha

Elisha was filled with his spirit.

ple in Jerusalem (1 Kings 12.25–33). 47.24 The kingdom divided in 922 B.C.E.; the exile occurred in 722 B.C.E. when the Assyrians conquered Shechem/Samaria and deported the Israelites. Cf. 2 Kings 17.6, 18–23.

48.1–11 Elijah is praised as the prophet of the Northern Kingdom who prophesied in the name of the Lord against King Ahab of the house of Omri (ca. 869 B.C.E.) and countered the worship of Baal. For the many exploits of Elijah mentioned by Ben Sira, cf. 1 Kings 17–19; 2 Kings 1–2. 48.10 It is written. The text that prophesies Elijah's return is Mal 4.5–6. Cf. Mt 11.14; 16.14; 17.10–12; Mk 6.15; 8.28; 9.11–13; Lk 9.8, 19.

48.11 The meaning of this verse is unclear because of divergent manuscript traditions. According to 2 Kings 2.10, Elisha was the fortunate (or happy) one who saw Elijah taken up, but the Hebrew text seems to refer to seeing Elijah upon his return. Later scribes apparently understood Elijah's ascension to be a transformation and thus a sign of translation to immortal status. Cf. Mt 17.3–4; Mk 9.4–5; Lk 9.30–33.

48.12–16 The prophet Elisha is praised for continuing the work in the spirit of Elijah. Cf. 2 Kings 2–13. 48.12 Filled with his spirit alludes to 2 Kings 2.9–15. 48.13 That his body prophesied refers to the story in 2 Kings 13.20–21.

- 15 Despite all this the people did not
repent,
nor did they forsake their sins,
until they were carried off as plunder from their land,
and were scattered over all the
earth.
The people were left very few in number,
but with a ruler from the house
of David.
16 Some of them did what was right,
but others sinned more and more.

Hezekiah

- 17 Hezekiah fortified his city,
and brought water into its midst;
he tunneled the rock with iron
tools,
and built cisterns for the water.
18 In his days Sennacherib invaded
the country;
he sent his commander^o and
departed;
he shook his fist against Zion,
and made great boasts in his arrogance.
19 Then their hearts were shaken
and their hands trembled,
and they were in anguish, like
women in labor.
20 But they called upon the Lord
who is merciful,

spreading out their hands
toward him.
The Holy One quickly heard
them from heaven,
and delivered them through Isaiah.
21 The Lord^p struck down the camp of the Assyrians,
and his angel wiped them out.
22 For Hezekiah did what was pleasing to the Lord,
and he kept firmly to the ways
of his ancestor David,
as he was commanded by the prophet Isaiah,
who was great and trustworthy
in his visions.

Isaiah

- 23 In Isaiah's^q days the sun went backward,
and he prolonged the life of the king.
24 By his dauntless spirit he saw the future,
and comforted the mourners in Zion.
25 He revealed what was to occur to the end of time,
and the hidden things before
they happened.

48.15 That the people were carried off because they did not repent is stated in 2 Kings 18.11–12. That the people were left very few in number is a translation from the Greek. The Hebrew reads: "But Judah was left, a small people." The original point was that, despite the sorry end for the people of (northern) Israel, continuity with the earlier kingdom of David and Solomon was assured because Judah remained and had a ruler from the house of David, a reference to Hezekiah, whose praise immediately follows. 48.16 The reference is to the kings of Judah. In 1 and 2 Kings they are assessed according to Deuteronomic values with the result that only six receive commendation: Asa (1 Kings 15.11); Jehosaphat (1 Kings 22.43); Joash (2 Kings 12.2); Azariah (2 Kings 15.3); Hezekiah (2 Kings 18.3); and Josiah (2 Kings 22.2). Of these six, Ben Sira mentions only two along with David as worthy of praise: Hezekiah and Josiah. Cf. 49.4.

48.17–22 Hezekiah is praised for his defense of Jerusalem and obedience to the Lord. His reign (715–687 B.C.E.) is recorded in 2 Kings 18–20; 2 Chr 29–32. 48.17 On Hezekiah's defense of the city, see 2 Kings 20.20; 2 Chr 32.5, 30. 48.18 The failure of Sennacherib to conquer Jerusalem is related in 2 Kings 18.13–37; 2 Chr 32.1–20. Cf. Isa 36.1–22. 48.20 That they called upon the Lord and were delivered . . . through Isaiah is related in 2 Kings 19.15–35. Cf. Isa 37.21–38. 48.23–25 Isaiah is praised for his prophetic role during Hezekiah's reign and for his trustworthy visions of the future (v. 22). Ben Sira may have had in mind not only the stories about Isaiah in 2 Kings 19–20, but the prophecies of restoration in the book of Isaiah (chs. 40–66). 48.23 That the sun went backward is related in 2 Kings 20.6–11. Cf. Isa 38.5–8. 48.24 Isaiah comforted . . . Zion may be an allusion to Isa 40.1.

49.1–3 Josiah is praised for reforming the people in lawless times. Cf. 2 Kings 22.2–23.25; 2 Chr 34–35. Ben Sira does not mention that most remarkable feature of Josiah's fame, namely, that the reform was a covenant to obey the book of the law, which was discovered while repairing the temple.

49.4–7 The end of the kings of Judah is attributed to a failure to keep the law, and the desolation of Jerusalem is said to have been foretold by Jeremiah. 49.5 The foreign nation that destroyed Jerusalem (586 B.C.E.) was Babylon. Cf. 2 Kings 25.1–15; 2 Chr 36.17–19. 49.6 For Jeremiah's prophecies concerning the fall of Jerusalem, cf. Jer 36–38. 49.7 For Jeremiah's call and mistreatment, see Jer 1.5, 10; 20; 37.13–15; 38.4–6.

49.8–10 Ezekiel and the twelve prophets are honored for their visions of restoration. 49.8 Ezekiel's vision of glory is a reference to Ezek 1.4–28. 49.9 God . . . mentioned Job to Ezekiel in an oracle (Ezek 14.14, 20). 49.10 The Twelve Prophets are the books of Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi. Their mention by Ben Sira is evidence that these books were classed together in his time and were regarded as a single corpus. That they comforted the people indicates that they were being read not for their prophecies of doom, but for their promising predictions of restoration, a characteristic feature of the oracles with which most of the prophetic books end.

49.11–13 Three leaders of the return (537 B.C.E.) and restoration are praised. 49.11 Zerubbabel, the governor of Judah when Cyrus, king of Persia, captured Babylon and gave his famous edict that the Jews could return to Jerusalem and rebuild their temple (537 B.C.E.), and Jeshua, the high priest at the time, are mentioned in Hag 1.1–2, 8, 12; 2.2. Cf. Zech 3–4. The description of Zerubbabel as like a signet ring is taken from Hag 2.23. 49.13 Nehemiah is remembered for rebuilding the city walls. Cf. Neh 2.17–7.3; 13.14, 22, 31. Ben Sira does not mention Ezra the scribe. Cf. Ezra 7–10.

49.14–16 Six additional figures are briefly mentioned as worthy of praise, four from the preflood period. The significance of the unit is unclear because it breaks the pattern of following the sequence of the epic history and ascribes honor for reasons that are not noted as glorious elsewhere in Sirach. It may have been a later addition to the poem. For Enoch's being taken up, see Gen 5.24; cf. Wis 4.10–14; Heb 11.5. For the burial of Joseph, see Gen 50.25–26; cf. Ex 13.9; Josh 24.32. Of the three sons of Noah, Shem was blessed as the forefather of Abraham. Cf. Gen 9.18–27; 11.10–26. Seth and Enosh provide the first two genealogical links from Adam to Noah. See Gen 5.1–25; cf. Gen 4.25. That Adam is honored above all seems out of place in Sirach. Such an idealization is not otherwise documented until a somewhat later time. Cf. Wis 10.1; Lk 3.38; Philo of Alexandria.

50.1–24 Simon the high priest is praised for his leadership (v. 1), fortification of the temple (vv. 1–4), glorious appearance in the court of the temple (vv. 5–11), performance of the daily sacrifice (vv. 12–19), and pronouncement of the blessing (vv. 20–21). 50.1 Simon son of Onias, called Simon the Just in later tradition, was high priest from 219 to 196 B.C.E. That he repaired the house (temple; cf. Josephus Antiquities 12.3.3 [141]) is reminiscent of Hezekiah's glory (48.17), an achievement that subtly attributes royal functions to him. 50.5–11 Simon's glorious appearance is described in terms reminiscent both of Aaron's glory (45.8–13) and wisdom's flourishing (24.13–17). 50.5 The house of the curtain, the temple, in terms reminiscent of the tent, or tabernacle, in the wilderness. The Hebrew for v. 5a reads "How glorious he was as he looked out from the tent" (instead of the Greek surrounded by the people), using the term that refers to the tent in the wilderness (Ex 26.33). A curtain or veil is not mentioned for Solomon's temple in 1 Kings 6, but was added to its description in 2 Chr 3.14. For other mentions of the veil, cf. 1 Macc 1.21–23;

that had occurred in the meantime. Onias III, Simon's son, had been deposed and murdered (2 Macc 4.34); Menelaus, who was not from a priestly family, had been installed as high priest by Antiochus IV; and the Maccabean wars had produced the Hasmonean dynasty of priest-kings. Thus it was obvious that Ben Sira's prayer had not been answered.

50.25–29 An epilogue and signature conclude Ben Sira's book of instruction. 50.26 The detested nations are those that bordered Judea to the south (Seir), the west (Philistines), and the north (Shechem), but they are referred to by archaic designations. Those who live in Seir were the Edomites, known in Ben Sira's time as Idumeans. Shechem was the old center of the Northern Kingdom and a euphemism for Samaria in Ben Sira's time. The Philistines were the ancient occupants of the land and enemies during the time of the judges and the early kings, probably Ben Sira's allusion to the Hellenistic cities along the seacoast.

51.1–12 A psalm of thanksgiving for deliverance from adversity is appended to the book of instruction. Its authenticity has been questioned, but there is nothing about its form or content that suggests it could not have been written by Ben Sira.

The hymn of praise positioned between v. 12 and 13 is not included in the Greek or Syriac manuscripts and is therefore difficult to attribute to Ben Sira. It is composed as a litany in the style of Ps 136 and contains features that suggest Essene provenance. These include the epithet God of praises, designations in the banner style such as shield of Abraham and rock of Isaac, as well as the notice of Zadokite loyalty.

51.13–30 An autobiographical poem on the author's quest for wisdom (vv. 13–22) leads to his invitation to join him in receiving her instruction (vv. 23–30). A manuscript containing the first half of the poem (vv. 13–20a), discovered at Qumran (Psalms Scroll [11QP^s]) shows that the original Hebrew was an acrostic, a feature that was blurred in later transcriptions and translations. The language of seeking and finding wisdom resonates with the poetry of personified wisdom in chs. 1, 4, 6, 14, 15, and 24. 51.13 The prayer for wisdom may allude to Solomon's request (1 Kings 3.7–9); cf. Sir 51.20; Wis 7.7; 8.21; 9.1–12. 51.23 The invitation is reminiscent of wisdom. Cf. 14.20–27; Prov 9.1–6. It is difficult to know whether the house of instruction is merely a poetic figure or whether it refers to the institution of a school. Given the form and content of Ben Sira's book of instruction, some formal setting for educational purposes has to be supposed. 51.26 For wisdom's yoke, see 6.23–31. For the idea that her instruction is close by, cf. Deut 30.11–14.

BARUCH

Authorship

THE NARRATIVE INTRODUCTION presents the book of Baruch as a letter sent by Baruch, the secretary and friend of Jeremiah, from exile in Babylon to the priests and people of Jerusalem in the early sixth century B.C.E. According to Jer 43.1–7, however, Jeremiah and Baruch in 582 B.C.E. were taken from Jerusalem to Egypt, where they presumably remained until they died. A later tradition, reflected in Baruch and in other Jewish sources (Seder Olam Rabbah 26; Midrash Rabbah Song 5.5; Babylonian Talmud Megillah 16b), assumes that Baruch went to Babylon. These sources are full of historical inaccuracies, however, and belong to the realm of legend rather than history. It was a relatively common practice during the late Second Temple period to compose edifying works that expanded the biblical tradition (e.g., Prayer of Manasseh, Jubilees, Ps.-Philo Biblical Antiquities), and it is within this context that Baruch should be situated.

Content

Baruch consists of three originally independent compositions (a prose prayer, a wisdom poem, and a poem of consolation) that have been joined together and given a narrative introduction. The narrative introduction (1.1–14) instructs the recipients to read the contents as a confessional liturgy “on the days of the festivals and at appointed seasons”(1.14). It is followed by a prose prayer (1.15–3.8) consisting of a preliminary confession (1.15–2.10) and the prayer itself (2.11–3.8). The confession and prayer are a pastiche of quotations from Daniel and Jeremiah, with the relationship between Bar 1.15–2.19 and Dan 9.4–19 being especially close. The wisdom poem (3.9–4.4) speaks of the elusiveness of wisdom but also identifies wisdom with the Torah (“the book of the commandments of God,” 4.1) as God’s gift to Israel. Like the prose prayer, the wisdom poem is a pastiche of biblical phrases. Although no single text predominates, echoes of Deut 30; Job 28; Sir 24 are easily identifiable. The last section of the book is a poem of consolation (4.5–5.9) that is strongly influenced by Isa 40–66. The poem begins with words of encouragement to the remnant of Israel (4.5–9a)

and continues with an address of personified Zion to her neighbors (4.9b–16) and to her children (4.17–29). The poem concludes with words of encouragement to Zion (4.30–5.9), who will see the return of her children. The last part of the poem, 4.36–5.9, closely resembles the noncanonical Psalms of Solomon 11.1–7. Opinion is divided, however, as to whether Psalms of Solomon is dependent on Baruch or whether both draw on an earlier poem of restoration.

The distinctiveness of the sections is evident not only in their different styles and in the different biblical texts on which they draw but also in the terms for God that they use. In the prose introduction and prayer God is referred to most often as “Lord,” in the wisdom poem as “God,” and in the poem of consolation as “the Everlasting.”

Language, Place, and Date of Composition

It is now generally agreed that all of the parts of Baruch were originally composed in Hebrew, although no Hebrew text now exists. Of the translations, the Greek text is the most important. Versions in Syriac, Latin, Coptic, Ethiopic, Arabic, and Armenian are also known. Because the book was composed in Hebrew, Palestine is the most likely place of origin.

The dates of composition of the originally independent sections of Baruch are difficult to establish. Historical inaccuracies in the introduction suggest a time considerably later than the Babylonian exile. The dependence of the prose prayer on Dan 9 might point to a date after 165 B.C.E., the date of Daniel, but it is possible that the prayer in Dan 9 is an earlier composition than Daniel as a whole. If the wisdom poem does in fact allude to Sir 24, then a date after 180 B.C.E. is indicated for that section. There are few clues to the date of the poem of consolation. Most scholars favor a date between 200 and 60 B.C.E. for the compilation of the book as a whole. Carol A. Newsom

Baruch and the Jews in Babylon

1 These are the words of the book that Baruch son of Neriah son of Mahseiah son of Zedekiah son of Hasadiah son of Hilkiah wrote in Babylon, ²in the fifth year, on the seventh day of the month, at the time when the Chaldeans took Jerusalem and burned it with fire.

3 Baruch read the words of this book to Jeconiah son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and to all the people who came to hear the book, ⁴and to the nobles and the princes, and to the elders, and to all the people, small and great, all who lived in Babylon by the river Sud.

5 Then they wept, and fasted, and prayed before the Lord; ⁶they collected as much money as each could give, ⁷and sent it to Jerusalem to the high priest^a Jehoiakim son of Hilkiah son of Shallum, and to the priests, and to all the people who were present with him in Jerusalem. ⁸At the same time, on the tenth day of Sivan, Baruch^b took the vessels of the house of the Lord, which had been carried away from the temple, to return them to the land of Judah—the silver vessels that Zedekiah son of Josiah, king of Judah, had made, ⁹after King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had carried away from Jerusalem Jeconiah and the princes and the prisoners and the nobles and the people of the land, and brought them to Babylon.

A Letter to Jerusalem

10 They said: Here we send you money; so buy with the money burnt offerings and sin offerings and incense, and prepare a grain offering, and offer them on the altar of the Lord our God; ¹¹and pray for the life of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, and for the life of his son Belshazzar, so that their days on earth may be like the days of heaven. ¹²The Lord will give us strength, and light to our eyes; we shall live under the protection^c of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, and under the protection of his son Belshazzar, and we shall serve them many days and find favor in their sight. ¹³Pray also for us to the Lord our God, for we have sinned against the Lord our God, and to this day the anger of the Lord and his wrath have not turned away from us. ¹⁴And you shall read aloud this scroll that we are sending you, to make your confession in the house of the Lord on the days of the festivals and at appointed seasons.

1.1–9 The first part of the narrative introduction, giving the circumstances of the letter. 1.1 Baruch son of . . . Hilkiah. Only Baruch's father and grandfather are named in the genealogy in Jer 32.12. 1.2 Whether the fifth year is calculated from the exile of 597 B.C.E. (see 2 Kings 24.10–17) or of 586 B.C.E. (see 2 Kings 25.8–12) is not stated. The reference to the burning of Jerusalem suggests the latter. Curiously, the date formula omits the name of the month (but see v. 8). 2 Kings 25.8 states that Nebuzaradan burned Jerusalem "in the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month." For penitential activity in Palestine on the anniversary of the destruction, see Zech 7.3–5. 1.3 Jeconiah is one of the names of Jehoiachin, the last king of Judah, who was exiled in 597 B.C.E. 1.4 Although the river Sud is otherwise unknown, Ezekiel also locates the community of exiles to which he belongs in relation to a river, the Chebar (Ezek 1.1). 1.5 The favorable reception given to Baruch's book by the exiled king and all the assembled people contrasts with the hostility Baruch received from Jeconiah's father, King Jehoiakim, when he read the scroll dictated by

Jeremiah in 604 B.C.E. (Jer 36). 1.6–9 The account of a collection for Jerusalem and the return of silver vessels is apparently modeled on Ezra 1, where a similar collection accompanies the return of gold and silver vessels by the Persian king Cyrus in 538 B.C.E. 1.7 No high priest by the name of Jehoiakim appears in the list of 1 Chr 6.13–15. 1.8–9 Sivan is the third month of the Jewish year (May/June). 2 Kings does not mention the making of silver vessels by Zedekiah to replace those taken by Nebuchadnezzar in the exile of 597 B.C.E. (cf. 2 Kings 25.13–16).

1.10–14 The letter to the community in Jerusalem includes instructions for the use of the collection and requests for prayer and for the public reading of the scroll. 1.10 The text assumes the continuation of sacrifices in Jerusalem. This does not necessarily imply a date before 586 B.C.E.; see Jer 41.5. 1.11 Belshazzar was not the son of Nebuchadnezzar, but of Nabonidus. Here the author of Baruch is influenced by Dan 5, which also erroneously called Belshazzar Nebuchadnezzar's son. Prayer was offered for the Persian king and his children, according to Ezra 6.10.

Confession of Sins

15 And you shall say: The Lord our God is in the right, but there is open shame on us today, on the people of Judah, on the inhabitants of Jerusalem, ¹⁶and on our kings, our rulers, our priests, our prophets, and our ancestors, ¹⁷because we have sinned before the Lord. ¹⁸We have disobeyed him, and have not heeded the voice of the Lord our God, to walk in the statutes of the Lord that he set before us. ¹⁹From the time when the Lord brought our ancestors out of the land of Egypt until today, we have been disobedient to the Lord our God, and we have been negligent, in not heeding his voice. ²⁰So to this day there have clung to us the calamities and the curse that the Lord declared through his servant Moses at the time when he brought our ancestors out of the land of Egypt to give to us a land flowing with milk and honey. ²¹We did not listen to the voice of the Lord our God in all the words of the prophets whom he sent to us, ²²but all of us followed the intent of our own wicked hearts by serving other gods and doing what is evil in the sight of the Lord our God.

2 So the Lord carried out the threat he spoke against us: against our judges who ruled Israel, and against our kings and our rulers and the people of Israel and Judah. ²Under the whole heaven there has not been done the like of what he has done in Jerusalem, in accordance with the threats that were^d written in the law of Moses. ³Some of us ate the flesh of their sons and others the flesh of their daughters. ⁴He made them subject to all the kingdoms around us, to be an object of scorn and a desolation among all the surrounding peoples, where the Lord has scattered them. ⁵They were brought down and not raised up, because our nation^e sinned against the Lord our God, in not heeding his voice.

⁶ The Lord our God is in the right, but there is open shame on us and our ancestors this very day. ⁷All those calamities with which the Lord threatened us have come upon us. ⁸Yet we have not entreated the favor of the Lord by turning away, each of us, from the thoughts of our wicked hearts. ⁹And the Lord has kept the calamities ready, and the Lord has brought them upon us, for the Lord is just in all the works that he has commanded us to do. ¹⁰Yet we have not obeyed his voice, to walk in the statutes of the Lord that he set before us.

Prayer for Deliverance

11 And now, O Lord God of Israel, who brought your people out of the land of Egypt with a mighty hand and with signs and wonders and with great power and outstretched arm, and made yourself a name that continues to this day, ¹²we have sinned, we have been ungodly, we have done wrong, O Lord our God, against all your ordinances. ¹³Let your anger turn away from us, for we are left, few in number, among the nations where you have scattered us. ¹⁴Hear, O Lord, our prayer and our supplication, and for your own sake deliver us, and grant us favor in the sight of those who have carried us into exile; ¹⁵so that all the earth may know that you are the Lord our God, for Israel and his descendants are called by your name.

ear, O Lord, and hear; ¹⁷open your eyes, O Lord, and see, for the dead who are in Hades, whose spirit has been taken from their bodies, will not ascribe glory or justice to the Lord; ¹⁸but the person who is deeply grieved, who walks bowed and feeble, with failing eyes and famished soul, will declare your glory and righteousness, O Lord.

¹⁹ For it is not because of any righteous deeds of our ancestors or our kings that we bring before you our prayer for mercy, O Lord our God. ²⁰For you have sent your anger and your wrath upon us, as you declared by your servants the prophets, saying: ²¹Thus says the Lord: Bend your shoulders and serve the king of Babylon, and you will remain in the land that I gave to your ancestors. ²²But if you will not obey the voice of the Lord and will not serve the king of Babylon, ²³I will make to cease from the towns of Judah and from the region around Jerusalem the voice of mirth and the voice of gladness, the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, and the whole land will be a desolation without inhabitants.

²⁴ But we did not obey your voice, to serve the king of Babylon; and you have carried out your threats, which you spoke by your servants the prophets, that the bones of our kings and the bones of our ancestors would be brought out of their resting place; ²⁵and indeed they have been thrown out to the heat of day and the frost of night. They perished in great misery, by famine and sword and pestilence. ²⁶And the house that is called by your name you have made as it is today, because of the wickedness of the house of Israel and the house of Judah.

²⁷ Yet you have dealt with us, O Lord our God, in all your kindness and in all your great compassion, ²⁸as you spoke by your servant Moses on the day when you commanded him to write your law in the presence of the people of Israel, saying, ²⁹"If you will not obey my voice, this very great multitude will surely turn into a small number among the nations, where I will scatter them. ³⁰For I know that they will not obey me, for they are a stiff-necked people. But in the land of their exile they will come to themselves ³¹and know that I am the Lord their God. I will give them a heart that obeys and ears that hear; ³²they will praise me in the land of their exile, and will remember my name ³³and turn from their stubbornness and their wicked deeds; for they will remember the ways of their ancestors, who sinned before the Lord. ³⁴I will bring them again into the land that I swore to give to their ancestors, to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they will rule over it; and I will increase them, and they will not be diminished. ³⁵I will make an everlasting covenant with them to be their God and they shall be my people; and I will never again remove my people Israel from the land that I have given them."

Final Petition

3 O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, the soul in anguish and the wearied spirit cry out to you. ²Hear, O Lord, and have mercy, for we have sinned before you. ³For you are enthroned forever, and we are perishing forever. ⁴O Lord Almighty, God of Israel, hear now the prayer of the people^f of Israel, the children of those who sinned before you, who did not heed the voice of the Lord their God, so that calamities have clung to us. ⁵Do not remember the iniquities of our ancestors, but in this crisis remember your power and your name. ⁶For you are the Lord our God, and it is you, O Lord, whom we will praise. ⁷For you have put the fear of you in our hearts so that we would call upon your name; and we will praise you in our exile, for we have put away from our hearts all the iniquity of our ancestors who sinned against you.

In Praise of Wisdom

- 9 Hear the commandments of life,
O Israel;
give ear, and learn wisdom!
10 Why is it, O Israel, why is it that you are in the land of your
enemies,
that you are growing old in a foreign country,
that you are defiled with the
dead, 11 that you are counted among those in Hades?
12 You have forsaken the fountain
of wisdom.
13 If you had walked in the way
of God,
you would be living in peace
forever.
14 Learn where there is wisdom,
where there is strength,
where there is understanding,
so that you may at the same time discern where there is length of days,
and life,
where there is light for the eyes, and peace.
15 Who has found her place?
And who has entered her storehouses?
16 Where are the rulers of the
nations,

- and those who lorded it over the animals on earth;
17 those who made sport of the birds of the air,
and who hoarded up silver and gold
in which people trust,
and there is no end to their getting;
18 those who schemed to get silver,
and were anxious,
but there is no trace of their
works?
19 They have vanished and gone
down to Hades,
and others have arisen in their place.
20 Later generations have seen the light of day,
and have lived upon the earth;
but they have not learned the way
to knowledge,
nor understood her paths,
nor laid hold of her.
21 Their descendants have strayed
far from her way.
22 She has not been heard of in Canaan,
or seen in Teman;
23 the descendants of Hagar, who seek for understanding on
the earth,
the merchants of Merran and Teman,
the story-tellers and the seekers
for understanding,
have not learned the way to
wisdom,

3.9–4.4 A poem in the style of a wisdom discourse describes the elusiveness of wisdom but also God's gift of wisdom to Israel in the Torah. 3.9–14 Israel's experience of exile is used as an object lesson to motivate obedience to the commandments of life and wisdom; cf. Deut 30.15–20. 3.9 The address to Israel echoes Deut 4.1; 5.1; cf. also the command to hear in Prov 1.8; 4.1, 10. 3.10 An exilic setting is presumed, though growing old in a foreign country suggests a different time than the fifth year mentioned in 1.2. 3.11 Ps 88.4. 3.12 See Prov 18.4; Sir 1.1, 5. 3.14 See Prov 3.13–18. 3.15–28 Neither the powerful, nor the wealthy, nor the nations with a reputation for wisdom, nor the ancient giants have been able to find it. 3.15 See Job 28.12, 20. 3.16–17 Both hunting and the collecting of exotic animals were symbols of royal power; cf. 1 Kings 10.22; Jer 27.6; Dan 2.38; Jdt 11.7. 3.22 The Canaanite (Phoenician) cities of Tyre and Sidon were associated with wisdom; cf. Ezek 28.4; Zech 9.2. For the wisdom of Teman, the capital of Edom, see Job 2.11; Jer 49.7; Ob 8. 3.23 The descendants of Hagar are the Ishmaelites (Gen 16.11–12), who appear as merchant travelers in Gen 37.25. Merran may be an error for Midian; see Gen 37.28 for Midianite caravanners. Sir 39.4 associates travel with wisdom.

- 24 O Israel, how great is the house
of God,
how vast the territory that he possesses!
- 25 It is great and has no bounds;
it is high and immeasurable.
- 26 The giants were born there, who were famous of old,
great in stature, expert in war.
- 27 God did not choose them,
or give them the way to

they perished through their
folly.
- 29 Who has gone up into heaven,
and taken her,
and brought her down from

found her,
and will buy her for pure gold?

- 32 But the one who knows all things knows her,
he found her by his
understanding.

and it goes;
he called it, and it obeyed him,

and were glad;
he called them, and they said,
"Here we are!"
They shone with gladness for him who made them.
- 35 This is our God;

or your advantages to an alien
people.
- 4 Happy are we, O Israel,
for we know what is pleasing
to God.

Encouragement for Israel

- 5 Take courage, my people,
who perpetuate Israel's name!
- 6 It was not for destruction
that you were sold to the
nations,

3.24–25 Here the house of God is not the temple but the whole cosmos. 3.26–28 According to ancient tradition, the giants (see Gen 6.1–4) were the children of fallen angels, who communicated a corrupted form of heavenly wisdom to humans (1 Enoch 7). The giants perished in the deluge (Wis 14.6). 3.29–37 Although no human can reach wisdom, God knows her and has given her to Israel. 3.29–30a Cf. Deut 30.12–13, which uses similar imagery to describe the accessibility of the divine commandments. 3.30b See Job 28.12–19. 3.31–32 See Job 28.23–27. 3.33–34 See Job 38.35. 3.35 See Isa 43.10–11; 45.18. 3.36–37 For the gift of wisdom to Israel, see Sir 24.8. Although v. 37 has sometimes been regarded as a Christian interpolation referring to the incarnation, the idea of wisdom living with humankind is attested in Prov 8.1–4, 31; Wis 9.10; Sir 24.10–12. 4.1–4 Wisdom is explicitly identified with the Torah (cf. Sir 24.23). 4.4 See Wis 9.18.

4.5–5.9 In the poem of consolation the psalmist addresses the exiles (4.5–9a), quotes the words of personified Jerusalem (4.9b–29), and finally addresses words of hope to Jerusalem (4.30–5.9). The composition draws extensively on phrases and images from Isa 40–66. 4.5–9a The reason for the exile is identified as the people's sin. 4.5 The call to take courage is repeated in vv. 21, 30. 4.6 See Isa 50.1b.

your enemies
because you angered God.
- 7 For you provoked the one who made you
by sacrificing to demons and not to God.
- 8 You forgot the everlasting God,
who brought you up,
and you grieved Jerusalem,
who reared you.
- 9 For she saw the wrath that came upon you from God,
and she said:
Listen, you neighbors of Zion,
God has brought great sorrow
upon me;
- 10 for I have seen the exile of my
sons and daughters,
which the Everlasting brought
upon them.
- 11 With joy I nurtured them,
but I sent them away with weeping and sorrow.
- 12 Let no one rejoice over me, a widow
and bereaved of many;
I was left desolate because of the
sins of my children,
because they turned away from the law of God.
- 13 They had no regard for his statutes;
they did not walk in the ways
of God's commandments,
or tread the paths his righteousness showed them.
- 14 Let the neighbors of Zion come;
remember the capture of my
sons and daughters,
which the Everlasting brought
upon them.
- 15 For he brought a distant nation
against them,
a nation ruthless and of a strange language,
which had no respect for the
aged
and no pity for a child.
- 16 They led away the widow's beloved sons,
and bereaved the lonely woman
of her daughters.
- 17 But I, how can I help you?
- 18 For he who brought these calamities upon you will deliver you from the hand
of your enemies.
- 19 Go, my children, go;
for I have been left desolate.
- 20 I have taken off the robe of peace
and put on sackcloth for my supplication;
I will cry to the Everlasting all
my days.
- 21 Take courage, my children, cry
to God,
and he will deliver you from the power and hand of the enemy.
- 22 For I have put my hope in the Everlasting to save you,
and joy has come to me from
the Holy One,
because of the mercy that will soon come to you
from your everlasting savior.^h
- 23 For I sent you out with sorrow
and weeping,
but God will give you back to me with joy and gladness
forever.
- 24 For as the neighbors of Zion have now seen your capture,
so they soon will see your salvation by God,
which will come to you with great
glory
and with the splendor of the Everlasting.
- 25 My children, endure with patience the wrath that has come upon you from God.
Your enemy has overtaken you,

Jerusalem Is Assured of Help

- 30 Take courage, O Jerusalem,
for the one who named you will comfort you.
- 31 Wretched will be those who mistreated you
and who rejoiced at your fall.
- 32 Wretched will be the cities that your children served as slaves;
wretched will be the city that received your offspring.
- 33 For just as she rejoiced at your fall
and was glad for your ruin,
so she will be grieved at her own desolation.
- 34 I will take away her pride in her great population,
and her insolence will be turned to grief.
- 35 For fire will come upon her from the Everlasting for many days,
and for a long time she will be inhabited by demons.
- 36 Look toward the east,
O Jerusalem,
and see the joy that is coming
to you from God.
- 37 Look, your children are coming,
whom you sent away;
they are coming, gathered from
east and west,
at the word of the Holy One,
rejoicing in the glory of God.

- 5 Take off the garment of your sorrow and affliction,
O Jerusalem,
and put on forever the beauty of the glory from God.
- 2 Put on the robe of the righteousness that comes from God;
put on your head the diadem
of the glory of the Everlasting;
- 3 for God will show your splendor
everywhere under heaven.
- 4 For God will give you evermore
the name,
"Righteous Peace, Godly Glory."

the height;
look toward the east,
and see your children gathered from west and east
at the word of the Holy One,
rejoicing that God has remembered them.

THE LETTER OF JEREMIAH

THE LETTER OF JEREMIAH is addressed to those Jews deported to Babylon by King Nebuchadnezzar, presumably in the exile of 597 B.C.E. It imitates the letter in Jer 29.1–23 to the same exiles, which advised them of the length of their stay (seventy years, an indefinite number) and of their conduct (expect to stay a long time). The Letter of Jeremiah likewise advises the exiles of their expected stay (v. 3; up to seven generations) and of their conduct (do not worship divine images).

Content

The Letter of Jeremiah draws upon biblical texts such as Deut 4.27–28; Pss 115.3–8; 135.15–18; Isa 40.18–20; 44.9–20; 46.1–7; Jer 10.2–16, which satirize divine images in order to encourage the worship of Israel's unique God. The first commandment of the Decalogue forbidding divine images (Ex 20.3–5; Deut 5.7–9) ensured that biblical religion was imageless, but some early biblical texts allowed other peoples their own gods so long as Israel's God was the Most High (Deut 32.8–9). In the sixth century B.C.E., however, during the exile, biblical authors began to argue for only one deity exclusively. They developed the idea by ridiculing the statues that in the ancient Near East represented deities to their worshipers. The Letter of Jeremiah is heir to that tradition, not only attacking pagan gods and cultures but celebrating implicitly Israel's unique imageless God and distinctiveness as a people.

Setting and Date

The Letter of Jeremiah draws upon the biblical tradition against images, summarizing rather than developing it in original ways. A “silver age” work, it reverently looks back to the “golden age” of inspired works like the books of Isaiah and Jeremiah. Because of its use of old traditions, most scholars date it and similar works to the Hellenistic period, between the late fourth and late second centuries B.C.E. It was known by the author of the letter in 2 Macc 2.1–3, who wrote near the end of the second century B.C.E. The period brought Judaism into contact with the religions of Egypt, Syria, Mesopotamia, and Greece, which routinely used statues of gods in their elaborate rituals. To those in the dependent and relatively poor Jewish communities in Palestine and elsewhere, the rich religions of these dominating cultures were a constant temptation to abandon their own, more austere traditions. The author, in common with the custom of the time, took the name of Jeremiah for a title because the Letter of Jeremiah developed the venerable prophet's ideas (cf. Jer 10.2–16; 29) and because the ancient name lent credibility to the new work.

Structure and Language

The Letter of Jeremiah consists of ten warnings, all (except the last) ending in a refrain that the statues are not divine and therefore the people should not fear them, i.e., worship them (vv. 16, 23, 29, 40, 44, 52, 56, 65, 69). The author denies power to the statues and heaps ridicule upon them. There is little development of ideas, the unity of the work coming from the framework and unvarying perspective. The original language seems to have been Hebrew or Aramaic. The Greek occasionally reflects Semitic syntax, and several unclear passages can be plausibly corrected by postulating an original Semitic word or construction. A small fragment in Greek (vv. 43–44) was found in Cave 7 at Qumran.

The People Face a Long Captivity

2 Because of the sins that you have committed before God, you will be taken to Babylon as exiles by Nebuchadnezzar, king of the Babylonians. 3 Therefore when you have come to Babylon you will remain there for many years, for a long time, up to seven generations; after that I will bring you away from there in peace. 4 Now in Babylon you will see gods made of silver and gold and wood, which people carry on their shoulders, and which cause the heathen to fear. 5 So beware of becoming at all like the foreigners or of letting fear for these gods^b possess you 6 when

^a The King James Version (like the Latin Vulgate) prints The Letter of Jeremiah as Chapter 6 of the Book of Baruch, and the chapter and verse numbers are here retained. In the Greek Septuagint, the Letter is separated from Baruch by the Book of Lamentations. ^b Gk for them

1–7 Historical context and theme. 1 The setting is probably the deportation of 597 B.C.E. (2 Kings 24.10–17) since the letter in Jer 29.1–23 was addressed to the exiles of that deportation. 3 If up to seven generations is taken literally, reckoning forty years to the generation as in the wilderness period this yields 317 B.C.E. as the possible date of composition. More likely, however, the phrase expands Jeremiah's projection of seventy years (Jer 25.12; 29.10) or three generations of Babylonian rulers (Jer 27.7) in the manner of Dan 9.24, "seventy weeks (of years)." After that . . . in peace. Idols are a temporary trial of exile; there will be no more idols when the exiles return home. 4–7 The theme of the Letter is the central affirmation of the Bible: "you shall have no other gods before me" (Ex 20.3; Deut 5.7) and "The LORD is our God, the LORD alone"

you see the multitude before and behind them worshipping them. But say in your heart, "It is you, O Lord, whom we must worship." ⁷For my angel is with you, and he is watching over your lives.

The Helplessness of Idols

8 Their tongues are smoothed by the carpenter, and they themselves are overlaid with gold and silver; but they are false and cannot speak. ⁹People^c take gold and make crowns for the heads of their gods, as they might for a girl who loves ornaments. ¹⁰Sometimes the priests secretly take gold and silver from their gods and spend it on themselves, ¹¹or even give some of it to the prostitutes on the terrace. They deck their gods^d out with garments like human beings—these gods of silver and gold and wood ¹²that cannot save themselves from rust and corrosion. When they have been dressed in purple robes, ¹³their faces are wiped because of the dust from the temple, which is thick upon them. ¹⁴One of them holds a scepter, like a district judge, but is unable to destroy anyone who offends it. ¹⁵Another has a dagger in its right hand, and an ax, but cannot defend itself from war and robbers. ¹⁶From this it is evident that they are not gods; so do not fear them.

17 For just as someone's dish is useless when it is broken, ¹⁸so are their gods when they have been set up in the temples. Their eyes are full of the dust raised by the feet of those who enter. And just as the gates are shut on every side against anyone who has offended a king, as though under sentence of death, so the priests make their temples secure with doors and locks and bars, in order that they may not be plundered by robbers. ¹⁹They light more lamps for them than they light for themselves, though their gods^e can see none of them. ²⁰They are^f just like a beam of the temple, but their hearts, it is said, are eaten away when crawling creatures from the earth devour them and their robes. They do not notice ²¹when their faces have been blackened by the smoke of the temple. ²²Bats, swallows, and birds alight on their bodies and heads; and so do cats. ²³From this you will know that they are not gods; so do not fear them.

24 As for the gold that they wear for beauty—it^g will not shine unless someone wipes off the tarnish; for even when they were being cast, they did not feel it. ²⁵They are bought without regard to cost, but there is no breath in them. ²⁶Having no feet, they are carried on the shoulders of others, revealing to humankind their worthlessness. And those who serve them are put to shame ²⁷because, if any of these gods falls^h to the ground, they themselves must pick it up. If anyone sets it upright, it cannot move itself; and if it is tipped over, it cannot straighten itself. Gifts are placed before them just as before the dead. ²⁸The priests sell the sacrifices that are offered to these godsⁱ and use the money themselves. Likewise their wives preserve some of the meat^j with salt, but give none to the poor or helpless. ²⁹Sacrifices to them may even be touched by women in their periods or at childbirth. Since you know by these things that they are not gods, do not fear them.

30 For how can they be called gods?

(Deut 6.4). ⁷ My angel in some early biblical texts expressed God's very presence and power (Gen 16.7; Ex 23.23), but here it is a heavenly figure to whom God has entrusted the people's welfare.

8-16 Though made of gold and silver, the statues cannot act or move. 9-10 The statues' authority, denoted by crowns, cannot prevent their own priests from plundering their gold. 12-13 Purple robes denote royal power, yet the gods cannot even keep their faces clean. 16 A variant of this statement concludes each section except the last. 17-23 The statues are useless and unseeing. 17 The broken dish is proverbial for uselessness (Jer 19.11; 22.28; Hos 8.8).

18 The gods are shut up within their temples like prisoners. 20 Their hearts, it is said, are eaten away is a difficult phrase, possibly "their minds [lit. hearts], so to speak, are destroyed by insects."

24-29 The statues are unfeeling and passive, and their food is plundered and ritually unclean. 25 No breath in them. Cf. Ps 135.17; Jer 10.14.

26 Cf. Isa 46.7. 27 The statues are as passive as the dead. 29 Women became ritually unclean in their periods or at childbirth (Lev 12.2-5; 15.19-30). 30-40a The statues cannot do what is expected of gods. 30 As Judaism did not allow female priests, women's priestly service is

Women serve meals for gods of silver and gold and wood; ³¹and in their temples the priests sit with their clothes torn, their heads and beards shaved, and their heads uncovered. ³²They howl and shout before their gods as some do at a funeral banquet. ³³The priests take some of the clothing of their gods^k to clothe their wives and children. ³⁴Whether one does evil to them or good, they will not be able to repay it. They cannot set up a king or depose one. ³⁵Likewise they are not able to give either wealth or money; if one makes a vow to them and does not keep it, they will not require it. ³⁶They cannot save anyone from death or rescue the weak from the strong. ³⁷They cannot restore sight to the blind; they cannot rescue one who is in distress. ³⁸They cannot take pity on a widow or do good to an orphan. ³⁹These things that are made of wood and overlaid with gold and silver are like stones from the mountain, and those who serve them will be put to shame. ⁴⁰Why then must anyone think that they are gods, or call them gods?

The Foolishness of Worshipping Idols

Besides, even the Chaldeans themselves dishonor them; for when they see someone who cannot speak, they bring Bel and pray that the mute may speak, as though Bel^l were able to understand! ⁴¹Yet they themselves cannot perceive this and abandon them, for they have no sense. ⁴²And the women, with cords around them, sit along the passageways, burning bran for incense. ⁴³When one of them is led off by one of the passers-by and is taken to bed by him, she derides the woman next to her, because she was not as attractive as herself and her cord was not broken. ⁴⁴Whatever is done for these idols^m is false. Why then must anyone think that they are gods, or call them gods?

⁴⁵ They are made by carpenters and goldsmiths; they can be nothing but what the artisans wish them to be. ⁴⁶Those who make them will certainly not live very long themselves; ⁴⁷how then can the things that are made by them be gods? They have left only lies and reproach for those who come after. ⁴⁸For when war or calamity comes upon them, the priests consult together as to where they can hide themselves and their gods.^m ⁴⁹How then can one fail to see that these are not gods, for they cannot save themselves from war or calamity? ⁵⁰Since they are made of wood and overlaid with gold and silver, it will afterward be known that they are false. ⁵¹It will be manifest to all the nations and kings that they are not gods but the work of human hands, and that there is no work of God in them. ⁵²Who then can fail to know that they are not gods?ⁿ

⁵³ For they cannot set up a king over a country or give rain to people. ⁵⁴They cannot judge their own cause or deliver one who is wronged, for they have no power; ⁵⁵they are like crows between heaven and earth. When fire breaks out in a temple of wooden gods overlaid with

taken as a sign of folly. Foolish too is food given to statues made of metal and wood. 31-32 Since Israel's God is not one of the dying and rising gods of the ancient Near East, ritual mourning is out of place. 33-34a The gods are unable to prevent their own servants from plundering them (cf. v. 10). 34b-38 The acts of deliverance expected of a god they cannot do, but the true God of Israel can do all this (Deut 32.39; Pss 49.15; 146.8-9).

40b-44 The senseless behavior of the gods' servants: two examples. 40 The Chaldeans are either people of the Babylonian Empire or, more specifically, professional diviners. Bel is the Akkadian word for "lord," corresponding to Hebrew Baal, a title of Marduk, chief of the Babylonian pantheon. His priests, supposedly wise, pray to an unhearing god for the cure of a mute. 42-43 Women sponsored by the temple are engaged in sexual acts celebrating the fertility bestowed by the gods. The fifth-century B.C.E. Greek historian Herodotus described similar rituals (History 1.199). Since Israel's God did not create by procreation, human sexual activity played no role in its ritual. 45-56 The statues of the gods are made by mortals. 45 The statues represent human rather than divine will. 47 One generation was expected to hand on to those who come after the tradition of true worship (cf. Deut 6.7; Pss 48.13; 78.1-8), but the artisans hand on only shameful images. 50 The statues are only wooden cores overlaid with gold and silver; they will be unable to protect themselves from the ravages of war and time. 53-54 Among the tasks of gods in the ancient Near East were to establish kings, give fertility, and rescue the innocent poor, but these gods do nothing. 55 The difficult crows is sometimes corrected to "clouds" on the gold or silver, their priests will flee and escape, but the gods^o will be burned up like timbers. ⁵⁶Besides, they can offer no resistance to king or enemy. Why then must anyone admit or think that they are gods?

⁵⁷ Gods made of wood and overlaid with silver and gold are unable to save themselves from thieves or robbers. ⁵⁸Anyone who can will strip them of their gold and silver and of the robes they wear, and go off with this booty, and they will not be able to help themselves. ⁵⁹So it is better to be a king who shows his courage, or a household utensil that serves its owner's need, than to be these false gods; better even the door of a house that protects its contents, than these false gods; better also a wooden pillar in a palace, than these false gods.

⁶⁰ For sun and moon and stars are bright, and when sent to do a service, they are obedient. ⁶¹So also the lightning, when it flashes, is widely seen; and the wind likewise blows in every land. ⁶²When God commands the clouds to go over the whole world, they carry out his command. ⁶³And the fire sent from above to consume mountains and woods does what it is ordered. But these idols^p are not to be compared with them in appearance or power. ⁶⁴Therefore one must not think that they are gods, nor call them gods, for they are not able either to decide a case or to do good to anyone. ⁶⁵Since you know then that they are not gods, do not fear them.

⁶⁶ They can neither curse nor bless kings; ⁶⁷they cannot show signs in the heavens for the nations, or shine like the sun or give light like the moon. ⁶⁸The wild animals are better than they are, for they can flee to shelter and help themselves. ⁶⁹So we have no evidence whatever that they are gods; therefore do not fear them.

basis of a similar Semitic word. The gods are as helpless as clouds before the winds. 57-65 The divine statues are helpless and useless, unfit images of the true God. 57-58 Cf. vv. 10, 28, 49, 56. 59 All things, noble and base, have their use but not the divine statues. 60-64 The true images of God are the heavenly luminaries and the storm, which convey a universal message of the one God. 60 The luminaries mark day and night and seasonal feasts (Gen 1.14-18). 61-63 Israel's God appeared in the storm (Ex 19.16-19; 1 Kings 18.44-45; Ps 29). 66-69 The gods are passive, mute, and more helpless than wild animals. 70-73 Final metaphors of contempt for the statues. True honor belongs to the upright person (v. 73).

THE PRAYER OF AZARIAH AND THE SONG OF THE THREE JEWS

THE GREEK AND LATIN VERSIONS of Daniel contain several additions that are not present in the Jewish and Protestant canons of the OT. These are collectively referred to as the Additions to Daniel and consist of the Prayer of Azariah and the Song of the Three Jews, Susanna, and Bel and the Dragon.

The first of these, the Prayer of Azariah and the Song of the Three Jews, is found inserted between Dan 3.23 and 3.24. Dan 3 recounts the story of Daniel's three companions who are thrown into a furnace by Nebuchadnezzar and survive unharmed. Although short prayers and doxologies are found in Daniel in the Hebrew Bible (2.20–23; 3.28; 4.3, 34–35, 37; 6.26–27), this addition is much longer, delaying the narrative considerably. It was a common practice in the editing of the OT to insert such poetic compositions into prose works (cf. 1 Sam 2; 2 Sam 22). This insertion falls into three parts: the Prayer of Azariah (vv. 1–22); a description of the furnace (vv. 23–27); and the Song of the Three Jews (vv. 28–68). The last section can also be divided further into vv. 28–34 and vv. 35–68, based on differences in the poetic arrangement. Although there is no evidence that the Prayer of Azariah or the Song of the Three Jews was used in Jewish liturgy, they were very popular among Christians and were included as numbers 7 and 8 in the section “Odes” in some manuscripts of the Greek Bible.

By form, the Prayer of Azariah is a national lament, similar to Pss 44; 74; 79; and 80, although the latter do not dwell as much on the speaker's confession of sin. The confession of sin was, however, a staple of the covenantal theology of the postexilic period (cf. Ezra 9.6–15; Neh 9.6–37; Dan 9.4–19; Bar 1.15–3.8).

The Song of the Three Jews was often divided in early Christian use at the same point where a division is suggested here, between vv. 34 and 35. In both parts this is a hymn of praise; the first part is similar to Pss 96 and 97 in its themes, while the second is similar to Ps 148 in content and to Ps 136 in its use of a repeated, antiphonal refrain.

Dan 3 only hints at what is going on within the furnace (cf. Dan 3.25). This addition, probably inserted in the second or first century B.C.E. serves to record the prayers and blessings of the three men and to increase the sense of the miraculous by describing in detail how the angel is intervening. Readers thus enter more fully into the experience of the three pious and courageous Jews.

The Prayer of Azariah in the Furnace

1 They^a walked around in the midst of the flames, singing hymns to God and blessing the Lord. ²Then Azariah stood still in the fire and prayed aloud:

3 "Blessed are you, O Lord, God of our ancestors, and worthy of praise;
and glorious is your name forever!

4 For you are just in all you have done;
all your works are true and your ways right,
and all your judgments are true.

5 You have executed true judgments in all you have brought upon us and upon Jerusalem, the holy city of our ancestors;
by a true judgment you have brought all this upon us
because of our sins.

6 For we have sinned and broken your law in turning away from you;
in all matters we have sinned grievously.
7 We have not obeyed your commandments,
we have not kept them or done what you have commanded us for our own good.
8 So all that you have brought upon us,
and all that you have done to us,
you have done by a true judgment.
9 You have handed us over to our enemies, lawless and hateful rebels, and to an unjust king, the most wicked in all the world.
10 And now we cannot open our mouths;
we, your servants who worship you, have become a shame and a reproach.

^a That is, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah (Dan 2.17), the original names of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego (Dan 1.6-7)

1-22 The Prayer of Azariah. Elements of the older "national lament" psalms are combined here with the confession of sin as a step toward reestablishing a covenant with God. The tone of penitence is totally lacking in Dan 1-6, and the three Jews are apparently blameless before God; thus the prayer does not correspond to their circumstances but has been added to the book of Daniel to introduce another dimension of the religious life of Jews in the postexilic period. 2 Both the Hebrew names of the three men and their adopted Babylonian names are given in Dan 1.7, but only the Babylonian names are used in Dan 3, and only the Hebrew names in the addition (vv. 2, 66). 5-10 The confession of sin and the recognition that God's covenant has been broken, which has resulted in the fall of Jerusalem. 9 An unjust king, the most wicked. Although Jewish tradition would naturally hurl this sort of invective at Nebuchadnezzar for capturing Jerusalem and destroying the temple, Dan 1-4 presents a varied portrait of this king. Later Jewish tradition condemned Daniel's cooperation with Nebuchadnezzar, and this addition shares this negative view.

- 11 For your name's sake do not give us up forever,
and do not annul your covenant.
- 12 Do not withdraw your mercy from us,
for the sake of Abraham your beloved and for the sake of your servant Isaac
and Israel your holy one,
- 13 to whom you promised to multiply their descendants
like the stars of heaven
and like the sand on the shore of the sea.
- 14 For we, O Lord, have become fewer than any other nation,
and are brought low this day in all the world because of our sins.
- 15 In our day we have no ruler, or prophet, or leader,
no burnt offering, or sacrifice, or oblation, or incense,
no place to make an offering before you and to find mercy.
- 16 Yet with a contrite heart and a humble spirit may we be accepted,
- 17 as though it were with burnt offerings of rams and bulls,
or with tens of thousands of fat lambs;
such may our sacrifice be in your sight today,
and may we unreservedly follow you,^b
for no shame will come to those who trust in you.
- 18 And now with all our heart we follow you;
we fear you and seek your presence.
- 19 Do not put us to shame,

- but deal with us in your patience
and in your abundant mercy.
- 20 Deliver us in accordance with your marvelous works,
and bring glory to your name, O Lord.
- 21 Let all who do harm to your servants be put to shame;
let them be disgraced and deprived of all power,
and let their strength be broken.
- 22 Let them know that you alone are the Lord God,
glorious over the whole world."

The Song of the Three Jews

23 Now the king's servants who threw them in kept stoking the furnace with naphtha, pitch, tow, and brushwood. 24 And the flames poured out above the furnace forty-nine cubits, 25 and spread out and burned those Chaldeans who were caught near the furnace. 26 But the angel of the Lord came down into the furnace to be with Azariah and his companions, and drove the fiery flame out of the furnace, 27 and made the inside of the furnace as though a moist wind were whistling through it. The fire did not touch them at all and caused them no pain or distress.

28 Then the three with one voice praised and glorified and blessed God in the furnace:

- 29 "Blessed are you, O Lord, God of our ancestors,
and to be praised and highly exalted forever;
- 30 And blessed is your glorious, holy name,
and to be highly praised and highly exalted forever.

11-22 Appeal to God's mercy to reinstate the covenant. 12-13 God's covenant with Abraham is invoked (cf. Gen 15.1-6); Isaac and Israel (Jacob) are also included (Gen 22.15-18; Josh 24.3-4; Isa 41.8). 15 No ruler . . . no place. The temple and the government have fallen, which fits Daniel's situation, but it is possible that the lament may have been written about a later period.

Azariah's prayer, v. 15) but are directly referring only to a heavenly temple. 32 The cherubim are mythical creatures on which God rides in heaven; they were represented in the temple (cf. 1 Sam 4.4; 1 Kings 6.23–28). 35–68 Second song. Praise is elicited from all of God's creation, beginning with the highest cosmological phenomena and the angels (vv. 36–41), descending through the elements of the atmosphere (vv. 42–51), to the earth and the creatures on it (vv. 52–59), and ending with worshipers of God (vv. 60–68; cf. Ps 148). Whereas the first song addresses God directly and utilizes many similar-sounding phrases to increase its poetic beauty, here the universe itself is summoned to give praise, and the second line of each verse is not only similar, but identical, likely an antiphonal

SUSANNA

(CHAPTER 13 OF THE GREEK VERSION OF DANIEL)

MANY STORIES AND VISIONS concerning Daniel, similar to the ones now contained in the OT book, circulated in ancient Judaism in the Second Temple period; fragments of some of these have been found at Qumran. Susanna and Bel and the Dragon are two such entertaining short stories that probably circulated independently and were later inserted into the book of Daniel, Susanna appearing either after Dan 12 or before Dan 1 to introduce the young Daniel. The purpose for adding these two stories to the previously existing book was perhaps to bring it more in line with the novelistic literature of the period such as Tobit, Judith, and Esther (especially with its Greek additions).

Susanna and Bel and the Dragon are best read as edifying fictions; no real historical account is intended in either case. They are examples of a commonplace in Jewish literature, the persecution and vindication of the righteous hero or heroine (cf. Gen 37–50; Esther; Dan 3; 6; Wis 2–5). Susanna differs from Dan 1–6 and Bel and the Dragon (as well as Gen 37–50 and Esther) in that the action does not take place in the highest court in the land, but in the local, self-governing Jewish court.

Traditional folk motifs, such as the upright woman who is falsely accused of being promiscuous and the young boy who steps forward to render a just verdict, are reflected in the story. Susanna is also one of the first detective stories of world literature, or better, one of the first “courtroom dramas.” It cannot be dated precisely but was probably composed between the third and first centuries B.C.E. The Greek version translated here is attributed to Theodotion; the Septuagint version is quite different in a number of places (see note on v. 32).

Susanna's Beauty Attracts Two Elders

1 There was a man living in Babylon whose name was Joakim. ²He married the daughter of Hilkiah, named Susanna, a very beautiful woman and one who feared the Lord. ³Her parents were righteous, and had trained their daughter according to the law of Moses. ⁴Joakim was very rich, and had a fine garden adjoining his house; the Jews used to come to him because he was the most honored of them all.

5 That year two elders from the people were appointed as judges. Concerning them the Lord had said: "Wickedness came forth from Babylon, from elders who were judges, who were supposed to govern the people." ⁶These men were frequently at Joakim's house, and all who had a case to be tried came to them there.

7 When the people left at noon, Susanna would go into her husband's garden to walk. ⁸Every day the two elders used to see her, going in and walking about, and they began to lust for her. ⁹They suppressed their consciences and turned away their eyes from looking to Heaven or remembering their duty to administer justice. ¹⁰Both were overwhelmed with passion for her, but they did not tell each other of their distress, ¹¹for they were ashamed to disclose their lustful desire to seduce her. ¹²Day after day they watched eagerly to see her.

13 One day they said to each other, "Let us go home, for it is time for lunch." So they both left and parted from each other. ¹⁴But turning back, they met again; and when each pressed the other for the reason, they confessed their lust.

Then together they arranged for a time when they could find her alone.

The Elders Attempt to Seduce Susanna

15 Once, while they were watching for an opportune day, she went in as before with only two maids, and wished to bathe in the garden, for it was a hot day. ¹⁶No one was there except the two elders, who had hidden themselves and were watching her. ¹⁷She said to her maids, "Bring me olive oil and ointments, and shut the garden doors so that I can bathe." ¹⁸They did as she told them: they shut the doors of the garden and went out by the side doors to bring what they had been commanded; they did not see the elders, because they were hiding.

19 When the maids had gone out, the two elders got up and ran to her. ²⁰They said, "Look, the garden doors are shut, and no one can see us. We are burning with desire for you; so give your consent, and lie with us. ²¹If you refuse, we will testify against you that a young man was with you, and this was why you sent your maids away."

22 Susanna groaned and said, "I am completely trapped. For if I do this, it will mean death for me; if I do not, I cannot escape your hands. ²³I choose not to do it; I will fall into your hands, rather than sin in the sight of the Lord."

24 Then Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and the two elders shouted against her. ²⁵And one of them ran and opened the garden doors. ²⁶When the people in the house heard the shouting in the garden, they rushed in at the side door to see what had happened to her. ²⁷And when the elders told their story,

1-14 Calm setting of the story and introduction of a threat to Susanna. 1 Since the story introduces the young man Daniel, the time must be during the exile. It is difficult to imagine Jews living lives of such genteel wealth during the exile in Babylon, but cf. Jer 29.4-7 and, from a much later period, 2 Esd 3.2. This story may reflect the actual social conditions of some Jews of a later century. Joakim, in Hebrew means "the Lord will establish." This figure is not to be identified either with the Joakim of Jdt 4.6; 15.8, or with Jehoiachin in 2 Kings 24.15. 2 Hilkiah, in Hebrew "the Lord is my portion," a common priestly name. Susanna, in Hebrew "lily." A very beautiful woman ... the Lord. Cf. Tob 6.12; Jdt 8.7-8; Esth 2.7, 20

(according to the Greek translation). 5 The quotation is unknown, but cf. Jer 23.14-15; 29.20-23.

15-27 The attempted seduction of Susanna. 17 Olive oil was used as a cosmetic and sometimes perfumed with myrrh to make a fragrant ointment; cf. Esth 2.12; Ps 104.15. 21 Was with you is here a euphemism for sexual intercourse; merely being alone with a young man would not warrant death (cf. v. 37). 22 According to Mosaic law, the punishment for adultery was death (Lev 20.10; Deut 22.22). 23 I choose not to do it. Central to many such Jewish stories is a moment of decision; cf. Gen 39.9.

the servants felt very much ashamed, for nothing like this had ever been said about Susanna.

The Elders Testify Against Susanna

28 The next day, when the people gathered at the house of her husband Joakim, the two elders came, full of their wicked plot to have Susanna put to death. In the presence of the people they said, 29 "Send for Susanna daughter of Hilkiah, the wife of Joakim." 30 So they sent for her. And she came with her parents, her children, and all her relatives.

31 Now Susanna was a woman of great refinement and beautiful in appearance. 32 As she was veiled, the scoundrels ordered her to be unveiled, so that they might feast their eyes on her beauty. 33 Those who were with her and all who saw her were weeping.

34 Then the two elders stood up before the people and laid their hands on her head. 35 Through her tears she looked up toward Heaven, for her heart trusted in the Lord. 36 The elders said, "While we were walking in the garden alone, this woman came in with two maids, shut the garden doors, and dismissed the maids. 37 Then a young man, who was hiding there, came to her and lay with her. 38 We were in a corner of the garden, and when we saw this wickedness we ran to them. 39 Although we saw them embracing, we could not hold the man, because he was stronger than we, and he opened the doors and got away. 40 We did, however, seize this woman and asked who the young man was, 41 but she would not tell us. These things we testify."

Because they were elders of the people and judges, the assembly believed them and condemned her to death.

42 Then Susanna cried out with a loud voice, and said, "O eternal God, you know what is secret and are aware of all things before they come to be; 43 you know that these men have given false evidence against me. And now I am to die, though I have done none of the wicked things that they have charged against me!"

44 The Lord heard her cry. 45 Just as she was being led off to execution, God stirred up the holy spirit of a young lad named Daniel, 46 and he shouted with a loud voice, "I want no part in shedding this woman's blood!"

Daniel Rescues Susanna

47 All the people turned to him and asked, "What is this you are saying?" 48 Taking his stand among them he said, "Are you such fools, O Israelites, as to condemn a daughter of Israel without examination and without learning the facts? 49 Return to court, for these men have given false evidence against her."

50 So all the people hurried back. And the rest of the^a elders said to him, "Come, sit among us and inform us, for God has given you the standing of an elder." 51 Daniel said to them, "Separate them far from each other, and I will examine them."

52 When they were separated from each other, he summoned one of them and said to him, "You old relic of wicked days, your sins have now come home, which you have committed in the past, 53 pronouncing unjust judgments, con-

28-46 The trial of Susanna. 32 The narrative presumes that a woman of position would be veiled in public; unveiling her face would violate her modesty. In the Septuagint version of Susanna, however, she is evidently stripped and exposed to the gaze of the crowd, a ritual punishment for adulterous women attested in Jewish law. Cf. Ezek 16.37-39; Hos 2.3-10; Mishnah Sota 1.5-6. 34 The gesture of laying hands on the head was used in various solemn rituals (cf. Gen 48.14; Lev 16.21; Num 8.10), but here it signifies the witnesses' role in testifying to a capital offense before the community carries out the execution (cf. Lev 24.14). 35 Heaven, i.e., God. 42-43 Susanna, who has trusted in the Lord

(v. 35), testifies on her own behalf before God as a higher judge. She accuses the elders of bearing false witness, a violation of Jewish law (Deut 19.16-21). Her prayer for intercession, though quite short, is similar to the prayers of Jdt 9.2-14; Add Esth 14.3-19. 44-46 God as judge hears her testimony and inspires Daniel to come to her defense as a legal advocate. Whether the holy spirit here is the spirit of prophecy or more to be associated with wisdom is unclear (cf. Dan 4.8, 18; 5.11-12; 6.3).

demning the innocent and acquitting the guilty, though the Lord said, 'You shall not put an innocent and righteous person to death.'⁵⁴ Now then, if you really saw this woman, tell me this: Under what tree did you see them being intimate with each other?" He answered, "Under a mastic tree."^b ⁵⁵And Daniel said, "Very well! This lie has cost you your head, for the angel of God has received the sentence from God and will immediately cut^b you in two."

⁵⁶ Then, putting him to one side, he ordered them to bring the other. And he said to him, "You offspring of Canaan and not of Judah, beauty has beguiled you and lust has perverted your heart. ⁵⁷This is how you have been treating the daughters of Israel, and they were intimate with you through fear; but a daughter of Judah would not tolerate your wickedness. ⁵⁸Now then, tell me: Under what tree did you catch them being intimate with each other?" He answered, "Under an evergreen oak."^c ⁵⁹Daniel said to him, "Very well! This lie has cost you also your head, for the angel of God is waiting with his sword to split^c you in two, so as to destroy you both."

⁶⁰ Then the whole assembly raised a great shout and blessed God, who saves those who hope in him. ⁶¹And they took action against the two elders, because out of their own mouths Daniel had convicted them of bearing false witness; they did to them as they had wickedly planned to do to their neighbor. ⁶²Acting in accordance with the law of Moses, they put them to death. Thus innocent blood was spared that day.

⁶³ Hilkiash and his wife praised God for their daughter Susanna, and so did her husband Joakim and all her relatives, because she was found innocent of a shameful deed. ⁶⁴And from that day onward Daniel had a great reputation among the people.

BEL AND THE DRAGON

(CHAPTER 14 OF THE GREEK VERSION OF DANIEL)

BEL AND THE DRAGON is found at the end of the book of Daniel in the Greek version as another story of Daniel's experiences in the great royal courts of the ancient Near East. The two parts of Bel and the Dragon (vv. 1–22; 23–42) are composed of narratives that depict the folly of revering idols and may have circulated independently. During the postexilic period, when Jews regularly encountered those who worshiped representations of various kinds, the theme of the parody of idols was developed into a literary commonplace (Pss 115.4–8; 135.15–18; Isa 40.18–20; 44.9–20; 46.6–7; Jer 10.3–9; Hab 2.18–19; Wis 13.1–15.17; Letter of Jeremiah). The entertaining motifs that begin Bel and the Dragon are given a more dramatic turn, however; the angry Babylonians force the king to throw Daniel into the lions' den. Daniel's fall from a position of honor and the threat to his life, together with his vindication and restoration at the end, are similar in plot outline to Dan 3 and 6 and also to Susanna, Gen 37–50, and Esther (see Introduction to Susanna).

Although Dan 6 and Bel and the Dragon evidently share a common history (the method of execution in both is to be thrown into a den of lions), it is unclear which is closer to the original narrative. Bel and the Dragon is more fantastic and miraculous than Dan 6—perhaps even whimsical—but in two details Bel and the Dragon is more realistic: the succession of kings here is correct (“Darius the Mede” of Dan 5.31; 6.28 is unhistorical), and the use of the signet ring here is more logical and integrated into the narrative (cf. Dan 6.17).

Bel and the Dragon, like Susanna, was probably composed between the third and first centuries B.C.E. Lawrence Wills

Daniel and the Priests of Bel

1 When King Astyages was laid to rest with his ancestors, Cyrus the Persian succeeded to his kingdom. ²Daniel was a companion of the king, and was the most honored of all his Friends.

3 Now the Babylonians had an idol called Bel, and every day they provided for it twelve bushels of choice flour and forty sheep and six measures^a of wine. ⁴The king revered it and went every day to worship it. But Daniel worshiped his own God.

So the king said to him, "Why do you not worship Bel?" ⁵He answered, "Because I do not revere idols made with hands, but the living God, who created heaven and earth and has dominion over all living creatures."

6 The king said to him, "Do you not think that Bel is a living god? Do you not see how much he eats and drinks every day?" ⁷And Daniel laughed, and said, "Do not be deceived, O king, for this thing is only clay inside and bronze outside, and it never ate or drank anything."

8 Then the king was angry and called the priests of Bel^b and said to them, "If you do not tell me who is eating these provisions, you shall die. ⁹But if you prove that Bel is eating them, Daniel shall die, because he has spoken blasphemy against Bel." Daniel said to the king, "Let it be done as you have said."

10 Now there were seventy priests of Bel, besides their wives and children. So the king went with Daniel into the temple of Bel. ¹¹The priests of Bel said, "See, we are now going outside; you yourself, O king, set out the food and prepare the wine, and shut the door and seal it with your signet. ¹²When you return in the morning, if you do not find that Bel has eaten it all, we will die; otherwise Daniel will, who is telling lies about us." ¹³They were unconcerned, for beneath the table they had made a hidden entrance, through which they used to go in regularly and consume the provisions. ¹⁴After they had gone out, the king set out the food for Bel. Then Daniel ordered his servants to bring ashes, and they scattered them throughout the whole temple in the presence of the king alone. Then they went out, shut the door and sealed it with the king's signet, and departed. ¹⁵During the night the priests came as usual, with their wives and children, and they ate and drank everything.

16 Early in the morning the king rose and came, and Daniel with him. ¹⁷The king said, "Are the seals unbroken, Daniel?" He answered, "They are unbroken, O king." ¹⁸As soon as the doors were opened, the king looked at the table, and shouted in a loud voice, "You are great, O Bel, and in you there is no deceit at all!"

19 But Daniel laughed and restrained the king from going in. "Look at the

1-22 Daniel uncovers the deceit of the priests of Bel. ¹ King Astyages ruled the Medes from 585 to 550 B.C.E.; according to Herodotus (History 1.130), Cyrus the Persian took the kingdom of Astyages by force. In Dan 5.31; 6.28 Cyrus succeeds the unknown "Darius the Mede." ² Friends here is a designation for those who held favored positions in the court; cf. Gen 26.26; 1 Kings 4.5; Jn 19.12. ³ When Cyrus captured Babylon in 539 B.C.E., the Babylonians, like the Jews, became a subject people whose interests—and deities—would be seen by Jews as competing with theirs. Bel, or Baal, was identified with the main Babylonian deity Marduk (Merodach); cf. Isa 46.1; Jer 50.2. Herodotus (History 1.183) provides a second-hand description of the idol of Bel in Babylon, a "figure of a man" 18 feet tall made of solid gold (cf. v. 7). According to inscriptions, Nebuchadnezzar supplied large quantities of food and drink to the god. ⁴ Cyrus claimed in an inscription to have been ordained by Bel to rule over Babylon. ⁵ Idols made with hands, a negative phrase that came into use in the postexilic period; cf. Jdt 8.18; Mk 14.58; Acts 7.48; Heb 9.11. The living God, who truly exists apart from all representations; cf. Deut 5.26; Jer 10.10; Acts 14.15; 1 Thess 1.9. ⁶ Cyrus ironically applies the lofty idea of a "living god" to a god who gorges on vast quantities of food and wine, like a living being. Irony of various kinds can be found in the Bible (cf. Judg 5.28-30; Tob 5.3-21; Jdt 11.5-6), but what is ironic here (as in v. 24) is that lofty theological ideas are misconstrued as referring to the mundane level (cf. Jn 3.3-4; 4.10-15). ⁷ Clay inside and bronze outside. Cf. Isa 40.18-19. ¹⁸ The king ironically utters the cry in you there is no deceit just after readers are fully informed of the deceit involved (vv. 13, 15). ^{19a} Daniel's boldness with floor," he said, "and notice whose footprints these are." 20The king said, "I see the footprints of men and women and children."

21 Then the king was enraged, and he arrested the priests and their wives and children. They showed him the secret doors through which they used to enter to consume what was on the table. 22Therefore the king put them to death, and gave Bel over to Daniel, who destroyed it and its temple.

Daniel Kills the Dragon

23 Now in that place^c there was a great dragon, which the Babylonians revered. 24The king said to Daniel, "You cannot deny that this is a living god; so worship him." 25Daniel said, "I worship the Lord my God, for he is the living God. 26But give me permission, O king, and I will kill the dragon without sword or club." The king said, "I give you permission."

27 Then Daniel took pitch, fat, and hair, and boiled them together and made cakes, which he fed to the dragon. The dragon ate them, and burst open. Then Daniel said, "See what you have been worshipping!"

28 When the Babylonians heard about it, they were very indignant and conspired against the king, saying, "The king has become a Jew; he has destroyed Bel, and killed the dragon, and slaughtered the priests." 29Going to the king, they said, "Hand Daniel over to us, or else we will kill you and your household." 30The king saw that they were pressing him hard, and under compulsion he handed Daniel over to them.

Daniel in the Lions' Den

31 They threw Daniel into the lions' den, and he was there for six days. 32There were seven lions in the den, and every day they had been given two human bodies and two sheep; but now they were given nothing, so that they would devour Daniel.

33 Now the prophet Habakkuk was in Judea; he had made a stew and had broken bread into a bowl, and was going into the field to take it to the reapers. 34But the angel of the Lord said to Habakkuk, "Take the food that you have to Babylon, to Daniel, in the lions' den." 35Habakkuk said, "Sir, I have never seen Babylon, and I know nothing about the den." 36Then the angel of the Lord took him by the crown of his head and carried him by his hair; with the speed of the wind^d he set him down in Babylon, right over the den.

37 Then Habakkuk shouted, "Daniel, Daniel! Take the food that God has sent you." 38Daniel said, "You have remembered me, O God, and have not forsaken those who love you." 39So Daniel got up and ate. And the angel of God immediately returned Habakkuk to his own place.

Cyrus (cf. v. 14) is paralleled by the king's surprising sympathy for Daniel (vv. 30, 40). 22 A morally balanced punishment for the villains, typical of folk narrative: the priests are put to death (with their families) in accord with their previous agreement (vv. 8-9), and by the same means of execution they had intended for Daniel.

23-30 Daniel cleverly kills the dragon. 23 Great dragon. In early OT passages a serpent is sometimes associated with Mosaic practice, but it was later excluded in Israel (Num 21.6-9; 2 Kings 18.4). A mythological serpent or chaos-monster was said by the Babylonians to be destroyed by Bel/Marduk, and serpents appear elsewhere in ancient Near Eastern mythology (cf. Job 7.12; Ps 74.13-14; Isa 27.1). It is not clear whether it is the worship of a living snake that is being parodied here or the mythological battle of Bel and the chaos-monster reduced to a humorous scale. 24 Once again Cyrus looks for evidence of a living god on a mundane level (cf. v. 6). 27 Pitch, fat, and hair are not magical ingredients, but everyday substances. The absurdity of the story should not detract from its enjoyment; with suspension of disbelief, readers can accept that this clever concoction will swell up in the dragon's stomach and burst it open. The idol parody theme in postexilic literature looked to a naturalistic exposé of idolatry (see Introduction). 30 Cyrus is portrayed very favorably; it is the Babylonians who force the king's hand, so that he acts only under compulsion. Cyrus's actual authority over the Babylonians would have been absolute.

31-42 Daniel is thrown into the lions' den and survives unharmed. 33 The prophet Habak-

40 On the seventh day the king came to mourn for Daniel. When he came to the den he looked in, and there sat Daniel! ⁴¹The king shouted with a loud voice, “You are great, O Lord, the God of Daniel, and there is no other besides you!”

⁴²Then he pulled Daniel^e out, and threw into the den those who had attempted his destruction, and they were instantly eaten before his eyes.

1 MACCABEES

Historical Setting

THE DEFEAT OF THE PERSIAN EMPIRE by Alexander the Great brought a change of political masters to the land of Israel. At Alexander's death in 323 B.C.E. there was much confusion and struggle among his generals, friends, and heirs. But by about 300 B.C.E. the political situation of the Near East became clear. Judea found itself between two powerful dynasties—the Seleucids in the north (Syria) and the Ptolemies to the south (Egypt). From 300 to 200 B.C.E. Judea was controlled by the Ptolemies. After defeating the Ptolemies, Antiochus III brought the Jews of Palestine into the Seleucid Empire in 198 B.C.E. His successor Seleucus IV (187–175 B.C.E.) was replaced by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 B.C.E.).

Contents

The first book of Maccabees tells the story of the revolt begun by the Jewish priest Mattathias and carried on by his five sons and grandson. The family is known both as the Maccabees (from the nickname given to Judas; see 2.4) and as the Hasmoneans (perhaps from Mattathias's grandfather Simeon; see 2.1).

Covering the period from Antiochus IV to 134 B.C.E., 1 Maccabees shows how the God of Israel used this family to remove foreign political and cultural oppression and how the Jewish high-priesthood came to reside in this family. After describing the crisis caused by Antiochus IV and his Jewish supporters (ch. 1) and the resistance begun by Mattathias (ch. 2), it narrates the exploits of Judas Maccabeus (3.1–9.22), his brothers Jonathan (9.23–12.53) and Simon (13.1–15.41), and Simon's son John (16.1–24). The book portrays the Maccabees as God's instruments in bringing about Jewish independence: "the family of those men through whom deliverance was given to Israel" (5.62).

Relation to Other Works

The text of 1 Maccabees is in Greek and is part of the Septuagint. It is generally assumed that the work was composed in Hebrew (now lost) and translated into a “biblical” or “Semitic” Greek. In its style and language it is similar to the Greek versions of the early historical books (1–2 Samuel, 1–2 Kings).

The book ends with the accession of Simon’s son John Hyrcanus to the high-priesthood in 134 B.C.E. Its Hebrew original was probably composed during the reign of John Hyrcanus (134–104 B.C.E.) or in the early first century B.C.E. The author, who is unknown, was surely a supporter of the Maccabean dynasty. The book undoubtedly served as “propaganda” for the Maccabean dynasty (whose legitimacy was suspect in some Jewish circles).

1 Maccabees incorporates the texts of some “official” documents (8.23–32; 10.18–20; 10.25–45; 11.30–37; 11.57; 12.5–23; 13.36–40). The authenticity of these documents has long been debated, though current scholarship supports them at least in their basic content. Some of the battle reports (3.27–4.24; 6.18–63; 9.1–22) may depend on the eyewitness accounts of a participant, though in many such passages the numbers are inflated. A common source may underlie the accounts about Judas in 1 Macc 1–7 and 2 Macc 3–15. The poems, speeches, and prayers throughout the book are best interpreted as free compositions by the author (in accordance with the practices of ancient historians).

The contest between two of the kingdoms that divided Alexander the Great's legacy dominated Syro-Palestine in the third and early second centuries B.C.E. Ascendancy of the Seleucids set the stage for the struggle recounted in 1 and 2 Maccabees.

The three generations of the Maccabee family constitute the focus of 1 Maccabees. The author of Daniel, writing shortly before the death of Antiochus IV Epiphanes, looked for imminent divine intervention to defeat Israel's enemies and to establish God's kingdom. 2 Maccabees stresses Judas's role as the savior of the Jerusalem temple. 1 Maccabees, however, presents the Maccabean dynasty as bringing about Israel's salvation and emphasizes its leaders' military and political exploits as well as their religious stance. Those in the community responsible for the Dead Sea Scrolls (found at Qumran) may well have been early supporters of the Maccabean movement but fell away when the Maccabees took control of the high-priesthood and the temple worship.

In its literary style and evocations of biblical precedents, 1 Maccabees shows how the words and deeds of the Maccabean dynasty stand in line with those of earlier biblical heroes. It presents the Maccabees as examples of this-worldly activism and as champions of religious freedom and national independence. It allows readers to follow the course of a revolutionary movement over the period

Alexander the Great

1 After Alexander son of Philip, the Macedonian, who came from the land of Kittim, had defeated^a King Darius of the Persians and the Medes, he succeeded him as king. (He had previously become king of Greece.) ²He fought many battles, conquered strongholds, and put to death the kings of the earth. ³He advanced to the ends of the earth, and plundered many nations. When the earth became quiet before him, he was exalted, and his heart was lifted up. ⁴He gathered a very strong army and ruled over countries, nations, and princes, and they became tributary to him.

⁵ After this he fell sick and perceived that he was dying. ⁶So he summoned his most honored officers, who had been brought up with him from youth, and divided his kingdom among them while he was still alive. ⁷And after Alexander had reigned twelve years, he died.

⁸ Then his officers began to rule, each in his own place. ⁹They all put on crowns after his death, and so did their descendants after them for many years; and they caused many evils on the earth.

Antiochus Epiphanes and Renegade Jews

¹⁰ From them came forth a sinful root, Antiochus Epiphanes, son of King Antiochus; he had been a hostage in Rome. He began to reign in the one hundred thirty-seventh year of the kingdom of the Greeks.^b

¹¹ In those days certain renegades came out from Israel and misled many, saying, "Let us go and make a covenant with the Gentiles around us, for since we separated from them many disasters have come upon us." ¹²This proposal pleased them, ¹³and some of the people eagerly went to the king, who authorized them to observe the ordinances of the Gentiles.

1.1–9 A summary of events from 336 to 175 B.C.E. sets the scene for the appearance of Antiochus IV Epiphanes in 1.10. 1.1 Alexander the Great replaced his father, Philip II, on the latter's assassination (336 B.C.E.), set out from Macedonia (here called the land of Kittim, originally a name for Cyprus in Gen 10.4; 1 Chr 1.7), and defeated the armies of Darius III Codomannus between 334 and 331 B.C.E. 1.3 For the rise of Alexander, see Dan 2.33, 40; 7.23; 8.5–8, 21; 11.3. The descriptions of him (exalted . . . lifted up) suggest an arrogance anticipating Antiochus IV Epiphanes. 1.6 The division of Alexander's empire was not really settled until 305 B.C.E. The idealized scene of his handing on power reflects the propaganda of the successors. 1.7 After ruling for somewhat more than twelve years (336–323 B.C.E.), Alexander died in Babylon in June 323 at the age of thirty-two or thirty-three. 1.9 The Ptolemies (Egypt) controlled Judea until 198 B.C.E. when the Seleucids (Syria) under Antiochus III took over.

The whole period is dismissed as a time of many evils (cf. 2 Macc 3.23).

1.10–15 The accession of Antiochus IV led certain Jews to approach him with a proposal making them less distinctive and more integrated into the Seleucid Empire (see 1 Macc 1.41–64). For a much more detailed account, see 2 Macc 4.7–50. 1.10 The Seleucid king Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 B.C.E.), taken to Rome under the treaty of Apamea (188 B.C.E.) as a penalty on his father, Antiochus III, replaced his brother Seleucus IV (187–175). The name Epiphanes ("illustrious, [god] manifest") was parodied as Epimanes ("madman"). The kingdom of the Greeks is counted from the establishment of the Seleucid reign in Babylon (312/311 B.C.E.). 1.11 According to 2 Macc 4.7–17 the chief of the Jewish renegades was Jason, brother of the high priest Onias III and later high priest himself from 175 to 172 B.C.E. 1.14 The gymnasium was a place not only for physical exercise but also for literary ¹⁴So they built a gymnasium in Jerusalem, according to Gentile custom, ¹⁵and removed the marks of circumcision, and abandoned the holy covenant. They joined with the Gentiles and sold themselves to do evil.

Antiochus in Egypt

16 When Antiochus saw that his kingdom was established, he determined to become king of the land of Egypt, in order that he might reign over both kingdoms. ¹⁷So he invaded Egypt with a strong force, with chariots and elephants and cavalry and with a large fleet. ¹⁸He engaged King Ptolemy of Egypt in battle, and Ptolemy turned and fled before him, and many were wounded and fell. ¹⁹They captured the fortified cities in the land of Egypt, and he plundered the land of Egypt.

Persecution of the Jews

20 After subduing Egypt, Antiochus returned in the one hundred forty-third year.^c He went up against Israel and came to Jerusalem with a strong force. ²¹He arrogantly entered the sanctuary and took the golden altar, the lampstand for the light, and all its utensils. ²²He took also the table for the bread of the Presence, the cups for drink offerings, the bowls, the golden censers, the curtain, the crowns, and the gold decoration on the front of the temple; he stripped it all off. ²³He took the silver and the gold, and the costly vessels; he took also the hidden treasures that he found. ²⁴Taking them all, he went into his own land.

He shed much blood, and philosophical education, thus an institution of Greek culture. 1.15 The surgical correction of the marks of circumcision (epispasm) may relate to the Greek practice of nudity in physical exercise and sports. Instead of the holy covenant (Torah) the renegades sought a constitution appropriate to a Greek city-state.

1.16–19 Antiochus's military action in Egypt in 169 B.C.E. leads to his robbery of the Jerusalem temple. See 2 Macc 5.1–21. 1.16 In response to a Ptolemaic threat in 170 B.C.E. Antiochus invaded Egypt and achieved great success (see Dan 11.25–27), though he failed to capture Alexandria. 1.18 Ptolemy VI Philometor, the nephew of Antiochus, remained ruler in Egypt from 180 to 145 B.C.E.

1.20–28 Like other ancient temples, the Jerusalem temple held sacred vessels and served as a bank (see 2 Macc 3.10–11). To pay his mercenaries and probably to exact what had been promised by the high priest Menelaus (2 Macc 5.15), Antiochus followed the example of Antiochus III (who died robbing a temple) and Seleucus IV (2 Macc 3). 1.21 For the furnishings and sacred vessels of the sanctuary, see 1 Kings 6.23–36; Ex 39.32–40.11. Whereas 2 Macc 5.11–21 places the robbery after Antiochus's second Egyptian campaign, Dan 11.28 agrees with 1 Maccabees in

The Occupation of Jerusalem

29 Two years later the king sent to the cities of Judah a chief collector of tribute, and he came to Jerusalem with a large force. ³⁰Deceitfully he spoke peaceable words to them, and they believed him; but he suddenly fell upon the city, dealt it a severe blow, and destroyed many people of Israel. ³¹He plundered the city, burned it with fire, and tore down its houses and its surrounding walls. ³²They took captive the women and children, and seized the livestock. ³³Then they fortified the city of David with a great strong wall and strong towers, and it became their citadel. ³⁴They stationed there a sinful people, men who were renegades. Installation of Gentile Cults

41 Then the king wrote to his whole kingdom that all should be one people, ⁴²and that all should give up their particular customs. ⁴³All the Gentiles accepted the command of the king. Many even from Israel gladly adopted his religion; they sacrificed to idols and profaned the sabbath. ⁴⁴And the king sent letters by messengers to Jerusalem and the towns of Judah; he directed them to follow customs strange to the land, ⁴⁵to forbid burnt offerings and sacrifices and drink offerings in the sanctuary, to profane sabbaths and festivals, ⁴⁶to defile the sanctu-placing it after the first Egyptian campaign. 1.25–28 For other laments over Jerusalem, see 1 Macc 1.36–40; 2.7–13; 3.45.

1.29–40 The second Syrian attack against Jerusalem (in 167 B.C.E.) resulted in the establishment of a Syrian garrison (Akra) there. See 2 Macc 5.22–26. 1.29 In 2 Macc 5.24 he is named Apollonius, the “captain of the Mysians” (mercenaries from northwest Asia Minor). The Greek translator read Hebrew sar hammusim (“chief of the Mysians”) as sar hammissim (chief collector of tribute). 1.33 The citadel (Akra) served as the garrison for foreign troops and renegade Jews. Though its precise location is debated, it overlooked the temple area, probably to the northwest. It fell to Simon in 141 B.C.E. (1 Macc 13.49–50).

1.41–64 The religious and cultural program sponsored by Antiochus IV and his Jewish supporters threatened the distinctiveness of the Jewish people. See 2 Macc 6.1–11. 1.41 No non-Jewish evidence supports the claim that Antiochus IV imposed this policy on his whole kingdom; it seems to have been confined to Jerusalem and Judah (1.44). 1.43 His religion was the cult of Ba'al Shamen (“Lord of the Heavens”). It was probably understood by him as equivalent to the Jewish worship of their God (the Most High God), but it was not viewed as such by some in Israel. 1.44 His introduction of customs strange to the land included prohibition of temple worship, observance of sabbaths and holy days, circumcision, and Torah observance—precisely those features that made Jews distinctive. His program won ary and the priests, ⁴⁷to build altars and sacred precincts and shrines for idols, to sacrifice swine and other unclean animals, ⁴⁸and to leave their sons uncircumcised. They were to make themselves abominable by everything unclean and profane, ⁴⁹so that they would forget the law and change all the ordinances. ⁵⁰He added,^e "And whoever does not obey the command of the king shall die."

⁵¹ In such words he wrote to his whole kingdom. He appointed inspectors over all the people and commanded the towns of Judah to offer sacrifice, town by town. ⁵²Many of the people, everyone who forsook the law, joined them, and they did evil in the land; ⁵³they drove Israel into hiding in every place of refuge they had.

⁵⁴ Now on the fifteenth day of Chisleu, in the one hundred forty-fifth year,^f they erected a desolating sacrilege on the altar of burnt offering. They also built altars in the surrounding towns of Judah, ⁵⁵and offered incense at the doors of the houses and in the streets. ⁵⁶The books of the law that they found they tore to pieces and burned with fire. ⁵⁷Anyone found possessing the book of the covenant, or anyone who adhered to the law, was condemned to death by decree of the king. ⁵⁸They kept using violence against Israel, against those who were found month after month in the towns. ⁵⁹On the twenty-fifth day of the month they offered sacrifice on the altar that was on top of the altar of burnt offering. ⁶⁰According to the decree, they put to death the women who had their children circumcised, ⁶¹and their families and those who circumcised them; and they hung the infants from their mothers' necks.

⁶² But many in Israel stood firm and were resolved in their hearts not to eat unclean food. ⁶³They chose to die rather than to be defiled by food or to profane the holy covenant; and they did die. ⁶⁴Very great wrath came upon Israel.

Mattathias and His Sons

2 In those days Mattathias son of John son of Simeon, a priest of the family of Joarib, moved from Jerusalem and settled in Modein. ²He had five sons, John surnamed Gaddi, ³Simon called Thassi, ⁴Judas called Maccabeus, ⁵Eleazar called Avaran, and Jonathan called Apphus. ⁶He saw the blasphemies being committed in Judah and Jerusalem, ⁷and said, some Jewish support (1.43, 52). 1.53 Only those who resisted deserved the name Israel according to the author of 1 Maccabees. For the fate of some Jews in hiding, see 1 Macc 2.29–38; 2 Macc 6.11. 1.54 The fifteenth day of Chisleu would be around the middle of December. The desolating sacrilege from Dan 11.31 (Hebrew shiggultz meshomem, lit. "abomination that makes desolate") reflects a pun on the name "Lord of Heaven" (Ba'al Shamen; see note on 1.43); see Mt 24.15; Mk 13.14. 1.56 The books of the law (Torah) were no longer to serve as the constitution for Israel (see 1 Macc 1.15). 1.59 The twenty-fifth day of the month (December 167 B.C.E.) coincided with the monthly celebration of Antiochus IV's birthday (see

2 Macc 6.7). 1.63 For those who chose to die, see 1 Macc 2.29–38; 2 Macc 6.18–7.42.

2.1–14 The main characters in the book are introduced: Mattathias (ch. 2), Judas (chs. 3–8), Jonathan (chs. 9–12), and Simon (chs. 13–16). 2.1 From the priestly family of Joarib (1 Chr 9.10; 24.7), Mattathias lived in Modein (seven miles east of Lydda, seventeen miles northwest of Jerusalem); he may have been there either for a short time (because of recent events in Jerusalem) or for a long time before 167 B.C.E. (see 2.70; 9.19). 2.2–5 The surnames of the five sons remain mysterious, though Maccabeus most likely means "Hammerer." 2.7–13 The language of the lament echoes certain Psalms (44, 74, 79) and their clothes, put on sackcloth, and mourned greatly.

Pagan Worship Refused

15 The king's officers who were enforcing the apostasy came to the town of Modein to make them offer sacrifice. 16 Many from Israel came to them; and Mattathias and his sons were assembled. 17 Then the king's officers spoke to Mattathias as follows: "You are a leader, honored and great in this town, and supported by sons and brothers. 18 Now be the first to come and do what the king commands, as all the Gentiles and the people of Judah and those that are left in Jerusalem have done. Then you and your sons will be numbered among the Friends of the king, and you and your sons will be honored with silver and gold and many gifts."

19 But Mattathias answered and said in a loud voice: "Even if all the nations that live under the rule of the king obey him, and have chosen to obey his commandments, everyone of them abandoning the religion of their ancestors, 20 I and my sons and my brothers will continue to live by the covenant of our ancestors. 21 Far be it from us to desert the law and the ordinances. 22 We will not obey the king's words by turning aside from our

23 When he had finished speaking these words, a Jew came forward in the sight of all to offer sacrifice on the altar in Modein, according to the king's command. 24 When Mattathias saw it, he burned with zeal and his heart was stirred. He gave vent to righteous anger; he ran and killed him on the altar. 25 At the same time he killed the king's officer who was forcing them to sacrifice, and he tore down the altar. 26 Thus he burned with zeal for the law, just as Phinehas did against Zimri son of Salu.

27 Then Mattathias cried out in the town with a loud voice, saying: "Let every one who is zealous for the law and supports the covenant come out with me!" 28 Then he and his sons fled to the hills and left all that they had in the town.

29 At that time many who were seeking righteousness and justice went down to the wilderness to live there, 30 they, their sons, their wives, and their livestock, because troubles pressed heavily upon them. 31 And it was reported to the king's officers, and to the troops in Jerusalem the city of David, that those who had rejected the king's command had gone down to the hiding places in the wilderness. 32 Many pursued them, and overtook them; they encamped opposite them and prepared for battle against them on the sabbath day. 33 They said to them, "Enough of this! Come out and do what the king commands, and you will live." 34 But they said, "We will not come out, nor will we do what the king commands and so profane the sabbath day." 35 Then the enemy quickly attacked them. 36 But they did not answer them or hurl a stone

Lamentations. 2.14 For the signs of mourning, see Gen 37.29, 34.

2.15–41 The revolt begins with Mattathias's refusal to participate in what he perceived as pagan worship. His zealous, military resistance is contrasted with the fate of a group that refused to fight back on the sabbath. 2.18 The rank of Friends of the king carried the privileges of members of the royal court (see 1 Macc 10.65; 11.27). 2.26 In Num 25.6–15, Phinehas, the grandson of Aaron, showed his zeal by killing an Israelite man and a Midianite woman involved in the cult of Baal of Peor, thus stopping a plague. Celebrated for his zeal for God's covenant and worship (Ps 106.28–31; Sir 45.23–24), Phinehas provided a model for Mattathias (1 Macc 2.54). 2.28 The hills were most likely in the district of Gophna, northeast of Modein and bordering on Samaria. But 2 Macc 5.27 (which says nothing of the Modein incident) suggests the Judean desert. 2.29 The group is described in terms (seeking righteousness and justice) used somewhat later about the Qumran community. The Judean wilderness was a traditional place of refuge (see 1 Sam 23.14). 2.34 The group died because they refused to obey the king's decree to profane the sabbath day. They may have refused to fight defensive wars as part of their strict code of piety, thus inviting at them or block up their hiding places, ³⁷for they said, "Let us all die in our innocence; heaven and earth testify for us that you are killing us unjustly." ³⁸So they attacked them on the sabbath, and they died, with their wives and children and livestock, to the number of a thousand persons.

³⁹ When Mattathias and his friends learned of it, they mourned for them deeply. ⁴⁰And all said to their neighbors: "If we all do as our kindred have done and refuse to fight with the Gentiles for our lives and for our ordinances, they will quickly destroy us from the earth." ⁴¹So they made this decision that day: "Let us fight against anyone who comes to attack us on the sabbath day; let us not all die as our kindred died in their hiding places."

Counter-Attack

⁴² Then there united with them a company of Hasideans, mighty warriors of Israel, all who offered themselves willingly for the law. ⁴³And all who became fugitives to escape their troubles joined them and reinforced them. ⁴⁴They organized an army, and struck down sinners in their anger and renegades in their wrath; the survivors fled to the Gentiles for safety. ⁴⁵And Mattathias and his friends went around and tore down the altars; ⁴⁶they forcibly circumcised all the uncircumcised boys that they found within the borders of Israel. ⁴⁷They hunted down the arrogant, and the work prospered in their hands. ⁴⁸They rescued the law out of the hands of the Gentiles and kings, and they never let the sinner gain the upper hand.

The Last Words of Mattathias

⁴⁹ Now the days drew near for Mattathias to die, and he said to his sons: "Arrogance and scorn have now become strong; it is a time of ruin and furious anger. ⁵⁰Now, my children, show zeal for the law, and give your lives for the covenant of our ancestors.

⁵¹ "Remember the deeds of the ancestors, which they did in their generations; and you will receive great honor and an everlasting name. ⁵²Was not Abraham found faithful when tested, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness? ⁵³Joseph in the time of his distress kept the commandment, and became lord of Egypt. ⁵⁴Phinehas our ancestor, because he was deeply zealous, received the covenant of everlasting priesthood. ⁵⁵Joshua, because he fulfilled the command, became a judge in Israel. ⁵⁶Caleb, because he testified in the assembly, received an inheritance in the land. ⁵⁷David, because he was merciful, inherited the throne of the kingdom forever. ⁵⁸Elijah, because of great zeal for the law, was taken up into heaven. ⁵⁹Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael believed and were saved from the flame. ⁶⁰Daniel, because of his innocence, was delivered from the mouth of the lions.

⁶¹ "And so observe, from generation to generation, that none of those who put their trust in him will lack strength. ⁶²Do not fear the words of sinners, for their splendor will turn into dung and worms. ⁶³Today they will be exalted, but tomorrow they will not be found, because they will have returned to the dust, and their plans will have perished. ⁶⁴My children, martyrdom in this case. See 2 Macc 6.11. 2.41 The decision to engage in defensive warfare on the sabbath was not necessarily a complete innovation in Israel: the problem surely had arisen previously.

2.42–48 The rebellion begun by Mattathias and his sons attracted Jewish support, especially that of the Hasideans. 2.42 Unlike the group described in 2.29–38, the Hasideans ("pious, loyal ones") joined the military action with the Maccabees. See 1 Macc 7.12–13, which suggests a scribal aspect to their movement and a rift with the Maccabees. In 2 Macc 14.6 Judas appears as the leader of the Hasideans. 2.48 Seeking to rescue the law, the rebels attacked not only Gentiles but also Jews (sinners and renegades, 2.44). Their goal was to do away with the program described in 1.41–50 and to reestablish their traditional Judaism.

2.49–70 As he faces death in 166 B.C.E. (2.70) Mattathias gives a farewell speech as did Jacob (Gen 49), Moses (Deut 33), and Samuel (1 Sam 12). He appeals to biblical characters who underwent testing and were rewarded by God: Abraham (Gen 22), Joseph (Gen 39–45), Phinehas (Num 25), Joshua (Josh 1), Caleb (Num 13), David (2 Sam 7), Elijah (1 Kings 18; 2 Kings 2), and Daniel and his three companions (Dan 1–6). Their rewards—priesthood, rulership, deliverance from danger, land—foreshadow the gains to be made by Judas, Jonathan, and Simon. 2.62 For dung and worms as the sinner's fate, see the description of Antiochus IV's death in 2 Macc be courageous and grow strong in the law, for by it you will gain honor.

65 "Here is your brother Simeon who, I know, is wise in counsel; always listen to him; he shall be your father. 66 Judas Maccabeus has been a mighty warrior from his youth; he shall command the army for you and fight the battle against the peoples.^j 67 You shall rally around you all who observe the law, and avenge the wrong done to your people. 68 Pay back the Gentiles in full, and obey the commands of the law."

69 Then he blessed them, and was gathered to his ancestors. 70 He died in the one hundred forty-sixth year^k and was buried in the tomb of his ancestors at Modein. And all Israel mourned for him with great lamentation.

The Early Victories of Judas

3 Then his son Judas, who was called Maccabeus, took command in his place. 2 All his brothers and all who had joined his father helped him; they gladly fought for Israel.

3 He extended the glory of his people.

Like a giant he put on his breastplate;
he bound on his armor of war
and waged battles,
protecting the camp by his sword.

4 He was like a lion in his deeds,
like a lion's cub roaring for prey.

5 He searched out and pursued
those who broke the law;
he burned those who troubled
his people.

6 Lawbreakers shrank back for fear
of him;

all the evildoers were
confounded;
and deliverance prospered by
his hand.

7 He embittered many kings,
but he made Jacob glad by his deeds,
and his memory is blessed
forever.

8 He went through the cities of Judah;
he destroyed the ungodly out of the land;^l
thus he turned away wrath
from Israel.

9 He was renowned to the ends of
the earth;
he gathered in those who were
perishing.

10 Apollonius now gathered together Gentiles and a large force from Samaria to fight against Israel. 11 When Judas learned of it, he went out to meet him, and he defeated and killed him. Many were wounded and fell, and the rest fled. 12 Then they seized their spoils; and Judas took the sword of Apollonius, and used it in battle the rest of his life.

13 When Seron, the commander of the Syrian army, heard that Judas had gathered a large company, including a body of faithful soldiers who stayed with him and went out to battle, 14 he said, "I will make a name for myself and win honor in the kingdom. I will make war on Judas and his companions, who scorn the king's command." 15 Once again a strong army of godless men went up with him to help him, to take vengeance on the Israelites.

9.5–10, 28. 2.65 This is the only place where the text calls Simon Simeon. Though the older son (see 2.3), Simon exercised leadership only after Judas and Jonathan died.

3.1–26 A poem (3.3–9) summarizing the exploits of Judas celebrates him as the legitimate leader of Israel (3.2) and the enemy of both renegade Jews and foreign kings. His first battles end in dramatic victories over Apollonius (3.10–12) and Seron (3.13–26). 3.7 The many kings include Antiochus IV and Antiochus V as well as Demetrius I. 3.9 The ends of the earth extend at least to Rome (see 1 Macc 8). 3.10 Apollonius was the military commander and governor of Samaria. Whether his force included Samaritan Jews is uncertain. 3.12 Judas used the sword of Apollonius just as David used the sword of Goliath (1 Sam 17.51; 21.8–9). 3.13 To call Seron the commander of the Syrian army probably exaggerates his rank and importance. 3.15 The godless men included renegade Jews. Judas and his army constitute the Israelites, according to the author. 3.16 The ascent of Beth-horon was on the main road from the west to Jerusalem. About twelve miles northwest of Jerusalem travelers went through a narrow pass between Lower and Upper with a small company. ¹⁷But when they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas, "How can we, few as we are, fight against so great and so strong a multitude? And we are faint, for we have eaten nothing today." ¹⁸Judas replied, "It is easy for many to be hemmed in by few, for in the sight of Heaven there is no difference between saving by many or by few. ¹⁹It is not on the size of the army that victory in battle depends, but strength comes from Heaven. ²⁰They come against us in great insolence and lawlessness to destroy us and our wives and our children, and to despoil us; ²¹but we fight for our lives and our laws. ²²He himself will crush them before us; as for you, do not be afraid of them."

²³ When he finished speaking, he rushed suddenly against Seron and his army, and they were crushed before him. ²⁴They pursued them^m down the descent of Beth-horon to the plain; eight hundred of them fell, and the rest fled into the land of the Philistines. ²⁵Then Judas and his brothers began to be feared, and terror fell on the Gentiles all around them. ²⁶His fame reached the king, and the Gentiles talked of the battles of Judas.

The Policy of Antiochus

²⁷ When King Antiochus heard these reports, he was greatly angered; and he sent and gathered all the forces of his kingdom, a very strong army. ²⁸He opened his coffers and gave a year's pay to his forces, and ordered them to be ready for any need. ²⁹Then he saw that the money in the treasury was exhausted, and that the revenues from the country were small because of the dissension and disaster that he had caused in the land by abolishing the laws that had existed from the earliest days. ³⁰He feared that he might not have such funds as he had before for his expenses and for the gifts that he used to give more lavishly than preceding kings. ³¹He was greatly perplexed in mind; then he determined to go to Persia and collect the revenues from those regions and raise a large fund.

³² He left Lysias, a distinguished man of royal lineage, in charge of the king's affairs from the river Euphrates to the borders of Egypt. ³³Lysias was also to take care of his son Antiochus until he returned. ³⁴And he turned over to Lysiasⁿ half of his forces and the elephants, and gave him orders about all that he wanted done. As for the residents of Judea and Jerusalem, ³⁵Lysias was to send a force against them to wipe out and destroy the strength of Israel and the remnant of Jerusalem; he was to banish the memory of them from the place, ³⁶settle aliens in all their territory, and distribute their land by lot. ³⁷Then the king took the remaining half of his forces and left Antioch his capital in the one hundred and forty-seventh year.^o He crossed the Euphrates river and went through the upper provinces.

Beth-horon, which made the ambush by Judas and his army relatively easy. 3.18–19 A portion of Judas's speech before battle echoes that of Jonathan in 1 Sam 14.6. Instead of the names "Lord" or "God," 1 Maccabees uses Heaven or personal pronouns (see 3.22). 3.24 The estimate of eight hundred slain is modest compared with the figures for other battles. The land of the Philistines refers to the hellenized cities in the southern coastal plain.

3.27–37 The importance of the Jewish rebellion is deliberately exaggerated to give the impression that it was determining all the policies of Antiochus IV. In fact he had to deal with other rebellions and incursions in the eastern part of his empire. 3.28 The year's pay refers not only to the subsistence allowance but also to the wages paid to mercenaries and regular troops. This unusual arrangement emphasizes the importance of the situation. 3.30 The Roman historian Polybius and other ancient sources confirm that Antiochus IV was lavish in giving gifts. 3.31 Persia refers to the entire territory of historical Persia, not simply the eastern province of Persis. Antiochus IV died while plundering a temple in Elam, according to Roman historians Polybius (The Histories 31.9) and Appian (Roman History 11.66). 3.32 Prominent in the later battles at Beth-zur and Beth-zachariah (4.26–35; 6.28–63), Lysias held the highest title of Seleucid nobility ("kinsman of the king"). He became overseer in the western part of Antiochus IV's empire and the guardian of Antiochus V (then about seven or eight years old). 3.34 The Greek text gives the impression that all the elephants remained with Lysias (see 3.37). 3.37 Antioch on the Orontes in Syria had been built by Seleucus I in 300 B.C.E. and served as the western capital.

Preparations for Battle

38 Lysias chose Ptolemy son of Dorymenes, and Nicanor and Gorgias, able men among the Friends of the king, ³⁹and sent with them forty thousand infantry and seven thousand cavalry to go into the land of Judah and destroy it, as the king had commanded. ⁴⁰So they set out with their entire force, and when they arrived they encamped near Emmaus in the plain. ⁴¹When the traders of the region heard what was said to them, they took silver and gold in immense amounts, and fetters,^p and went to the camp to get the Israelites for slaves. And forces from Syria and the land of the Philistines joined with them.

42 Now Judas and his brothers saw that misfortunes had increased and that the forces were encamped in their territory. They also learned what the king had commanded to do to the people to cause their final destruction. ⁴³But they said to one another, "Let us restore the ruins of our people, and fight for our people and the sanctuary." ⁴⁴So the congregation assembled to be ready for battle, and to pray and ask for mercy and compassion.

⁴⁵ Jerusalem was uninhabited like a wilderness;
not one of her children went in or out.

The sanctuary was trampled
down,
and aliens held the citadel;
it was a lodging place for the Gentiles.

Joy was taken from Jacob;

the flute and the harp ceased to play.

46 Then they gathered together and went to Mizpah, opposite Jerusalem, because Israel formerly had a place of prayer in Mizpah. ⁴⁷They fasted that day, put on sackcloth and sprinkled ashes on their heads, and tore their clothes. ⁴⁸And they opened the book of the law to inquire into those matters about which the Gentiles consulted the likenesses of their gods. ⁴⁹They also brought the vestments of the priesthood and the first fruits and the tithes, and they stirred up the nazirites^q who had completed their days; ⁵⁰and they cried aloud to Heaven, saying,

"What shall we do with these?"

Where shall we take them?

⁵¹ Your sanctuary is trampled down
and profaned,
and your priests mourn in humiliation.

⁵² Here the Gentiles are assembled against us to destroy us;
you know what they plot
against us.

⁵³ How will we be able to withstand
them,
if you do not help us?"

⁵⁴ Then they sounded the trumpets and gave a loud shout. ⁵⁵After this Judas appointed leaders of the people, in charge of thousands and hundreds and fifties and tens. ⁵⁶Those who were building houses, or were about to be married, or were planting a vineyard, or were faint-hearted, he told to go home again, ac-

3.38–60 The rallying point for the Jews is the defiled sanctuary in Jerusalem. Judas takes care to evoke biblical precedents and to observe biblical regulations for battle. See 2 Macc 8.9–23. 3.38 According to 2 Macc 8.8–9 Gorgias was a deputy to Nicanor, and Ptolemy was superior to Nicanor and ordered him and Gorgias into battle. 3.39 According to 2 Macc 8.9 there were at least twenty thousand, not forty thousand. Both figures are most likely exaggerated, perhaps on the basis of 1 Chr 18.4; 19.18. 3.40 The Seleucid army camped in the plain near Emmaus, about twenty miles west-northwest of Jerusalem. Their encampment attracted the slave traders (3.41), who expected an easy Seleucid victory. 3.45 Jerusalem was uninhabited in the sense that no true Israelite was there, true Israelites now being equated with Judas and his army. 3.46 Mizpah, eight miles north of Jerusalem, was a place of assembly and prayer before battle in Judg 20.1; 1 Sam 7.5–9; 10.17. For fasting there, see 1 Sam 7.6. 3.48 The Jews consulted the book of the law for guidance in battle. A variant reading of the Greek of the second part of the verse might suggest that the scroll had been defiled by the painting of pagan pictures on it. 3.49 According to Num 6.1–21 nazirites took vows of (temporary) consecration to God. The completion of their period of special consecration was marked by rites at the temple (which were impossible because the temple was in the wrong hands). 3.55 For another division of the army, see 2 Macc 8.22–23. 3.56 The list of those exempted from battle follows Deut 20.5–8. Judas appears throughout as the ideal cording to the law. ⁵⁷Then the army marched out and encamped to the south of Emmaus.

⁵⁸ And Judas said, "Arm yourselves and be courageous. Be ready early in the morning to fight with these Gentiles who have assembled against us to destroy us and our sanctuary. ⁵⁹It is better for us to die in battle than to see the misfortunes of our nation and of the sanctuary. ⁶⁰But as his will in heaven may be, so shall he do."

The Battle at Emmaus

4 Now Gorgias took five thousand infantry and one thousand picked cavalry, and this division moved out by night ²to fall upon the camp of the Jews and attack them suddenly. Men from the citadel were his guides. ³But Judas heard of it, and he and his warriors moved out to attack the king's force in Emmaus ⁴while the division was still absent from the camp. ⁵When Gorgias entered the camp of Judas by night, he found no one there, so he looked for them in the hills, because he said, "These men are running away from us."

⁶ At daybreak Judas appeared in the plain with three thousand men, but they did not have armor and swords such as they desired. ⁷And they saw the camp of the Gentiles, strong and fortified, with cavalry all around it; and these men were trained in war. ⁸But Judas said to those who were with him, "Do not fear their numbers or be afraid when they charge. ⁹Remember how our ancestors were saved at the Red Sea, when Pharaoh with his forces pursued them. ¹⁰And now, let us cry to Heaven, to see whether he will favor us and remember his covenant with our ancestors and crush this army before us today. ¹¹Then all the Gentiles will know that there is one who redeems and saves Israel."

¹² When the foreigners looked up and saw them coming against them, ¹³they went out from their camp to battle. Then the men with Judas blew their trumpets ¹⁴and engaged in battle. The Gentiles were crushed, and fled into the plain, ¹⁵and all those in the rear fell by the sword. They pursued them to Gazara, and to the plains of Idumea, and to Azotus and Jamnia; and three thousand of them fell. ¹⁶Then Judas and his force turned back from pursuing them, ¹⁷and he said to the people, "Do not be greedy for plunder, for there is a battle before us; ¹⁸Gorgias and his force are near us in the hills. But stand now against our enemies and fight them, and afterward seize the plunder boldly."

¹⁹ Just as Judas was finishing this speech, a detachment appeared, coming out of the hills. ²⁰They saw that their army^r had been put to flight, and that the Jews^r were burning the camp, for the smoke that was seen showed what had happened. ²¹When they perceived this, they were greatly frightened, and when they also saw the army of Judas drawn up in the plain for battle, ²²they all fled into the land of the Philistines. ²³Then Judas returned to plunder the camp, and they biblical warrior. 3.57 Emmaus was a less appropriate site than Mizpah for Judas's pre-battle speech (see Deut 20.3–4).

4.1–25 Judas by his strategy divides the great army of Gorgias and defeats the main camp as well as Gorgias's expeditionary force. Throughout Judas acts as the perfect biblical warrior. See 2 Macc 8.24–30. 4.1 Five thousand . . . one thousand. As in 3.39, there seems to be exaggeration in the numbers of troops able to carry out such a journey by night. 4.2 The guides from the citadel in Jerusalem most likely included Jews familiar with the terrain. 4.5 Gorgias looked for Judas in the hills, presumably because it never occurred to him that Judas would attack the main camp in Emmaus. 4.8 Following the instruction in Deut 20.3–4, Judas as the commander exhorts his troops to disregard the disparity in numbers

(see 3.39; 4.1, 6). See the precedent of Gideon (Judg 7) who triumphed with only three hundred men. 4.9 For Moses' victory at the Red Sea, see Ex 14. 4.10 The covenant involved God's promise of the land and descendants (Gen 17) as well as the opportunity to serve God according to the Torah (Ex 19)—precisely matters at stake in the rebellion (see 1 Macc 1.11). 4.15 Gazara (Gezer) was the closest Seleucid fort in the district (see 7.45; 13.43–48). Azotus was biblical Ashdod. The three thousand slain enemy soldiers matches the number of Judas's army (see 4.6). 4.18 Judas's military strategy splits Gorgias (4.1) and a portion of his men off from his main force. 4.20 Burning the camp before seizing its plunder indicated that the battle was over and suggested that Judas had a very large army, thus demoralizing Gorgias and his troops. 4.23 The gold and seized a great amount of gold and silver, and cloth dyed blue and sea purple, and great riches. ²⁴On their return they sang hymns and praises to Heaven—"For he is good, for his mercy endures forever." ²⁵Thus Israel had a great deliverance that day.

First Campaign of Lysias

²⁶ Those of the foreigners who escaped went and reported to Lysias all that had happened. ²⁷When he heard it, he was perplexed and discouraged, for things had not happened to Israel as he had intended, nor had they turned out as the king had ordered. ²⁸But the next year he mustered sixty thousand picked infantry and five thousand cavalry to subdue them. ²⁹They came into Idumea and encamped at Beth-zur, and Judas met them with ten thousand men.

³⁰ When he saw that their army was strong, he prayed, saying, "Blessed are you, O Savior of Israel, who crushed the attack of the mighty warrior by the hand of your servant David, and gave the camp of the Philistines into the hands of Jonathan son of Saul, and of the man who carried his armor. ³¹Hem in this army by the hand of your people Israel, and let them be ashamed of their troops and their cavalry. ³²Fill them with cowardice; melt the boldness of their strength; let them tremble in their destruction. ³³Strike them down with the sword of those who love you, and let all who know your name praise you with hymns."

³⁴ Then both sides attacked, and there fell of the army of Lysias five thousand men; they fell in action. ³⁵When Lysias saw the rout of his troops and observed the boldness that inspired those of Judas, and how ready they were either to live or to die nobly, he withdrew to Antioch and enlisted mercenaries in order to invade Judea again with an even larger army.

Cleansing and Dedication of the Temple

³⁶ Then Judas and his brothers said, "See, our enemies are crushed; let us go up to cleanse the sanctuary and dedicate it." ³⁷So all the army assembled and went up to Mount Zion. ³⁸There they saw the sanctuary desolate, the altar profaned, and the gates burned. In the courts they saw bushes sprung up as in a thicket, or as on one of the mountains. They saw also the chambers of the priests in ruins. ³⁹Then they tore their clothes and mourned with great lamentation; they sprinkled themselves with ashes ⁴⁰and fell face down on the ground. And when the signal was given with the trumpets, they cried out to Heaven.

⁴¹ Then Judas detailed men to fight against those in the citadel until he had cleansed the sanctuary. ⁴²He chose blameless priests devoted to the law, silver and other riches for plunder had been brought at least in part by the slave traders (see 3.41). 4.24-25 The victory is celebrated by singing Ps 136.1, thus marking God's deliverance of Israel (see Judg 15.18; 1 Sam 14.45).

4.26-35 In 164 B.C.E. Lysias tries a different battle approach to Judas and his army, but he too meets defeat. See 2 Macc 11.1-15. 4.26 Lysias had been put in charge of the western part of Antiochus's empire and named guardian of Antiochus V (see 3.32). 4.28-29 Though the numbers are exaggerations, they suggest that, while still vastly outnumbered, Judas's army was growing (see 4.6). 4.29 Beth-zur was on the southern border of Judea and Idumea. Lysias approached from the south in a "fishhook" strategy to take advantage of the somewhat easier terrain and the political sympathies of the inhabitants. 4.30 In his prayer before battle (Deut 20.3-4) Judas invokes the examples of David (1 Sam 17) and Jonathan (1 Sam 14). 4.35 For Lysias's second invasion of Judea, see 6.28-31.

4.36-61 Having defeated the Seleucid forces, Judas restores the temple furnishings and inaugurates the proper rituals there. See 2 Macc 10.1-8. 4.36 The immediate goal of the uprising is achieved when the Jews dedicate the new altar in the temple. The name Hanukkah derives from the Hebrew word for "dedicate." In 2 Maccabees the theme of purification is stressed. 4.37 Mount Zion, the temple area. 4.38-40 Why the temple area was in such disrepair is not clear. Was the "reform" a failure? Is this the writer's judgment on the new worship? Did Judas delay restoring the temple? 4.41 The citadel overlooking the temple area (1.33) was still under enemy control. 4.42-43 The blameless priests were ritually pure (Lev 21.17-23) and did not partake in programs established under Antiochus IV (2 Macc 4.14-15). The defiled stones were associated with the desolating sacrilege (1 Macc 1.54).

43 and they cleansed the sanctuary and removed the defiled stones to an unclean place. 44 They deliberated what to do about the altar of burnt offering, which had been profaned. 45 And they thought it best to tear it down, so that it would not be a lasting shame to them that the Gentiles had defiled it. So they tore down the altar, 46 and stored the stones in a convenient place on the temple hill until a prophet should come to tell what to do with them. 47 Then they took unhewn stones, as the law directs, and built a new altar like the former one. 48 They also rebuilt the sanctuary and the interior of the temple, and consecrated the courts. 49 They made new holy vessels, and brought the lampstand, the altar of incense, and the table into the temple. 50 Then they offered incense on the altar and lit the lamps on the lampstand, and these gave light in the temple. 51 They placed the bread on the table and hung up the curtains. Thus they finished all the work they had undertaken.

52 Early in the morning on the twenty-fifth day of the ninth month, which is the month of Chisleu, in the one hundred forty-eighth year,^u 53 they rose and offered sacrifice, as the law directs, on the new altar of burnt offering that they had built. 54 At the very season and on the very day that the Gentiles had profaned it, it was dedicated with songs and harps and lutes and cymbals. 55 All the people fell on their faces and worshiped and blessed Heaven, who had prospered them. 56 So they celebrated the dedication of the altar for eight days, and joyfully offered burnt offerings; they offered a sacrifice of well-being and a thanksgiving offering. 57 They decorated the front of the temple with golden crowns and small shields; they restored the gates and the chambers for the priests, and fitted them with doors. 58 There was very great joy among the people, and the disgrace brought by the Gentiles was removed.

59 Then Judas and his brothers and all the assembly of Israel determined that every year at that season the days of dedication of the altar should be observed with joy and gladness for eight days, beginning with the twenty-fifth day of the month of Chisleu.

60 At that time they fortified Mount Zion with high walls and strong towers all around, to keep the Gentiles from coming and trampling them down as they had done before. 61 Judas^v stationed a garrison there to guard it; he also fortified Beth-zur to guard it, so that the people might have a stronghold that faced Idumea.

Wars with Neighboring Peoples

5 When the Gentiles all around heard that the altar had been rebuilt and the sanctuary dedicated as it was before, they became very angry, 2 and they determined to destroy the descendants of Jacob who lived among them. So they began to kill and destroy among the people. 3 But Judas made war on the descendants of Esau in Idumea, at Akrabattene, because they kept lying in wait for Israel. He dealt them a heavy blow and humbled them and despoiled them. 4 He also remembered the wickedness of the sons of Baeon, who were a trap and a snare to the people and ambushed them on the highways. 5 They were shut up by him in

4.44-46 Rather than destroy the altar of burnt offering Judas proposed waiting for illumination from a future prophet (see 14.41; Deut 18.15; Mal 4.5). 4.47-51 For building the altar with unhewn stones, see Ex 20.25; Deut 27.5-6. The temple furnishings, plundered by Antiochus IV (1 Macc 1.21-24), are restored in accord with Ex 25-27. 4.52-55 Temple worship was resumed on 14 December 164 B.C.E. See 2 Chr 7.1-10 for the dedication of the First Temple. 4.56 The Feast of Dedication (Hanukkah) lasted eight days, after the pattern of the Festival of Booths (Tabernacles; Lev 23.33-36) and earlier consecrations of the temple by Solomon (1 Kings 8) and Hezekiah (2 Chr 29). 4.60-61 Mount Zion, the temple area, was fortified against attacks from the citadel; and Beth-zur against approaches from the south (as in 4.29).

5.1-8 To secure the safety of other Jews sympathetic to the Maccabees, Judas and his brothers wage battles against allies of the Seleucids and other enemies (with David as their model; 2 Sam 8; 10). See 2 Macc 8.30-33; 10.14-17. 5.2 The descendants of Jacob were Jews living outside the area controlled by Judas; his success angered their non-Jewish neighbors. 5.3 Akrabattene may refer to the ascent of the Akrabbim (Num 34.4) southwest of the Dead Sea or (more likely) the place on the eastern boundary of Judea and Samaria. 5.4 The sons of Baeon were nomads who their^w towers; and he encamped against them, vowed their complete destruction, and burned with fire their towers and all who were in them. ⁶Then he crossed over to attack the Ammonites, where he found a strong band and many people, with Timothy as their leader. ⁷He engaged in many battles with them, and they were crushed before him; he struck them down. ⁸He also took Jazer and its villages; then he returned to Judea.

Liberation of Galilean Jews

9 Now the Gentiles in Gilead gathered together against the Israelites who lived in their territory, and planned to destroy them. But they fled to the stronghold of Dathema, ¹⁰and sent to Judas and his brothers a letter that said, "The Gentiles around us have gathered together to destroy us. ¹¹They are preparing to come and capture the stronghold to which we have fled, and Timothy is leading their forces. ¹²Now then, come and rescue us from their hands, for many of us have fallen, ¹³and all our kindred who were in the land of Tob have been killed; the enemy^x have captured their wives and children and goods, and have destroyed about a thousand persons there."

14 While the letter was still being read, other messengers, with their garments torn, came from Galilee and made a similar report; ¹⁵they said that the people of Ptolemais and Tyre and Sidon, and all Galilee of the Gentiles,^y had gathered together against them "to annihilate us." ¹⁶When Judas and the people heard these messages, a great assembly was called to determine what they should do for their kindred who were in distress and were being attacked by enemies.^z ¹⁷Then Judas said to his brother Simon, "Choose your men and go and rescue your kindred in Galilee; Jonathan my brother and I will go to Gilead." ¹⁸But he left Joseph, son of Zechariah, and Azariah, a leader of the people, with the rest of the forces, in Judea to guard it; ¹⁹and he gave them this command, "Take charge of this people, but do not engage in battle with the Gentiles until we return." ²⁰Then three thousand men were assigned to Simon to go to Galilee, and eight thousand to Judas for Gilead.

21 So Simon went to Galilee and fought many battles against the Gentiles, and the Gentiles were crushed before him. ²²He pursued them to the gate of Ptolemais; as many as three thousand of the Gentiles fell, and he despoiled them. ²³Then he took the Jews^a of Galilee and Arbatta, with their wives and children, and all they possessed, and led them to Judea with great rejoicing.

Judas and Jonathan in Gilead

24 Judas Maccabeus and his brother Jonathan crossed the Jordan and made three days' journey into the wilderness. ²⁵They encountered the Nabateans, who met them peaceably and told them all that had happened to their kindred in Gilead: ²⁶"Many of them have been shut up in

5.9–23 In response to pleas from Jews in Gilead (5.9–13) and in western Galilee (5.14–15), Judas sends Simon to Galilee (5.21–23) and goes with Jonathan to Gilead. 5.9 Gilead, the territory east of the Jordan (Josh 22.9). The location of Dathema is uncertain aside from the fact that it was a night's journey from Bozrah (5.29). 5.13 The land of Tob (Judg 11.3–5) refers to modern et-Taiyibeh, twelve miles east and slightly north of Ramoth-gilead, across the Jordan. 5.15 All Galilee of the Gentiles (see Isa 9.1) refers to the seacoast towns south of Ptolemais, Tyre, and Sidon. 5.18–19 For the failure of Joseph and Azariah to obey, see 5.55–62. 5.22–23 Ptolemais, named after Ptolemy II of Egypt, who restored it, was also known as Acco and Acre. Arbatta (or Narbatta) was probably south of Mount Carmel.

5.24–44 Relying on information from the Nabateans, Judas and Jonathan rescue Jews under siege in Gilead and defeat Timothy decisively near Raphon. See 2 Macc 12.1–25. 5.25 The Nabateans, whose center was in southern Transjordan, traveled caravan routes as traders. Here and in 9.35 they appear friendly toward Judas and Jonathan. Perhaps they shared the Jews' desire for independence from the Seleucids. 5.26 Bozrah (seventy miles south of Damascus) . . . and Carnaim, cities east and north of the Yarmuk River in Transjordan. Their non-Jewish inhabitants probably identified with the Seleucids and thus opposed the Jews in light of their recent victories

Bozrah and Bosor, in Alema and Chaspho, Maked and Carnaim"—all these towns were strong and large— 27 "and some have been shut up in the other towns of Gilead; the enemy^b are getting ready to attack the strongholds tomorrow and capture and destroy all these people in a single day."

28 Then Judas and his army quickly turned back by the wilderness road to Bozrah; and he took the town, and killed every male by the edge of the sword; then he seized all its spoils and burned it with fire. 29 He left the place at night, and they went all the way to the stronghold of Dathema.^c 30 At dawn they looked out and saw a large company, which could not be counted, carrying ladders and engines of war to capture the stronghold, and attacking the Jews within.^d 31 So Judas saw that the battle had begun and that the cry of the town went up to Heaven, with trumpets and loud shouts, 32 and he said to the men of his forces, "Fight today for your kindred!" 33 Then he came up behind them in three companies, who sounded their trumpets and cried aloud in prayer. 34 And when the army of Timothy realized that it was Maccabeus, they fled before him, and he dealt them a heavy blow. As many as eight thousand of them fell that day.

35 Next he turned aside to Maapha,^e and fought against it and took it; and he killed every male in it, plundered it, and burned it with fire. 36 From there he marched on and took Chaspho, Maked, and Bosor, and the other towns of Gilead.

37 After these things Timothy gathered another army and encamped opposite Raphon, on the other side of the stream. 38 Judas sent men to spy out the camp, and they reported to him, "All the Gentiles around us have gathered to him;

it is a very large force. 39 They also have hired Arabs to help them, and they are encamped across the stream, ready to come and fight against you." And Judas went to meet them.

40 Now as Judas and his army drew near to the stream of water, Timothy said to the officers of his forces, "If he crosses over to us first, we will not be able to resist him, for he will surely defeat us. 41 But if he shows fear and camps on the other side of the river, we will cross over to him and defeat him." 42 When Judas approached the stream of water, he stationed the officers^f of the army at the stream and gave them this command, "Permit no one to encamp, but make them all enter the battle." 43 Then he crossed over against them first, and the whole army followed him. All the Gentiles were defeated before him, and they threw away their arms and fled into the sacred precincts at Carnaim. 44 But he took the town and burned the sacred precincts with fire, together with all who were in them. Thus Carnaim was conquered; they could stand before Judas no longer.

The Return to Jerusalem

45 Then Judas gathered together all the Israelites in Gilead, the small and the great, with their wives and children and goods, a very large company, to go to the land of Judah. 46 So they came to Ephron. This was a large and very strong town on the road, and they could not go around it to the right or to the left; they had to go through it. 47 But the people of the town shut them out and blocked up the gates with stones.

over the Seleucids. 5.29 That Jews had a stronghold or fortress at Dathema (see 5.9) or elsewhere (see 5.27) may exaggerate the actual situation. 5.30–32 The description of the siege echoes various biblical texts (1 Sam 4.5–6; 5.12; Jer 4.19; Ezek 4.23; 21.22; Joel 2.1). 5.35 Maapha may be Mizpah of Gilead (Judg 11.29). 5.37 It is not certain that this is the same Timothy as in 5.6–8. 5.39 The Seleucids often used Arabs as mercenaries (see 2 Macc 12.10). 5.40–43 Rather than looking for an omen or heavenly sign, Timothy needed to discover whether Judas's troops were sufficiently numerous and ready for him to take the initiative in battle. 5.43 Carnaim means "horns." The name suggests that the goddess Ashtar was worshiped there under the aspect of her having a cow's horns (cf. 2 Macc 12.21, 26). Timothy fled there either in hope of protection from the pagan goddess or for asylum. 5.44 When Judas took the town, he did not respect the sanctity of the pagan shrine at Carnaim.

5.45–54 The Israelites in Gilead are brought to Judea and the Jerusalem temple by way of Ephron and Beth-shan. See 2 Macc 12.26–31. 5.46–51 Ephron was nine miles east of Jordan, opposite Beth-shan. Judas acts toward it in accord

48 Judas sent them this friendly message, "Let us pass through your land to get to our land. No one will do you harm; we will simply pass by on foot." But they refused to open to him. 49 Then Judas ordered proclamation to be made to the army that all should encamp where they were. 50 So the men of the forces encamped, and he fought against the town all that day and all the night, and the town was delivered into his hands. 51 He destroyed every male by the edge of the sword, and razed and plundered the town. Then he passed through the town over the bodies of the dead.

52 Then they crossed the Jordan into the large plain before Beth-shan. 53 Judas kept rallying the laggards and encouraging the people all the way until he came to the land of Judah. 54 So they went up to Mount Zion with joy and gladness, and offered burnt offerings, because they had returned in safety; not one of them had fallen.

Joseph and Azariah Defeated

55 Now while Judas and Jonathan were in Gilead and their brother Simon was in Galilee before Ptolemais, 56 Joseph son of Zechariah, and Azariah, the commanders of the forces, heard of their brave deeds and of the heroic war they had fought. 57 So they said, "Let us also make a name for ourselves; let us go and make war on the Gentiles around us." 58 So they issued orders to the men of the forces that were with them and marched against Jamnia. 59 Gorgias and his men came out of the town to meet them in battle. 60 Then Joseph and Azariah were routed, and were pursued to the borders of Judea; as many as two thousand of the people of Israel fell that day. 61 Thus the people suffered a great rout because, thinking to do a brave deed, they did not listen to Judas and his brothers. 62 But they did not belong to the family of those men through whom deliverance was given to Israel.

63 The man Judas and his brothers were greatly honored in all Israel and among all the Gentiles, wherever their name was heard. 64 People gathered to them and praised them.

Success at Hebron and Philistia

65 Then Judas and his brothers went out and fought the descendants of Esau in the land to the south. He struck Hebron and its villages and tore down its strongholds and burned its towers on all sides. 66 Then he marched off to go into the land of the Philistines, and passed through Marisa.^h 67 On that day some priests, who wished to do a brave deed, fell in battle, for they went out to battle unwisely. 68 But Judas turned aside to Azotus in the land of the Philistines; he tore down their altars, and the carved images of their gods he burned with fire; he plundered the towns and returned to the land of Judah.

The Last Days of Antiochus Epiphanes

6 King Antiochus was going through the upper provinces when he heard that Elymais in Persia was a city famed for its wealth in silver and gold. 2 Its temple

^g Gk his Samaria ^h Other ancient authorities read with Deut 20.10–15. 5.52 Beth-shan, also known as Scythopolis ("city of Scythians"), was west of the Jordan. 5.54 According to 2 Macc 12.31–32 they arrived at Mount Zion in time to celebrate the Festival of Weeks/Pentecost.

5.55–64 The rout suffered by the two left in charge of Judea (5.18–19) is explained as due to their failure to follow Judas's command (5.61). See 2 Macc 12.32–35. 5.58–59 Jamnia (Yavneh) was the capital of the province of Azotus (Ashdod) and a seat of opposition to the Jews (2 Macc 12.8–9). This may not be the same Gorgias as in 3.38; 4.1.

5.65–68 The account of the Jewish victory closes with battles against Idumea (to the south) and Philistia (to the west). See 2 Macc 12.36–45.

5.65–66 The anachronistic names descendants of Esau and Philistines contribute to the portrayal of Judas as the ideal biblical warrior. 5.67 The priests who . . . fell in battle failed to follow Judas's command (see 5.56–62); 2 Macc 12.32–45 may be another version of this episode. 5.68 Azotus (Ashdod) may refer to the province, not merely the city.

6.1–17 For other reports of Antiochus IV's death, see 2 Macc 1.13–17; 9.1–29; Dan 11.40–45. Antiochus died in late 164 B.C.E. in connection with robbing a pagan temple. The Jews interpreted his death as punishment for his outrages against their temple. 6.1 Elymais (Elam) refers to the mountainous country west of (not in) Persia. The city may have been Persepolis.

was very rich, containing golden shields, breastplates, and weapons left there by Alexander son of Philip, the Macedonian king who first reigned over the Greeks. ³So he came and tried to take the city and plunder it, but he could not because his plan had become known to the citizens ⁴and they withstood him in battle. So he fled and in great disappointment left there to return to Babylon.

⁵ Then someone came to him in Persia and reported that the armies that had gone into the land of Judah had been routed; ⁶that Lysias had gone first with a strong force, but had turned and fled before the Jews; ⁷that the Jews had grown strong from the arms, supplies, and abundant spoils that they had taken from the armies they had cut down; ⁸that they had torn down the abomination that he had erected on the altar in Jerusalem; and that they had surrounded the sanctuary with high walls as before, and also Bethzur, his town.

⁸ When the king heard this news, he was astounded and badly shaken. He took to his bed and became sick from disappointment, because things had not turned out for him as he had planned. ⁹He lay there for many days, because deep disappointment continually gripped him, and he realized that he was dying. ¹⁰So he called all his Friends and said to them, "Sleep has departed from my eyes and I am downhearted with worry. ¹¹I said to myself, 'To what distress I have come! And into what a great flood I now am plunged! For I was kind and beloved in my power.' ¹²But now I remember the wrong I did in Jerusalem. I seized all its vessels of silver and gold, and I sent to destroy the inhabitants of Judah without good reason. ¹³I know that it is because of this that these misfortunes have come upon me; here I am, perishing of bitter disappointment in a strange land."

¹⁴ Then he called for Philip, one of his Friends, and made him ruler over all his kingdom. ¹⁵He gave him the crown and his robe and the signet, so that he might guide his son Antiochus and bring him up to be king. ¹⁶Thus King Antiochus died there in the one hundred forty-ninth year. ¹⁷When Lysias learned that the king was dead, he set up Antiochus the king's son to reign. Lysias had brought him up from boyhood; he named him Eupator.

Renewed Attacks from Syria

¹⁸ Meanwhile the garrison in the citadel kept hemming Israel in around the sanctuary. They were trying in every way to harm them and strengthen the Gentiles. ¹⁹Judas therefore resolved to destroy them, and assembled all the people to besiege them. ²⁰They gathered together and besieged the citadel in the one hundred fiftieth year; and he built siege towers and other engines of war. ²¹But some of the garrison escaped from the siege and some of the ungodly Israelites joined them. ²²They went to the king and said, "How long will you fail to do justice and to avenge our kindred? ²³We

6.5–7 To the report of the defeat of Lysias (3.32–4.35) is added a summary of events in 4.36–6.1 – events that occurred after the death of Antiochus IV. 6.10 Friends were designated to serve as the king's advisers. They constituted the lowest rank of nobility in the Seleucid aristocracy. 6.11–13 Antiochus IV's description of himself as kind and beloved is affirmed by the name Eupator ("of a good father") given his son in 6.17. But I Maccabees looks at him mainly with regard to the effects of his policies on the Jews and presents him negatively. 6.14 Philip receives the same appointment Lysias had (3.32–33), and thus the two become rivals. 6.16 Antiochus died in October or November 164 B.C.E., but news of his death may not have reached Jerusalem before the dedication of the temple (4.36–6.1).

6.18–31 Judas's attempt to seize the citadel in Jerusalem leads to renewed complaints against him and a new and massive expedition. 6.18 The Seleucid garrison in the citadel (see 1.33–34; 4.41; 9.52; 10.6–9; 11.41; 14.36) continued harassment of Judas's people. Some were Jews (6.18, 21). 6.19–20 Judas took the confusion surrounding the death of Antiochus IV as the occasion for attacking the citadel. 6.21–27 The complaint of the ungodly Israelites (led by the high priest Menelaus according to 2 Macc 13.3) was that, despite their cooperation and support for the program of Antiochus IV, they were being abandoned in the face of Judas's growing power. 6.22 The king, Antiochus V Eupator, was only about eleven or twelve years old. Lysias was making policy, though the young were happy to serve your father, to live by what he said, and to follow his commands. ²⁴For this reason the sons of our people besieged the citadel^p and became hostile to us; moreover, they have put to death as many of us as they have caught, and they have seized our inheritances. ²⁵It is not against us alone that they have stretched out their hands; they have also attacked all the lands on their borders. ²⁶And see, today they have encamped against the citadel in Jerusalem to take it; they have fortified both the sanctuary and Beth-zur; ²⁷unless you quickly prevent them, they will do still greater things, and you will not be able to stop them."

²⁸The king was enraged when he heard this. He assembled all his Friends, the commanders of his forces and those in authority.^q ²⁹Mercenary forces also came to him from other kingdoms and from islands of the seas. ³⁰The number of his forces was one hundred thousand foot soldiers, twenty thousand horsemen, and thirty-two elephants accustomed to war. ³¹They came through Idumea and encamped against Beth-zur, and for many days they fought and built engines of war; but the Jews^r sallied out and burned these with fire, and fought courageously.

The Battle at Beth-zechariah

³²Then Judas marched away from the citadel and encamped at Beth-zechariah, opposite the camp of the king. ³³Early in the morning the king set out and took his army by a forced march along the road to Beth-zechariah, and his troops made ready for battle and sounded their trumpets. ³⁴They offered the elephants the juice of grapes and mulberries, to arouse them for battle. ³⁵They distributed the animals among the phalanxes; with each elephant they stationed a thousand men armed with coats of mail, and with brass helmets on their heads; and five hundred picked horsemen were assigned to each beast. ³⁶These took their position beforehand wherever the animal was; wherever it went, they went with it, and they never left it. ³⁷On the elephants^s were wooden towers, strong and covered; they were fastened on each animal by special harness, and on each were four^t armed men who fought from there, and also its Indian driver. ³⁸The rest of the cavalry were stationed on either side, on the two flanks of the army, to harass the enemy while being themselves protected by the phalanxes. ³⁹When the sun shone on the shields of gold and brass, the hills were ablaze with them and gleamed like flaming torches.

⁴⁰Now a part of the king's army was spread out on the high hills, and some troops were on the plain, and they advanced steadily and in good order. ⁴¹All who heard the noise made by their multitude, by the marching of the multitude and the clanking of their arms, trembled, for the army was very large and strong. ⁴²But Judas and his army advanced to the battle, and six hundred of the king's army fell. ⁴³Now Eleazar, called Avaran, saw that one of the animals was equipped with royal armor. It was taller than all the others, and he supposed that the king was on it. ⁴⁴So he gave his life to save his people

king was probably involved in the events. 6.28-31 The greatness (probably exaggerated) of the Seleucid army indicates how seriously Judas was now taken. As in 4.29 the Seleucid army approaches from the south, through Idumea. Beth-zur, which figured in the first battle with Lysias (4.29-35), had been fortified by Judas (4.61) as the southern outpost against attacks.

6.32-47 Probably based on an eyewitness account, this passage is a remarkably vivid and generally accurate description of an ancient battle. That Judas was defeated is played down; the emphasis is on the superior numbers of the Seleucids and the bravery of Eleazar. See 2 Macc 13.18-20. 6.32 Beth-zechariah, south of Jerusalem and six miles north of Beth-zur, was chosen because its topography could be used to stop the enemy's advance. Apparently Beth-zur (6.31) had fallen (see 6.49-50). 6.34-37 The elephants (the ancient equivalent of tanks) serve as the rallying point for the Seleucid formations. That there were thirty-two elephants (6.30) is unlikely. That number appears again in the Greek in 6.37 (which is ridiculous); the conjecture four is more reasonable. 6.40-41 As the Seleucid army proceeds some troops are dispatched to secure the ridges (high hills). 6.43-47 That the young king Antiochus V would have been riding on an elephant in battle is highly unlikely. Eleazar (2.5) may have sought to demonstrate that the elephants could be stopped. If so, his action had the opposite effect (6.47).

and to win for himself an everlasting name. ⁴⁵He courageously ran into the midst of the phalanx to reach it; he killed men right and left, and they parted before him on both sides. ⁴⁶He got under the elephant, stabbed it from beneath, and killed it; but it fell to the ground upon him and he died. ⁴⁷When the Jews^u saw the royal might and the fierce attack of the forces, they turned away in flight.

The Siege of the Temple

48 The soldiers of the king's army went up to Jerusalem against them, and the king encamped in Judea and at Mount Zion. ⁴⁹He made peace with the people of Beth-zur, and they evacuated the town because they had no provisions there to withstand a siege, since it was a sabbatical year for the land. ⁵⁰So the king took Beth-zur and stationed a guard there to hold it. ⁵¹Then he encamped before the sanctuary for many days. He set up siege towers, engines of war to throw fire and stones, machines to shoot arrows, and catapults. ⁵²The Jews^u also made engines of war to match theirs, and fought for many days. ⁵³But they had no food in storage,^v because it was the seventh year; those who had found safety in Judea from the Gentiles had consumed the last of the stores. ⁵⁴Only a few men were left in the sanctuary; the rest scattered to their own homes, for the famine proved too much for them.

Syria Offers Terms

55 Then Lysias heard that Philip, whom King Antiochus while still living had appointed to bring up his son Antiochus to be king, ⁵⁶had returned from Persia and Media with the forces that had gone with the king, and that he was trying to seize control of the government. ⁵⁷So he quickly gave orders to withdraw, and said to the king, to the commanders of the forces, and to the troops, "Daily we grow weaker, our food supply is scant, the place against which we are fighting is strong, and the affairs of the kingdom press urgently on us. ⁵⁸Now then let us come to terms with these people, and make peace with them and with all their nation. ⁵⁹Let us agree to let them live by their laws as they did before; for it was on account of their laws that we abolished that they became angry and did all these things."

60 The speech pleased the king and the commanders, and he sent to the Jews^w an offer of peace, and they accepted it. ⁶¹So the king and the commanders gave them their oath. On these conditions the Jews^u evacuated the stronghold. ⁶²But when the king entered Mount Zion and saw what a strong fortress the place was, he broke the oath he had sworn and gave orders to tear down the wall all around. ⁶³Then he set off in haste and returned to Antioch. He found Philip in control of the city, but he fought against him, and took the city by force.

Expedition of Bacchides and Alcimus

7 In the one hundred fifty-first year^x Demetrius son of Seleucus set out from Rome, sailed with a few men to a town by the sea, and there began to reign.

u Gk they v Other ancient authorities read in the sanctuary
w Gk them x 161 B.C.

6.48-54 With the surrender of Beth-zur, the Temple Mount under siege, and low food supplies, the Maccabean movement is close to complete defeat. 6.48 The symbolic value of the Temple Mount (Mount Zion; see 4.36-61) explains both the Seleucid strategy and the Jewish resistance. 6.49 In a sabbatical year the land was not worked (Ex 23.11; Lev 25.3-7). The real food shortage would occur the year after the sabbatical year (see 6.53).

6.55-63 Because Lysias had to return to Antioch to prevent Philip (see 6.14-15) from taking control, he made a quick settlement with Judas. See 2 Macc 13.23-26. 6.57 The scant food supply caused by the sabbatical year (6.49, 53) threatened the Seleucid army also. 6.59 By agreeing to let the Jews live by their laws as they did before (i.e., by the Torah) Lysias effectively cancelled the decree of Antiochus IV (1.41-50). 6.61-62 The Temple Mount (Mount Zion) held by Judas's troops and fortified by a wall (4.60), functioned as a stronghold. The citadel remained in enemy hands.

7.1-25 With Antiochus V and Lysias removed, Demetrius I seeks to stabilize affairs in Judea by sending Bacchides' army and by making Alcimus both high priest and political ruler. 7.1 Demetrius I Soter, the son of Seleucus IV, escaped from being a hostage at Rome with the help of the historian Polybius and landed at Tripolis (a town by the sea) in 161 B.C.E. See 2 Macc

²As he was entering the royal palace of his ancestors, the army seized Antiochus and Lysias to bring them to him. ³But when this act became known to him, he said, "Do not let me see their faces!" ⁴So the army killed them, and Demetrius took his seat on the throne of his kingdom.

⁵ Then there came to him all the renegade and godless men of Israel; they were led by Alcimus, who wanted to be high priest. ⁶They brought to the king this accusation against the people: "Judas and his brothers have destroyed all your Friends, and have driven us out of our land. ⁷Now then send a man whom you trust; let him go and see all the ruin that Judas^y has brought on us and on the land of the king, and let him punish them and all who help them."

¹² Then a group of scribes appeared in a body before Alcimus and Bacchides to ask for just terms. ¹³The Hasideans were first among the Israelites to seek peace from them, ¹⁴for they said, "A priest of the line of Aaron has come with the army, and he will not harm us." ¹⁵Alcimus^z spoke peaceable words to them and swore this oath to them, "We will not seek to injure you or your friends." ¹⁶So they trusted him; but he seized sixty of them and killed them in one day, in accordance with the word that was written,

¹⁷ "The flesh of your faithful ones and their blood
they poured out all around Jerusalem,
and there was no one to bury
them."

¹⁸Then the fear and dread of them fell on all the people, for they said, "There is no truth or justice in them, for they have violated the agreement and the oath that they swore."

²¹ Alcimus struggled to maintain his high priesthood, ²²and all who were troubling their people joined him. They gained control of the land of Judah and did great damage in Israel. ²³And Judas saw all the wrongs that Alcimus and those with him had done among the Israelites; it was more than the Gentiles had done. ²⁴So Judas^y went out into all the surrounding parts of Judea, taking vengeance on those who had deserted and preventing those in the city^b from going out into the country. ²⁵When Alcimus saw that Judas and those with him had grown

14.1-2. 7.2 The royal palace was in Antioch, about 170 miles north of Tripolis. 7.5 Alcimus (Yakim in Hebrew), from a priestly family (7.14; 1 Chr 24.12), may have already been appointed as high priest under Antiochus V. He represented the faction in Israel that was favorable to the Seleucids (see 1.11-15; 2 Macc 14.3-4). 7.8 While Demetrius I was putting down the rebellion of Timarchus in the east, he appointed Bacchides (who was governor of Beyond the River province—between the Euphrates and Egypt) to subdue Judea. 7.12-15 Deceived by peaceable words from Bacchides (7.10) and Alcimus (7.15) and impressed by the priestly lineage of Alcimus, the Hasideans (see 2.42) deserted the cause of Judas. 7.16-18 Why Alcimus had sixty Hasideans killed is not stated; perhaps it was because of their past opposition to the pro-Seleucid faction. The fate of the Hasideans is said to fulfill Ps 79.2-3. 7.19 Beth-zait was between Jerusalem and Beth-zur. The pit was probably a large cistern no longer in use for saving water (see Jer 41.7). 7.20 Bacchides' goal in subduing Judea was to establish the high priest Alcimus as head of state (in charge of the country)—as previous high priests (Onias, Jason, Menelaus) had been. 7.24 Judas was still strong enough to carry out guerilla warfare and thus prevent Alcimus from taking full control of Judea.

strong, and realized that he could not withstand them, he returned to the king and brought malicious charges against them.

Nicanor in Judea

26 Then the king sent Nicanor, one of his honored princes, who hated and detested Israel, and he commanded him to destroy the people. 27 So Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a large force, and treacherously sent to Judas and his brothers this peaceable message, 28 “Let there be no fighting between you and me; I shall come with a few men to see you face to face in peace.”

29 So he came to Judas, and they greeted one another peaceably; but the enemy were preparing to kidnap Judas. 30 It became known to Judas that Nicanor^c had come to him with treacherous intent, and he was afraid of him and would not meet him again. 31 When Nicanor learned that his plan had been disclosed, he went out to meet Judas in battle near Caphar-salama. 32 About five hundred of the army of Nicanor fell, and the rest^d fled into the city of David.

Nicanor Threatens the Temple

33 After these events Nicanor went up to Mount Zion. Some of the priests from the sanctuary and some of the elders of the people came out to greet him peaceably and to show him the burnt offering that was being offered for the king. 34 But he mocked them and derided them and defiled them and spoke arrogantly, 35 and in anger he swore this oath, “Unless Judas and his army are delivered into my hands this time, then if I return safely I will burn up this house.” And he went out in great anger. 36 At this the priests went in and stood before the altar and the temple; they wept and said, 37 “You chose this house to be called by your name, and to be for your people a house of prayer and supplication.

38 Take vengeance on this man and on his army,
and let them fall by the sword;
remember their blasphemies,
and let them live no longer.”

The Death of Nicanor

39 Now Nicanor went out from Jerusalem and encamped in Beth-horon, and the Syrian army joined him. 40 Judas encamped in Adasa with three thousand men. Then Judas prayed and said, 41 “When the messengers from the king spoke blasphemy, your angel went out and struck down one hundred eighty-five thousand of the Assyrians.^e 42 So also crush this army before us today; let the rest learn that Nicanor^c has spoken wickedly against the sanctuary, and judge him according to this wickedness.”

43 So the armies met in battle on the

7.26–32 Sent to strengthen Alcimus and his party, Nicanor used both diplomatic and military strategies against Judas. See 2 Macc 14.11–36 for a different perspective on Nicanor. 7.26 It is not certain that this was the same Nicanor who helped Demetrius flee from Rome (see Josephus Antiquities 12.402) or who was part of the Emmaus campaign (3.38). 7.27 Whereas in 1 Maccabees Nicanor acts treacherously throughout, in 2 Macc 14.18–25 he develops a genuine friendship with Judas and at first tries to mediate between the Jewish factions. 7.31 Caphar-salama. Exact location unknown, but likely to the north of Jerusalem. 7.32 City of David, the Seleucid-held citadel (Akra) in Jerusalem.

7.33–38 Nicanor's threat to destroy the temple unless Judas is handed over seems to have proceeded more from frustration than from political realism. 7.33 The temple priests, probably loyal to Alcimus and the Seleucids, offered sacrifices and prayers on behalf of the Seleucid king (see Ezra 6.10). 7.34 Nicanor defiled them, probably by spitting on them, thus making them temporarily unfit for service. 7.36–38 The prayer echoes that of Solomon in 1 Kings 8 (see vv. 29–30, 33–34, 43).

7.39–50 Nicanor's threat against the temple ends in his defeat by Judas and the dismemberment of his body. See 2 Macc 15.1–37. 7.39–40 For an earlier battle near Beth-horon, see 3.13–26. Though its exact location is uncertain, Adasa was between Jerusalem and Beth-horon. 7.41 The appeal to the expedition of Sennacherib in 701 B.C.E. (2 Kings 19.35; Isa 37.36) suggests that Judas was vastly outnumbered. See also 2 Macc 8.19; 15.22. 7.42 Nicanor's threat against the sanctuary (7.33–35) became the rallying cry for Judas's supporters. 7.43–44 When the armies met in March (Adar) 161 or 160 B.C.E., Judas's strategy was to kill the thirteenth day of the month of Adar. The army of Nicanor was crushed, and he himself was the first to fall in the battle. ⁴⁴When his army saw that Nicanor had fallen, they threw down their arms and fled. ⁴⁵The Jews^f pursued them a day's journey, from Adasa as far as Gazara, and as they followed they kept sounding the battle call on the trumpets. ⁴⁶People came out of all the surrounding villages of Judea, and they outflanked the enemy^g and drove them back to their pursuers,^h so that they all fell by the sword; not even one of them was left. ⁴⁷Then the Jews^f seized the spoils and the plunder; they cut off Nicanor's head and the right hand that he had so arrogantly stretched out, and brought them and displayed them just outside Jerusalem. ⁴⁸The people rejoiced greatly and celebrated that day as a day of great gladness. ⁴⁹They decreed that this day should be celebrated each year on the thirteenth day of Adar. ⁵⁰So the land of Judah had rest for a few days.

A Eulogy of the Romans

8 Now Judas heard of the fame of the Romans, that they were very strong and were well-disposed toward all who made an alliance with them, that they pledged friendship to those who came to them, ²and that they were very strong. He had been told of their wars and of the brave deeds that they were doing among the Gauls, how they had defeated them and forced them to pay tribute, ³and what they had done in the land of Spain to get control of the silver and gold mines there, ⁴and how they had gained control of the whole region by their planning and patience, even though the place was far distant from them. They also subdued the kings who came against them from the ends of the earth, until they crushed them and inflicted great disaster on them; the rest paid them tribute every year. ⁵They had crushed in battle and conquered Philip, and King Perseus of the Macedonians,ⁱ and the others who rose up against them. ⁶They also had defeated Antiochus the Great, king of Asia, who went to fight against them with one hundred twenty elephants and with cavalry and chariots and a very large army. He was crushed by them; ⁷they took him alive and decreed that he and those who would reign after him should pay a heavy tribute and give hostages and surrender some of their best provinces, ⁸the countries of India, Media, and Lydia. These they took from him and gave to King Eumenes. ⁹The Greeks planned to come and destroy them, ¹⁰but this became known to them, and they sent a general against the Greeks^g and attacked them. Many of them were wounded and fell, and the Romans^f took captive their wives and children; they plundered them, conquered the land, tore down their strongholds, and enslaved them to this day. ¹¹The remaining kingdoms and islands, as many as ever opposed them, they destroyed and enslaved; ¹²but with their friends and those who rely on them they have kept friendship. They have subdued kings far and near, and as many as have heard of their fame have feared them. ¹³Those whom they commander Nicanor, thus causing his troops to panic. 7.45 Gazara (Gezer) was the closest Seleucid fort to the west. 7.47 Cutting off the head and the right hand was originally a Persian punishment. Here it is related to Nicanor's threat against the Jerusalem temple. 7.49 The thirteenth day of Adar was celebrated in the first century C.E. but dropped out of the Jewish calendar later on. 7.50 A formula familiar from Judges (e.g., 3.30; 5.31) is modified (for a few days) to underline the ongoing Seleucid threat.

8.1–16 An idealized and sometimes inaccurate description of the Romans prepares for the treaty described in the next section. 8.2 The Gauls defeated by the Romans were most likely the Cisalpine Gauls, those on the south side of the Alps. 8.3 After the defeat of the Carthaginians in the late third century B.C.E., Spain came increasingly under Roman control. 8.4 Mention of the kings introduces the episodes in 8.5–13. 8.5 The Romans defeated Philip V of Macedon in 197 B.C.E. and later his son Perseus in 168 B.C.E. 8.6–8 Antiochus III was defeated by the Romans at Magnesia in 189 B.C.E. and was forced to cede some of his territories to Eumenes II of Pergamum. Among the hostages was Antiochus IV. Neither India nor Media was ceded to Eumenes; perhaps the text originally had "Ionia" and "Mysia." 8.9–10 In 146 B.C.E. the Achaean League of Greece was defeated by Lucius Mummius, who in turn destroyed Corinth. These events happened fifteen years after the Jewish embassy to Rome described in 8.17–32.

wish to help and to make kings, they make kings, and those whom they wish they depose; and they have been greatly exalted. ¹⁴Yet for all this not one of them has put on a crown or worn purple as a mark of pride, ¹⁵but they have built for themselves a senate chamber, and every day three hundred twenty senators constantly deliberate concerning the people, to govern them well. ¹⁶They trust one man each year to rule over them and to control all their land; they all heed the one man, and there is no envy or jealousy among them.

An Alliance with Rome

¹⁷ So Judas chose Eupolemus son of John son of Accos, and Jason son of Eleazar, and sent them to Rome to establish friendship and alliance, ¹⁸and to free themselves from the yoke; for they saw that the kingdom of the Greeks was enslaving Israel completely. ¹⁹They went to Rome, a very long journey; and they entered the senate chamber and spoke as follows: ²⁰"Judas, who is also called Maccabeus, and his brothers and the people of the Jews have sent us to you to establish alliance and peace with you, so that we may be enrolled as your allies and friends." ²¹The proposal pleased them, ²²and this is a copy of the letter that they wrote in reply, on bronze tablets, and sent to Jerusalem to remain with them there as a memorial of peace and alliance:

²³ "May all go well with the Romans and with the nation of the Jews at sea and on land forever, and may sword and enemy be far from them. ²⁴If war comes first to Rome or to any of their allies in all their dominion, ²⁵the nation of the Jews shall act as their allies wholeheartedly, as the occasion may indicate to them. ²⁶To the enemy that makes war they shall not give or supply grain, arms, money, or ships, just as Rome has decided; and they shall keep their obligations without receiving any return. ²⁷In the same way, if war comes first to the nation of the Jews, the Romans shall willingly act as their allies, as the occasion may indicate to them. ²⁸And to their enemies there shall not be given grain, arms, money, or ships, just as Rome has decided; and they shall keep these obligations and do so without deceit. ²⁹Thus on these terms the Romans make a treaty with the Jewish people. ³⁰If after these terms are in effect both parties shall determine to add or delete anything, they shall do so at their discretion, and any addition or deletion that they may make shall be valid.

³¹ "Concerning the wrongs that King Demetrius is doing to them, we have written to him as follows, 'Why have you made your yoke heavy on our friends and allies the Jews?' ³²If now they appeal again for help against you, we will defend their rights and fight you on sea and on land.'

Bacchides Returns to Judea

9 When Demetrius heard that Nicanor and his army had fallen in battle, he sent Bacchides and Alcimus into the land of Judah a second time, and with them

8.15 The senate had three hundred members, not three hundred twenty, and did not meet every day. 8.16 Two consuls, not one, were chosen every year.

8.17–32 The Romans were eager to extend their influence eastward and were displeased by the actions of Demetrius. The Jews needed an ally against the Seleucids. But in the period covered by 1 Maccabees nothing comes of the alliance until 14.16–24. 8.17 Eupolemus, from the priestly clan of Hakkoz (1 Chr 24.10), was the son of the man who had won concessions from Antiochus III (2 Macc 4.11). 8.19 Their very long journey to Rome (over a month) may have taken place in 161 B.C.E., when Demetrius arrived in Syria and before the defeat of Nicanor. 8.22 The original treaty was inscribed on bronze tablets and kept in Rome. The copy was presumably written in Latin or Greek, translated into Hebrew in the first edition of 1 Maccabees, and translated into Greek in the extant text of 1 Maccabees. 8.23–30 The treaty is regarded as basically authentic by most scholars today. After the opening (v. 23), there are parallel clauses stipulating that each side will come to the aid of the other if war breaks out (vv. 24–26, 27–28). 8.25 The clause as the occasion may indicate to them leaves a good deal of flexibility. 8.26 Without receiving any return is probably a mistake in the translation process; see the parallel clause without deceit in v. 28, which corresponds to the usual treaty form. 8.30 Possible alterations had to be done by the common consent of both parties. 8.31–32 The threatening letter to Demetrius I is cast in biblical idiom (you made your yoke heavy) and was never acted upon by the Romans. It may not have been part of the original treaty.

9.1–10 To avenge the defeat of Nicanor,

the right wing of the army. ²They went by the road that leads to Gilgal and encamped against Mesaloth in Arbela, and they took it and killed many people. ³In the first month of the one hundred fifty-second yearⁱ they encamped against Jerusalem; ⁴then they marched off and went to Berea with twenty thousand foot soldiers and two thousand cavalry.

⁵ Now Judas was encamped in Elasa, and with him were three thousand picked men. ⁶When they saw the huge number of the enemy forces, they were greatly frightened, and many slipped away from the camp, until no more than eight hundred of them were left.

⁷ When Judas saw that his army had slipped away and the battle was imminent, he was crushed in spirit, for he had no time to assemble them. ⁸He became faint, but he said to those who were left, "Let us get up and go against our enemies. We may have the strength to fight them." ⁹But they tried to dissuade him, saying, "We do not have the strength. Let us rather save our own lives now, and let us come back with our kindred and fight them; we are too few." ¹⁰But Judas said, "Far be it from us to do such a thing as to flee from them. If our time has come, let us die bravely for our kindred, and leave no cause to question our honor."

The Last Battle of Judas

¹¹ Then the army of Bacchides^k marched out from the camp and took its stand for the encounter. The cavalry was divided into two companies, and the sling-

ers and the archers went ahead of the army, as did all the chief warriors. ¹²Bacchides was on the right wing. Flanked by the two companies, the phalanx advanced to the sound of the trumpets; and the men with Judas also blew their trumpets. ¹³The earth was shaken by the noise of the armies, and the battle raged from morning until evening.

¹⁹ Then Jonathan and Simon took their brother Judas and buried him in the tomb of their ancestors at Modein, ²⁰and wept for him. All Israel made great lamentation for him; they mourned many days and said,

²¹ "How is the mighty fallen,
the savior of Israel!"

²²Now the rest of the acts of Judas, and his wars and the brave deeds that he did, and his greatness, have not been recorded, but they were very many.

Jonathan Succeeds Judas

²³ After the death of Judas, the renegades emerged in all parts of Israel; all

j 160 B.C. k Gk lacks of Bacchides

Demetrius sent Bacchides, who confronted the vastly outnumbered army of Judas north of Jerusalem. 9.1 The right wing refers to the right flank of the army in battle formation (as in 9.12). 9.2 Gilgal may be an error for Galilee. Mesaloth is probably a misreading of a Hebrew common noun ("trails, highways, ascents"). 9.4 Berea was about ten miles north of Jerusalem, opposite Elasa (v. 5, precise location uncertain). 9.5-6 The number of deserters (from three thousand down to eight hundred troops) is large and may be exaggerated to explain Judas's defeat. 9.8-10 Judas's strategy was to seize the initiative and surprise his numerically superior opponents.

9.11-22 After a vivid description of the battle of Elasa, there is mourning over the fallen Judas, who is celebrated as a biblical hero. 9.12 The phalanx (see 6.35, 38, 45; 10.82) refers to the heavy infantry unit of soldiers carrying spears and shields. 9.14 Judas's strategy was to destroy Bacchides and the right flank of his army. But he found himself trapped in a pincer maneuver on the part of the Seleucids (9.16). 9.15 There is no Mount Azotus (Ashdod). The Hebrew original probably read "the mountain slopes." 9.19 For the Maccabean family tomb at Modein, see 2.70: 13.27-30. 9.21 The lament combines material from 2 Sam 1.25, 27; Judg 3.9. 9.22 The concluding formula (the rest of the acts of Judas) echoes the refrain in 1-2 Kings about the kings of Israel and Judah (e.g., 1 Kings 11.41).

9.23-31 With the death of Judas, the reemergence of the renegade Jews, a famine, and the punishment of Judas's supporters, the rebellion

the wrongdoers reappeared. ²⁴In those days a very great famine occurred, and the country went over to their side. ²⁵Bacchides chose the godless and put them in charge of the country. ²⁶They made inquiry and searched for the friends of Judas, and brought them to Bacchides, who took vengeance on them and made sport of them. ²⁷So there was great distress in Israel, such as had not been since the time that prophets ceased to appear among them.

²⁸ Then all the friends of Judas assembled and said to Jonathan, ²⁹"Since the death of your brother Judas there has been no one like him to go against our enemies and Bacchides, and to deal with those of our nation who hate us. ³⁰Now therefore we have chosen you today to take his place as our ruler and leader, to fight our battle." ³¹So Jonathan accepted the leadership at that time in place of his brother Judas.

The Campaigns of Jonathan

³² When Bacchides learned of this, he tried to kill him. ³³But Jonathan and his brother Simon and all who were with him heard of it, and they fled into the wilderness of Tekoa and camped by the water of the pool of Asphar. ³⁴Bacchides found this out on the sabbath day, and he with all his army crossed the Jordan.

³⁵ So Jonathan¹ sent his brother as leader of the multitude and begged the Nabateans, who were his friends, for permission to store with them the great amount of baggage that they had. ³⁶But the family of Jambri from Medeba came out and seized John and all that he had, and left with it.

³⁷ After these things it was reported to Jonathan and his brother Simon, "The family of Jambri are celebrating a great wedding, and are conducting the bride, a daughter of one of the great nobles of Canaan, from Nadabath with a large escort." ³⁸Remembering how their brother John had been killed, they went up and hid under cover of the mountain. ³⁹They looked out and saw a tumultuous procession with a great amount of baggage; and the bridegroom came out with his friends and his brothers to meet them with tambourines and musicians and many weapons. ⁴⁰Then they rushed on them from the ambush and began killing them. Many were wounded and fell, and the rest fled to the mountain; and the Jews^m took all their goods. ⁴¹So the wedding was turned into mourning and the voice of their musicians into a funeral dirge. ⁴²After they had fully avenged the blood of their brother, they returned to the marshes of the Jordan.

⁴³ When Bacchides heard of this, he came with a large force on the sabbath day to the banks of the Jordan. ⁴⁴And Jonathan said to those with him, "Let us get up now and fight for our lives, for today things are not as they were before. ⁴⁵For look! the battle is in front of us and behind us; the water of the Jordan is on this side and on that, with marsh and thicket; there is no place to turn. ⁴⁶Cry out now to Heaven that you may be delivered from the hands of our enemies." ⁴⁷So the battle began, and Jonathan

l Gk he m Gk they reached its lowest point. Jonathan is chosen to carry on the movement. 9.24 During a famine the government had control over the food supply and thus could win people over to their side. 9.27 Probably a reference to the postexilic prophecies Haggai and Zechariah or Malachi; see 1 Macc 4.46; 14.41 for hope of a new prophet arising. 9.28–31 Why Jonathan was preferred over Simon is not explained. As ruler and leader Jonathan acts like the judges of old (Judg 11.11).

9.32–49 Jonathan avenges the death of his brother John east of the Jordan and narrowly escapes from Bacchides at the Jordan. 9.33 The wilderness of Tekoa (fifteen miles southeast of Jerusalem) was a safe refuge for Jonathan (see 2 Sam 14.1–17; 2 Chr 20.20). The pool of Asphar was probably a cistern. 9.34 The report of Bacchides' movement is out of place here; it properly belongs in 9.43, where it is repeated. 9.35–36 For the Nabateans as friends of the Maccabean movement, see 5.25. It is not clear whether the family of Jambri from Medeba (near the northeastern tip of the Dead Sea) were Nabateans. That John (see 2.2) was killed is made clear in 9.42. 9.37 There is much speculation but no certainty about Canaan (a code name for Nabatean traders? an archaism? an origin west of the Jordan?) and Nadabath (Nebo? Medeba? other?). 9.43–49 It is difficult to discern from the text the places and strategies of the armies. The basic point is that in swampy area north of the Dead Sea Jonathan eluded the trap sprung by Bacchi-stretched out his hand to strike Bacchides, but he eluded him and went to the rear. 48 Then Jonathan and the men with him leaped into the Jordan and swam across to the other side, and the enemyⁿ did not cross the Jordan to attack them. 49 And about one thousand of Bacchides' men fell that day.

Bacchides Builds Fortifications

50 Then Bacchides^o returned to Jerusalem and built strong cities in Judea: the fortress in Jericho, and Emmaus, and Beth-horon, and Bethel, and Timnath, and^p Pharathon, and Tephon, with high walls and gates and bars. 51 And he placed garrisons in them to harass Israel. 52 He also fortified the town of Beth-zur, and Gazara, and the citadel, and in them he put troops and stores of food. 53 And he took the sons of the leading men of the land as hostages and put them under guard in the citadel at Jerusalem.

54 In the one hundred and fifty-third year,^q in the second month, Alcimus gave orders to tear down the wall of the inner court of the sanctuary. He tore down the work of the prophets! 55 But he only began to tear it down, for at that time Alcimus was stricken and his work was hindered; his mouth was stopped and he was paralyzed, so that he could no longer say a word or give commands concerning his house. 56 And Alcimus died at that time in great agony. 57 When Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead, he returned to the king, and the land of Judah had rest for two years.

The End of the War

58 Then all the lawless plotted and said, "See! Jonathan and his men are living in quiet and confidence. So now let us bring Bacchides back, and he will capture them all in one night." 59 And they went and consulted with him. 60 He started to come with a large force, and secretly sent letters to all his allies in Judea, telling them to seize Jonathan and his men; but they were unable to do it, because their plan became known. 61 And Jonathan's menⁿ seized about fifty of the men of the country who were leaders in this treachery, and killed them.

62 Then Jonathan with his men, and Simon, withdrew to Bethbasi in the wilderness; he rebuilt the parts of it that had been demolished, and they fortified it. 63 When Bacchides learned of this, he assembled all his forces, and sent orders to the men of Judea. 64 Then he came and encamped against Bethbasi; he fought against it for many days and made machines of war.

65 But Jonathan left his brother Simon in the town, while he went out into the country; and he went with only a few men. 66 He struck down Odomera and his kindred and the people of Phasiron in their tents. 67 Then he^r began to attack and went into battle with his forces; and Simon and his men sallied out from the town and set fire to the machines of war. 68 They fought with Bacchides, and he was crushed by them. They pressed him

des. This is the first report of actual fighting on a sabbath (see 2.40–41). 9.49 The number of casualties (one thousand) in Bacchides' army is probably exaggerated. In fact, the encounter was probably a defeat for Jonathan, who was fortunate to escape alive.

9.50–57 The Seleucid triumph represented by Bacchides' fortifications and Alcimus's remodeling the temple is cut short by Alcimus's death, thus giving Jonathan the chance to regroup and gain power. 9.50–52 Bacchides secured key places in northern Judea and southern Samaria (Timnath, Pharathon, Tephon) against Jonathan. 9.53 To secure the cooperation of their parents he held in the citadel as hostages the sons of Jewish leaders. 9.54 The wall of the inner court separated the Holy of Holies (reserved for Israelite priests) from the rest of the temple area. The prophets Haggai and Zechariah encouraged and oversaw the building of the Second Temple. 9.55–56 The stroke and subsequent death of Alcimus were viewed as punishment for his evil deeds in altering the temple architecture.

9.58–73 Setbacks for Bacchides and the renegade Jews result in a peace with Jonathan, who takes on the role of "judge" at Michmash. The high-priesthood was most likely vacant between 159 and 152 B.C.E. 9.60 The plot to kill Jonathan in 157 B.C.E. became known and was thus a defeat for the renegade Jews and an embarrassment for Bacchides. 9.62 Bethbasi, a fort south of Bethlehem (see 2 Chr 26.10), toward Tekoa. 9.66 Odomera and the people of Phasiron were local people who had allied themselves with Bacchi-

very hard, for his plan and his expedition had been in vain. ⁶⁹So he was very angry at the renegades who had counseled him to come into the country, and he killed many of them. Then he decided to go back to his own land.

⁷⁰ When Jonathan learned of this, he sent ambassadors to him to make peace with him and obtain release of the captives. ⁷¹He agreed, and did as he said; and he swore to Jonathan^s that he would not try to harm him as long as he lived. ⁷²He restored to him the captives whom he had taken previously from the land of Judah; then he turned and went back to his own land, and did not come again into their territory. ⁷³Thus the sword ceased from Israel. Jonathan settled in Michmash and began to judge the people; and he destroyed the godless out of Israel.

Revolt of Alexander Epiphanes

10 In the one hundred sixtieth year^t Alexander Epiphanes, son of Antiochus, landed and occupied Ptolemais. They welcomed him, and there he began to reign. ²When King Demetrius heard of it, he assembled a very large army and marched out to meet him in battle. ³Demetrius sent Jonathan a letter in peaceable words to honor him; ⁴for he said to himself, "Let us act first to make peace with him^u before he makes peace with Alexander against us, ⁵for he will remember all the wrongs that we did to him and to his brothers and his nation." ⁶So Demetrius^v gave him authority to recruit troops, to equip them with arms, and to become his ally; and he commanded that the hostages in the citadel should be released to him.

⁷ Then Jonathan came to Jerusalem and read the letter in the hearing of all the people and of those in the citadel. ⁸They were greatly alarmed when they heard that the king had given him authority to recruit troops. ⁹But those in the citadel released the hostages to Jonathan, and he returned them to their parents.

¹⁰ And Jonathan took up residence in Jerusalem and began to rebuild and restore the city. ¹¹He directed those who were doing the work to build the walls and encircle Mount Zion with squared stones, for better fortification; and they did so.

¹⁵ Now King Alexander heard of all the promises that Demetrius had sent to Jonathan, and he heard of the battles that Jonathan^v and his brothers had fought, of the brave deeds that they had done, and of the troubles that they had endured. ¹⁶So he said, "Shall we find another such man? Come now, we will make him our friend and ally." ¹⁷And he wrote a letter and sent it to him, in the following words:

Jonathan Becomes High Priest

des. 9.69 Bacchides' anger is now directed at the renegades, perhaps out of frustration at having been called on so many times to resolve internal conflicts in Judea. 9.70-72 With only Jonathan remaining as a significant political figure in Judea, Bacchides comes to terms with him. 9.73 Michmash, nine miles north of Jerusalem, had been the base of an earlier Israelite kingdom (1 Sam 13.2) and the scene of an earlier Jonathan's victory (1 Sam 14.5-31). It was Jonathan's headquarters from 157 to 152 B.C.E.

10.1-17 The appearance of Alexander Balas in 152 B.C.E. as a claimant to the Seleucid throne enabled Jonathan to gain concessions from him and Demetrius I. 10.1 Alexander Epiphanes (also called Balas, from the Hebrew ba'al) claimed to be the son of Antiochus IV Epiphanes. 10.3 Demetrius I recognized that Jonathan was the only remaining power in Judea. 10.6 The hostages were sons of the leading men of Judea (see 9.53). 10.11 The walls of Jerusalem had been destroyed on several occasions in recent years (1.31; 6.62). Mount Zion, the temple area. 10.14 The renegade Jews remained not only at Beth-zur (9.52) but also in Gazara (13.43). 10.15-16 As he made his move against Demetrius, Alexander wanted to avoid having Jonathan as an enemy at his rear.

10.18-25 Alexander offers Jonathan the Jewish high-priesthood, and Jonathan seizes the and worthy to be our friend. ²⁰And so we have appointed you today to be the high priest of your nation; you are to be called the king's Friend and you are to take our side and keep friendship with us." He also sent him a purple robe and a golden crown.

²¹ So Jonathan put on the sacred vestments in the seventh month of the one hundred sixtieth year,^w at the festival of booths,^x and he recruited troops and equipped them with arms in abundance. ²²When Demetrius heard of these things he was distressed and said, ²³"What is this that we have done? Alexander has gotten ahead of us in forming a friendship with the Jews to strengthen himself. ²⁴I also will write them words of encouragement and promise them honor and gifts, so that I may have their help." ²⁵So he sent a message to them in the following words:

A Letter from Demetrius to Jonathan

"King Demetrius to the nation of the Jews, greetings. ²⁶Since you have kept your agreement with us and have continued your friendship with us, and have not sided with our enemies, we have heard of it and rejoiced. ²⁷Now continue still to keep faith with us, and we will repay you with good for what you do for us. ²⁸We will grant you many immunities and give you gifts.

²⁹ "I now free you and exempt all the Jews from payment of tribute and salt tax and crown levies, ³⁰and instead of collecting the third of the grain and the half of the fruit of the trees that I should receive, I release them from this day and henceforth. I will not collect them from the land of Judah or from the three districts added to it from Samaria and Galilee, from this day and for all time. ³¹Jerusalem and its environs, its tithes and its revenues, shall be holy and free from tax. ³²I release also my control of the citadel in Jerusalem and give it to the high priest, so that he may station in it men of his own choice to guard it. ³³And everyone of the Jews taken as a captive from the land of Judah into any part of my kingdom, I set free without payment; and let all officials cancel also the taxes on their livestock.

³⁴ "All the festivals and sabbaths and new moons and appointed days, and the three days before a festival and the three after a festival—let them all be days of immunity and release for all the Jews who are in my kingdom. ³⁵No one shall have authority to exact anything from them or annoy any of them about any matter.

³⁸ "As for the three districts that have been added to Judea from the country of Samaria, let them be annexed to Judea so that they may be considered to be under one ruler and obey no other authority than the high priest. ³⁹Ptolemais and the opportunity. 10.20 The office of high priest had been vacant since the death of Alcimus. As Seleucid king, Alexander could appoint the Jewish high priest (2 Macc 4.7, 23–24), and Jonathan was from a priestly family (1 Macc 2.1). But he was not from the right high-priestly family. The purple robe and golden crown symbolized Jonathan's new offices as high priest and Friend of the king. 10.21 At the festival of booths (see Lev 23.39–43) in October 152 B.C.E. Jonathan assumed the office of Jewish high priest. Opposition to his claim may have been the occasion for the beginning of the Qumran community and the building of a rival temple by Onias IV at Leontopolis in Egypt (see 2 Macc 1.1–9).

10.25–45 The letter from Demetrius to Jonathan may have been originally intended to win the Jewish people away from Jonathan. In this context, however, it is used to confirm his privileges as high priest (10.32, 38). 10.25–28 The letter is addressed to the nation of the Jews, not to Jonathan directly. The claim that they have not sided with Demetrius's enemies overlooks Jonathan's acceptance of the high-priesthood from Alexander Balas. 10.29–45 The list of promises includes exemption from various taxes, recognition of Jerusalem as a holy city, release of Jewish captives, religious freedom for Jews, maintenance for Jewish soldiers, annexation of territory, subsidy for Jerusalem, right of asylum in Jerusalem, and money to rebuild Jerusalem.

land adjoining it I have given as a gift to the sanctuary in Jerusalem, to meet the necessary expenses of the sanctuary. ⁴⁰I also grant fifteen thousand shekels of silver yearly out of the king's revenues from appropriate places. ⁴¹And all the additional funds that the government officials have not paid as they did in the first years,^y they shall give from now on for the service of the temple.^z ⁴²Moreover, the five thousand shekels of silver that my officials^a have received every year from the income of the services of the temple, this too is canceled, because it belongs to the priests who minister there. ⁴³And all who take refuge at the temple in Jerusalem, or in any of its precincts, because they owe money to the king or are in debt, let them be released and receive back all their property in my kingdom.

⁴⁴ "Let the cost of rebuilding and restoring the structures of the sanctuary be paid from the revenues of the king. ⁴⁵And let the cost of rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem and fortifying it all around, and the cost of rebuilding the walls in Judea, also be paid from the revenues of the king."

Death of Demetrius

⁴⁶ When Jonathan and the people heard these words, they did not believe or accept them, because they remembered the great wrongs that Demetrius^b had done in Israel and how much he had oppressed them. ⁴⁷They favored Alexander, because he had been the first to speak peaceable words to them, and they remained his allies all his days.

⁴⁸ Now King Alexander assembled large forces and encamped opposite Demetrius. ⁴⁹The two kings met in battle, and the army of Demetrius fled, and Alexander^c pursued him and defeated them. ⁵⁰He pressed the battle strongly until the sun set, and on that day Demetrius fell.

Treaty of Ptolemy and Alexander

⁵¹ Then Alexander sent ambassadors to Ptolemy king of Egypt with the following message: ⁵²"Since I have returned to my kingdom and have taken my seat on the throne of my ancestors, and established my rule—for I crushed Demetrius and gained control of our country; ⁵³I met him in battle, and he and his army were crushed by us, and we have taken our seat on the throne of his kingdom—⁵⁴now therefore let us establish friendship with one another; give me now your daughter as my wife, and I will become your son-in-law, and will make gifts to you and to her in keeping with your position."

⁵⁵ Ptolemy the king replied and said, "Happy was the day on which you returned to the land of your ancestors and took your seat on the throne of their kingdom. ⁵⁶And now I will do for you as you wrote, but meet me at Ptolemais, so that we may see one another, and I will become your father-in-law, as you have said."

⁵⁹ Then King Alexander wrote to Jonathan to come and meet him. ⁶⁰So he went with pomp to Ptolemais and met the two kings; he gave them and their Friends silver and gold and many gifts, and found favor with them. ⁶¹A group of malcontents from Israel, renegades, gathered together against him to accuse him; but the king paid no attention to them. ⁶²The king gave orders to take off Jonathan's

10.46–50 Jonathan's distrust of Demetrius is borne out by the latter's defeat at the hands of Alexander. 10.47 As 1 Macc 10.3–6, 15 indicate, Demetrius had been the first to offer peace. 10.50 Demetrius was killed in battle in 150 B.C.E.

10.51–66 The marriage alliance between the Ptolemies and Seleucids served as the occasion for Jonathan's advancement. 10.51 Ptolemy king of Egypt was Ptolemy VI Philometor (see 1.18).

10.54 His daughter was Cleopatra Thea (10.58). Marriage alliances between the Seleucids and the Ptolemies were sometimes unsuccessful (see also Dan 2.43; 11.17). 10.56 Ptolemais (Acco) on the Palestinian coast was a neutral site. 10.60–61 Where Jonathan got the gifts is not said. His Jewish opponents, who are dismissed as malcontents and renegades, may have objected to his garments and to clothe him in purple, and they did so. ⁶³The king also seated him at his side; and he said to his officers, "Go out with him into the middle of the city and proclaim that no one is to bring charges against him about any matter, and let no one annoy him for any reason." ⁶⁴When his accusers saw the honor that was paid him, in accord with the proclamation, and saw him clothed in purple, they all fled. ⁶⁵Thus the king honored him and enrolled him among his chief Friends, and made him general and governor of the province. ⁶⁶And Jonathan returned to Jerusalem in peace and gladness.

Apollonius Is Defeated by Jonathan

⁶⁷ In the one hundred sixty-fifth year^f Demetrius son of Demetrius came from Crete to the land of his ancestors. ⁶⁸When King Alexander heard of it, he was greatly distressed and returned to Antioch. ⁶⁹And Demetrius appointed Apollonius the governor of Coelesyria, and he assembled a large force and encamped against Jamnia. Then he sent the following message to the high priest Jonathan:

⁷⁰ "You are the only one to rise up against us, and I have fallen into ridicule and disgrace because of you. Why do you assume authority against us in the hill country? ⁷¹If you now have confidence in your forces, come down to the plain to meet us, and let us match strength with each other there, for I have with me the power of the cities. ⁷²Ask and learn who I am and who the others are that are helping us. People will tell you that you cannot stand before us, for your ancestors were twice put to flight in their own land. ⁷³And now you will not be able to withstand my cavalry and such an army in the plain, where there is no stone or pebble, or place to flee."

⁷⁴ When Jonathan heard the words of Apollonius, his spirit was aroused. He chose ten thousand men and set out from Jerusalem, and his brother Simon met him to help him. ⁷⁵He encamped before Joppa, but the people of the city closed its gates, for Apollonius had a garrison in Joppa. ⁷⁶So they fought against it, and the people of the city became afraid and opened the gates, and Jonathan gained possession of Joppa.

⁷⁷ When Apollonius heard of it, he mustered three thousand cavalry and a large army, and went to Azotus as though he were going farther. At the same time he advanced into the plain, for he had a large troop of cavalry and put confidence in it. ⁷⁸Jonathan^g pursued him to Azotus, and the armies engaged in battle. ⁷⁹Now Apollonius had secretly left a thousand cavalry behind them. ⁸⁰Jonathan learned that there was an ambush behind him, for they surrounded his army and shot arrows at his men from early morning until late afternoon. ⁸¹But his men stood fast, as Jonathan had commanded, and the enemy's^h horses grew tired.

⁸² Then Simon brought forward his force and engaged the phalanx in battle (for the cavalry was exhausted); they were overwhelmed by him and fled, ⁸³and the cavalry was dispersed in the plain. They fled to Azotus and entered Beth-dagon, the temple of their idol, for safety. ⁸⁴But Jonathan burned Azotus and the surrounding towns and plundered them; and the temple of Dagon, and those who had taken refuge in it, he burned with fire. ⁸⁵The number of those who fell by the sword, with those burned alive, came to eight thousand.

⁸⁶ Then Jonathan left there and encamped against Askalon, and the people taxing or plundering them. 10.65 Jonathan is promoted from Friend to chief Friend and made the military and political ruler in Judea.

10.67–89 A plan to remove Jonathan fails and results in even greater honors for Jonathan when he defeats Apollonius. 10.67 Demetrius II was about fourteen in 147 B.C.E. 10.69 As governor of Coelesyria (originally the region between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon mountains, but later a designation also for Palestine) Apollonius was officially Jonathan's superior. Jamnia (Yavneh) was on the coast. 10.72–73 Apollonius's taunt that the Jews had been twice put to flight alludes to Judas's defeats at Beth-zachariah (6.47) and Elasa (9.18). The pebble recalls the David and Goliath episode (1 Sam 17.40, 49). 10.75–76 By taking Joppa (north of Jamnia) Jonathan cut Apollonius off from Demetrius II. 10.77–83 By heading south to Azotus (Ashdod) Apollonius also lured Jonathan out onto level ground (see 10.71, 73). 10.84–85 For Judas's similar treatment of other pagan sanctuaries, see 5.44, 68. 10.86 As-of the city came out to meet him with great pomp.

87 He and those with him then returned to Jerusalem with a large amount of booty. 88 When King Alexander heard of these things, he honored Jonathan still more; 89 and he sent to him a golden buckle, such as it is the custom to give to the King's Kinsmen. He also gave him Ekron and all its environs as his possession.

Ptolemy Invades Syria

11 Then the king of Egypt gathered great forces, like the sand by the seashore, and many ships; and he tried to get possession of Alexander's kingdom by trickery and add it to his own kingdom. 2 He set out for Syria with peaceable words, and the people of the towns opened their gates to him and went to meet him, for King Alexander had commanded them to meet him, since he was Alexander'sⁱ father-in-law. 3 But when Ptolemy entered the towns he stationed forces as a garrison in each town.

4 When he^j approached Azotus, they showed him the burnt-out temple of Dagon, and Azotus and its suburbs destroyed, and the corpses lying about, and the charred bodies of those whom Jonathan^k had burned in the war, for they had piled them in heaps along his route. 5 They also told the king what Jonathan had done, to throw blame on him; but the king kept silent. 6 Jonathan met the king at Joppa with pomp, and they greeted one another and spent the night there. 7 And Jonathan went with the king as far as the river called Eleutherus; then he returned to Jerusalem.

8 So King Ptolemy gained control of the coastal cities as far as Seleucia by the sea, and he kept devising wicked designs against Alexander. 9 He sent envoys to King Demetrius, saying, "Come, let us make a covenant with each other, and I will give you in marriage my daughter who was Alexander's wife, and you shall reign over your father's kingdom. 10 I now regret that I gave him my daughter, for he has tried to kill me." 11 He threw blame on Alexander^l because he coveted his kingdom. 12 So he took his daughter away from him and gave her to Demetrius. He was estranged from Alexander, and their enmity became manifest.

13 Then Ptolemy entered Antioch and put on the crown of Asia. Thus he put two crowns on his head, the crown of Egypt and that of Asia. 14 Now King Alexander was in Cilicia at that time, because the people of that region were in revolt. 15 When Alexander heard of it, he came against him in battle. Ptolemy marched out and met him with a strong force, and put him to flight. 16 So Alexander fled into Arabia to find protection there, and King Ptolemy was triumphant. 17 Zabdiel the Arab cut off the head of Alexander and sent it to Ptolemy. 18 But King Ptolemy died three days later, and his troops in the strongholds were killed by the inhabitants of the strongholds. 19 So Demetrius became king in the one hundred sixty-seventh year.^m

Jonathan's Diplomacy

20 In those days Jonathan assembled the Judeans to attack the citadel in Jerusalem, and he built many engines of war to

kalon, the harbor city south of Azotus, offered no resistance. 10.89 Kinsmen of the king fastened their purple cloaks with a golden buckle. Ekron, another ancient Philistine city, was on the road from Jerusalem to the coast.

11.1–19 The attempt by Ptolemy VI to annex the Seleucid kingdom ends in his death and that of Alexander Balas, thus allowing Demetrius II to take power in 145 B.C.E. 11.1 Other ancient sources cast doubt on the claim that the sole motive of Ptolemy VI Philometor was to get possession of Alexander's (Seleucid) kingdom (see also 11.11). 11.3 The garrisons that Ptolemy VI established in the coastal towns were destroyed after his death (see 11.18). 11.4–5 For what Jonathan did at Azotus, see 10.83–85. 11.7 The river Eleutherus, two hundred miles north of Joppa, marked the southern border of the Syrian territory of the Seleucids. 11.8 Seleucia, the port city of Antioch, was loyal to Demetrius II. 11.9–12 For the marriage alliance between Ptolemy and Alexander, see 10.51–58. 11.15 The battle was fought at the river Oenoparus near Antioch in the summer of 145 B.C.E. Ptolemy VI died (11.18) from wounds inflicted in this battle. 11.16 Arabia here refers to the northern desert, east of Damascus.

11.20–37 After another failed attempt at dislodging the citadel, Jonathan meets Demetrius II at Ptolemais, where he gains important conces-

use against it. ²¹But certain renegades who hated their nation went to the king and reported to him that Jonathan was besieging the citadel. ²²When he heard this he was angry, and as soon as he heard it he set out and came to Ptolemais; and he wrote Jonathan not to continue the siege, but to meet him for a conference at Ptolemais as quickly as possible.

²³ When Jonathan heard this, he gave orders to continue the siege. He chose some of the elders of Israel and some of the priests, and put himself in danger, ²⁴for he went to the king at Ptolemais, taking silver and gold and clothing and numerous other gifts. And he won his favor. ²⁵Although certain renegades of his nation kept making complaints against him, ²⁶the king treated him as his predecessors had treated him; he exalted him in the presence of all his Friends. ²⁷He confirmed him in the high priesthood and in as many other honors as he had formerly had, and caused him to be reckoned among his chiefⁿ Friends. ²⁸Then Jonathan asked the king to free Judea and the three districts of Samaria^o from tribute, and promised him three hundred talents. ²⁹The king consented, and wrote a letter to Jonathan about all these things; its contents were as follows:

³⁰ "King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan and to the nation of the Jews, greetings. ³¹This copy of the letter that we wrote concerning you to our kinsman Lasthenes we have written to you also, so that you may know what it says. ³²King Demetrius to his father Lasthenes, greetings. ³³We have determined to do good to the nation of the Jews, who are our friends and fulfill their obligations to us, because of the goodwill they show toward us. ³⁴We have confirmed as their possession both the territory of Judea and the three districts of Aphairema and Lydda and Rathamin; the latter, with all the region bordering them, were added to Judea from Samaria. To all those who offer sacrifice in Jerusalem we have granted release from^p the royal taxes that the king formerly received from them each year, from the crops of the land and the fruit of the trees. ³⁵And the other payments henceforth due to us of the tithes, and the taxes due to us, and the salt pits and the crown taxes due to us—from all these we shall grant them release. ³⁶And not one of these grants shall be canceled from this time on forever. ³⁷Now therefore take care to make a copy of this, and let it be given to Jonathan and put up in a conspicuous place on the holy mountain.'"

The Intrigue of Trypho

³⁸ When King Demetrius saw that the land was quiet before him and that there was no opposition to him, he dismissed all his troops, all of them to their own homes, except the foreign troops that he had recruited from the islands of the nations. So all the troops who had served under his predecessors hated him. ³⁹A certain Trypho had formerly been one of Alexander's supporters; he saw that all the troops were grumbling against Demetrius. So he went to Imalkue the Arab, who was bringing up Antiochus, the young son of Alexander, ⁴⁰and insistently sions and honors. 11.20–21 In light of the political confusion at Antioch Jonathan sought to get control of the citadel in Jerusalem. There is still opposition from other Jews (renegades) more closely allied to Seleucid interests. 11.23–29 At Ptolemais (Acco) Demetrius II confirmed many privileges promised or granted by Demetrius I and Alexander Balas (10.3–6, 15–20, 25–45, 59–66). 11.31–32 Lasthenes was the chief of Demetrius's Cretan mercenaries and his chief minister. The titles kinsman and father were honorary, expressing Lasthenes' role in the court of Demetrius. 11.34 For the three districts, see 10.30, 38; 11.28. Their revenues now go to the support of the Jerusalem temple. 11.37 For another public display of the copy of a treaty, see 8.22. The holy mountain is the Temple Mount, also called Mount Zion.

11.38–53 Jonathan helps Demetrius II put down a rebellion in Antioch but is not rewarded properly. 11.38 Lasthenes convinced Demetrius II to dismiss all the native troops, retaining only his mercenary troops; thus Demetrius was freed from financial obligations and could exercise tighter control. The islands were the home of Lasthenes' Cretan mercenaries. 11.39–40 Diodotus Trypho ("the luxurious one") persuaded Imalkue to let him set up Alexander's young son as urged him to hand Antiochus^q over to him, to become king in place of his father. He also reported to Imalkue^r what Demetrius had done and told of the hatred that the troops of Demetrius^s had for him; and he stayed there many days.

41 Now Jonathan sent to King Demetrius the request that he remove the troops of the citadel from Jerusalem, and the troops in the strongholds; for they kept fighting against Israel. 42 And Demetrius sent this message back to Jonathan: "Not only will I do these things for you and your nation, but I will confer great honor on you and your nation, if I find an opportunity. 43 Now then you will do well to send me men who will help me, for all my troops have revolted." 44 So Jonathan sent three thousand stalwart men to him at Antioch, and when they came to the king, the king rejoiced at their arrival.

45 Then the people of the city assembled within the city, to the number of a hundred and twenty thousand, and they wanted to kill the king. 46 But the king fled into the palace. Then the people of the city seized the main streets of the city and began to fight. 47 So the king called the Jews to his aid, and they all rallied around him and then spread out through the city; and they killed on that day about one hundred thousand. 48 They set fire to the city and seized a large amount of spoil on that day, and saved the king. 49 When the people of the city saw that the Jews had gained control of the city as they pleased, their courage failed and they cried out to the king with this entreaty: 50 "Grant us peace, and make the Jews stop fighting against us and our city." 51 And they threw down their arms and made peace. So the Jews gained glory in the sight of the king and of all the people in his kingdom, and they returned to Jerusalem with a large amount of spoil.

52 So King Demetrius sat on the throne of his kingdom, and the land was quiet before him. 53 But he broke his word about all that he had promised; he became estranged from Jonathan and did not repay the favors that Jonathan^t had done him, but treated him very harshly.

Trypho Seizes Power

54 After this Trypho returned, and with him the young boy Antiochus who began to reign and put on the crown. 55 All the troops that Demetrius had discharged gathered around him; they fought against Demetrius,^r and he fled and was routed. 56 Trypho captured the elephants^u and gained control of Antioch. 57 Then the young Antiochus wrote to Jonathan, saying, "I confirm you in the high priesthood and set you over the four districts and make you one of the king's Friends." 58 He also sent him gold plate and a table service, and granted him the right to drink from gold cups and dress in purple and wear a gold buckle. 59 He appointed Jonathan's^v brother Simon governor from the Ladder of Tyre to the borders of Egypt.

Campaigns of Jonathan and Simon

60 Then Jonathan set out and traveled beyond the river and among the towns, and all the army of Syria gathered to him as allies. When he came to Askalon, the people of the city met him and paid him honor. 61 From there he went to Gaza, but the people of Gaza shut him out. So he besieged it and burned its Antiochus VI. See 13.31–32 for Antiochus's murder by Trypho. 11.41 Jonathan's earlier attack against the citadel (11.20–21) failed. For the other strongholds, see 9.50–51. 11.44–51 The role played by the Jews, though substantial, was probably secondary to that of the Cretans under Lasthenes. 11.53 Trusting in his Greek mercenaries, Demetrius then demanded taxes from Judea going back to the "first kings."

11.54–59 Trypho through Antiochus VI gains Jonathan and Simon as allies. 11.55 Try-

pho exploited the unrest among the Seleucid troops (see 11.38). 11.58 For the gold buckle as a sign of the rank of the king's kinsman, see 10.89. 11.59 The appointment of Simon as governor of the coastal area (from Syria to Egypt) expands Maccabean control westward.

suburbs with fire and plundered them. ⁶²Then the people of Gaza pleaded with Jonathan, and he made peace with them, and took the sons of their rulers as hostages and sent them to Jerusalem. And he passed through the country as far as Damascus.

⁶³ Then Jonathan heard that the officers of Demetrius had come to Kadesh in Galilee with a large army, intending to remove him from office. ⁶⁴He went to meet them, but left his brother Simon in the country. ⁶⁵Simon encamped before Beth-zur and fought against it for many days and hemmed it in. ⁶⁶Then they asked him to grant them terms of peace, and he did so. He removed them from there, took possession of the town, and set a garrison over it.

⁶⁷ Jonathan and his army encamped by the waters of Gennesaret. Early in the morning they marched to the plain of Hazor, ⁶⁸and there in the plain the army of the foreigners met him; they had set an ambush against him in the mountains, but they themselves met him face to face. ⁶⁹Then the men in ambush emerged from their places and joined battle. ⁷⁰All the men with Jonathan fled; not one of them was left except Mattathias son of Absalom and Judas son of Chalphi, commanders of the forces of the army. ⁷¹Jonathan tore his clothes, put dust on his head, and prayed. ⁷²Then he turned back to the battle against the enemy^w and routed them, and they fled. ⁷³When his men who were fleeing saw this, they returned to him and joined him in the pursuit as far as Kadesh, to their camp, and there they encamped. ⁷⁴As many as three thousand of the foreigners fell that day. And Jonathan returned to Jerusalem.

12 Now when Jonathan saw that the time was favorable for him, he chose men and sent them to Rome to confirm and renew the friendship with them. ²He also sent letters to the same effect to the Spartans and to other places. ³So they went to Rome and entered the senate chamber and said, "The high priest Jonathan and the Jewish nation have sent us to renew the former friendship and alliance with them." ⁴And the Romans^x gave them letters to the people in every place, asking them to provide for the envoys^w safe conduct to the land of Judah.

⁵ This is a copy of the letter that Jonathan wrote to the Spartans: ⁶"The high priest Jonathan, the senate of the nation, the priests, and the rest of the Jewish people to their brothers the Spartans, greetings. ⁷Already in time past a letter was sent to the high priest Onias from Arius,^y who was king among you, stating that you are our brothers, as the appended copy shows. ⁸Onias welcomed the envoy with honor, and received the letter, which contained a clear declaration of alliance and friendship. ⁹Therefore, though we have no need of these things, since we have as encouragement the holy books that are in our hands, ¹⁰we have undertaken to send to renew our family ties and friendship with you, so that we may not become estranged from you, for considerable time has passed since you sent your letter to us. ¹¹We therefore remember you constantly on every occasion, both at our festivals and on other appropriate days, at the sacrifices that we offer and in our prayers, as

¹⁹ This is a copy of the letter that they sent to Onias: ²⁰"King Arius of the Spartans, to the high priest Onias, greetings. ²¹It has been found in writing concerning the Spartans and the Jews that they are brothers and are of the family of Abraham. ²²And now that we have learned this, please write us concerning your welfare; ²³we on our part write to you that your livestock and your property belong to us, and ours belong to you. We therefore command that our envoys^z report to you accordingly."

Further Campaigns of Jonathan and Simon

²⁴ Now Jonathan heard that the commanders of Demetrius had returned, with a larger force than before, to wage war against him. ²⁵So he marched away from Jerusalem and met them in the region of Hamath, for he gave them no opportunity to invade his own country. ²⁶He sent spies to their camp, and they returned and reported to him that the enemy^z were being drawn up in formation to attack the Jews^a by night. ²⁷So when the sun had set, Jonathan commanded his troops to be alert and to keep their arms at hand so as to be ready all night for battle, and he stationed outposts around the camp. ²⁸When the enemy heard that Jonathan and his troops were prepared for battle, they were afraid and were terrified at heart; so they kindled fires in their camp and withdrew.^b ²⁹But Jonathan and his troops did not know it until morning, for they saw the fires burning. ³⁰Then Jonathan pursued them, but he did not overtake them, for they had crossed the Eleutherus river. ³¹So Jonathan turned aside against the Arabs who are called Zabadeans, and he crushed them and plundered them. ³²Then he broke camp and went to Damascus, and marched through all that region.

³³ Simon also went out and marched through the country as far as Askalon and the neighboring strongholds. He turned aside to Joppa and took it by surprise, ³⁴for he had heard that they were ready to hand over the stronghold to those whom Demetrius had sent. And he stationed a garrison there to guard it.

³⁵ When Jonathan returned he convened the elders of the people and planned with them to build strongholds in Judea, ³⁶to build the walls of Jerusalem still higher, and to erect a high barrier between the citadel and the city to separate it from the city, in order to isolate it so that its garrison^z could neither buy nor sell. ³⁷So they gathered together to rebuild the city; part of the wall on the valley to the east had fallen, and he repaired the section called Chaphenatha. ³⁸Simon

12.14-15 The apparent failure of Onias I to respond to Arius I is explained as an unwillingness to annoy allies. 12.16 The ambassadors sent to Rome (see also 14.22, 24) stopped at Sparta on their return home. 12.21 The fiction that Spartans and Jews both descended from Abraham is an example of finding genealogical justification for an alliance.

12.24-38 Jonathan and Simon gain further military victories. 12.25 Hamath was in the Orontes Valley, between the Lebanon and Anti-Lebanon mountains. 12.31 The Zabadeans lived about thirty miles northwest of Damascus. There may be a connection with Zabdiel (11.17), who killed Alexander Balas. 12.33-34 Simon, now governor in the coastal district (11.59), put down a planned rebellion in Joppa (10.76). 12.35-36 The strongholds probably included those fortified by Bacchides (9.50; 10.12). The Jerusalem citadel still escaped Maccabean control. 12.37 Chapfenatha is usually identified as the "Second Quarter," northwest of the temple area (see 2 Kings 22.14). 12.38 Adida, near Lydda, could serve as a stronghold between the coastal plain and the hill country of Judea.

also built Adida in the Shephelah; he fortified it and installed gates with bolts.

Trypho Captures Jonathan

39 Then Trypho attempted to become king in Asia and put on the crown, and to raise his hand against King Antiochus. 40 He feared that Jonathan might not permit him to do so, but might make war on him, so he kept seeking to seize and kill him, and he marched out and came to Beth-shan. 41 Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand picked warriors, and he came to Beth-shan. 42 When Trypho saw that he had come with a large army, he was afraid to raise his hand against him. 43 So he received him with honor and commended him to all his Friends, and he gave him gifts and commanded his Friends and his troops to obey him as they would himself. 44 Then he said to Jonathan, "Why have you put all these people to so much trouble when we are not at war? 45 Dismiss them now to their homes and choose for yourself a few men to stay with you, and come with me to Ptolemais. I will hand it over to you as well as the other strongholds and the remaining troops and all the officials, and will turn around and go home. For that is why I am here."

46 Jonathan^c trusted him and did as he said; he sent away the troops, and they returned to the land of Judah. 47 He kept with himself three thousand men, two thousand of whom he left in Galilee, while one thousand accompanied him. 48 But when Jonathan entered Ptolemais, the people of Ptolemais closed the gates and seized him, and they killed with the sword all who had entered with him.

49 Then Trypho sent troops and cavalry into Galilee and the Great Plain to destroy all Jonathan's soldiers. 50 But they realized that Jonathan had been seized and had perished along with his men, and they encouraged one another and kept marching in close formation, ready for battle. 51 When their pursuers saw that they would fight for their lives, they turned back. 52 So they all reached the land of Judah safely, and they mourned for Jonathan and his companions and were in great fear; and all Israel mourned deeply. 53 All the nations around them tried to destroy them, for they said, "They have no leader or helper. Now therefore let us make war on them and blot out the memory of them from humankind."

Simon Takes Command

13 Simon heard that Trypho had assembled a large army to invade the land of Judah and destroy it, 2 and he saw that the people were trembling with fear. So he went up to Jerusalem, and gathering the people together 3 he encouraged them, saying to them, "You yourselves know what great things my brothers and I and the house of my father have done for the laws and the sanctuary; you know also the wars and the difficulties that my brothers and I have seen. 4 By reason of this all my brothers have perished for the sake of Israel, and I alone am left. 5 And now, far be it from me to spare my life in any time of distress, for I am not better than my brothers. 6 But I will avenge my nation and the sanctuary and your wives and children, for all the nations have gathered together out of hatred to destroy us."

7 The spirit of the people was rekindled when they heard these words, 8 and they answered in a loud voice, "You are our leader in place of Judas and your brother Jonathan. 9 Fight our battles, and all that you say to us we will do." 10 So he assembled all the warriors and hurried to 12.39–53 Trypho is first thwarted from capturing Jonathan but finally succeeds in so doing, thus leaving Israel without a leader or helper (12.53). 12.39 Asia was a common name for the Seleucid Empire. 12.40–41 Beth-shan (Scythopolis) was a strategic point in the Jordan Valley (see 5.52). Though forty thousand picked warriors is an exaggeration, it does seem that Jonathan's large force frightened Trypho. 12.48 For earlier references to the hostility of Ptolemais, see 5.15, 22, 55. 12.49 The Great Plain, also called Esdraelon, the western section of the valleys and plains separating Galilee from Samaria. 12.50 As 13.23 shows, Jonathan had not perished.

13.1–11 The only remaining brother (see 2.1–5), Simon takes on Jonathan's roles in Judea. 13.3–6 Simon's speech reminds the people of what the Maccabees fought for (laws, sanctuary, Israel) and how they died in doing so: Eleazar (6.46), Judas (9.18), John (9.36–42), and Jonathan (13.23). 13.10–11 See 12.36–37 for fortifications in Jerusalem and 12.33–34 for problems complete the walls of Jerusalem, and he fortified it on every side. ¹¹He sent Jonathan son of Absalom to Joppa, and with him a considerable army; he drove out its occupants and remained there.

Deceit and Treachery of Trypho

12 Then Trypho left Ptolemais with a large army to invade the land of Judah, and Jonathan was with him under guard. ¹³Simon encamped in Adida, facing the plain. ¹⁴Trypho learned that Simon had risen up in place of his brother Jonathan, and that he was about to join battle with him, so he sent envoys to him and said, ¹⁵"It is for the money that your brother Jonathan owed the royal treasury, in connection with the offices he held, that we are detaining him. ¹⁶Send now one hundred talents of silver and two of his sons as hostages, so that when released he will not revolt against us, and we will release him."

17 Simon knew that they were speaking deceitfully to him, but he sent to get the money and the sons, so that he would not arouse great hostility among the people, who might say, ¹⁸"It was because Simon^d did not send him the money and the sons, that Jonathan^e perished." ¹⁹So he sent the sons and the hundred talents, but Trypho^e broke his word and did not release Jonathan.

20 After this Trypho came to invade the country and destroy it, and he circled around by the way to Adora. But Simon and his army kept marching along opposite him to every place he went. ²¹Now the men in the citadel kept sending envoys to Trypho urging him to come to them by way of the wilderness and to send them food. ²²So Trypho got all his cavalry ready to go, but that night a very heavy snow fell, and he did not go because of the snow. He marched off and went into the land of Gilead. ²³When he approached Baskama, he killed Jonathan, and he was buried there. ²⁴Then Trypho turned and went back to his own land.

Jonathan's Tomb

25 Simon sent and took the bones of his brother Jonathan, and buried him in Modein, the city of his ancestors. ²⁶All Israel bewailed him with great lamentation, and mourned for him many days. ²⁷And Simon built a monument over the tomb of his father and his brothers; he made it high so that it might be seen, with polished stone at the front and back. ²⁸He also erected seven pyramids, opposite one another, for his father and mother and four brothers. ²⁹For the pyramids^f he devised an elaborate setting, erecting about them great columns, and on the columns he put suits of armor for a permanent memorial, and beside the suits of armor he carved ships, so that they could be seen by all who sail the sea. ³⁰This is the tomb that he built in Modein; it remains to this day.

at Joppa. Jonathan son of Absalom may have been the brother of Mattathias (11.70).

13.12-24 Trypho deceives Simon and kills Jonathan but then fails to capture Jerusalem. 13.13 Adida, recently fortified (12.38), blocked the road from Ptolemais to Jerusalem. 13.15-16 Why Jonathan owed money to the royal treasury is not specified; it was an excuse that Trypho exploited. Perhaps the independence shown by Jonathan was interpreted as a revolt, for the Seleucids looked on the Maccabees as their clients. 13.20 Trypho tried to approach Jerusalem from the south, as Lysias had done (4.29; 6.31). Adora was about five miles southwest of Hebron. 13.21 The garrison at the citadel urged Trypho to attack from the wilderness of Judah, from the south and southeast. 13.22-23 The location of Baskama is uncertain. If it was in Gilead (rather than Galilee), Trypho made a large circle in his abortive attack on Jerusalem. He probably killed Jonathan's hostage sons also (13.16, 19) in the winter of 143/42 B.C.E.

13.25-30 The interment of Jonathan's bones becomes the occasion for Simon to build a monument to his family. 13.25-27 The family tomb at Modein (2.70; 9.19) was presumably a cave or chamber carved out of rock, with small recesses for corpses. The monument was built over it. 13.28 For the pyramid or pillar of Absalom, see 2 Sam 18.18. The remaining pyramid was for Simon. 13.29-30 The ships may have commemorated the capture of Joppa. Modein was twelve miles from the sea.

13.31-42 Simon's support for Demetrius II

on the crown of Asia; and he brought great calamity on the land. ³³But Simon built up the strongholds of Judea and walled them all around, with high towers and great walls and gates and bolts, and he stored food in the strongholds. ³⁴Simon also chose emissaries and sent them to King Demetrius with a request to grant relief to the country, for all that Trypho did was to plunder. ³⁵King Demetrius sent him a favorable reply to this request, and wrote him a letter as follows, ³⁶"King Demetrius to Simon, the high priest and friend of kings, and to the elders and nation of the Jews, greetings. ³⁷We have received the gold crown and the palm branch that you^g sent, and we are ready to make a general peace with you and to write to our officials to grant you release from tribute. ³⁸All the grants that we have made to you remain valid, and let the strongholds that you have built be your possession. ³⁹We pardon any errors and offenses committed to this day, and cancel the crown tax that you owe; and whatever other tax has been collected in Jerusalem shall be collected no longer. ⁴⁰And if any of you are qualified to be enrolled in our bodyguard,^h let them be enrolled, and let there be peace between us."

⁴¹In the one hundred seventieth yearⁱ the yoke of the Gentiles was removed from Israel, ⁴²and the people began to write in their documents and contracts, "In the first year of Simon the great high priest and commander and leader of the Jews."

The Capture of Gazara by Simon

⁴³In those days Simon^j encamped against Gazara^k and surrounded it with troops. He made a siege engine, brought it up to the city, and battered and captured one tower. ⁴⁴The men in the siege engine leaped out into the city, and a great tumult arose in the city. ⁴⁵The men in the city, with their wives and children, went up on the wall with their clothes torn, and they cried out with a loud voice, asking Simon to make peace with them; ⁴⁶they said, "Do not treat us according to our wicked acts but according to your mercy." ⁴⁷So Simon reached an agreement with them and stopped fighting against them. But he expelled them from the city and cleansed the houses in which the idols were located, and then entered it with hymns and praise. ⁴⁸He removed all uncleanness from it, and settled in it those who observed the law. He also strengthened its fortifications and built in it a house for himself.

Simon Regains the Citadel at Jerusalem

⁴⁹Those who were in the citadel at Jerusalem were prevented from going in and out to buy and sell in the country. So they were very hungry, and many of them perished from famine. ⁵⁰Then they cried to Simon to make peace with them, and he did so. But he expelled them from there and cleansed the citadel from its pollutions. ⁵¹On the twenty-third day of wins Judea's freedom from the annual crown tax. 13.31-32 Trypho deposed Antiochus VI in 142 B.C.E. and had him killed in 139 B.C.E. For putting on the crown of Asia, see 8.6. 13.34 Simon went over to Demetrius II not only because Trypho killed Jonathan but also because Trypho demanded heavy taxes (plunder). 13.37 The gold crown and the palm branch were peace offerings. 13.39-40 The errors and offenses included supporting Trypho and fighting against Demetrius II (11.63-74; 12.24-32). The crown tax was the annual tribute from Jerusalem. For the royal bodyguard, see 11.47-48. 13.41-42 The yoke of the Gentiles may refer specifically to the annual crown tax (13.39). Its removal was taken as the start of a new era, that of Simon.

13.43-48 With Trypho and Demetrius II occupied with their own struggle, Simon captures Gazara (Gezer). 13.43 The reading Gaza in the Greek is surely incorrect; the capture of Gazara (Gezer) is assumed in 13.53; 14.7, 34; 15.28, 35; 16.1, 19, 21. The siege engine was a movable tower containing battering rams and catapults, able to accommodate many soldiers. 13.47-48 Simon not only made Gazara a Jewish city (thus ensuring its loyalty to him) but also was able to reward his soldiers and supporters with its property.

13.49-53 The capture of the citadel at Jerusalem, the last symbol of anti-Maccabean power in Jerusalem, marks the final success of the revolt. There are parallels with the cleansing of the temple (4.41-61). 13.49-52 The citadel, founded under Antiochus IV in 167 B.C.E., fell in June 141 B.C.E. It was now fortified by Simon's the second month, in the one hundred seventy-first year,^l the Jews^m entered it with praise and palm branches, and with harps and cymbals and stringed instruments, and with hymns and songs, because a great enemy had been crushed and removed from Israel. ⁵²Simonⁿ decreed that every year they should celebrate this day with rejoicing. He strengthened the fortifications of the temple hill alongside the citadel, and he and his men lived there. ⁵³Simon saw that his son John had reached manhood, and so he made him commander of all the forces; and he lived at Gazara.

Capture of Demetrius

14 In the one hundred seventy-second year^o King Demetrius assembled his forces and marched into Media to obtain help, so that he could make war against Trypho. ²When King Arsaces of Persia and Media heard that Demetrius had invaded his territory, he sent one of his generals to take him alive. ³The generalⁿ went and defeated the army of Demetrius, and seized him and took him to Arsaces, who put him under guard.

Eulogy of Simon

- 4 The land^p had rest all the days of Simon.
He sought the good of his nation;
his rule was pleasing to them,
as was the honor shown him, all his days.
- 5 To crown all his honors he took Joppa for a harbor,
and opened a way to the isles of the sea.
- 6 He extended the borders of his nation,

and gained full control of the country.

- 7 He gathered a host of captives;
he ruled over Gazara and Beth-zur and the citadel,
and he removed its uncleanness from it;
and there was none to oppose him.
- 8 They tilled their land in peace;
the ground gave its increase,
and the trees of the plains their fruit.
- 9 Old men sat in the streets;
they all talked together of good things,
and the youths put on splendid military attire.
- 10 He supplied the towns with food,
and furnished them with the means of defense,
until his renown spread to the ends of the earth.
- 11 He established peace in the land,
and Israel rejoiced with great joy.
- 12 All the people sat under their own vines and fig trees,
and there was none to make them afraid.
- 13 No one was left in the land to fight them,
and the kings were crushed in those days.
- 14 He gave help to all the humble among his people;
he sought out the law,
and did away with all the renegades and outlaws.
- 15 He made the sanctuary glorious,
and added to the vessels of the sanctuary.

Diplomacy with Rome and Sparta

16 It was heard in Rome, and as far away as Sparta, that Jonathan had died, and they were deeply grieved. ¹⁷When they heard that his brother Simon had become high priest in his stead, and that he was ruling over the country and the towns in it, ¹⁸they wrote to him on bronze tablets to renew with him the friendship and alliance that they had established with his brothers Judas and Jonathan. ¹⁹And these were read before the assembly in Jerusalem.

20 This is a copy of the letter that the Spartans sent:

"The rulers and the city of the Spartans to the high priest Simon and to the elders and the priests and the rest of the Jewish people, our brothers, greetings. ²¹The envoys who were sent to our people have told us about your glory and honor, and we rejoiced at their coming. ²²We have recorded what they said in our public decrees, as follows, 'Numenius son of Antiochus and Antipater son of Jason, envoys of the Jews, have come to us to renew their friendship with us. ²³It has pleased our people to receive these men with honor and to put a copy of their words in the public archives, so that the people of the Spartans may have a record of them. And they have sent a copy of this to the high priest Simon.'"

24 After this Simon sent Numenius to Rome with a large gold shield weighing one thousand minas, to confirm the alliance with the Romans.^q

Official Honors for Simon

25 When the people heard these things they said, "How shall we thank Simon and his sons? ²⁶For he and his brothers and the house of his father have stood firm; they have fought and repulsed Israel's enemies and established its freedom."²⁷ So they made a record on bronze tablets and put it on pillars on Mount Zion.

This is a copy of what they wrote: "On the eighteenth day of Elul, in the one hundred seventy-second year,^r which is the third year of the great high priest Simon, ²⁸in Asaramel,^s in the great assembly of the priests and the people and the rulers of the nation and the elders of the country, the following was proclaimed to us:

29 "Since wars often occurred in the country, Simon son of Mattathias, a priest of the sons' of Joarib, and his brothers, exposed themselves to danger and resisted the enemies of their nation, in order that their sanctuary and the law might be preserved; and they brought great glory to their nation. ³⁰Jonathan rallied the^u nation, became their high priest, and was gathered to his people. ³¹When their enemies decided to invade their country and lay hands on their sanctuary, ³²then Simon rose up and fought for his nation. He spent great sums of his own money; he armed the soldiers of his nation and paid them wages. ³³He fortified the towns of Judea, and Beth-zur on the borders of Judea, where formerly the arms of the enemy had been stored, and he placed there a garrison of Jews. ³⁴He also fortified Joppa, which is by the sea, and Gazara, which is on the borders of Azotus, where the enemy formerly lived. He settled Jews there, and provided in those towns^q whatever was necessary for their restoration.

35 "The people saw Simon's faithfulness^v and the glory that he had resolved to win for his nation, and they made him their leader and high priest, because he

14.16-24 The alliances with Rome and Sparta are renewed under Simon. 14.18 It was customary to renew alliances when leadership changed. The renewal of the Roman alliance probably took place shortly after Simon's accession in 142 B.C.E. For bronze tablets, see 8.22. 14.22 Numenius and Antipater had served previously as Jonathan's ambassadors (12.16). 14.24 The report about the gold shield may belong before 14.16, since Numenius and Antipater had already visited Rome and Sparta (14.16, 22).

14.25-49 The official decree declaring Simon the benefactor of the people outlines his good deeds, confirms him as sole leader, and warns those who oppose him. 14.27 The decree is dated September 140 B.C.E. 14.32 Nothing has been said about Simon's spending great sums of his own money unless 13.15-19; 14.24 should be taken this way. Apart from this, 14.29-40 summarizes events narrated elsewhere in the book.

had done all these things and because of the justice and loyalty that he had maintained toward his nation. He sought in every way to exalt his people. ³⁶In his days things prospered in his hands, so that the Gentiles were put out of the^w country, as were also those in the city of David in Jerusalem, who had built themselves a citadel from which they used to sally forth and defile the environs of the sanctuary, doing great damage to its purity. ³⁷He settled Jews in it and fortified it for the safety of the country and of the city, and built the walls of Jerusalem higher.

³⁸ "In view of these things King Demetrius confirmed him in the high priesthood, ³⁹made him one of his Friends, and paid him high honors. ⁴⁰For he had heard that the Jews were addressed by the Romans as friends and allies and brothers, and that the Romans^x had received the envoys of Simon with honor.

⁴¹ "The Jews and their priests have resolved that Simon should be their leader and high priest forever, until a trustworthy prophet should arise, ⁴²and that he should be governor over them and that he should take charge of the sanctuary and appoint officials over its tasks and over the country and the weapons and the strongholds, and that he should take charge of the sanctuary, ⁴³and that he should be obeyed by all, and that all contracts in the country should be written in his name, and that he should be clothed in purple and wear gold.

⁴⁴ "None of the people or priests shall be permitted to nullify any of these decisions or to oppose what he says, or to convene an assembly in the country without his permission, or to be clothed in purple or put on a gold buckle. ⁴⁵Whoever acts contrary to these decisions or rejects any of them shall be liable to punishment."

⁴⁶ All the people agreed to grant Simon the right to act in accordance with these decisions. ⁴⁷So Simon accepted and agreed to be high priest, to be commander and ethnarch of the Jews and priests, and to be protector of them all.^y ⁴⁸And they gave orders to inscribe this decree on bronze tablets, to put them up in a conspicuous place in the precincts of the sanctuary, ⁴⁹and to deposit copies of them in the treasury, so that Simon and his sons might have them.

Letter of Antiochus VII

15 Antiochus, son of King Demetrius, sent a letter from the islands of the sea to Simon, the priest and ethnarch of the Jews, and to all the nation; ²its contents were as follows: "King Antiochus to Simon the high priest and ethnarch and to the nation of the Jews, greetings. ³Whereas certain scoundrels have gained control of the kingdom of our ancestors, and I intend to lay claim to the kingdom so that I may restore it as it formerly was, and have recruited a host of mercenary troops and have equipped warships, ⁴and intend to make a landing in the country so that I may proceed against those who have destroyed our country and those who have devastated many cities in my kingdom, ⁵now therefore I confirm to you all the tax remissions that the kings before me have granted you, and a release from all the other payments from which they have released you. ⁶I permit you to mint your own coinage as money for your country, ⁷and I grant freedom to Jerusalem and the sanctuary. All the weapons that you have prepared and the strongholds that you have built and now hold shall remain yours. ⁸Every debt you owe to the royal treasury and any such future debts shall be canceled for you from henceforth and for all time. ⁹When we gain control of our 14.41–42 The people agree that Simon should have military (leader), religious (high priest), and political (governor) power. 10 In the one hundred seventy-fourth year^z Antiochus set out and invaded the land of his ancestors. All the troops rallied to him, so that there were only a few with Trypho. ¹¹Antiochus pursued him, and Trypho^a came in his flight to Dor, which is by the sea; ¹²for he knew that troubles had converged on him, and his troops had deserted him. ¹³So Antiochus encamped against Dor, and with him were one hundred twenty thousand warriors and eight thousand cavalry. ¹⁴He surrounded the town, and the ships joined battle from the sea; he pressed the town hard from land and sea, and permitted no one to leave or enter it.

Rome Supports the Jews

15 Then Numenius and his companions arrived from Rome, with letters to the kings and countries, in which the following was written: ¹⁶"Lucius, consul of the Romans, to King Ptolemy, greetings. ¹⁷The envoys of the Jews have come to us as our friends and allies to renew our ancient friendship and alliance. They had been sent by the high priest Simon and by the Jewish people ¹⁸and have brought a gold shield weighing one thousand minas. ¹⁹We therefore have decided to write to the kings and countries that they should not seek their harm or make war against them and their cities and their country, or make alliance with those who war against them. ²⁰And it has seemed good to us to accept the shield from them. ²¹Therefore if any scoundrels have fled to you from their country, hand them over to the high priest Simon, so that he may punish them according to their law."

22 The consul^b wrote the same thing to King Demetrius and to Attalus and Ariarathes and Arsaces, ²³and to all the countries, and to Sampsames,^c and to the Spartans, and to Delos, and to Myndos, and to Sicyon, and to Caria, and to Samos, and to Pamphylia, and to Lycia, and to Halicarnassus, and to Rhodes, and to Phaselis, and to Cos, and to Side, and to Aradus and Gortyna and Cnidus and Cyprus and Cyrene. ²⁴They also sent a copy of these things to the high priest Simon.

Antiochus VII Threatens Simon

25 King Antiochus besieged Dor for the second time, continually throwing his forces against it and making engines of war; and he shut Trypho up and kept him from going out or in. ²⁶And Simon sent to Antiochus^d two thousand picked troops, to fight for him, and silver and gold and a large amount of military equipment. ²⁷But he refused to receive them, and broke all the agreements he formerly had made with Simon, and became estranged from him. ²⁸He sent to him Athenobius, one of his Friends, to confer with him, saying, "You hold control of Joppa and Gazara and the citadel in Jerusalem; they are cities of my kingdom. ²⁹You have devastated their territory, you have done great damage in the land, and you have taken possession of many places in my kingdom. ³⁰Now then, hand over the cities that you have seized and the tribute money of the places that you have conquered outside the borders of Judea; ³¹or else pay me five hundred chus VII regarded the Jews as part of his own kingdom. 15.11 Dor was south of Mount Carmel and nine miles north of Caesarea.

15.15–24 The sequel to 14.16–24, this passage presents a letter (from the copy sent to Simon, 15.24) reaffirming friendship and alliance between Rome and the Jews. 15.15 Numenius, the Jewish envoy (12.16; 14.22, 24). 15.16 Lucius Caecilius Metellus (consul in 142 B.C.E.) addresses Ptolemy VIII Euergetes II (Physcon; ca. 145–116 B.C.E.). The text sent to the Egyptian ruler was also sent to those listed in 15.22–23. 15.22 Demetrius II of Syria (see 14.3); Attalus II of Pergamum; Ariarathes V of Cappadocia; and Arsaces of Parthia (see 14.2). 15.23 The countries are mainly independent states in Asia Minor, Greece, and the Greek Isles.

15.25–36 Antiochus VII refuses Simon's aid, takes away all concessions, and demands indemnities from Simon. 15.25 The story broken off in 15.14 is rejoined with the awkward expression for the second time. 15.27 Antiochus VII refused Simon's help because victory was in his grasp and he did not need Simon. Therefore he retracted the promises made in 15.5–9. 15.30 The places outside the borders of Judea probably included the Samaritan districts (11.34) as well as Adida.

talents of silver for the destruction that you have caused and five hundred talents more for the tribute money of the cities. Otherwise we will come and make war on you."

32 So Athenobius, the king's Friend, came to Jerusalem, and when he saw the splendor of Simon, and the sideboard with its gold and silver plate, and his great magnificence, he was amazed. When he reported to him the king's message, 33 Simon said to him in reply: "We have neither taken foreign land nor seized foreign property, but only the inheritance of our ancestors, which at one time had been unjustly taken by our enemies. 34 Now that we have the opportunity, we are firmly holding the inheritance of our ancestors. 35 As for Joppa and Gazara, which you demand, they were causing great damage among the people and to our land; for them we will give you one hundred talents."

Athenobius^e did not answer him a word, 36 but returned in wrath to the king and reported to him these words, and also the splendor of Simon and all that he had seen. And the king was very angry.

Victory over Cendebeus

37 Meanwhile Trypho embarked on a ship and escaped to Orthosia. 38 Then the king made Cendebeus commander-in-chief of the coastal country, and gave him troops of infantry and cavalry. 39 He commanded him to encamp against Judea, to build up Kedron and fortify its gates, and to make war on the people; but the king pursued Trypho. 40 So Cendebeus came to Jamnia and began to provoke the people and invade Judea and take the people captive and kill them. 41 He built up Kedron and stationed horsemen and troops there, so that they might go out and make raids along the highways of Judea, as the king had ordered him.

16 John went up from Gazara and reported to his father Simon what Cendebeus had done. 2 And Simon called in his two eldest sons Judas and John, and said to them: "My brothers and I and my father's house have fought the wars of Israel from our youth until this day, and things have prospered in our hands so that we have delivered Israel many times. 3 But now I have grown old, and you by Heaven's^f mercy are mature in years. Take my place and my brother's, and go out and fight for our nation, and may the help that comes from Heaven be with you."

4 So John^g chose out of the country twenty thousand warriors and cavalry, and they marched against Cendebeus and camped for the night in Modein. 5 Early in the morning they started out and marched into the plain, where a large force of infantry and cavalry was coming to meet them; and a stream lay between them. 6 Then he and his army lined up against them. He saw that the soldiers were afraid to cross the stream, so he crossed over first; and when his troops saw him, they crossed over after him. 7 Then he divided the army and placed the cavalry in the center of the infantry, for the cavalry of the enemy were very numerous. 8 They sounded the trumpets, and Cendebeus and his army were put to flight; many of them fell wounded and the rest fled into the stronghold. 9 At that time Judas the brother of John was wounded, but John pursued them until Cendebeus^h reached Kedron, which he had built. 10 They also fled into the towers that were in the fields of Azotus, and

Beth-zur, and Akkaron. 15.33 The right to the inheritance of one's ancestors was based on Greek international law as well as (in the case of the Jews) the biblical promises of the land.

15.37–16.10 Simon's son John defeats the Seleucids under Cendebeus. 15.37 When Trypho escaped to Orthosia (a port north of Tripolis), Antiochus VII pursued him and had him killed in Apamea. 15.38–41 Cendebeus, appointed governor of the coastal region in the absence of Antiochus VII, used Kedron (four miles southeast of Jamnia) as a base. 16.1 The Maccabean fortress nearest to Cendebeus's activity was Gazara, where John Hyrcanus was in command (see 13.53). 16.2 For the fate of Judas and his brother Mattathias, see 16.14. 16.4 Jewish cavalry is mentioned here for the first time. Modein (see 2.1) remained a center of Maccabean support. 16.6 For courage in crossing the stream, see Judas's action in 5.40–43. 16.7 The Jewish cavalry went up against the Seleucid infantry, not the cavalry, thus confusing the enemy's battle plan. 16.10 Jonathan had already burned Azotus (10.84).

Johnⁱ burned it with fire, and about two thousand of them fell. He then returned to Judea safely.

Murder of Simon and His Sons

11 Now Ptolemy son of Abubus had been appointed governor over the plain of Jericho; he had a large store of silver and gold, ¹²for he was son-in-law of the high priest. ¹³His heart was lifted up; he determined to get control of the country, and made treacherous plans against Simon and his sons, to do away with them. ¹⁴Now Simon was visiting the towns of the country and attending to their needs, and he went down to Jericho with his sons Mattathias and Judas, in the one hundred seventy-seventh year,^j in the eleventh month, which is the month of Shebat. ¹⁵The son of Abubus received them treacherously in the little stronghold called Dok, which he had built; he gave them a great banquet, and hid men there. ¹⁶When Simon and his sons were drunk, Ptolemy and his men rose up, took their weapons, rushed in against Simon in the banquet hall and killed him and his two sons, as well as some of his servants. ¹⁷So he committed an act of great treachery and returned evil for good.

John Succeeds Simon

18 Then Ptolemy wrote a report about these things and sent it to the king, asking him to send troops to aid him and to turn over to him the towns and the country. ¹⁹He sent other troops to Gazara to do away with John; he sent letters to the captains asking them to come to him so that he might give them silver and gold and gifts; ²⁰and he sent other troops to take possession of Jerusalem and the temple hill. ²¹But someone ran ahead and reported to John at Gazara that his father and brothers had perished, and that "he has sent men to kill you also." ²²When he heard this, he was greatly shocked; he seized the men who came to destroy him and killed them, for he had found out that they were seeking to destroy him.

²³ The rest of the acts of John and his wars and the brave deeds that he did, and the building of the walls that he completed, and his achievements, ²⁴are written in the annals of his high priesthood, from the time that he became high priest after his father.

2 MACCABEES

Contents

THE SECOND BOOK OF MACCABEES supplies important information about the events leading up to the revolt under Judas Maccabeus and recounts the subsequent exploits of Judas up to 161 B.C.E. (his defeat of Nicanor). It describes the political intrigues surrounding the Jewish high-priesthood and portrays Judas Maccabeus as the ideal Jewish warrior—one who prays before battles and gives thanks afterward, always careful to observe the sabbath and other Jewish rituals.

The body of 2 Maccabees (2.19–15.39) narrates three attacks on the Jerusalem temple by Israel's enemies and their defeats by supernatural agents or by Judas and his companions. The first attack (3.1–40) occurred under Seleucus IV when Heliodorus sought to plunder the temple treasury. The second attack (4.1–10.9) took place under Antiochus IV Epiphanes and ended with Judas's capture of the temple and its purification. The third attack (10.10–15.36) happened under Antiochus V Eupator and involved the defeat of his general Nicanor as he tried to kill Judas. Though this outline does not include everything in the book, it does bring out which events were most important for the author and underlines his emphasis on the holiness and inviolability of the Jerusalem temple.

Literary Connections and Character

In the author's preface (2.19–32) we are told that 2 Maccabees is the condensation of a five-volume work by Jason of Cyrene (2.23). He claims to rely on Jason for the facts and proposes to give a pleasurable and memorable account. Jason's work is no longer extant, and there is no way of being sure how closely the condenser/epitomator followed his source. The original language of both Jason's five-volume work and 2 Maccabees was Greek. The Greek is not nearly as "biblical" as that of 1 Maccabees. Jason may have written shortly after the events he described; at least the narrative breaks off before the death of Judas. The condensation seems to have been completed by 124 B.C.E., the date of the "cover letter" preserved in 2 Macc 1.1–9.

The major theme of 2 Maccabees is the Jerusalem temple, whose Defender is the God of Israel at work in angelic figures and especially in Judas Maccabeus. Thus the book is sometimes called “temple propaganda” in that it stresses the sanctity of that temple. The book is also described as “pathetic history” in that it speaks to and plays upon human emotions (Greek pathē). The two prefixed letters (1.1–9; 1.10–2.18) encourage Jews in Egypt and elsewhere to observe the festival of Hanukkah as it was being observed in Jerusalem. The letters were added to the main work as it was sent to diaspora Jews.

As a historical source 2 Maccabees is especially valuable for information concerning the disputes among Jews regarding the high-priesthood (Onias III, Jason, Menelaus) and the cultural-religious program of hellenization carried out under Antiochus IV (4.9–17; 6.1–9). When it recounts the battles and other events described in 1 Maccabees, it tends to be less reliable on facts and more concerned with religious matters. The author probably did not have access to 1 Maccabees (which may not have yet been written). It is possible that the two writers used a common source, but this is difficult to prove. The letters quoted in ch. 11 are very likely authentic documents, though they contain some confusions and obscurities. The battle accounts are far less precise than those in 1 Maccabees, but share the tendency to inflate the numbers of enemy troops and casualties.

Theological Ideas

Besides stressing the inviolability of the Jerusalem temple, 2 Maccabees is noteworthy for its doctrine of suffering (5.18–20; 6.12–17) and portrayal of martyrs (6.10–11, 18–31; 7.1–42; 14.37–46). The sufferings inflicted on the Jews are the consequence of their leaders’ sins (Simon, Jason, Menelaus) and a sign of God’s loving discipline toward the chosen people. There is an expectation that Israel’s enemies will eventually be punished appropriately. The martyrs (especially Eleazar, the seven brothers, and their mother, Razis) willingly undergo torture and death rather than be unfaithful to the precepts of Judaism. In ch. 7 these two themes come together around the theme of resurrection. In the resurrection the martyrs will be rewarded with eternal life and the wicked (like Antiochus IV) will be punished. The author’s belief in resurrection led him to interpret Judas’s sin offering for his dead soldiers (see 12.39–45) as atonement on behalf of the sins of the dead. 2 Maccabees is deuterocanonical for Catholics and Orthodox, apocryphal for Protestants, and noncanonical for Jews (though it does recount the origin of Hanukkah).

1.10–17 The long explanation (reaching to 2.18) about Hanukkah's origins in Jewish history begins with the death of Antiochus IV Epiphanes. 1.10 If the letter is from Judas Maccabeus, it must have been written between 164 (Antiochus's death) and 160 B.C.E. (Judas's death). Aristo-

Nanea was originally a Sumerian goddess of love and fertility. For other accounts of the king's death, see ch. 9; 1 Macc 6.1–16; Dan 11.40–45. 1.17 From the Jewish perspective Antiochus died for behaving impiously against the Jerusalem temple, not the temple of Nanea.

1.18–36 The miracle of the fire is a precedent for the purification of the temple commemorated at Hanukkah. The somewhat strained search for precedents here and in 2.1–18 suggests that observing Hanukkah was controversial. 1.18 For the date, see 6.7; 10.5; 1 Macc 1.59. notify you, in order that you also may celebrate the festival of booths and the festival of the fire given when Nehemiah, who built the temple and the altar, offered sacrifices.

19 For when our ancestors were being led captive to Persia, the pious priests of that time took some of the fire of the altar and secretly hid it in the hollow of a dry cistern, where they took such precautions that the place was unknown to anyone. 20 But after many years had passed, when it pleased God, Nehemiah, having been commissioned by the king of Persia, sent the descendants of the priests who had hidden the fire to get it. And when they reported to us that they had not found fire but only a thick liquid, he ordered them to dip it out and bring it. 21 When the materials for the sacrifices were presented, Nehemiah ordered the priests to sprinkle the liquid on the wood and on the things laid upon it. 22 When this had been done and some time had passed, and when the sun, which had been clouded over, shone out, a great fire blazed up, so that all marveled. 23 And while the sacrifice was being consumed, the priests offered prayer—the priests and everyone. Jonathan led, and the rest responded, as did Nehemiah. 24 The prayer was to this effect:

“O Lord, Lord God, Creator of all things, you are awe-inspiring and strong and just and merciful, you alone are king and are kind, 25 you alone are bountiful, you alone are just and almighty and eternal. You rescue Israel from every evil; you chose the ancestors and consecrated them. 26 Accept this sacrifice on behalf of all your people Israel and preserve your portion and make it holy. 27 Gather together our scattered people, set free those who are slaves among the Gentiles, look on those who are rejected and despised, and let the Gentiles know that you are our God. 28 Punish those who oppress and are insolent with pride. 29 Plant your people in your holy place, as Moses promised.”

30 Then the priests sang the hymns. 31 After the materials of the sacrifice had been consumed, Nehemiah ordered that the liquid that was left should be poured on large stones. 32 When this was done, a flame blazed up; but when the light from the altar shone back, it went out. 33 When this matter became known, and it was reported to the king of the Persians that, in the place where the exiled priests had hidden the fire, the liquid had appeared with which Nehemiah and his associates had burned the materials of the sacrifice, 34 the king investigated the matter, and enclosed the place and made it sacred. 35 And with those persons whom the king favored he exchanged many excellent gifts. 36 Nehemiah and his associates called this “nephthar,” which means purification, but by most people it is called naphtha.^e

Jeremiah Hides the Tent, Ark, and Altar

2 One finds in the records that the prophet Jeremiah ordered those who were being deported to take some of the fire, as has been mentioned, 2 and that the prophet, after giving them the law, instructed those who were being deported not to forget the commandments of the Lord, or to be led astray in their thoughts on seeing the gold and silver statues and their adornment. 3 And with other similar words he exhorted them that the law should not depart from their hearts.

4 It was also in the same document that the prophet, having received an ora-

when Nehemiah came to Jerusalem as governor. 1.19 The Jews were exiled to Babylon, not Persia. Babylon had become part of the Persian Empire by Nehemiah's time. 1.20 The thick liquid was a kind of petroleum (naphtha) as in 1.36. 1.23 Jonathan may be the same as Mattaniah “who was the leader to begin the thanksgiving in prayer” (Neh 11.17). Both names mean “God's gift” in Hebrew. 1.24–29 The prayer's emphases on monotheism and Israel's election were very appropriate to the situation of Israel in the second century B.C.E., as was the plea that God rescue Israel and punish its enemies.

1.31–34 Fire was sacred to the Persians, who sometimes built temples around it. The event described in 1.31–32 stresses the sacredness of the altar in the Jerusalem temple. 1.36 For the interpretation of Hanukkah as a purification, see 2.18; 10.3; 14.36; for the thick liquid, naphtha, see 1.20.

2.1–18 More precedents for Hanukkah are found in connection with Jeremiah, Solomon, Moses, and Nehemiah. 2.2 For Jeremiah's warnings against idolatry, see the Letter of Jeremiah. 2.4 The prophet is Jeremiah. The mountain is Nebo (Deut 32.49), from which Moses viewed cle, ordered that the tent and the ark should follow with him, and that he went out to the mountain where Moses had gone up and had seen the inheritance of God. ⁵Jeremiah came and found a cave-dwelling, and he brought there the tent and the ark and the altar of incense; then he sealed up the entrance. ⁶Some of those who followed him came up intending to mark the way, but could not find it. ⁷When Jeremiah learned of it, he rebuked them and declared: "The place shall remain unknown until God gathers his people together again and shows his mercy. ⁸Then the Lord will disclose these things, and the glory of the Lord and the cloud will appear, as they were shown in the case of Moses, and as Solomon asked that the place should be specially consecrated."

⁹ It was also made clear that being possessed of wisdom Solomon^f offered sacrifice for the dedication and completion of the temple. ¹⁰Just as Moses prayed to the Lord, and fire came down from heaven and consumed the sacrifices, so also Solomon prayed, and the fire came down and consumed the whole burnt offerings. ¹¹And Moses said, "They were consumed because the sin offering had not been eaten." ¹²Likewise Solomon also kept the eight days.

¹³ The same things are reported in the records and in the memoirs of Nehemiah, and also that he founded a library and collected the books about the kings and prophets, and the writings of David, and letters of kings about votive offerings. ¹⁴In the same way Judas also collected all the books that had been lost on account of the war that had come upon us, and they are in our possession. ¹⁵So if you have need of them, send people to get them for you.

¹⁶ Since, therefore, we are about to celebrate the purification, we write to you. Will you therefore please keep the days? ¹⁷It is God who has saved all his people, and has returned the inheritance to all, and the kingship and the priesthood and the consecration, ¹⁸as he promised through the law. We have hope in God that he will soon have mercy on us and will gather us from everywhere under heaven into his holy place, for he has rescued us from great evils and has purified the place.

have aimed to please those who wish to read, to make it easy for those who are inclined to memorize, and to profit all readers. ²⁶For us who have undertaken the toil of abbreviating, it is no light matter but calls for sweat and loss of sleep, ²⁷just as it is not easy for one who prepares a banquet and seeks the benefit of others. Nevertheless, to secure the gratitude of many we will gladly endure the uncomfortable toil, ²⁸leaving the responsibility for exact details to the compiler, while devoting our effort to arriving at the outlines of the condensation. ²⁹For as the master builder of a new house must be concerned with the whole construction, while the one who undertakes its painting and decoration has to consider only what is suitable for its adornment, such in my judgment is the case with us. ³⁰It is the duty of the original historian to occupy the ground, to discuss matters from every side, and to take trouble with details, ³¹but the one who recasts the narrative should be allowed to strive for brevity of expression and to forego exhaustive treatment. ³²At this point therefore let us begin our narrative, without adding any more to what has already been said; for it would be foolish to lengthen the preface while cutting short the history itself.

Arrival of Heliodorus in Jerusalem

3 While the holy city was inhabited in unbroken peace and the laws were strictly observed because of the piety of the high priest Onias and his hatred of wickedness, ²it came about that the kings themselves honored the place and glorified the temple with the finest presents, ³even to the extent that King Seleucus of Asia defrayed from his own revenues all the expenses connected with the service of the sacrifices.

⁴ But a man named Simon, of the tribe of Benjamin, who had been made captain of the temple, had a disagreement with the high priest about the administration of the city market. ⁵Since he could not prevail over Onias, he went to Apollonius of Tarsus,^g who at that time was governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, ⁶and reported to him that the treasury in Jerusalem was full of untold sums of money, so that the amount of the funds could not be reckoned, and that they did not belong to the account of the sacrifices, but that it was possible for them to fall under the control of the king. ⁷When Apollonius met the king, he told him of the money about which he had been informed. The king^h chose Heliodorus, who was in charge of his affairs, and sent him with commands to effect the removal of the reported wealth. ⁸Heliodorus at once set out on his journey, ostensibly to make a tour of inspection of the cities of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, but in fact to carry out the king's purpose.

⁹ When he had arrived at Jerusalem and had been kindly welcomed by the high priest of the city, he told about the disclosure that had been made and stated why he had come, and he inquired whether this really was the situation. ¹⁰The high priest explained that there were some deposits belonging to widows and orphans, ¹¹and also some money of Hyrcanus son of Tobias, a man of very prominent position, and that it totaled in

2.29 The author compares himself to the painter-decorator (see 2.25), and Jason to the builder. See 15.38–39.

3.1–12 The first crisis involving the sanctity and inviolability of the temple in Jerusalem (3.12) arose from rivalry between pro-Seleucid (Simon) and pro-Ptolemaic (Hyrcanus) factions among the Jews. 3.1 Onias III was the Jewish high priest until 175 B.C.E. 3.2 The place is the name for the Jerusalem temple frequently in 2 Maccabees. 3.3 Seleucus IV Philopator (187–175 B.C.E.) was the successor of Antiochus III and predecessor of Antiochus IV. 3.4 Simon was more likely from the priestly clan of Bilgah (Neh 12.5, 18; 1 Chr 24.14), not of the tribe of Benjamin. His brothers were Menelaus (4.23) and Lysimachus (4.29).

3.5 Apollonius is called son of Menestheus in 4.4, 21, and so the reading son of Tharseas here (see text note g) is emended to Tarsus. The territory of Apollonius included Judea and all the territory from the Euphrates to the Mediterranean except for Seleucia (the area of Greek cities in north Syria).

3.6 The temple treasury included money from private depositors (see 3.10–11), a common practice in antiquity. 3.7 Heliodorus was raised with Seleucus IV and was involved in the plot that resulted in the king's death in 175 B.C.E.

3.11 Hyrcanus, son of Joseph and grandson of Tobias, was part of the Jewish family of Tobiards known to be sympathetic to the Ptolemies.

all four hundred talents of silver and two hundred of gold. To such an extent the impious Simon had misrepresented the facts. ¹²And he said that it was utterly impossible that wrong should be done to those people who had trusted in the holiness of the place and in the sanctity and inviolability of the temple that is honored throughout the whole world.

Heliodorus Plans to Rob the Temple

¹³ But Heliodorus, because of the orders he had from the king, said that this money must in any case be confiscated for the king's treasury. ¹⁴So he set a day and went in to direct the inspection of these funds.

There was no little distress throughout the whole city. ¹⁵The priests prostrated themselves before the altar in their priestly vestments and called toward heaven upon him who had given the law about deposits, that he should keep them safe for those who had deposited them. ¹⁶To see the appearance of the high priest was to be wounded at heart, for his face and the change in his color disclosed the anguish of his soul. ¹⁷For terror and bodily trembling had come over the man, which plainly showed to those who looked at him the pain lodged in his heart. ¹⁸People also hurried out of their houses in crowds to make a general supplication because the holy place was about to be brought into dishonor. ¹⁹Women, girded with sackcloth under their breasts, thronged the streets. Some of the young women who were kept indoors ran together to the gates, and some to the walls, while others peered out of the windows. ²⁰And holding up their hands to heaven, they all made supplication. ²¹There was something pitiable in the prostration of the whole populace and the anxiety of the high priest in his great anguish.

The Lord Protects His Temple

²² While they were calling upon the Almighty Lord that he would keep what had been entrusted safe and secure for those who had entrusted it, ²³Heliodorus went on with what had been decided. ²⁴But when he arrived at the treasury with his bodyguard, then and there the Sovereign of spirits and of all authority caused so great a manifestation that all who had been so bold as to accompany him were astounded by the power of God, and became faint with terror. ²⁵For there appeared to them a magnificently caparisoned horse, with a rider of frightening mien; it rushed furiously at Heliodorus and struck at him with its front hoofs. Its rider was seen to have armor and weapons of gold. ²⁶Two young men also appeared to him, remarkably strong, gloriously beautiful and splendidly dressed, who stood on either side of him and flogged him continuously, inflicting many blows on him. ²⁷When he suddenly fell to the ground and deep darkness came over him, his men took him up, put him on a stretcher, ²⁸and carried him away—this man who had just entered the aforesaid treasury with a great retinue and all his bodyguard but was now unable to help himself. They recognized clearly the sovereign power of God.

Onias Prays for Heliodorus

²⁹ While he lay prostrate, speechless because of the divine intervention and deprived of any hope of recovery, ³⁰they praised the Lord who had acted marvelously for his own place. And the temple, which a little while before was full of fear and disturbance, was filled with joy and gladness, now that the Almighty Lord had appeared.

³¹ Some of Heliodorus's friends quickly begged Onias to call upon the

3.13-21 Heliodorus's threat to the temple's security elicits a highly emotional response from the people of Jerusalem. 3.15 For the law about deposits, see Ex 22.7-13. Nothing is said about the Gentile Heliodorus profaning the temple. 3.19 Sackcloth, a coarse material made from goats' hair, was a sign of mourning (Esth 4.1).

3.22-28 Heliodorus is struck down and the temple's deposits are saved by miraculous intervention. 3.24-25 Other miraculous manifestations of horse and rider occur in 5.2-3; 10.29; 11.8. 3.26 The two young men are angelic figures. 3.28 Who recognized God's power—Heliodorus and his retinue or the Jewish bystanders? See also 3.30.

3.29-34 Lest the miraculous intervention be misinterpreted by Seleucus IV, Onias III prays for the healing of Heliodorus. 3.30 As in many biblical texts there is no sharp line between the action of the Almighty Lord and the angelic

Most High to grant life to one who was lying quite at his last breath. ³²So the high priest, fearing that the king might get the notion that some foul play had been perpetrated by the Jews with regard to Heliodorus, offered sacrifice for the man's recovery. ³³While the high priest was making an atonement, the same young men appeared again to Heliodorus dressed in the same clothing, and they stood and said, "Be very grateful to the high priest Onias, since for his sake the Lord has granted you your life. ³⁴And see that you, who have been flogged by heaven, report to all people the majestic power of God." Having said this they vanished.

The Conversion of Heliodorus

³⁵ Then Heliodorus offered sacrifice to the Lord and made very great vows to the Savior of his life, and having bidden Onias farewell, he marched off with his forces to the king. ³⁶He bore testimony to all concerning the deeds of the supreme God, which he had seen with his own eyes. ³⁷When the king asked Heliodorus what sort of person would be suitable to send on another mission to Jerusalem, he replied, ³⁸"If you have any enemy or plotter against your government, send him there, for you will get him back thoroughly flogged, if he survives at all; for there is certainly some power of God about the place. ³⁹For he who has his dwelling in heaven watches over that place himself and brings it aid, and he strikes and destroys those who come to do it injury." ⁴⁰This was the outcome of the episode of Heliodorus and the protection of the treasury.

Simon Accuses Onias

4 The previously mentioned Simon, who had informed about the money against^j his own country, slandered Onias, saying that it was he who had incited Heliodorus and had been the real cause of the misfortune. ²He dared to designate as a plotter against the government the man who was the benefactor of the city, the protector of his compatriots, and a zealot for the laws. ³When his hatred progressed to such a degree that even murders were committed by one of Simon's approved agents, ⁴Onias recognized that the rivalry was serious and that Apollonius son of Menestheus,^k and governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, was intensifying the malice of Simon. ⁵So he appealed to the king, not accusing his compatriots but having in view the welfare, both public and private, of all the people. ⁶For he saw that without the king's attention public affairs could not again reach a peaceful settlement, and that Simon would not stop his folly.

Jason's Reforms

7 When Seleucus died and Antiochus, who was called Epiphanes, succeeded to the kingdom, Jason the brother of Onias obtained the high priesthood by corruption, ⁸promising the king at an interview^l three hundred sixty talents of silver, and from another source of revenue eighty talents. ⁹In addition to this he figures. 3.33 The ability of Onias III to make atonement for a gentile sinner like Heliodorus places him with Moses (Ex 8.28-29) and Job (Job 42.7-10).

3.35-40 As a result of the divine intervention Heliodorus recognizes the power of Israel's God to defend the temple. 3.35-36 Without necessarily becoming a Jew Heliodorus offered sacrifice and acknowledged Israel's God as supreme. 3.38 The power of God about the place (the temple) is the major theme of 2 Maccabees.

4.1-6 The internal Jewish struggle between Simon and Onias III continues to be involved with Seleucid affairs. 4.1 Simon was previously mentioned in 3.4-6. His slander may have been based on the apparently pro-Ptolemaic stance of Onias III. 4.2 The laws include both the Jewish Torah and the Seleucid laws. 4.4 Apollonius was Simon's collaborator in 3.7 also.

4.7-17 The new high priest Jason introduces Greek institutions and customs to Jerusalem. See 1 Macc 1.11-15, where Jason goes unnamed. 4.7 After Seleucus IV was killed in 175 B.C.E., he was succeeded (after a political struggle) by Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175-164 B.C.E.), who appointed Jason the Jewish high priest in place of Onias III. 4.9 The gymnasium was a Greek institution concerned not only with physical exercise but also with education and general culture. Some Jews may have become honorary citizens of Antioch in Syria, or perhaps Jerusalem itself had been renamed as Antioch and made a Greek city-state.

promised to pay one hundred fifty more if permission were given to establish by his authority a gymnasium and a body of youth for it, and to enroll the people of Jerusalem as citizens of Antioch. ¹⁰When the king assented and Jason^m came to office, he at once shifted his compatriots over to the Greek way of life.

¹¹ He set aside the existing royal concessions to the Jews, secured through John the father of Eupolemus, who went on the mission to establish friendship and alliance with the Romans; and he destroyed the lawful ways of living and introduced new customs contrary to the law. ¹²He took delight in establishing a gymnasium right under the citadel, and he induced the noblest of the young men to wear the Greek hat. ¹³There was such an extreme of Hellenization and increase in the adoption of foreign ways because of the surpassing wickedness of Jason, who was ungodly and no trueⁿ high priest, ¹⁴that the priests were no longer intent upon their service at the altar. Despising the sanctuary and neglecting the sacrifices, they hurried to take part in the unlawful proceedings in the wrestling arena after the signal for the discus-throwing, ¹⁵disdaining the honors prized by their ancestors and putting the highest value upon Greek forms of prestige. ¹⁶For this reason heavy disaster overtook them, and those whose ways of living they admired and wished to imitate completely became their enemies and punished them. ¹⁷It is no light thing to show irreverence to the divine laws—a fact that later events will make clear.

More Outrages

¹⁸ When the quadrennial games were being held at Tyre and the king was present, ¹⁹the vile Jason sent envoys, chosen as being Antiochian citizens from Jerusalem, to carry three hundred silver drachmas for the sacrifice to Hercules. Those who carried the money, however, thought best not to use it for sacrifice, because that was inappropriate, but to expend it for another purpose. ²⁰So this money was intended by the sender for the sacrifice to Hercules, but by the decision of its carriers it was applied to the construction of triremes.

²¹ When Apollonius son of Menes-theus was sent to Egypt for the coronation^o of Philometor as king, Antiochus learned that Philometor^m had become hostile to his government, and he took measures for his own security. Therefore upon arriving at Joppa he proceeded to Jerusalem. ²²He was welcomed magnificently by Jason and the city, and ushered in with a blaze of torches and with shouts. Then he marched his army into Phoenicia.

Menelaus Becomes High Priest

²³ After a period of three years Jason sent Menelaus, the brother of the previously mentioned Simon, to carry the 4.10 The Greek way of life is opposed to Judaism (2.21). Far more so than 1 Maccabees, 2 Maccabees interprets the Jewish "reformers" as supporting a foreign culture and religion. 4.11 The royal concessions to the Jews included the right to be ruled by the Torah rather than Seleucid law. For Eupolemus's mission to Rome, see 1 Macc 8.17. 4.12 The citadel was the fort on the northwest corner of the temple area. The Greek hat (Greek petasos) was the wide-brimmed hat worn by Hermes, god of athletic skill. 4.13 As brother of Onias III, Jason was from the right priestly family. But he was no true high priest because he got the office by corruption and carried out a program hostile to Judaism. 4.16–17 According to 2 Maccabees the evils that befell the Jewish people and the temple were the result of following the Greek way of life (see 6.12–17).

4.18–22 Participation in the games at Tyre

and Jason's welcome of Antiochus IV to Jerusalem illustrate the results of the new program. 4.18–19 Every four years games were held at Tyre in honor of the god Melqart/Heracles/Hercules. For the Antiochian citizens from Jerusalem, see note on 4.9. 4.20 Rather than allow the money to be used for the sacrifice to a pagan god, the Jews had it applied to the construction of triremes, Greek ships with three rows of oars on each side. 4.21 Through Apollonius (3.7; 4.4) Antiochus IV learned that his nephew Ptolemy VI Philometor had designs against his Seleucid kingdom. On his way down the coast to Egypt Antiochus went east to Jerusalem, where he was welcomed by Jason.

4.23–29 The vile Jason (4.19) is replaced by the even worse Menelaus, the brother of Simon (3.4). 4.23–24 In 172 B.C.E. Menelaus usurped the high-priesthood from Jason, in the same way money to the king and to complete the records of essential business. ²⁴But he, when presented to the king, extolled him with an air of authority, and secured the high priesthood for himself, outbidding Jason by three hundred talents of silver. ²⁵After receiving the king's orders he returned, possessing no qualification for the high priesthood, but having the hot temper of a cruel tyrant and the rage of a savage wild beast. ²⁶So Jason, who after supplanting his own brother was supplanted by another man, was driven as a fugitive into the land of Ammon. ²⁷Although Menelaus continued to hold the office, he did not pay regularly any of the money promised to the king. ²⁸When Sostratus the captain of the citadel kept requesting payment—for the collection of the revenue was his responsibility—the two of them were summoned by the king on account of this issue. ²⁹Menelaus left his own brother Lysimachus as deputy in the high priesthood, while Sostratus left Crates, the commander of the Cyprian troops.

The Murder of Onias

³⁰ While such was the state of affairs, it happened that the people of Tarsus and of Mallus revolted because their cities had been given as a present to Antiochis, the king's concubine. ³¹So the king went hurriedly to settle the trouble, leaving Andronicus, a man of high rank, to act as his deputy. ³²But Menelaus, thinking he had obtained a suitable opportunity, stole some of the gold vessels of the temple and gave them to Andronicus; other vessels, as it happened, he had sold to Tyre and the neighboring cities. ³³When Onias became fully aware of these acts, he publicly exposed them, having first withdrawn to a place of sanctuary at Daphne near Antioch. ³⁴Therefore Menelaus, taking Andronicus aside, urged him to kill Onias. Andronicus^p came to Onias, and resorting to treachery, offered him sworn pledges and gave him his right hand; he persuaded him, though still suspicious, to come out from the place of sanctuary; then, with no regard for justice, he immediately put him out of the way.

Andronicus Is Punished

³⁵ For this reason not only Jews, but many also of other nations, were grieved and displeased at the unjust murder of the man. ³⁶When the king returned from the region of Cilicia, the Jews in the city^q appealed to him with regard to the unreasonable murder of Onias, and the Greeks shared their hatred of the crime. ³⁷Therefore Antiochus was grieved at heart and filled with pity, and wept because of the moderation and good conduct of the deceased. ³⁸Inflamed with anger, he immediately stripped off the purple robe from Andronicus, tore off his clothes, and led him around the whole city to that very place where he had committed the outrage against Onias, and there he dispatched the bloodthirsty fellow. The Lord thus repaid him with the punishment he deserved.

Unpopularity of Lysimachus and Menelaus

4.30–34 The evil character of Menelaus and Andronicus is revealed in their treatment of the temple vessels and the murder of the rightful high priest, Onias III. 4.30 Tarsus and Mallus were cities in Cilicia, across the Syrian border to the northwest. 4.31–32 Andronicus had been the murderer of the young son of Seleucus IV in 175 B.C.E. He was bribed by Menelaus, who was plundering the Jerusalem temple. 4.33 The place of sanctuary was the temple of Apollo at Daphne, five miles from Antioch. Onias III denounced both Menelaus and Andronicus.

4.35–38 The revulsion of both Jews and non-Jews leads Antiochus IV to punish Andronicus. 4.36 There was a growing Jewish colony in the city of Antioch, as the presence of Onias III indicates. 4.38 The purple robe was worn by Friends of the king (see 1 Macc 10.20). Antiochus IV probably recognized the bloodthirsty Andronicus as a threat to his own rule.

4.39–50 A riot in Jerusalem leads to the death of Lysimachus, and Menelaus escapes only by bribery. 4.39 Lysimachus, Menelaus's brother and assistant (4.29), joined in plundering the tem-

when report of them had spread abroad, the populace gathered against Lysimachus, because many of the gold vessels had already been stolen. ⁴⁰Since the crowds were becoming aroused and filled with anger, Lysimachus armed about three thousand men and launched an unjust attack, under the leadership of a certain Auranus, a man advanced in years and no less advanced in folly. ⁴¹But when the Jews^r became aware that Lysimachus was attacking them, some picked up stones, some blocks of wood, and others took handfuls of the ashes that were lying around, and threw them in wild confusion at Lysimachus and his men. ⁴²As a result, they wounded many of them, and killed some, and put all the rest to flight; the temple robber himself they killed close by the treasury.

⁴³Charges were brought against Menelaus about this incident. ⁴⁴When the king came to Tyre, three men sent by the senate presented the case before him. ⁴⁵But Menelaus, already as good as beaten, promised a substantial bribe to Ptolemy son of Dorymenes to win over the king. ⁴⁶Therefore Ptolemy, taking the king aside into a colonnade as if for refreshment, induced the king to change his mind. ⁴⁷Menelaus, the cause of all the trouble, he acquitted of the charges against him, while he sentenced to death those unfortunate men, who would have been freed uncondemned if they had pleaded even before Scythians. ⁴⁸And so those who had spoken for the city and the villages^s and the holy vessels quickly suffered the unjust penalty. ⁴⁹Therefore even the Tyrians, showing their hatred of the crime, provided magnificently for their funeral. ⁵⁰But Menelaus, because of the greed of those in power, remained in office, growing in wickedness, having become the chief plotter against his compatriots.

Jason Tries to Regain Control

5 About this time Antiochus made his second invasion of Egypt. ²And it happened that, for almost forty days, there appeared over all the city golden-clad cavalry charging through the air, in companies fully armed with lances and drawn swords— ³troops of cavalry drawn up, attacks and counterattacks made on this side and on that, brandishing of shields, massing of spears, hurling of missiles, the flash of golden trappings, and armor of all kinds. ⁴Therefore everyone prayed that the apparition might prove to have been a good omen.

⁵When a false rumor arose that Antiochus was dead, Jason took no fewer than a thousand men and suddenly made an assault on the city. When the troops on the wall had been forced back and at last the city was being taken, Menelaus took refuge in the citadel. ⁶But Jason kept relentlessly slaughtering his compatriots, not realizing that success at the cost of one's kindred is the greatest misfortune, but imagining that he was setting up trophies of victory over enemies and not over compatriots. ⁷He did not, however, gain control of the government; in the end he got only disgrace from his conspiracy, and fled again into the country of the Ammonites. ⁸Finally he met a miserable end. Accused^t before Aretas the ruler of the Arabs, fleeing from city to city, pursued by everyone, hated as a rebel against the laws, and abhorred as the executioner of his country and his compatriots, he was

ple vessels at Jerusalem. 4.42 The temple robber Lysimachus died at the very place he was robbing—a sign of divine intervention to the writer. 4.45 Ptolemy son of Dorymenes, later governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia (8.8; 1 Macc 3.38), sided with Menelaus against the delegates sent by the senate (Greek gerousia), the council of Jewish elders. 4.47 Scythians, from north of the Black Sea, were notorious for their cruelty.

5.1–14 An abortive coup by Jason results in a brutal attack on Jerusalem by a frustrated Antiochus IV. 5.1 Antiochus's second invasion of Egypt took place in 168 B.C.E. (see Dan 11.29–30). Forced by the Romans to retreat, Antiochus vented his anger on Jerusalem. 5.2–4 In view of what follows in chs. 5–7, the apparition does not seem to have been a good omen. 5.5–6 Jason apparently took the report about the Romans' stopping Antiochus in Egypt as involving his death (see 5.11). His rival Menelaus joined the Cyprian mercenaries in the citadel. 5.7 For Jason's earlier flight to the Ammonites, see 4.26. 5.8 Aretas was Harith I, king of the Nabateans. As a rebel against the Seleucids Jason naturally took cast ashore in Egypt. ⁹There he who had driven many from their own country into exile died in exile, having embarked to go to the Lacedaemonians in hope of finding protection because of their kinship. ¹⁰He who had cast out many to lie unburied had no one to mourn for him; he had no funeral of any sort and no place in the tomb of his ancestors.

¹¹When news of what had happened reached the king, he took it to mean that Judea was in revolt. So, raging inwardly, he left Egypt and took the city by storm. ¹²He commanded his soldiers to cut down relentlessly everyone they met and to kill those who went into their houses. ¹³Then there was massacre of young and old, destruction of boys, women, and children, and slaughter of young girls and infants. ¹⁴Within the total of three days eighty thousand were destroyed, forty thousand in hand-to-hand fighting, and as many were sold into slavery as were killed.

Pillage of the Temple

¹⁵Not content with this, Antiochus^u dared to enter the most holy temple in all the world, guided by Menelaus, who had become a traitor both to the laws and to his country. ¹⁶He took the holy vessels with his polluted hands, and swept away with profane hands the votive offerings that other kings had made to enhance the glory and honor of the place. ¹⁷Antiochus was elated in spirit, and did not perceive that the Lord was angered for a little while because of the sins of those who lived in the city, and that this was the reason he was disregarding the holy place. ¹⁸But if it had not happened that they were involved in many sins, this man would have been flogged and turned back from his rash act as soon as he came forward, just as Heliodorus had been, whom King Seleucus sent to inspect the treasury. ¹⁹But the Lord did not choose the nation for the sake of the holy place, but the place for the sake of the nation. ²⁰Therefore the place itself shared in the misfortunes that befell the nation and afterward participated in its benefits; and what was forsaken in the wrath of the Almighty was restored again in all its glory when the great Lord became reconciled.

²¹So Antiochus carried off eighteen hundred talents from the temple, and hurried away to Antioch, thinking in his arrogance that he could sail on the land and walk on the sea, because his mind was elated. ²²He left governors to oppress the people: at Jerusalem, Philip, by birth a Phrygian and in character more barbarous than the man who appointed him; ²³and at Gerizim, Andronicus; and besides these Menelaus, who lorded it over his compatriots worse than the others did. In his malice toward the Jewish citizens,^v ²⁴Antiochus^u sent Apollonius, the captain of the Mysians, with an army of twenty-two thousand, and commanded him to kill all the grown men and to sell the women and boys as slaves. ²⁵When this man arrived in Jerusalem, he pretended to be peaceably disposed and waited until the holy sabbath day; then, finding the Jews not at work, he ordered his troops to parade under arms. ²⁶He put to the sword all those who came out to see them, then rushed into the city with refuge in Egypt. 5.9 Lacedaemonians were the Spartans, in Greece. For their alleged kinship with the Jews, see 1 Macc 12.2–23. 5.10 The villain Jason suffers an appropriate punishment (see 4.16, 38, 42). 5.14 As usual in 1–2 Maccabees, the numbers are exaggerated. Antiochus probably viewed events in Jerusalem as a full-scale rebellion that needed to be controlled.

5.15–27 The robbery by Antiochus (with the help of Menelaus) and the attack by Apollonius are softened only by the brief mention of Judas Maccabeus in 5.27. See 1 Macc 1.21–40. 5.15–16 Non-Jews were forbidden to enter the most sacred parts of the temple and handle the sacred vessels. The fact that Menelaus (the high priest!) served as Antiochus's guide is outrageous to the writer. 5.17–18 According to the theology of 2 Maccabees God allowed the profanation because of the people's sins (see 6.12–17). But Antiochus's arrogance will eventually be punished (see 9.1–29). 5.21 Eighteen hundred talents was a very large sum, perhaps an exaggeration. For the "elation" of Antiochus, see Dan 11.36. 5.22–23 Philip the Phrygian (from western Asia Minor) appears again in 6.11; 8.8. This Andronicus is not the same as the one in 4.31–38. 5.24–26 For another account of Apollonius, see 1 Macc 1.29–32. 2 Maccabees places the attack on his armed warriors and killed great numbers of people.

27 But Judas Maccabeus, with about nine others, got away to the wilderness, and kept himself and his companions alive in the mountains as wild animals do; they continued to live on what grew wild, so that they might not share in the defilement.

The Suppression of Judaism

6 Not long after this, the king sent an Athenian^w senator^x to compel the Jews to forsake the laws of their ancestors and no longer to live by the laws of God; ²also to pollute the temple in Jerusalem and to call it the temple of Olympian Zeus, and to call the one in Gerizim the temple of Zeus-the-Friend-of-Strangers, as did the people who lived in that place.

3 Harsh and utterly grievous was the onslaught of evil. ⁴For the temple was filled with debauchery and reveling by the Gentiles, who dallied with prostitutes and had intercourse with women within the sacred precincts, and besides brought in things for sacrifice that were unfit. ⁵The altar was covered with abominable offerings that were forbidden by the laws. ⁶People could neither keep the sabbath, nor observe the festivals of their ancestors, nor so much as confess themselves to be Jews.

7 On the monthly celebration of the king's birthday, the Jews^y were taken, under bitter constraint, to partake of the sacrifices; and when a festival of Dionysus was celebrated, they were compelled to wear wreaths of ivy and to walk in the procession in honor of Dionysus. ⁸At the suggestion of the people of Ptolemais^z a decree was issued to the neighboring Greek cities that they should adopt the same policy toward the Jews and make them partake of the sacrifices, ⁹and should kill those who did not choose to change over to Greek customs. One could see, therefore, the misery that had come upon them. ¹⁰For example, two women were brought in for having circumcised their children. They publicly paraded them around the city, with their babies hanging at their breasts, and then hurled them down headlong from the wall. ¹¹Others who had assembled in the caves nearby, in order to observe the seventh day secretly, were betrayed to Philip and were all burned together, because their piety kept them from defending themselves, in view of their regard for that most holy day.

Providential Significance of the Persecution

12 Now I urge those who read this book not to be depressed by such calamities, but to recognize that these punishments were designed not to destroy but to discipline our people. ¹³In fact, it is a sign of great kindness not to let the impious alone for long, but to punish them immediately. ¹⁴For in the case of the other the sabbath when Jews would be unprepared (see 1 Macc 2.29–38). 5.27 Judas Maccabeus and his nine companions kept the Jewish food laws by eating vegetation and refusing unclean animals. There is no mention of Judas's father or brothers (see 1 Macc 2.1–5). Judas reappears in 2 Macc 8.

6.1–11 The assimilation to Greek religion and customs is interpreted as a direct attack on Judaism. See 1 Macc 1.41–64. 6.1 In 167 B.C.E. an Athenian elder or senator (Greek geron) or Geron an Athenian was sent to bring order to the religious affairs of the Jews. 6.2 Olympian Zeus was the Greek equivalent of Israel's Most High God (though pious Jews resented this identification). 6.4 The description suggests temple prostitution (see Amos 2.7; Ezek 23.36–49; Dan 11.31)—a practice more at home in Semitic than in Greek religion. 6.5 Though it mentions abominable offerings, 2 Maccabees is silent about the “desolat-ingsacrilege” (1 Macc 1.54; Dan 11.31). 6.7 Antiochus's birthday was celebrated on the twenty-fifth of every month (1 Macc 1.58–59). Dionysus was the Greek god of wine and harvest. 6.8 Ptolemais is probably the city on the coast also known as Acco, or perhaps Ptolemy, mentioned in 4.45, should be read. 6.9 Greek customs includes the general cultural program known as Hellenism. Not every feature came from Greece; there was a mix of Greek and oriental elements. 6.10–11 These incidents appear also in 1 Macc 1.60–61; 2.31–38.

6.12–17 The stories of the martyrs are given an interpretation as a discipline applied by God in the short term. Nevertheless God's mercy to Israel remains firm and will prevail in the end. 6.14–15 The other nations are given the leeway to have their sins build up, so that their ultimate punishment is worse than Israel's.

nations the Lord waits patiently to punish them until they have reached the full measure of their sins; but he does not deal in this way with us, ¹⁵in order that he may not take vengeance on us afterward when our sins have reached their height. ¹⁶Therefore he never withdraws his mercy from us. Although he disciplines us with calamities, he does not forsake his own people. ¹⁷Let what we have said serve as a reminder; we must go on briefly with the story.

The Martyrdom of Eleazar

18 Eleazar, one of the scribes in high position, a man now advanced in age and of noble presence, was being forced to open his mouth to eat swine's flesh. ¹⁹But he, welcoming death with honor rather than life with pollution, went up to the rack of his own accord, spitting out the flesh, ²⁰as all ought to go who have the courage to refuse things that it is not right to taste, even for the natural love of life.

21 Those who were in charge of that unlawful sacrifice took the man aside because of their long acquaintance with him, and privately urged him to bring meat of his own providing, proper for him to use, and to pretend that he was eating the flesh of the sacrificial meal that had been commanded by the king, ²²so that by doing this he might be saved from death, and be treated kindly on account of his old friendship with them. ²³But making a high resolve, worthy of his years and the dignity of his old age and the gray hairs that he had reached with distinction and his excellent life even from childhood, and moreover according to the holy God-given law, he declared himself quickly, telling them to send him to Hades.

24 "Such pretense is not worthy of our time of life," he said, "for many of the young might suppose that Eleazar in his

ninetieth year had gone over to an alien religion, ²⁵and through my pretense, for the sake of living a brief moment longer, they would be led astray because of me, while I defile and disgrace my old age. ²⁶Even if for the present I would avoid the punishment of mortals, yet whether I live or die I will not escape the hands of the Almighty. ²⁷Therefore, by bravely giving up my life now, I will show myself worthy of my old age ²⁸and leave to the young a noble example of how to die a good death willingly and nobly for the revered and holy laws."

When he had said this, he went^a at once to the rack. ²⁹Those who a little before had acted toward him with goodwill now changed to ill will, because the words he had uttered were in their opinion sheer madness.^b ³⁰When he was about to die under the blows, he groaned aloud and said: "It is clear to the Lord in his holy knowledge that, though I might have been saved from death, I am enduring terrible sufferings in my body under this beating, but in my soul I am glad to suffer these things because I fear him."

31 So in this way he died, leaving in his death an example of nobility and a memorial of courage, not only to the young but to the great body of his nation.

The Martyrdom of Seven Brothers

7 It happened also that seven brothers and their mother were arrested and were being compelled by the king, under torture with whips and thongs, to partake of unlawful swine's flesh. ²One of them, acting as their spokesman, said, "What do you intend to ask and learn from us? For we are ready to die rather than transgress the laws of our ancestors."

6.18–31 Eleazar appears as a model Jew because he refuses to compromise his religious principles in the face of suffering and death. 6.18 The story of Eleazar (otherwise unknown) is told at greater length in 4 Macc 5–7. Eating swine's flesh was prohibited by Lev 11.7–8. 6.19 The exact nature of the torture is uncertain; the rack is only one possibility. 6.23 Hades, the abode of the dead, Sheol in the Hebrew scriptures. 6.26 Eleazar envisions the possibility of punishment from God after death. 6.29 For the death of the righteous as apparent madness, see Wis 3.1–4; 5.4. 6.30 The holy knowledge refers to God's ability to know why Eleazar underwent martyrdom.

7.1–42 The most famous part of 2 Maccabees contains the statements of the seven brothers and their mother about the resurrection of the just and the annihilation of the wicked. 7.1 The king is later identified as Antiochus (7.24). For the

3 The king fell into a rage, and gave orders to have pans and caldrons heated. 4 These were heated immediately, and he commanded that the tongue of their spokesman be cut out and that they scalp him and cut off his hands and feet, while the rest of the brothers and the mother looked on. 5 When he was utterly helpless, the king^c ordered them to take him to the fire, still breathing, and to fry him in a pan. The smoke from the pan spread widely, but the brothers^d and their mother encouraged one another to die nobly, saying, 6 “The Lord God is watching over us and in truth has compassion on us, as Moses declared in his song that bore witness against the people to their faces, when he said, ‘And he will have compassion on his servants.’”^e

7 After the first brother had died in this way, they brought forward the second for their sport. They tore off the skin of his head with the hair, and asked him, “Will you eat rather than have your body punished limb by limb?” 8 He replied in the language of his ancestors and said to them, “No.” Therefore he in turn underwent tortures as the first brother had done. 9 And when he was at his last breath, he said, “You accursed wretch, you dismiss us from this present life, but the King of the universe will raise us up to an everlasting renewal of life, because we have died for his laws.”

10 After him, the third was the victim of their sport. When it was demanded, he quickly put out his tongue and courageously stretched forth his hands, 11 and said nobly, “I got these from Heaven, and because of his laws I disdain them, and from him I hope to get them back again.” 12 As a result the king himself and those with him were astonished at the young man’s spirit, for he regarded his sufferings as nothing.

13 After he too had died, they mal-

treated and tortured the fourth in the same way. 14 When he was near death, he said, “One cannot but choose to die at the hands of mortals and to cherish the hope God gives of being raised again by him. But for you there will be no resurrection to life!”

15 Next they brought forward the fifth and maltreated him. 16 But he looked at the king,^f and said, “Because you have authority among mortals, though you also are mortal, you do what you please. But do not think that God has forsaken our people. 17 Keep on, and see how his mighty power will torture you and your descendants!”

18 After him they brought forward the sixth. And when he was about to die, he said, “Do not deceive yourself in vain. For we are suffering these things on our own account, because of our sins against our own God. Therefore^g astounding things have happened. 19 But do not think that you will go unpunished for having tried to fight against God!”

20 The mother was especially admirable and worthy of honorable memory. Although she saw her seven sons perish within a single day, she bore it with good courage because of her hope in the Lord. 21 She encouraged each of them in the language of their ancestors. Filled with a noble spirit, she reinforced her woman’s reasoning with a man’s courage, and said to them, 22 “I do not know how you came into being in my womb. It was not I who gave you life and breath, nor I who set in order the elements within each of you. 23 Therefore the Creator of the world, who shaped the beginning of humankind and devised the origin of all things, will in his mercy give life and breath back to you again, since you now forget yourselves for the sake of his laws.”

24 Antiochus felt that he was being treated with contempt, and he was suspicious of her reproachful tone. The youngest brother being still alive, Antiochus^h not only appealed to him in words, but promised with oaths that he would make him rich and enviable if he would turn from the ways of his ancestors, and that he would take him for his Friend and entrust him with public affairs. 25 Since the young man would not listen to him at all, the king called the mother to him and urged her to advise the youth to save himself. 26 After much urging on his part, she undertook to persuade her son. 27 But, leaning close to him, she spoke in their native language as follows, deriding the cruel tyrant: "My son, have pity on me. I carried you nine months in my womb, and nursed you for three years, and have reared you and brought you up to this point in your life, and have taken care of you.ⁱ 28 I beg you, my child, to look at the heaven and the earth and see everything that is in them, and recognize that God did not make them out of things that existed.^j And in the same way the human race came into being. 29 Do not fear this butcher, but prove worthy of your brothers. Accept death, so that in God's mercy I may get you back again along with your brothers."

30 While she was still speaking, the young man said, "What are you^k waiting for? I will not obey the king's command, but I obey the command of the law that was given to our ancestors through Moses. 31 But you,^l who have contrived all sorts of evil against the Hebrews, will certainly not escape the hands of God. 32 For we are suffering because of our own sins. 33 And if our living Lord is angry for a little while, to rebuke and discipline us, he will again be reconciled with his own servants.^m 34 But you, unholy wretch, you most defiled of all mortals, do not be elated in vain and puffed up by uncertain hopes, when you raise your hand against the children of heaven. 35 You have not yet escaped the judgment of the almighty, all-seeing God. 36 For our brothers after enduring a brief suffering have drunkⁿ of ever-flowing life, under God's covenant; but you, by the judgment of God, will receive just punishment for your arrogance. 37 I, like my brothers, give up body and life for the laws of our ancestors, appealing to God to show mercy soon to our nation and by trials and plagues to make you confess that he alone is God, 38 and through me and my brothers to bring to an end the wrath of the Almighty that has justly fallen on our whole nation."

39 The king fell into a rage, and handled him worse than the others, being exasperated at his scorn. 40 So he died in his integrity, putting his whole trust in the Lord.

41 Last of all, the mother died, after her sons.

42 Let this be enough, then, about the eating of sacrifices and the extreme tortures.

The Revolt of Judas Maccabeus

8 Meanwhile Judas, who was also called Maccabeus, and his companions secretly entered the villages and summoned their kindred and enlisted those who had continued in the Jewish faith, and so they gathered about six thousand. 2 They implored the Lord to look upon the people who were oppressed by all; and to have pity on the temple that had been profaned by the goddess; 3 to have mercy on the city that was being de-origin of human life and thus lord over its destiny. 7.24 Friend was an official title of the king's advisers (see 1 Macc 2.18). 7.28 The mother's confession that God did not make them out of things that existed echoes 7.11, 22-23; it need not be taken as a philosophical statement of "creation out of nothing" (Latin creatio ex nihilo), though it has often been interpreted in that way. 7.32-33 For the same basic theology of suffering, see 6.12-17; 7.18-19. The sins are those of the people taken collectively (see 7.18-19). 7.37-38 By dying for the laws of our ancestors the seventh son expects to hasten the fulfillment of the discipline placed on Israel and the just recompense owed to the king.

8.1-11 Judas Maccabeus (the "Hammerer") arises as Israel's champion against the Seleucids. See 1 Macc 3.1-41. 8.1 The narrative about Judas begun in 5.27 continues. Most of the material in 1 Macc 2.1-3.26 is absent. 8.2-4 The prayer

stroyed and about to be leveled to the ground; to hearken to the blood that cried out to him; ⁴to remember also the lawless destruction of the innocent babies and the blasphemies committed against his name; and to show his hatred of evil.

⁵ As soon as Maccabeus got his army organized, the Gentiles could not withstand him, for the wrath of the Lord had turned to mercy. ⁶Coming without warning, he would set fire to towns and villages. He captured strategic positions and put to flight not a few of the enemy. ⁷He found the nights most advantageous for such attacks. And talk of his valor spread everywhere.

⁸ When Philip saw that the man was gaining ground little by little, and that he was pushing ahead with more frequent successes, he wrote to Ptolemy, the governor of Coelestria and Phoenicia, to come to the aid of the king's government. ⁹Then Ptolemy^o promptly appointed Nicanor son of Patroclus, one of the king's chief^p Friends, and sent him, in command of no fewer than twenty thousand Gentiles of all nations, to wipe out the whole race of Judea. He associated with him Gorgias, a general and a man of experience in military service. ¹⁰Nicanor determined to make up for the king the tribute due to the Romans, two thousand talents, by selling the captured Jews into slavery. ¹¹So he immediately sent to the towns on the seacoast, inviting them to buy Jewish slaves and promising to hand over ninety slaves for a talent, not expecting the judgment from the Almighty that was about to overtake him.

Preparation for Battle

¹² Word came to Judas concerning Nicanor's invasion; and when he told his companions of the arrival of the army, ¹³those who were cowardly and distrustful of God's justice ran off and got away. ¹⁴Others sold all their remaining property, and at the same time implored the Lord to rescue those who had been sold by the ungodly Nicanor before he ever met them, ¹⁵if not for their own sake, then for the sake of the covenants made with their ancestors, and because he had called them by his holy and glorious name. ¹⁶But Maccabeus gathered his forces together, to the number six thousand, and exhorted them not to be frightened by the enemy and not to fear the great multitude of Gentiles who were wickedly coming against them, but to fight nobly, ¹⁷keeping before their eyes the lawless outrage that the Gentiles^q had committed against the holy place, and the torture of the derided city, and besides, the overthrow of their ancestral way of life. ¹⁸"For they trust to arms and acts of daring," he said, "but we trust in the Almighty God, who is able with a single nod to strike down those who are coming against us, and even, if necessary, the whole world."

¹⁹ Moreover, he told them of the occasions when help came to their ancestors; how, in the time of Sennacherib, when one hundred eighty-five thousand perished, ²⁰and the time of the battle against the Galatians that took place in Babylonia, when eight thousand Jews^r fought along with four thousand Macedonians; yet when the Macedonians were hard pressed, the eight thousand, by the help that came to them from heaven, destroyed one hundred twenty thousand

Judas Defeats Nicanor

21 With these words he filled them with courage and made them ready to die for their laws and their country; then he divided his army into four parts. 22 He appointed his brothers also, Simon and Joseph and Jonathan, each to command a division, putting fifteen hundred men under each. 23 Besides, he appointed Eleazar to read aloud^t from the holy book, and gave the watchword, "The help of God"; then, leading the first division himself, he joined battle with Nicanor.

24 With the Almighty as their ally, they killed more than nine thousand of the enemy, and wounded and disabled most of Nicanor's army, and forced them all to flee. 25 They captured the money of those who had come to buy them as slaves. After pursuing them for some distance, they were obliged to return because the hour was late. 26 It was the day before the sabbath, and for that reason they did not continue their pursuit. 27 When they had collected the arms of the enemy and stripped them of their spoils, they kept the sabbath, giving great praise and thanks to the Lord, who had preserved them for that day and allotted it to them as the beginning of mercy. 28 After the sabbath they gave some of the spoils to those who had been tortured and to the widows and orphans, and distributed the rest among themselves and their children. 29 When they had done this, they made common supplication and implored the merciful Lord to be wholly reconciled with his servants.^u

Judas Defeats Timothy and Bacchides

30 In encounters with the forces of Timothy and Bacchides they killed more than twenty thousand of them and got possession of some exceedingly high strongholds, and they divided a very large amount of plunder, giving to those who had been tortured and to the orphans and widows, and also to the aged, shares equal to their own. 31 They collected the arms of the enemy,^v and carefully stored all of them in strategic places; the rest of the spoils they carried to Jerusalem. 32 They killed the commander of Timothy's forces, a most wicked man, and one who had greatly troubled the Jews. 33 While they were celebrating the victory in the city of their ancestors, they burned those who had set fire to the sacred gates, Callisthenes and some others, who had fled into one little house; so these received the proper reward for their impiety.^t

34 The thrice-accursed Nicanor, who had brought the thousand merchants to buy the Jews, 35 having been humbled with the help of the Lord by opponents whom he regarded as of the least account, took off his splendid uniform and made his way alone like a runaway slave across the country until he reached Antioch, having succeeded chiefly in the destruction of his own army! 36 So he who had undertaken to secure tribute for the Romans by the capture of the people of Jerusalem proclaimed that the Jews had a Defender, and that therefore the Jews were invulnerable, because they followed the laws ordained by him.

The Last Campaign of Antiochus Epiphanes

9 About that time, as it happened, Antiochus had retreated in disorder from the region of Persia. ²He had entered the city called Persepolis and attempted to rob the temples and control the city. Therefore the people rushed to the rescue with arms, and Antiochus and his army were defeated,^w with the result that Antiochus was put to flight by the inhabitants and beat a shameful retreat. ³While he was in Ecbatana, news came to him of what had happened to Nicanor and the forces of Timothy. ⁴Transported with rage, he conceived the idea of turning upon the Jews the injury done by those who had put him to flight; so he ordered his charioteer to drive without stopping until he completed the journey. But the judgment of heaven rode with him! For in his arrogance he said, "When I get there I will make Jerusalem a cemetery of Jews."

⁵ But the all-seeing Lord, the God of Israel, struck him with an incurable and invisible blow. As soon as he stopped speaking he was seized with a pain in his bowels, for which there was no relief, and with sharp internal tortures— ⁶and that very justly, for he had tortured the bowels of others with many and strange inflictions. ⁷Yet he did not in any way stop his insolence, but was even more filled with arrogance, breathing fire in his rage against the Jews, and giving orders to drive even faster. And so it came about that he fell out of his chariot as it was rushing along, and the fall was so hard as to torture every limb of his body. ⁸Thus he who only a little while before had thought in his superhuman arrogance that he could command the waves of the sea, and had imagined that he could weigh the high mountains in a balance, was brought down to earth and carried in a litter, making the power of God manifest to all. ⁹And so the ungodly man's body swarmed with worms, and while he was still living in anguish and pain, his flesh rotted away, and because of the stench the whole army felt revulsion at his decay. ¹⁰Because of his intolerable stench no one was able to carry the man who a little while before had thought that he could touch the stars of heaven. ¹¹Then it was that, broken in spirit, he began to lose much of his arrogance and to come to his senses under the scourge of God, for he was tortured with pain every moment. ¹²And when he could not endure his own stench, he uttered these words, "It is right to be subject to God; mortals should not think that they are equal to God."^x

Antiochus Makes a Promise to God

¹³ Then the abominable fellow made a vow to the Lord, who would no longer have mercy on him, stating ¹⁴that the holy city, which he was hurrying to level to the ground and to make a cemetery, he was now declaring to be free; ¹⁵and the Jews, whom he had not considered worth burying but had planned to throw out with their children for the wild animals and for the birds to eat, he would make, all of them, equal to citizens of Athens; ¹⁶and the holy sanctuary, which he had formerly plundered, he would adorn with the finest offerings; and all the holy vessels he would give back, many times over; and the expenses incurred for the sacrifices he would provide from his own revenues; ¹⁷and in addition to all this he also would become a Jew and would visit every inhabited place to proclaim the power of God. ¹⁸But when his sufferings did not in any

9.1–12 After undergoing various gruesome but appropriate punishments, Antiochus finally recognizes the power of Israel's God. Cf. Isa 40.12.

9.12 For a similar acknowledgement by King Nebuchadnezzar, see Dan 4.34–37.

9.13–18 No other ancient source confirms Antiochus's promises to God, and they are historically unlikely. At any rate, God does not accept Antiochus's prayer. 9.14 Jerusalem was to be free of taxes (see 1 Macc 10.31). 9.15 To be equal to citizens of Athens probably meant that Jews would enjoy freedom and democracy. way abate, for the judgment of God had justly come upon him, he gave up all hope for himself and wrote to the Jews the following letter, in the form of a supplication. This was its content:

Antiochus's Letter and Death

19 "To his worthy Jewish citizens, Antiochus their king and general sends hearty greetings and good wishes for their health and prosperity. ²⁰If you and your children are well and your affairs are as you wish, I am glad. As my hope is in heaven, ²¹I remember with affection your esteem and goodwill. On my way back from the region of Persia I suffered an annoying illness, and I have deemed it necessary to take thought for the general security of all. ²²I do not despair of my condition, for I have good hope of recovering from my illness, ²³but I observed that my father, on the occasions when he made expeditions into the upper country, appointed his successor, ²⁴so that, if anything unexpected happened or any unwelcome news came, the people throughout the realm would not be troubled, for they would know to whom the government was left. ²⁵Moreover, I understand how the princes along the borders and the neighbors of my kingdom keep watching for opportunities and waiting to see what will happen. So I have appointed my son Antiochus to be king, whom I have often entrusted and commended to most of you when I hurried off to the upper provinces; and I have written to him what is written here. ²⁶I therefore urge and beg you to remember the public and private services rendered to you and to maintain your present goodwill, each of you, toward me and my son. ²⁷For I am sure that he will follow my policy and will treat you with moderation and kindness."

²⁸ So the murderer and blasphemer, having endured the more intense suffering, such as he had inflicted on others, came to the end of his life by a most pitiable fate, among the mountains in a strange land. ²⁹And Philip, one of his courtiers, took his body home; then, fearing the son of Antiochus, he withdrew to Ptolemy Philometor in Egypt.

Purification of the Temple

10 Now Maccabeus and his followers, the Lord leading them on, recovered the temple and the city; ²they tore down the altars that had been built in the public square by the foreigners, and also destroyed the sacred precincts. ³They purified the sanctuary, and made another altar of sacrifice; then, striking fire out of flint, they offered sacrifices, after a lapse of two years, and they offered incense and lighted lamps and set out the bread of the Presence. ⁴When they had done this, they fell prostrate and implored the Lord that they might never again fall into such misfortunes, but that, if they should ever sin, they might be disciplined by him with forbearance and not be handed over to blasphemous and barbarous nations. ⁵It happened that on the same day on which the sanctuary had

9.19–29 The tone of the letter appointing Antiochus V as the successor does not fit the context well, but it is probably authentic in content.

9.19 Rather than to his worthy Jewish citizens, the letter was more likely addressed to the people of Antioch. 9.21 In view of 9.1–12 an annoying illness is understatement and probably reflects Antiochus's true condition (which has been exaggerated in 9.1–12). 9.23 His father, Antiochus III, has appointed Seleucus IV as his successor. 9.25 His son was Antiochus V Eupator ("of a good father"). He was still a young boy and needed a regent (1 Macc 3.33; 6.14–15). 9.28 According to 2 Maccabees Antiochus died before the purification of the Jerusalem temple, whereas in 1 Maccabees (6.1–17) he died afterward. In fact he died just about the same time, and both writers draw a connection. 9.29 Philip tried to seize the government (1 Macc 6.55–56) but could not hold Antioch (6.63). Then he fled to Egypt.

10.1–9 2 Maccabees portrays Judas's restoration of the temple as a purification, whereas 1 Macc 4.36–59 presents it as a dedication. 10.1–2 1 Maccabees mentions neither the recovery of the city nor the altars that had been built in the public square. 10.3 For the emphasis on fire, see 1.19–2.1, which gives a very different account of the fire; the use of flint guaranteed a new fire. The time two years is one year short (see 1 Macc 1.54; 4.52). 10.4 In accord with 6.12–17 the desecration of the temple is explained as punishment for Israel's sins (especially in following Jason and Menelaus) and as a discipline. 10.5–6 For the date, see 1 Macc 4.52, 54. For the comparison with the festival of booths, see 2 Macc 1.9, and for

been profaned by the foreigners, the purification of the sanctuary took place, that is, on the twenty-fifth day of the same month, which was Chisleu. ⁶They celebrated it for eight days with rejoicing, in the manner of the festival of booths, remembering how not long before, during the festival of booths, they had been wandering in the mountains and caves like wild animals. ⁷Therefore, carrying ivy-wreathed wands and beautiful branches and also fronds of palm, they offered hymns of thanksgiving to him who had given success to the purifying of his own holy place. ⁸They decreed by public edict, ratified by vote, that the whole nation of the Jews should observe these days every year.

⁹ Such then was the end of Antiochus, who was called Epiphanes.

Accession of Antiochus Eupator

¹⁰ Now we will tell what took place under Antiochus Eupator, who was the son of that ungodly man, and will give a brief summary of the principal calamities of the wars. ¹¹This man, when he succeeded to the kingdom, appointed one Lysias to have charge of the government and to be chief governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia. ¹²Ptolemy, who was called Macron, took the lead in showing justice to the Jews because of the wrong that had been done to them, and attempted to maintain peaceful relations with them. ¹³As a result he was accused before Eupator by the king's Friends. He heard himself called a traitor at every turn, because he had abandoned Cyprus, which Philometor had entrusted to him, and had gone over to Antiochus Epiphanes. Unable to command the respect due his office,^y he took poison and ended his life.

Campaign in Idumea

¹⁴ When Gorgias became governor of the region, he maintained a force of mercenaries, and at every turn kept attacking the Jews. ¹⁵Besides this, the Idumeans, who had control of important strongholds, were harassing the Jews; they received those who were banished from Jerusalem, and endeavored to keep up the war. ¹⁶But Maccabeus and his forces, after making solemn supplication and imploring God to fight on their side, rushed to the strongholds of the Idumeans. ¹⁷Attacking them vigorously, they gained possession of the places, and beat off all who fought upon the wall, and slaughtered those whom they encountered, killing no fewer than twenty thousand.

10.10–13 On the death of Antiochus IV the Seleucid Empire passed to his son Antiochus V. 10.10 Antiochus V Eupator ("of a good father"); see 9.25, 29. He was about nine years old. He reigned until 162 B.C.E. when he was murdered by Demetrius I. 10.11 Lysias had been regent over the western territories (1 Macc 3.32–33). Since Antiochus V was a young boy, Lysias was responsible for making policy. 10.12 Ptolemy who was called Macron ("large headed") supported Antiochus IV when Cyprus was invaded in 168 B.C.E., thus incurring the suspicion of both the Ptolemies and the Seleucids.

10.14–23 In Idumea (see 1 Macc 5.1–54) Judas meets success. Whatever success he lacked was due to the treachery of some of his troops. 10.14 Gorgias was governor of Idumea (12.32). 10.15–17 See 1 Macc 5.3 for another account of the war against the Idumeans. 10.17–18, 23 The numbers twenty thousand, nine thousand, and twenty thousand are vastly exaggerated. 10.18–23 For Judas's attack on towers of the sons of Baeen, see 1 Macc 5.4–5. 10.19 Joseph. See 1 Macc 5.18, 56; 2 Macc 8.22. Nothing is known of Zachaeus.

²²Then he killed these men who had turned traitor, and immediately captured the two towers. ²³Having success at arms in everything he undertook, he destroyed more than twenty thousand in the two strongholds.

Judas Defeats Timothy

²⁴ Now Timothy, who had been defeated by the Jews before, gathered a tremendous force of mercenaries and collected the cavalry from Asia in no small number. He came on, intending to take Judea by storm. ²⁵As he drew near, Maccabeus and his men sprinkled dust on their heads and girded their loins with sackcloth, in supplication to God. ²⁶Falling upon the steps before the altar, they implored him to be gracious to them and to be an enemy to their enemies and an adversary to their adversaries, as the law declares. ²⁷And rising from their prayer they took up their arms and advanced a considerable distance from the city; and when they came near the enemy they halted. ²⁸Just as dawn was breaking, the two armies joined battle, the one having as pledge of success and victory not only their valor but also their reliance on the Lord, while the other made rage their leader in the fight.

²⁹ When the battle became fierce, there appeared to the enemy from heaven five resplendent men on horses with golden bridles, and they were leading the Jews. ³⁰Two of them took Maccabeus between them, and shielding him with their own armor and weapons, they kept him from being wounded. They showered arrows and thunderbolts on the enemy, so that, confused and blinded, they were thrown into disorder and cut to pieces.

³¹Twenty thousand five hundred were slaughtered, besides six hundred cavalry.

³² Timothy himself fled to a stronghold called Gazara, especially well garrisoned, where Chaereas was commander.

³³Then Maccabeus and his men were glad, and they besieged the fort for four days. ³⁴The men within, relying on the strength of the place, kept blaspheming terribly and uttering wicked words. ³⁵But at dawn of the fifth day, twenty young men in the army of Maccabeus, fired with anger because of the blasphemies, bravely stormed the wall and with savage fury cut down everyone they met. ³⁶Others who came up in the same way wheeled around against the defenders and set fire to the towers; they kindled fires and burned the blasphemers alive. Others broke open the gates and let in the rest of the force, and they occupied the city. ³⁷They killed Timothy, who was hiding in a cistern, and his brother Chaereas, and Apollophanes. ³⁸When they had accomplished these things, with hymns and thanksgivings they blessed the Lord who shows great kindness to Israel and gives them the victory.

Lysias Besieges Beth-zur

11 Very soon after this, Lysias, the king's guardian and kinsman, who was in charge of the government, being vexed at what had happened, ²gathered about eighty thousand infantry and all his cavalry and came against the Jews. He intended to make the city a home for Greeks, ³and to levy tribute on the temple as he did on the sacred places of the other nations, and to put up the high priesthood for sale every year. ⁴He took no account whatever of the power of God, but

⁶ When Maccabeus and his men got word that Lysias^a was besieging the strongholds, they and all the people, with lamentations and tears, prayed the Lord to send a good angel to save Israel. ⁷Maccabeus himself was the first to take up arms, and he urged the others to risk their lives with him to aid their kindred. Then they eagerly rushed off together. ⁸And there, while they were still near Jerusalem, a horseman appeared at their head, clothed in white and brandishing weapons of gold. ⁹And together they all praised the merciful God, and were strengthened in heart, ready to assail not only humans but the wildest animals or walls of iron. ¹⁰They advanced in battle order, having their heavenly ally, for the Lord had mercy on them. ¹¹They hurled themselves like lions against the enemy, and laid low eleven thousand of them and sixteen hundred cavalry, and forced all the rest to flee. ¹²Most of them got away stripped and wounded, and Lysias himself escaped by disgraceful flight.

Lysias Makes Peace with the Jews

¹³ As he was not without intelligence, he pondered over the defeat that had befallen him, and realized that the Hebrews were invincible because the mighty God fought on their side. So he sent to them ¹⁴and persuaded them to settle everything on just terms, promising that he would persuade the king, constraining him to be their friend.^z ¹⁵Maccabeus, having regard for the common good, agreed to all that Lysias urged. For the king granted every request in behalf of the Jews which Maccabeus delivered to Lysias in writing.

¹⁶ The letter written to the Jews by Lysias was to this effect:

"Lysias to the people of the Jews, greetings. ¹⁷John and Absalom, who were sent by you, have delivered your signed communication and have asked about the matters indicated in it. ¹⁸I have informed the king of everything that needed to be brought before him, and he has agreed to what was possible. ¹⁹If you will maintain your goodwill toward the government, I will endeavor in the future to help promote your welfare. ²⁰And concerning such matters and their details, I have ordered these men and my representatives to confer with you. ²¹Farewell. The one hundred forty-eighth year,^b Dioscorinthus twenty-fourth."

²² The king's letter ran thus:

"King Antiochus to his brother Lysias, greetings. ²³Now that our father has gone on to the gods, we desire that the subjects of the kingdom be undisturbed in caring for their own affairs. ²⁴We have heard that the Jews do not consent to our father's change to Greek customs, but prefer their own way of living and ask that their own customs be allowed them. ²⁵Accordingly, since we choose that this nation also should be free from disturbance, our decision is that their temple be restored to them and that they shall live according to the customs of their ancestors. ²⁶You will do well, therefore, to send word to them and give them pledges of friendship, so that they may know our policy and be of

27 To the nation the king's letter was as follows:

“King Antiochus to the senate of the Jews and to the other Jews, greetings. 28 If you are well, it is as we desire. We also are in good health. 29 Menelaus has informed us that you wish to return home and look after your own affairs. 30 Therefore those who go home by the thirtieth of Xanthicus will have our pledge of friendship and full permission 31 for the Jews to enjoy their own food and laws, just as formerly, and none of them shall be molested in any way for what may have been done in ignorance. 32 And I have also sent Menelaus to encourage you. 33 Farewell. The one hundred forty-eighth year,^c Xanthicus fifteenth.”

34 The Romans also sent them a letter, which read thus:

“Quintus Memmius and Titus Manius, envoys of the Romans, to the people of the Jews, greetings. 35 With regard to what Lysias the kinsman of the king has granted you, we also give consent. 36 But as to the matters that he decided are to be referred to the king, as soon as you have considered them, send some one promptly so that we may make proposals appropriate for you. For we are on our way to Antioch. 37 Therefore make haste and send messengers so that we may have your judgment. 38 Farewell. The one hundred forty-eighth year,^c Xanthicus fifteenth.”

Incidents at Joppa and Jamnia

12 When this agreement had been reached, Lysias returned to the king, and the Jews went about their farming.

2 But some of the governors in various places, Timothy and Apollonius son of Gennaëus, as well as Hieronymus and Demophon, and in addition to these Nicenor the governor of Cyprus, would not let them live quietly and in peace. 3 And the people of Joppa did so ungodly a deed as this: they invited the Jews who lived among them to embark, with their wives and children, on boats that they had provided, as though there were no ill will to the Jews;^d 4 and this was done by public vote of the city. When they accepted, because they wished to live peaceably and suspected nothing, the people of Joppa^e took them out to sea and drowned them, at least two hundred. 5 When Judas heard of the cruelty visited on his compatriots, he gave orders to his men 6 and, calling upon God, the righteous judge, attacked the murderers of his kindred. He set fire to the harbor by night, burned the boats, and massacred those who had taken refuge there. 7 Then, because the city's gates were closed, he withdrew, intending to come again and root out the whole community of Joppa. 8 But learning that the people in Jamnia meant in the same way to wipe out the Jews who were living among them, 9 he attacked the Jamnites by night and set fire to the harbor and the fleet, so that the glow of the light was seen in Jerusalem, thirty miles^f distant.

The Campaign in Gilead

10 When they had gone more than a miles from there, on their march against Timothy, at least five thousand Arabs with five hundred cavalry attacked them. 11 After a hard fight, Judas and his companions, with God's help, were victorious.

11.27–33 In March 164 B.C.E. Antiochus IV grants an amnesty to Jews who stop fighting before the end of the month. He also promises a return to Jewish observance of Torah. 11.29 Menelaus went to the king (in Persia?) and convinced him that this strategy would weaken the opposition from Judas. 11.34–38 In March 164 B.C.E. the Romans consent to the arrangement between Lysias and the Jews. 11.34 Titus Manilius (Torquatus) was consul in 165 B.C.E. and in Egypt in 164. Manius Sergius was sent to Antiochus IV in 164. The two figures may be combined here.

The defeated nomads begged Judas to grant them pledges of friendship, promising to give him livestock and to help his people^h in all other ways. ¹²Judas, realizing that they might indeed be useful in many ways, agreed to make peace with them; and after receiving his pledges they went back to their tents.

¹³ He also attacked a certain town that was strongly fortified with earthworksⁱ and walls, and inhabited by all sorts of Gentiles. Its name was Caspin. ¹⁴Those who were within, relying on the strength of the walls and on their supply of provisions, behaved most insolently toward Judas and his men, railing at them and even blaspheming and saying unholy things. ¹⁵But Judas and his men, calling upon the great Sovereign of the world, who without battering rams or engines of war overthrew Jericho in the days of Joshua, rushed furiously upon the walls. ¹⁶They took the town by the will of God, and slaughtered untold numbers, so that the adjoining lake, a quarter of a mile^j wide, appeared to be running over with blood.

Judas Defeats Timothy's Army

¹⁷ When they had gone ninety-five miles^k from there, they came to Charax, to the Jews who are called Toubiani. ¹⁸They did not find Timothy in that region, for he had by then left there without accomplishing anything, though in one place he had left a very strong garrison. ¹⁹Dositheus and Sosipater, who were captains under Maccabeus, marched out and destroyed those whom Timothy had left in the stronghold, more than ten thousand men. ²⁰But Maccabeus arranged his army in divisions, set men^h in command of the divisions, and hurried after Timothy, who had with him one hundred twenty thousand infantry and two thousand five hundred cavalry. ²¹When Timothy learned of the approach of Judas, he sent off the women and the children and also the baggage to a place called Carnaim; for that place was hard to besiege and difficult of access because of the narrowness of all the approaches. ²²But when Judas's first division appeared, terror and fear came over the enemy at the manifestation to them of him who sees all things. In their flight they rushed headlong in every direction, so that often they were injured by their own men and pierced by the points of their own swords. ²³Judas pressed the pursuit with the utmost vigor, putting the sinners to the sword, and destroyed as many as thirty thousand.

²⁴ Timothy himself fell into the hands of Dositheus and Sosipater and their men. With great guile he begged them to let him go in safety, because he held the parents of most of them, and the brothers of some, to whom no consideration would be shown. ²⁵And when with many words he had confirmed his solemn promise to restore them unharmed, they let him go, for the sake of saving their kindred.

Judas Wins Other Victories

²⁶ Then Judas^l marched against Carnaim and the temple of Atargatis, and slaughtered twenty-five thousand people. ²⁷After the rout and destruction of these, he marched also against Ephron, a fortified town where Lysias lived with ²⁹ Setting out from there, they hastened to Scythopolis, which is seventy-five miles^o from Jerusalem. ³⁰But when the Jews who lived there bore witness to the goodwill that the people of Scythopolis had shown them and their kind treatment of them in times of misfortune, ³¹they thanked them and exhorted them to be well disposed to their race in the future also. Then they went up to Jerusalem, as the festival of weeks was close at hand.

Judas Defeats Gorgias

³² After the festival called Pentecost, they hurried against Gorgias, the governor of Idumea, ³³who came out with three thousand infantry and four hundred cavalry. ³⁴When they joined battle, it happened that a few of the Jews fell. ³⁵But a certain Dositheus, one of Baccor's men, who was on horseback and was a strong man, caught hold of Gorgias, and grasping his cloak was dragging him off by main strength, wishing to take the accursed man alive, when one of the Thracian cavalry bore down on him and cut off his arm; so Gorgias escaped and reached Marisa.

³⁶ As Esdris and his men had been fighting for a long time and were weary, Judas called upon the Lord to show himself their ally and leader in the battle. ³⁷In the language of their ancestors he raised the battle cry, with hymns; then he charged against Gorgias's troops when they were not expecting it, and put them to flight.

Prayers for Those Killed in Battle

³⁸ Then Judas assembled his army and went to the city of Adullam. As the seventh day was coming on, they purified themselves according to the custom, and kept the sabbath there.

³⁹ On the next day, as had now become necessary, Judas and his men went to take up the bodies of the fallen and to bring them back to lie with their kindred in the sepulchres of their ancestors. ⁴⁰Then under the tunic of each one of the dead they found sacred tokens of the idols of Jamnia, which the law forbids the Jews to wear. And it became clear to all that this was the reason these men had fallen. ⁴¹So they all blessed the ways of the Lord, the righteous judge, who reveals the things that are hidden; ⁴²and they turned to supplication, praying that the sin that had been committed might be wholly blotted out. The noble Judas exhorted the people to keep themselves free from sin, for they had seen with their own eyes what had happened as the result of the sin of those who had fallen. ⁴³He also took up a collection, man by man, to the amount of two thousand drachmas of silver, and sent it to Jerusalem to provide for a sin offering. In doing this he acted very well and honorably, taking account of the resurrection. ⁴⁴For if he were not expecting that those who had fallen would rise again, it would have been superfluous and foolish to pray for the dead. ⁴⁵But if he was looking to the splendid reward that is laid up for those who fall asleep in godliness, it was a holy and pious thought. Therefore he made atonement for the dead, so that they might be delivered from their sin.

Menelaus Is Put to Death

13 In the one hundred forty-ninth year^p word came to Judas and his men that Antiochus Eupator was coming with a great army against Judea, ²and with him Lysias, his guardian, who had charge of the government. Each of them had a Greek force of one hundred ten thousand infantry, five thousand three hundred cavalry, twenty-two elephants, and three hundred chariots armed with scythes.

³ Menelaus also joined them and with utter hypocrisy urged Antiochus on, not for the sake of his country's welfare, but because he thought that he would be established in office. ⁴But the King of kings aroused the anger of Antiochus against the scoundrel; and when Lysias informed him that this man was to blame for all the trouble, he ordered them to take him to Beroea and to put him to death by the method that is customary in that place. ⁵For there is a tower there, fifty cubits high, full of ashes, and it has a rim running around it that on all sides inclines precipitously into the ashes. ⁶There they all push to destruction anyone guilty of sacrilege or notorious for other crimes. ⁷By such a fate it came about that Menelaus the lawbreaker died, without even burial in the earth. ⁸And this was eminently just; because he had committed many sins against the altar whose fire and ashes were holy, he met his death in ashes.

A Battle Near the City of Modein

⁹ The king with barbarous arrogance was coming to show the Jews things far worse than those that had been done^q in his father's time. ¹⁰But when Judas heard of this, he ordered the people to call upon the Lord day and night, now if ever to help those who were on the point of being deprived of the law and their country and the holy temple, ¹¹and not to let the people who had just begun to revive fall into the hands of the blasphemous Gentiles. ¹²When they had all joined in the same petition and had implored the merciful Lord with weeping and fasting and lying prostrate for three days without ceasing, Judas exhorted them and ordered them to stand ready.

¹³ After consulting privately with the elders, he determined to march out and decide the matter by the help of God before the king's army could enter Judea and get possession of the city. ¹⁴So, committing the decision to the Creator of the world and exhorting his troops to fight bravely to the death for the laws, temple, city, country, and commonwealth, he pitched his camp near Modein. ¹⁵He gave his troops the watchword, "God's victory," and with a picked force of the bravest young men, he attacked the king's pavil-

Antiochus Makes a Treaty with the Jews

¹⁸ The king, having had a taste of the daring of the Jews, tried strategy in attacking their positions. ¹⁹He advanced against Beth-zur, a strong fortress of the Jews, was turned back, attacked again,^s and was defeated. ²⁰Judas sent in to the garrison whatever was necessary. ²¹But Rhodocus, a man from the ranks of the Jews, gave secret information to the enemy; he was sought for, caught, and put in prison. ²²The king negotiated a second time with the people in Beth-zur, gave pledges, received theirs, withdrew, attacked Judas and his men, was defeated; ²³he got word that Philip, who had been left in charge of the government, had revolted in Antioch; he was dismayed, called in the Jews, yielded and swore to observe all their rights, settled with them and offered sacrifice, honored the sanctuary and showed generosity to the holy place. ²⁴He received Maccabeus, left Hegemonides as governor from Ptolemais to Gerar, ²⁵and went to Ptolemais. The people of Ptolemais were indignant over the treaty; in fact they were so angry that they wanted to annul its terms.^r ²⁶Lysias took the public platform, made the best possible defense, convinced them, appeased them, gained their goodwill, and set out for Antioch. This is how the king's attack and withdrawal turned out.

Alcimus Speaks Against Judas

14 Three years later, word came to Judas and his men that Demetrius son of Seleucus had sailed into the harbor of Tripolis with a strong army and a fleet, ²and had taken possession of the country, having made away with Antiochus and his guardian Lysias.

³ Now a certain Alcimus, who had formerly been high priest but had willfully defiled himself in the times of separation,^t realized that there was no way for him to be safe or to have access again to the holy altar, ⁴and went to King Demetrius in about the one hundred fifty-first year,^u presenting to him a crown of gold and a palm, and besides these some of the customary olive branches from the temple. During that day he kept quiet. ⁵But he found an opportunity that furthered his mad purpose when he was invited by Demetrius to a meeting of the council and was asked about the attitude and intentions of the Jews. He answered:

⁶ "Those of the Jews who are called Hasideans, whose leader is Judas Maccabeus, are keeping up war and stirring up sedition, and will not let the kingdom attain tranquility. ⁷Therefore I have laid aside my ancestral glory—I mean the high priesthood—and have now come here, ⁸first because I am genuinely concerned for the interests of the king, and second because I have regard also for my compatriots. For through the folly of those whom I have mentioned our whole nation is now in no small misfortune. ⁹Since you are acquainted, O king, with 14.1–2 In 161 B.C.E. Demetrius I, son of Seleucus IV, arrived at Tripolis, a port city named "Three Cities" because merchants from three other cities controlled parts of it. See 1 Macc 7.1–4 for a more vivid description of the fates of Antiochus V and Lysias. 14.3–5 Alcimus had been appointed high priest by Antiochus V after Menelaus was executed. the details of this matter, may it please you to take thought for our country and our hard-pressed nation with the gracious kindness that you show to all. ¹⁰For as long as Judas lives, it is impossible for the government to find peace." ¹¹When he had said this, the rest of the king's Friends,^v who were hostile to Judas, quickly inflamed Demetrius still more. ¹²He immediately chose Nicanor, who had been in command of the elephants, appointed him governor of Judea, and sent him off ¹³with orders to kill Judas and scatter his troops, and to install Alcimus as high priest of the great^w temple. ¹⁴And the Gentiles throughout Judea, who had fled before^x Judas, flocked to join Nicanor, thinking that the misfortunes and calamities of the Jews would mean prosperity for themselves.

Nicanor Makes Friends with Judas

15 When the Jews^v heard of Nicanor's coming and the gathering of the Gentiles, they sprinkled dust on their heads and prayed to him who established his own people forever and always upholds his own heritage by manifesting himself. ¹⁶At the command of the leader, they^z set out from there immediately and engaged them in battle at a village called Dessau.^x ¹⁷Simon, the brother of Judas, had encountered Nicanor, but had been temporarily^a checked because of the sudden consternation created by the enemy.

18 Nevertheless Nicanor, hearing of the valor of Judas and his troops and their courage in battle for their country, shrank from deciding the issue by bloodshed. ¹⁹Therefore he sent Posidonius, Theodotus, and Mattathias to give and receive pledges of friendship. ²⁰When the terms had been fully considered, and the leader had informed the people, and it had appeared that they were of one mind, they agreed to the covenant. ²¹The leaders^b set a day on which to meet by themselves. A chariot came forward from each army; seats of honor were set in place; ²²Judas posted armed men in readiness at key places to prevent sudden treachery on the part of the enemy; so they duly held the consultation.

23 Nicanor stayed on in Jerusalem and did nothing out of the way, but dismissed the flocks of people that had gathered. ²⁴And he kept Judas always in his presence; he was warmly attached to the man. ²⁵He urged him to marry and have children; so Judas^z married, settled down, and shared the common life.

Nicanor Turns Against Judas

26 But when Alcimus noticed their goodwill for one another, he took the covenant that had been made and went to Demetrius. He told him that Nicanor was disloyal to the government, since he had appointed that conspirator against the kingdom, Judas, to be his successor. ²⁷The king became excited and, provoked by the false accusations of that depraved man, wrote to Nicanor, stating that he was displeased with the covenant and commanding him to send Maccabeus to Antioch as a prisoner without delay.

28 When this message came to Nicanor, he was troubled and grieved that he had to annul their agreement when the man had done no wrong. ²⁹Since it was not possible to oppose the king, he watched for an opportunity to accomplish this by a stratagem.³⁰ But Maccabeus, noticing that Nicanor was more austere in his dealings with him and was meeting him more rudely than had been his custom, concluded that this austerity did not spring from the best motives. So he gathered not a few of his men, and went into hiding from Nicanor.³¹ When the latter became aware that he had been cleverly outwitted by the man, he went to the great^c and holy temple while the priests were offering the customary sacrifices, and commanded them to hand the man over.³² When they declared on oath that they did not know where the man was whom he wanted,³³ he stretched out his right hand toward the sanctuary, and swore this oath: "If you do not hand Judas over to me as a prisoner, I will level this shrine of God to the ground and tear down the altar, and build here a splendid temple to Dionysus."

34 Having said this, he went away. Then the priests stretched out their hands toward heaven and called upon the constant Defender of our nation, in these words: 35 "O Lord of all, though you have need of nothing, you were pleased that there should be a temple for your habitation among us; 36 so now, O holy One, Lord of all holiness, keep undefiled forever this house that has been so recently purified."

Razis Dies for His Country

37 A certain Razis, one of the elders of Jerusalem, was denounced to Nicanor as a man who loved his compatriots and was very well thought of and for his goodwill was called father of the Jews.³⁸ In former times, when there was no mingling with the Gentiles, he had been accused of Judaism, and he had most zealously risked body and life for Judaism.³⁹ Nicanor, wishing to exhibit the enmity that he had for the Jews, sent more than five hundred soldiers to arrest him; 40 for he thought that by arresting^d him he would do them an injury. 41 When the troops were about to capture the tower and were forcing the door of the courtyard, they ordered that fire be brought and the doors burned. Being surrounded, Razis^e fell upon his own sword, 42 preferring to die nobly rather than to fall into the hands of sinners and suffer outrages unworthy of his noble birth. 43 But in the heat of the struggle he did not hit exactly, and the crowd was now rushing in through the doors. He courageously ran up on the wall, and bravely threw himself down into the crowd. 44 But as they quickly drew back, a space opened and he fell in the middle of the empty space. 45 Still alive and aflame with anger, he rose, and though his blood gushed forth and his wounds were severe he ran through the crowd; and standing upon a steep rock, 46 with his blood now completely drained from him, he tore out his entrails, took them in both hands and hurled them at the crowd, calling upon the Lord of life and spirit to give them back to him again. This was the manner of his death.

Nicanor's Arrogance

Caphar-salama. 14.31–33 Cf. 1 Macc 7.33–38, where Nicanor threatens only to burn the temple. The threat to turn the Jerusalem temple into a splendid temple to Dionysus may be the author's embellishment (see 6.7). 14.34 For God as Israel's Defender, see 8.36. 14.35–36 For the fulfillment of the prayer, see 15.34.

14.37–46 There is no parallel in 1 Maccabees to the martyrdom of Razis; see the other martyrdoms in 2 Macc 6–7. 14.37 Razis, bearing a Persian name, may have been a convert to Judaism (as 14.38 suggests). As an elder he may have been a member of the council; as father of the Jews

he was acknowledged as their benefactor. 14.42 Razis's preference to die nobly rather than to fall into enemy hands had the precedent of Saul (1 Sam 31.4). 14.46 Razis's "suicide" was based on the firm conviction that God would restore his body in the resurrection (see 7.11, 22–23).

15.1–5 Nicanor's decision to attack Judas on the sabbath appears as an attempt to claim divine sovereignty for himself. 15.1 From Samaria and the area around Modein Judas controlled the northern approaches to Jerusalem. Judas Prepares the Jews for Battle

6 This Nicanor in his utter boastfulness and arrogance had determined to erect a public monument of victory over Judas and his forces. ⁷But Maccabeus did not cease to trust with all confidence that he would get help from the Lord. ⁸He exhorted his troops not to fear the attack of the Gentiles, but to keep in mind the former times when help had come to them from heaven, and so to look for the victory that the Almighty would give them. ⁹Encouraging them from the law and the prophets, and reminding them also of the struggles they had won, he made them the more eager. ¹⁰When he had aroused their courage, he issued his orders, at the same time pointing out the perfidy of the Gentiles and their violation of oaths. ¹¹He armed each of them not so much with confidence in shields and spears as with the inspiration of brave words, and he cheered them all by relating a dream, a sort of vision,^f which was worthy of belief.

12 What he saw was this: Onias, who had been high priest, a noble and good man, of modest bearing and gentle manner, one who spoke fittingly and had been trained from childhood in all that belongs to excellence, was praying with outstretched hands for the whole body of the Jews. ¹³Then in the same fashion another appeared, distinguished by his gray hair and dignity, and of marvelous majesty and authority. ¹⁴And Onias spoke, saying, “This is a man who loves the family of Israel and prays much for the people and the holy city—Jeremiah, the prophet of God.” ¹⁵Jeremiah stretched out his right hand and gave to Judas a golden sword, and as he gave it he addressed him thus: ¹⁶“Take this holy sword, a gift from God, with which you will strike down your adversaries.”

17 Encouraged by the words of Judas, so noble and so effective in arousing valor and awaking courage in the souls of the young, they determined not to carry on a campaign^g but to attack bravely, and to decide the matter by fighting hand to hand with all courage, because the city and the sanctuary and the temple were in danger. ¹⁸Their concern for wives and children, and also for brothers and sisters^h and relatives, lay upon them less heavily; their greatest and first fear was for the consecrated sanctuary. ¹⁹And those who had to remain in the city were in no little distress, being anxious over the encounter in the open country.

With these words he ended his prayer.

²⁵ Nicanor and his troops advanced with trumpets and battle songs, ²⁶but Judas and his troops met the enemy in battle with invocations to God and prayers. ²⁷So, fighting with their hands and praying to God in their hearts, they laid low at least thirty-five thousand, and were greatly gladdened by God's manifestation.

²⁸ When the action was over and they were returning with joy, they recognized Nicanor, lying dead, in full armor. ²⁹Then there was shouting and tumult, and they blessed the Sovereign Lord in the language of their ancestors. ³⁰Then the man who was ever in body and soul the defender of his people, the man who maintained his youthful goodwill toward his compatriots, ordered them to cut off Nicanor's head and arm and carry them to Jerusalem. ³¹When he arrived there and had called his compatriots together and stationed the priests before the altar, he sent for those who were in the citadel. ³²He showed them the vile Nicanor's head and that profane man's arm, which had been boastfully stretched out against the holy house of the Almighty. ³³He cut out the tongue of the ungodly Nicanor and said that he would feed it piecemeal to the birds and would hang up these rewards of his folly opposite the sanctuary. ³⁴And they all, looking to heaven, blessed the Lord who had manifested himself, saying, "Blessed is he who has kept his own place undefiled!" ³⁵Judas^k hung Nicanor's head from the citadel, a clear and conspicuous sign to everyone of the help of the Lord. ³⁶And they all decreed by public vote never to let this day go unobserved, but to celebrate the thirteenth day of the twelfth month—which is called Adar in the Aramaic language—the day before Mordecai's day.

³⁷ This, then, is how matters turned out with Nicanor, and from that time the city has been in the possession of the Hebrews. So I will here end my story.

(b) The books from 1 Esdras through 3 Maccabees are recognized as Deuterocanonical Scripture by the Greek and the Russian Orthodox Churches. They are not so recognized by the Roman Catholic Church, but 1 Esdras and the Prayer of Manasseh (together with 2 Esdras) are placed in an appendix to the Latin Vulgate Bible.

1 ESDRAS

ESDRAS IS THE GREEK FORM of the Hebrew personal name Ezra. 1 Esdras as the name of the book derives from the Greek Bible (the Septuagint), where it is called Esdras A (alpha), while the combined book of Ezra and Nehemiah is called Esdras B (beta). In the Latin Bible (the Vulgate), 1 Esdras is called 3 Ezra.

Scope and Relation to Other Biblical Books

1 Esdras is a selective narrative of important religious events in the history of Judah, from the Passover of Josiah after the finding of the book of the law to the reading of the law by Ezra and its imposition as the norm for Jewish life. For the most part, 1 Esdras simply parallels the relevant portions of 2 Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah; the only extensive unparalleled material is 1 Esd 3.1–5.6, the debate of the three bodyguards. The detailed correspondences of 1 Esdras to other biblical texts is set out in the table on page 1724, “The Relation of 1 Esdras to Other Biblical Books.”

The exact relation of 1 Esdras to the other biblical texts in the table is a matter of some dispute. 1 Esdras is extant only in Greek and in other versions translated from the Greek (Latin, Syriac, Ethiopic, Armenian, and Arabic). There is no Hebrew version. Some have thought that it was originally written in Hebrew, its text being a variant from that of the Masoretic Text of the Hebrew Bible. Others have suggested that it is a fragment of a Greek translation of those books older than the Septuagint translation in the second century B.C.E. But perhaps the most common view is that 1 Esdras was compiled on the basis of the Septuagint version of the books of 2 Chronicles, Ezra, and Nehemiah. Occasionally it seems to preserve a reading preferable to that of the Hebrew Masoretic Text; that would suggest that its compiler used either a form of the Septuagint no longer attested or else a Hebrew original differing from the Masoretic Text.

Whatever the origins of the text of the book as a whole, it may be necessary to treat the debate of the three bodyguards in chs. 3–4 separately, and see there, for example, a Hebrew or Aramaic original even if the rest of the book was originally composed in Greek.

Purpose

It is very difficult to discern the purpose for the compilation of 1 Esdras. It might be easier if we could be sure that we have the complete work. The ending has almost certainly been lost (the last sentence is incomplete), and the beginning is so abrupt as to raise suspicions that the book originally opened at a somewhat earlier point.

There is a definite concern with the temple, from Josiah's Passover celebration in ch. 1 to the restoration of the temple treasures in ch. 2, the rebuilding of the temple in 5.56–7.9, the treasures brought for the temple by Ezra in ch. 8, and the settlement of the mixed marriages question in the square before the temple and the reading of the law in the same place in ch. 9. But it would be hazardous to argue that the temple is the theme of the work; there is too much material that has no connection at all with the temple.

Likewise, there is an obvious concentration on the two leaders of the postexilic community, Zerubbabel and Ezra. The work of Zerubbabel is more prominent than it is in the book of Ezra, and the figure of Ezra has entirely supplanted that of Nehemiah. But it would be unwise to regard the whole work as designed to rewrite the historical record about these characters, for the modifications to the books of Ezra and Nehemiah are relatively slight. It is more likely that 1 Esdras reflects the views of a group in postexilic Judaism that regarded Ezra and Nehemiah and their work quite differently (in 2 Macc 1.18–2.13 and in Sir 49.13 Nehemiah is mentioned and Ezra is ignored).

The presence of the extensive narrative of the debate of the three bodyguards of Darius in chs. 3–4 further complicates the question of the purpose or theme of the book. For while the victor in the debate is Zerubbabel and the narrative no doubt enhances the portrait of that leader, no connection is drawn between the speeches in the debate and the events narrated in the rest of the book, and it seems that the narrative is told for its own sake, with only the weakest of links to the characters of the book.

It is hard for even a careful reader to resist the impression that the book has no clear theme. The very reason for its existence is not apparent, and the selection of material from the other biblical books has been carried out on principles no longer evident to us.

Date

Lacking any idea of the purpose of the book, we are at a loss to date it with any accuracy. Most scholars would assign it to the second century B.C.E., but there is no certainty about that. We know that 1 Esdras, rather than the books of Ezra and Nehemiah, was the source used by Josephus in composing his Antiquities of the Jews toward the end of the first century C.E.

Since most of 1 Esdras is found elsewhere in the biblical text, these notes comment only on the differences between 1 Esdras and those other texts.

Josiah Celebrates the Passover

1 Josiah kept the passover to his Lord in Jerusalem; he killed the passover lamb on the fourteenth day of the first month, ²having placed the priests according to their divisions, arrayed in their vestments, in the temple of the Lord. ³He told the Levites, the temple servants of Israel, that they should sanctify themselves to the Lord and put the holy ark of the Lord in the house that King Solomon, son of David, had built; ⁴and he said, "You need no longer carry it on your shoulders. Now worship the Lord your God and serve his people Israel; prepare yourselves by your families and kindred, ⁵in accordance with the directions of King David of Israel and the magnificence of his son Solomon. Stand in order in the temple according to the groupings of the ancestral houses of you Levites, who minister before your kindred the people of Israel, ⁶and kill the passover lamb and prepare the sacrifices for your kindred, and keep the passover according to the commandment of the Lord that was given to Moses."

7 To the people who were present Josiah gave thirty thousand lambs and kids, and three thousand calves; these were given from the king's possessions, as he promised, to the people and the priests and Levites. ⁸Hilkiah, Zechariah, and Jehiel,^a the chief officers of the temple, gave to the priests for the passover two thousand six hundred sheep and three hundred calves. ⁹And Jeconiah and She-maiah and his brother Nethanel, and Hash-abiah and Ochiel and Joram, captains over thousands, gave the Levites for the passover five thousand sheep and seven hundred calves.

10 This is what took place. The priests and the Levites, having the unleavened bread, stood in proper order according to kindred ¹¹and the grouping of the ancestral houses, before the people, to make the offering to the Lord as it is written in the book of Moses; this they did in the morning. ¹²They roasted the passover lamb with fire, as required; and they boiled the sacrifices in bronze pots and caldrons, with a pleasing odor, ¹³and carried them to all the people. Afterward they prepared the passover for themselves and for their kindred the priests, the sons of Aaron, ¹⁴because the priests were offering the fat until nightfall; so the

1.1-22 This account of the reign of Josiah is parallel to that in 2 Chr 35. An important concern of the book is introduced in the opening chapter: the Jerusalem temple and the worship carried out there. The Passover celebrations obviously symbolized for the author the reformation of the temple worship undertaken by Josiah. 1.1 Josiah, king of Judah 640-609 B.C.E. Kept the passover. Cf. 2 Chr 35.1-19; 2 Kings 23.21-23. To his Lord. The Hebrew in the parallel verse, 2 Chr 35.1, has "to the LORD," using the divine name YHWH; in Greek, however, the divine personal name is represented by the title "the Lord," to which the possessive pronoun "his" can be attached. 1.2 The divisions are the "courses" or teams of priests that were rostered throughout the year for service in the temple; see 1 Chr 24.3-19. The detail that the priests were arrayed in their vestments is not in 2 Chr 35.2, but see Ezra 3.10. The author is attracted by the splendor of the temple officials (see also note on 1.10). 1.3 The Levites, the temple servants. In 2 Chr 35.3 the Levites are described as those who "taught all Israel." Perhaps the author has less regard for the Levites than does the Chronicler (though 1 Esd 9.48-49 does depict them as teachers of the law). The "temple servants" are elsewhere a separate and inferior class, the Nethinim (cf. Ezra 2.43-54). 1.4 Worship the Lord your God and serve his people Israel. In the Hebrew of 2 Chr 35.3 there is only one verb, "serve," which can mean both "worship" (a deity) and "serve" (humans). 1.5 Magnificence. 2 Chr 35.4 has only "written directions," but 1 Esdras is stressing the importance of the temple. 1.7 Calves, or "young bulls"; 2 Chr 35.7 reads "bulls." 1.9 Seven hundred calves, in 2 Chr 35.9 "five hundred bulls." 1.10 It should be the Levites alone, who are preparing the Passover for themselves and for the priests (1.13). The reference to the unleavened bread perhaps comes from a misreading of the Hebrew mitzwat, "command" (2 Chr 35.10) as matzot, "unleavened bread." The Festival of Unleavened Bread followed Passover (cf. 1.19). In proper order, lit. "becomingly," stresses the attractive appearance of the clergy more than the Hebrew "in their divisions" (2 Chr 35.10). 1.11 The reference to the morning comes from misreading of the Hebrew word baqar, "cattle" (2 Chr 35.12) as boqer, "morning" (some Hebrew manuscripts have the same error). 1.12 At the beginning of this verse 2 Chr 35.11-12 has been omitted. With a pleasing odor, a misreading of "pans" (2 Chr 35.13).

Levites prepared it for themselves and for their kindred the priests, the sons of Aaron. ¹⁵The temple singers, the sons of Asaph, were in their place according to the arrangement made by David, and also Asaph, Zechariah, and Eddinus, who represented the king. ¹⁶The gatekeepers were at each gate; no one needed to interrupt his daily duties, for their kindred the Levites prepared the passover for them.

¹⁷ So the things that had to do with the sacrifices to the Lord were accomplished that day: the passover was kept ¹⁸and the sacrifices were offered on the altar of the Lord, according to the command of King Josiah. ¹⁹And the people of Israel who were present at that time kept the passover and the festival of unleavened bread seven days. ²⁰No passover like it had been kept in Israel since the times of the prophet Samuel; ²¹none of the kings of Israel had kept such a passover as was kept by Josiah and the priests and Levites and the people of Judah and all of Israel who were living in Jerusalem. ²²In the eighteenth year of the reign of Josiah this passover was kept.

The End of Josiah's Reign

²³ And the deeds of Josiah were upright in the sight of the Lord, for his heart was full of godliness. ²⁴In ancient times the events of his reign have been recorded—concerning those who sinned and acted wickedly toward the Lord beyond any other people or kingdom, and how they grieved the Lord^b deeply, so that the words of the Lord fell upon Israel.

²⁸ Josiah, however, did not turn back to his chariot, but tried to fight with him, and did not heed the words of the prophet Jeremiah from the mouth of the Lord. ²⁹He joined battle with him in the plain of Megiddo, and the commanders came down against King Josiah. ³⁰The king said to his servants, "Take me away from the battle, for I am very weak." And immediately his servants took him out of the line of battle. ³¹He got into his second chariot; and after he was brought back to Jerusalem he died, and was buried in the tomb of his ancestors.

³² In all Judea they mourned for Josiah. The prophet Jeremiah lamented for Josiah, and the principal men, with the women,^c have made lamentation for him to this day; it was ordained that this should always be done throughout the whole nation of Israel. ³³These things are written in the book of the histories of the kings of Judea; and every one of the acts of Josiah, and his splendor, and his understanding of the law of the Lord, and the things that he had done before, and

1.23–33 The death of Josiah. 1.23–24 1 Esdras makes this addition to 2 Chr 35 as an explanatory preface to the narrative of how, despite Josiah's piety, he meets an untimely death (1.25–31). The death of Josiah was obviously a theological problem. There may be some allusion to 2 Kings 23.24–27. It is strange that 1 Esdras omits the phrase from 2 Chr 35.20 "After all this, when Josiah had set the temple in order," since that would have suited its purposes well. 1.28 Instead of the words of the prophet Jeremiah the Hebrew has "the words of Neco" (2 Chr 35.22). Perhaps the author disapproved of depicting the Egyptian king as a vehicle for God's words. No specific words of Jeremiah on the subject are known, but the author may have felt Josiah should have been warned by words like Jer 46.6.

1.32 The principal men, with the women is probably a misreading of the Hebrew hasharim wehasharot "the singing men and singing women" (2 Chr 35.25) as hasarim wehasarot, "the princes and princesses," which the Greek author further transformed by putting the women into a subordinate place. 1.33 The book of the histories of the kings of Judea is not the biblical Kings or Chronicles. 2 Chr 35.25 says their laments are "recorded in the Laments," but that is not the biblical book of Lamentations. Josephus's history includes such a lament, but we do not know where he got it (Antiquities 10.5.1). His splendor, and his understanding of the law of the Lord. In 2 Chr 35.26 it is simply "his faithful deeds in accordance with what is written in the law of the LORD." Josiah is more of a hero to the author of 1 Esdras.

these that are now told, are recorded in the book of the kings of Israel and Judah.

The Last Kings of Judah

34 The men of the nation took Jehoahaz^d son of Josiah, who was twenty-three years old, and made him king in succession to his father Josiah. 35 He reigned three months in Judah and Jerusalem. Then the king of Egypt deposed him from reigning in Jerusalem, 36 and fined the nation one hundred talents of silver and one talent of gold. 37 The king of Egypt made his brother Jehoiakim king of Judea and Jerusalem. 38 Jehoiakim put the nobles in prison, and seized his brother Zarius and brought him back from Egypt.

39 Jehoiakim was twenty-five years old when he began to reign in Judea and Jerusalem; he did what was evil in the sight of the Lord. 40 King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon came up against him; he bound him with a chain of bronze and took him away to Babylon. 41 Nebuchadnezzar also took some holy vessels of the Lord, and carried them away, and stored them in his temple in Babylon. 42 But the things that are reported about Jehoiakim,^e and his uncleanness and impiety, are written in the annals of the kings.

43 His son Jehoiachin^f became king in his place; when he was made king he was eighteen years old, 44 and he reigned three months and ten days in Jerusalem. He did what was evil in the sight of the Lord. 45 A year later Nebuchadnezzar sent and removed him to Babylon, with the holy vessels of the Lord, 46 and made Zedekiah king of Judea and Jerusalem.

The Fall of Jerusalem

Zedekiah was twenty-one years old, and he reigned eleven years. 47 He also did what was evil in the sight of the Lord, and did not heed the words that were spoken by the prophet Jeremiah from the mouth of the Lord. 48 Although King Nebuchadnezzar had made him swear by the name of the Lord, he broke his oath and rebelled; he stiffened his neck and hardened his heart and transgressed the laws of the Lord, the God of Israel. 49 Even the leaders of the people and of the priests committed many acts of sacrilege and lawlessness beyond all the unclean deeds of all the nations, and polluted the temple of the Lord in Jerusalem—the temple that God had made holy. 50 The God of their ancestors sent his messenger to call them back, because he would have spared them and his dwelling place. 51 But they mocked his messengers, and whenever the Lord spoke, they scoffed at his prophets, 52 until in his anger against his people because of their ungodly acts he gave command to bring against them the kings of the Chaldeans. 53 These killed their young men with the sword around their holy temple, and did not spare young man or young woman,^g old man or child, for he gave them all into their hands. 54 They took all the holy vessels of the Lord, great and small, the treasure chests of the Lord, and the royal stores, and carried them away to Babylon. 55 They burned the house of the Lord, broke down the walls of Jerusalem, burned their towers with fire, 56 and utterly destroyed all its glorious things. The survivors he led away to Babylon with the sword, 57 and they were servants to him and to his sons until the Persians began to reign, in fulfillment of the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah, 58 saying, “Until the land has enjoyed its sabbaths, it shall

1.46b–58 The fall of Jerusalem. 1.58 The quoted words are a combination of Jeremiah’s prophecy of a seventy-year devastation of the land (Jer 25.11–12) with the idea of that period as a sabbatical rest for the land (Lev 26.34–35).

keep sabbath all the time of its desolation until the completion of seventy years."

Cyrus Permits the Exiles to Return

2 In the first year of Cyrus as king of the Persians, so that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished— ²the Lord stirred up the spirit of King Cyrus of the Persians, and he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom and also put it in writing:

3 "Thus says Cyrus king of the Persians: The Lord of Israel, the Lord Most High, has made me king of the world, ⁴and he has commanded me to build him a house at Jerusalem, which is in Judea. ⁵If any of you, therefore, are of his people, may your Lord be with you; go up to Jerusalem, which is in Judea, and build the house of the Lord of Israel—he is the Lord who dwells in Jerusalem— ⁶and let each of you, wherever you may live, be helped by the people of your place with gold and silver, ⁷with gifts and with horses and cattle, besides the other things added as votive offerings for the temple of the Lord that is in Jerusalem."

8 Then arose the heads of families of the tribes of Judah and Benjamin, and the priests and the Levites, and all whose spirit the Lord had stirred to go up to build the house in Jerusalem for the Lord; ⁹their neighbors helped them with everything, with silver and gold, with horses and cattle, and with a very great number of votive offerings from many whose hearts were stirred.

10 King Cyrus also brought out the holy vessels of the Lord that Nebuchadnezzar had carried away from Jerusalem and stored in his temple of idols. ¹¹When King Cyrus of the Persians brought these out, he gave them to Mithridates, his treasurer, ¹²and by him they were given to Sheshbazzar,^h the governor of Judea. ¹³The number of these was: one thousand gold cups, one thousand silver cups, twenty-nine silver censers, thirty gold bowls, two thousand four hundred ten silver bowls, and one thousand other vessels. ¹⁴All the vessels were handed over, gold and silver, five thousand four hundred sixty-nine, ¹⁵and they were carried back by Sheshbazzar with the returning exiles from Babylon to Jerusalem.

Opposition to Rebuilding Jerusalem

16 In the time of King Artaxerxes of the Persians, Bishlam, Mithridates, Tabeel, Rehum, Beltethmus, the scribe Shimshai, and the rest of their associates, living in Samaria and other places, wrote him the following letter, against those who were living in Judea and Jerusalem:

17 "To King Artaxerxes our lord, your servants the recorder Rehum and the scribe Shimshai and the other members of their council, and the judges in Coele Syria and Phoenicia: ¹⁸Let it now be known to our lord the king that the Jews who came up from you to us have gone to Jerusalem and are building that rebellious and wicked city, repairing its market places and walls and laying the foundations for a temple. ¹⁹Now if this city is built and the walls finished, they will not only refuse to pay tribute but will even resist kings. ²⁰Since the building of the temple is now going on, we think it best not to neglect such a matter, ²¹but to speak to our lord the king, in order that, if it seems good to you, search may be

2.16–30 The narrative now skips to Ezra 4.7, omitting to note that the building of the temple actually started (cf. Ezra 3.8–10), though v. 30 will say that it "stopped" (the start of the work will be recounted much later, in 5.56–58). More importantly, the narrative becomes misleading by introducing here an episode from a much later period. Rather than in the time of the temple building (537–515 B.C.E.), we are now in the days of Artaxerxes I (465–424 B.C.E.), when the temple had long ago been finished and it was the rebuilding of the walls of Jerusalem (not the temple) that was being hindered. The author of 1 Esdras, however, confused the two building operations, inserting references to the temple in vv. 18, 20 where they do not belong (cf. Ezra 4.12, 14). 2.16 The names listed are a combination of two sets of signatories to separate letters in Ezra 4.7, 8. 2.17 Coelesyria, lit. "hollow Syria," the valleys and flatlands of inland Syria, reaching as far south as Judea, as distinct from Phoenicia, the east-made in the records of your ancestors. ²²You will find in the annals what has been written about them, and will learn that this city was rebellious, troubling both kings and other cities, ²³and that the Jews were rebels and kept setting up blockades in it from of old. That is why this city was laid waste. ²⁴Therefore we now make known to you, O lord and king, that if this city is built and its walls finished, you will no longer have access to Coelesyria and Phoenicia.”

²⁵ Then the king, in reply to the recorder Rehum, Beltethmus, the scribe Shimshai, and the others associated with them and living in Samaria and Syria and Phoenicia, wrote as follows:

²⁶ “I have read the letter that you sent me. So I ordered search to be made, and it has been found that this city from of old has fought against kings, ²⁷that the people in it were given to rebellion and war, and that mighty and cruel kings ruled in Jerusalem and exacted tribute from Coelesyria and Phoenicia. ²⁸Therefore I have now issued orders to prevent these people from building the city and to take care that nothing more be done ²⁹and that such wicked proceedings go no further to the annoyance of kings.”

³⁰ Then, when the letter from King Artaxerxes was read, Rehum and the scribe Shimshai and their associates went quickly to Jerusalem, with cavalry and a large number of armed troops, and began to hinder the builders. And the building of the temple in Jerusalem stopped until the second year of the reign of King Darius of the Persians.

The Debate of the Three Bodyguards

3 Now King Darius gave a great banquet for all that were under him, all that were born in his house, and all the nobles of Media and Persia, ²and all the satraps and generals and governors that were under him in the hundred twenty-seven satrapies from India to Ethiopia. ³They ate and drank, and when they were satisfied they went away, and King Darius went to his bedroom; he went to sleep, but woke up again.

⁴ Then the three young men of the bodyguard, who kept guard over the person of the king, said to one another, ⁵“Let each of us state what one thing is strongest; and to the one whose statement seems wisest, King Darius will give rich gifts and great honors of victory. ⁶He shall be clothed in purple, and drink from gold cups, and sleep on a gold bed,ⁱ and have a chariot with gold bridles, and a turban of fine linen, and a necklace around his neck; ⁷and because of his wisdom he shall sit next to Darius and shall be called Kinsman of Darius.”

⁸ Then each wrote his own statement, and they sealed them and put them under the pillow of King Darius, ⁹and said, “When the king wakes, they will give him

i Gk on gold

ern Mediterranean coast. 2.27 Cruel, or “ruthless,” “stubborn” (there is nothing corresponding to this in the Aramaic of Ezra 4.20). 2.30 The addition of cavalry and a large number of armed troops gives the story a more dramatic touch than in Ezra 4.23, which speaks more abstractly of “force and power.”

3.1–4.63 The debate of the three bodyguards. This is the one lengthy section of 1 Esdras that has no equivalent in 2 Chronicles or in Ezra–Nehemiah. Its function is to introduce governor Zerubbabel, explaining how this Jew came to be favored by the Persian king Darius. Zerubbabel proves to be the winner of the debate over what the strongest thing in the world is (4.13, 41), and he is rewarded by being given permission to rebuild the temple (4.42–57, 62–63). It seems likely that the story was a popular one long before it had the name of Zerubbabel attached to it, since it is found in other forms in different cultures.

3.1–17 This account of a banquet given by Darius (522–486 B.C.E.) has probably been borrowed from Esth 1.1–2 where, however, the king is Ahasuerus. 3.1 Media had been an important part of the Persian Empire since Cyrus I had conquered it in 550 B.C.E. 3.2 A satrap was governor of a satrapy, as the provinces of the Persian Empire were called. 3.3 But woke up again contradicts v. 13; there may be a textual error. 3.4–11 The details lack plausibility. Why should the bodyguards suppose that the winner of a competition of their own devising and for their own amusement would be rewarded so handsomely by the king? And why should the answers be put under the king's pillow if “they” (his servants, presumably, v. 9) are going to give them to him? Josephus, not surprisingly, rewrites the story to have the king himself make the promise of reward (as does Herod in Mk 6.22–23, for exam-the writing; and to the one whose statement the king and the three nobles of Persia judge to be wisest the victory shall be given according to what is written."

¹⁰The first wrote, "Wine is strongest."

¹¹The second wrote, "The king is strongest." ¹²The third wrote, "Women are strongest, but above all things truth is victor."^j

¹³ When the king awoke, they took the writing and gave it to him, and he read it. ¹⁴ Then he sent and summoned all the nobles of Persia and Media and the satraps and generals and governors and prefects, ¹⁵ and he took his seat in the council chamber, and the writing was read in their presence. ¹⁶ He said, "Call the young men, and they shall explain their statements." So they were summoned, and came in. ¹⁷ They said to them, "Explain to us what you have written."

The Speech About Wine

Then the first, who had spoken of the strength of wine, began and said: ¹⁸ "Gentlemen, how is wine the strongest? It leads astray the minds of all who drink it. ¹⁹ It makes equal the mind of the king and the orphan, of the slave and the free, of the poor and the rich. ²⁰ It turns every thought to feasting and mirth, and forgets all sorrow and debt. ²¹ It makes all hearts feel rich, forgets kings and satraps, and makes everyone talk in millions.^k ²² When people drink they forget to be friendly with friends and kindred, and before long they draw their swords. ²³ And when they recover from the wine, they do not remember what they have done. ²⁴ Gentlemen, is not wine the strongest, since it forces people to do these things?" When he had said this, he stopped speaking.

The Speech About the King

4 Then the second, who had spoken of the strength of the king, began to speak: ² "Gentlemen, are not men strongest, who rule over land and sea and all that is in them? ³ But the king is stronger; he is their lord and master, and whatever he says to them they obey. ⁴ If he tells them to make war on one another, they do it; and if he sends them out against the enemy, they go, and conquer mountains, walls, and towers. ⁵ They kill and are killed, and do not disobey the king's command; if they win the victory, they bring everything to the king—whatever spoil they take and everything else. ⁶ Likewise those who do not serve in the army or make war but till the soil; whenever they sow and reap, they bring some to the king; and they compel one another to pay taxes to the king. ⁷ And yet he is only one man! If he tells them to kill, they kill; if he tells them to release, they release; ⁸ if he tells them to attack, they attack; if he tells them to lay waste, they lay waste; if he tells them to build, they build; ⁹ if he tells them to cut down, they cut down; if he tells them to plant, they plant. ¹⁰ All his people and his armies obey him. Furthermore, he reclines, he eats and drinks and sleeps, ¹¹ but they keep watch around him, and no one may go away to attend to his own affairs, nor do they disobey him. ¹² Gentlemen, why is not the king the strongest, since he is to be obeyed in this fashion?" And he stopped speaking.

The Speech About Women

¹³ Then the third, who had spoken of women and truth (and this was Zerubbabel), began to speak: ¹⁴ "Gentlemen, is not

j Or but truth is victor over all things k Gk talents

ple). 3.12 Strangely, the third guard has two chances to win the competition! Also, how can women be strongest if truth is stronger still? It seems that but above all things truth is victor is an addition to an earlier form of the story.

3.18-24 The main point of this speech about wine is that it is "strong," but in it we can also detect a note of praise for wine (cf. Ps 104.15; Sir 31.27-28) as well as a note of warning (cf. Prov 20.1; 23.29-35). 4.1-12 This speech about the power of the king portrays an absolute monarch who determines the lives of his subjects. There is at least a hint of sycophancy about this speech, which is (in the narrative) being delivered in the presence of the king. But the author no doubt also intends to criticize the despotism he describes. 4.13-32 This speech about women is put in the mouth of the historical personage Zerubbabel, known as the governor of the province of Judah (cf. Ezra 3.2). The attitude taken toward women here is ambivalent, as is that toward wine and the king in the previous speeches. While women can further men's interests (4.16-17), they also can be harmful to men (4.18-19, 26-27). Interestingly, women's power here is only in relation to individual men; they have no

the king great, and are not men many, and is not wine strong? Who is it, then, that rules them, or has the mastery over them? Is it not women? ¹⁵Women gave birth to the king and to every people that rules over sea and land. ¹⁶From women they came; and women brought up the very men who plant the vineyards from which comes wine. ¹⁷Women make men's clothes; they bring men glory; men cannot exist without women. ¹⁸If men gather gold and silver or any other beautiful thing, and then see a woman lovely in appearance and beauty, ¹⁹they let all those things go, and gape at her, and with open mouths stare at her, and all prefer her to gold or silver or any other beautiful thing. ²⁰A man leaves his own father, who brought him up, and his own country, and clings to his wife. ²¹With his wife he ends his days, with no thought of his father or his mother or his country. ²²Therefore you must realize that women rule over you!

"Do you not labor and toil, and bring everything and give it to women? ²³A man takes his sword, and goes out to travel and rob and steal and to sail the sea and rivers; ²⁴he faces lions, and he walks in darkness, and when he steals and robs and plunders, he brings it back to the woman he loves. ²⁵A man loves his wife more than his father or his mother. ²⁶Many men have lost their minds because of women, and have become slaves because of them. ²⁷Many have perished, or stumbled, or sinned because of women. ²⁸And now do you not believe me?

"Is not the king great in his power? Do not all lands fear to touch him? ²⁹Yet I have seen him with Apame, the king's concubine, the daughter of the illustrious Bartacus; she would sit at the king's right hand ³⁰and take the crown from the king's head and put it on her own, and slap the king with her left hand. ³¹At this the king would gaze at her with mouth agape. If she smiles at him, he laughs; if she loses her temper with him, he flatters her, so that she may be reconciled to him. ³²Gentlemen, why are not women strong, since they do such things?"

The Speech About Truth

³³ Then the king and the nobles looked at one another; and he began to speak about truth: ³⁴"Gentlemen, are not women strong? The earth is vast, and heaven is high, and the sun is swift in its course, for it makes the circuit of the heavens and returns to its place in one day. ³⁵Is not the one who does these things great? But truth is great, and stronger than all things. ³⁶The whole earth calls upon truth, and heaven blesses it. All God's works¹ quake and tremble, and with him there is nothing unrighteous. ³⁷Wine is unrighteous, the king is unrighteous, women are unrighteous, all human beings are unrighteous, all their works are unrighteous, and all such things. There is no truth in them and in their unrighteousness they will perish. ³⁸But truth endures and is strong forever, and lives and prevails forever and ever. ³⁹With it there is no partiality or preference, but it does what is righteous instead of anything that is unrighteous or wicked. Everyone approves its deeds, ⁴⁰and there is nothing unrighteous in its judgment. To it belongs the strength and the kingship and the power and the majesty of all the ages. Blessed be the God of truth!" ⁴¹When he stopped speaking, all the people shouted and said, "Great is truth, and strongest of all!"

Zerubbabel's Reward

political or social power of their own. 4.29 No concubine of a Persian king by the name Apame is known from other sources. The point would be made better if no reference were made to the woman's parentage.

4.33–41 This speech in praise of truth contains no ambivalence about its subject. Truth is here not freedom from error but more like "virtue"; it is the opposite of unrighteousness (4.37, 39–40). It is hard to see any real argument in this speech that truth is "strong"; there is a claim that it endures and prevails (4.38), but no evidence is brought forward. The speech about truth has not been well integrated into the story of the three-cornered contest, which apparently existed in an earlier version without Zerubbabel. 4.38 This is the origin of the aphorism "Great is truth and it prevails" (often quoted in the Vulgate version, magna est veritas et praevallet).

4.42–57 This account of the resumption of ten, and we will give it to you, for you have been found to be the wisest. You shall sit next to me, and be called my Kinsman.” 43 Then he said to the king, “Remember the vow that you made on the day when you became king, to build Jerusalem, 44 and to send back all the vessels that were taken from Jerusalem, which Cyrus set apart when he began^m to destroy Babylon, and vowed to send them back there. 45 You also vowed to build the temple, which the Edomites burned when Judea was laid waste by the Chaldeans. 46 And now, O lord the king, this is what I ask and request of you, and this befits your greatness. I pray therefore that you fulfill the vow whose fulfillment you vowed to the King of heaven with your own lips.”

47 Then King Darius got up and kissed him, and wrote letters for him to all the treasurers and governors and generals and satraps, that they should give safe conduct to him and to all who were going up with him to build Jerusalem. 48 And he wrote letters to all the governors in Coele-syria and Phoenicia and to those in Lebanon, to bring cedar timber from Lebanon to Jerusalem, and to help him build the city. 49 He wrote in behalf of all the Jews who were going up from his kingdom to Judea, in the interest of their freedom, that no officer or satrap or governor or treasurer should forcibly enter their doors; 50 that all the country that they would occupy should be theirs without tribute; that the Idumeans should give up the villages of the Jews that they held; 51 that twenty talents a year should be given for the building of the temple until it was completed, 52 and an additional ten talents a year for burnt offerings to be offered on the altar every day, in accordance with the commandment to make seventeen offerings; 53 and that all who came from Babylonia to build the city should have their freedom, they and their children and all the priests who came. 54 He wrote also concerning their support and the priests' vestments in whichⁿ they were to minister. 55 He wrote that the support for the Levites should be provided until the day when the temple would be finished and Jerusalem built. 56 He wrote that land and wages should be provided for all who guarded the city. 57 And he sent back from Babylon all the vessels that Cyrus had set apart; everything that Cyrus had ordered to be done, he also commanded to be done and to be sent to Jerusalem.

Zerubbabel's Prayer

58 When the young man went out, he lifted up his face to heaven toward Jerusalem, and praised the King of heaven, saying, 59 “From you comes the victory; from you comes wisdom, and yours is the glory. I am your servant. 60 Blessed are you, who have given me wisdom; I give you thanks, O Lord of our ancestors.”

61 So he took the letters, and went to Babylon and told this to all his kindred. 62 And they praised the God of their ancestors, because he had given them release and permission 63 to go up and build Jerusalem and the temple that is called by his name; and they feasted, with music and rejoicing, for seven days.

the rebuilding of the Jerusalem temple differs somewhat from that of the other biblical books. 4.43 Ezra 1.7–8 (cf. 6.5; 1 Esd 3.10–12) says that it was Cyrus, not Darius, who restored the temple vessels. 4.45 No other biblical text says that the Edomites burned the temple. 4.47 Zerubbabel and Darius were not involved in the building of the city of Jerusalem; it was, rather, Nehemiah under Artaxerxes. 4.48 The letters of safe conduct and permission to take cedars from Lebanon were given to Nehemiah, not Zerubbabel (Neh 2.7–8). 4.49–56 The various rights given here to Zerubbabel and his community (freedom, privacy, tax-free status, removal of Idumeans, specific sums for temple worship, support of priests, Levites, and city guardkeepers), are not to be found in the decree of Cyrus in Ezra 6.6–12, though the provision of temple vessels, tax-free status for temple personnel, and specific sums for maintaining temple worship are promised by Artaxerxes to Ezra (Ezra 7.12–26).

4.58–63 Praise and celebration. 4.59–60 Zerubbabel's prayer of thanks combines many conventional OT phrases. 4.63 As before (e.g., 4.47), the building of the city Jerusalem is here ascribed to Zerubbabel rather than Nehemiah, whose work does not appear in 1 Esdras at all (the Nehemiah in 5.8 may or may not be understood as the governor Nehemiah; see also note on 5.40).

List of the Returning Exiles

5 After this the heads of ancestral houses were chosen to go up, according to their tribes, with their wives and sons and daughters, and their male and female servants, and their livestock. ²And Darius sent with them a thousand cavalry to take them back to Jerusalem in safety, with the music of drums and flutes; ³all their kindred were making merry. And he made them go up with them.

⁴ These are the names of the men who went up, according to their ancestral houses in the tribes, over their groups: ⁵the priests, the descendants of Phinehas son of Aaron; Jeshua son of Jozadak son of Seraiah and Joakim son of Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, of the house of David, of the lineage of Phares, of the tribe of Judah, ⁶who spoke wise words before King Darius of the Persians, in the second year of his reign, in the month of Nisan, the first month.

and their leaders: the descendants of Parosh, two thousand one hundred seventy-two. The descendants of Shephatiah, four hundred seventy-two. ¹⁰The descendants of Arah, seven hundred fifty-six. ¹¹The descendants of Pahath-moab, of the descendants of Jeshua and Joab, two thousand eight hundred twelve. ¹²The descendants of Elam, one thousand two hundred fifty-four. The descendants of Zattu, nine hundred forty-five. The descendants of Chorbe, seven hundred five. The descendants of Bani, six hundred forty-eight. ¹³The descendants of Bebai, six hundred twenty-three. The descendants of Azgad, one thousand three hundred twenty-two. ¹⁴The descendants of Adonikam, six hundred sixty-seven. The descendants of Bigvai, two thousand sixty-six. The descendants of Adin, four hundred fifty-four. ¹⁵The descendants of Ater, namely of Hezekiah, ninety-two. The descendants of Kilan and Azetas, sixty-seven. The descendants of Azaru, four hundred thirty-two. ¹⁶The descendants of Annias, one hundred one. The descendants of Arom. The descendants of Bezai, three hundred twenty-three. The descendants of Arsiphurith, one hundred twelve. ¹⁷The descendants of Baiterus, three thousand five. The descendants of Bethlomon, one hundred twenty-three. ¹⁸Those from Netophah, fifty-five. Those from Anathoth, one hundred fifty-eight. Those from Bethasmoth, forty-two. ¹⁹Those from Kiriatharim, twenty-five.

5.1–6 These verses correspond to nothing in Ezra and are obviously designed as a link between the story of the three bodyguards in chs. 3–4 and the material from Ezra that resumes in 5.7. The book of Ezra has no account of a return of exiles in the time of Darius. 5.1 The idea that certain exiles were chosen to go up, to return to the land, is not found elsewhere. In Ezra 1.5 it is those “whose spirit God had stirred,” and in Ezra 8.16–17 certain classes of exiles are prevailed upon to join Ezra’s company. Their livestock, as in Ezra 1.4, 6. 5.2 The inclusion of a thousand cavalry is unparalleled elsewhere, though cf. Neh 2.9. With the music of drums and flutes. The picture is of a religious procession or, perhaps, of a military march. The music, however, might be simply for the farewell. 5.4 These are the names of the men who went up. What follows is not a full list of returnees, so there seems to be some problem with the text. 5.5 Something is amiss here, since Joakim is not one of the sons of Zerubbabel according to 1 Chr 3.19, and, more importantly, Zerubbabel is not a priest, but a member of the tribe of Judah. There must be some error in the text. 5.6 Who spoke wise words before King Darius. The reference is to Zerubbabel and his speech in 4.13–40. The author knows that the building of the temple was halted until the second year of the reign of King Darius (2.30), so the contest is dated to the month of Nisan, the first month of that year to explain how Zerubbabel came to be appointed as director of the temple works.

5.7–46 This inventory of inhabitants of Judea at some unknown period in postexilic times is copied from Ezra 2.1–70 (Neh 7.6–73a) and assigned to the time of Zerubbabel, whose name is indeed the first in the list of leaders of returning exiles (1 Esd 5.8). The number of the Judeans differs somewhat in the various lists: there are, for example, 2150 more inhabitants of Judea in 1 Esd 5 than in Ezra 2, and several names are missing from either list. The differences all seem to be

Those from Chephirah and Beeroth, seven hundred forty-three. ²⁰The Chadiasans and Ammidians, four hundred twenty-two. Those from Kirama and Geba, six hundred twenty-one. ²¹Those from Macalon, one hundred twenty-two. Those from Betolio, fifty-two. The descendants of Niphish, one hundred fifty-six. ²²The descendants of the other Calamolalus and Ono, seven hundred twenty-five. The descendants of Jerechus, three hundred forty-five. ²³The descendants of Senaah, three thousand three hundred thirty.

dants of Acuph,^o the descendants of Hakupha, the descendants of Asur, the descendants of Pharakim, the descendants of Bazluth, ³²the descendants of Mehida, the descendants of Cutha, the descendants of Charea, the descendants of Barkos, the descendants of Serar, the descendants of Temah, the descendants of Neziah, the descendants of Hatipha.

³³ The descendants of Solomon's servants: the descendants of Assaphioth, the descendants of Peruda, the descendants of Jaalah, the descendants of Lozon, the descendants of Isdael, the descendants of Shephatiah, ³⁴the descendants of Agia, the descendants of Pochereth-hazzebaim, the descendants of Sarothie, the descendants of Masiah, the descendants of Gas, the descendants of Addus, the descendants of Subas, the descendants of Aphera, the descendants of Barodis, the descendants of Shaphat, the descendants of Allon.

³⁶ The following are those who came up from Tel-melah and Tel-harsha, under the leadership of Cherub, Addan, and Immer, ³⁷though they could not prove by their ancestral houses or lineage that they belonged to Israel: the descendants of Delaiah son of Tobiah, and the descendants of Nekoda, six hundred fifty-two.

³⁸ Of the priests the following had assumed the priesthood but were not found registered: the descendants of Habaiah, the descendants of Hakkoz, and the descendants of Jaddus who had married Agia, one of the daughters of Barzillai, and was called by his name. ³⁹When a search was made in the register and the genealogy of these men was not found, they were excluded from serving as priests. ⁴⁰And Nehemiah and Atharias^p told them not to share in the holy things until a high priest should appear wearing Urim and Thummim.^q

⁴⁴ Some of the heads of families, when they came to the temple of God that is in Jerusalem, vowed that, to the best of their ability, they would erect the house on its site, ⁴⁵and that they would give to the sacred treasury for the work a thousand minas of gold, five thousand minas of silver, and one hundred priests' vestments.

⁴⁶ The priests, the Levites, and some of the people^r settled in Jerusalem and its vicinity; and the temple singers, the gatekeepers, and all Israel in their towns.

Worship Begins Again

⁴⁷ When the seventh month came, and the Israelites were all in their own homes, they gathered with a single purpose in the square before the first gate toward the east. ⁴⁸Then Jeshua son of Jozadak, with his fellow priests, and Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel, with his kinsmen, took their places and prepared the altar of the God of Israel, ⁴⁹to offer burnt offerings upon it, in accordance with the directions in the book of Moses the man of God. ⁵⁰And some joined them from the other peoples of the land. And they erected the altar in its place, for all the peoples of the land were hostile to them and were stronger than they; and they offered sacrifices at the proper times and burnt offerings to the Lord morning and evening. ⁵¹They kept the festival of booths, as it is commanded in the law, and offered the proper sacrifices every day, ⁵²and thereafter the regular offerings and sacrifices on sabbaths and at new moons and at all the consecrated feasts. ⁵³And all who had made any vow to God began to offer sacrifices to God, from the new moon of the seventh month, though the temple of God was not yet built. ⁵⁴They gave money to the masons and the carpenters, and food and drink ⁵⁵and carts^s to the Sidonians and the Tyrians, to bring cedar logs from Lebanon and convey them in rafts to the harbor of Joppa, according to the decree that they had in writing from King Cyrus of the Persians.

The Foundations of the Temple Laid

⁵⁶ In the second year after their coming to the temple of God in Jerusalem, in the second month, Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak made a beginning, together with their kindred and the levitical priests and all who had come back to Jerusalem from exile; ⁵⁷and they laid the foundation of the temple of God on the new moon of the second month in the second year after they came to Judea and Jerusalem. ⁵⁸They appointed the Levites who were twenty or more years of age to have charge of the work of the Lord. And Jeshua arose, and his sons and kindred and his brother Kadmiel and the sons of Jeshua Emadabun and the sons of Joda son of Iliadun, with their sons and kindred, all the Levites, pressing forward the work on the house of God with a single purpose.

5.47-55 This account of the restoration of worship is largely identical with that in Ezra 3.1-7. 5.47 In this context (cf. 2.30; 5.6) this is the seventh month in the second year of Darius I (520 B.C.E.). In Ezra 3.1, however, it is in the first year of Cyrus (538 B.C.E.). The transference of the return and the resumption of worship to the reign of Darius serves to emphasize further the work of Zerubbabel. In the square before the first gate toward the east, i.e., in the vicinity of the temple. of the land is an interesting addition to the narrative in Ezra. It may be due simply to a scribal error, for it is hard to see why some of the other inhabitants would have joined in the worship if all the peoples of the land were hostile to them (cf. also 5.66-71). 5.52 Sacrifices on sabbaths is an addition to the Ezra account, perhaps reflecting the increasing prominence of the sabbath. 5.55 Carts. Ezra 3.7 reads "oil." Convey them in rafts, a quite correct explanation of the mode of transport from the Lebanon.

Lord. ⁵⁹And the priests stood arrayed in their vestments, with musical instruments and trumpets, and the Levites, the sons of Asaph, with cymbals, ⁶⁰praising the Lord and blessing him, according to the directions of King David of Israel; ⁶¹they sang hymns, giving thanks to the Lord, "For his goodness and his glory are forever upon all Israel." ⁶²And all the people sounded trumpets and shouted with a great shout, praising the Lord for the erection of the house of the Lord. ⁶³Some of the levitical priests and heads of ancestral houses, old men who had seen the former house, came to the building of this one with outcries and loud weeping, ⁶⁴while many came with trumpets and a joyful noise, ⁶⁵so that the people could not hear the trumpets because of the weeping of the people.

For the multitude sounded the trumpets loudly, so that the sound was heard far away; ⁶⁶and when the enemies of the tribe of Judah and Benjamin heard it, they came to find out what the sound of the trumpets meant. ⁶⁷They learned that those who had returned from exile were building the temple for the Lord God of Israel. ⁶⁸So they approached Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the heads of the ancestral houses and said to them, "We will build with you. ⁶⁹For we obey your Lord just as you do and we have been sacrificing to him ever since the days of King Esarhaddon^t of the Assyrians, who brought us here." ⁷⁰But Zerubbabel and Jeshua and the heads of the ancestral houses in Israel said to them, "You have nothing to do with us in building the house for the Lord our God, ⁷¹for we alone will build it for the Lord of Israel, as Cyrus, the king of the Persians, has commanded us." ⁷²But the peoples of the land pressed hard^u upon those in Judea, cut off their supplies, and hindered their building; ⁷³and by plots and demagoguery and uprisings they prevented the completion of the building as long as King Cyrus lived. They were kept from building for two years, until the reign of Darius.

Work on the Temple Begins Again

6 Now in the second year of the reign of Darius, the prophets Haggai and Zechariah son of Iddo prophesied to the Jews who were in Judea and Jerusalem; they prophesied to them in the name of the Lord God of Israel. ²Then Zerubbabel son of Shealtiel and Jeshua son of Jozadak began to build the house of the Lord that is in Jerusalem, with the help of the prophets of the Lord who were with them.

³ At the same time Sisinnēs the governor of Syria and Phoenicia and Sathrabuzanes and their associates came to them and said, ⁴"By whose order are you building this house and this roof and finishing all the other things? And who are the builders that are finishing these things?" ⁵Yet the elders of the Jews were dealt with kindly, for the providence of the Lord was over the captives; ⁶they were not prevented from building until word could be sent to Darius concerning them and a report made.

⁸ "To King Darius, greetings. Let it be fully known to our lord the king that, when we went to the country of Judea and entered the city of Jerusalem, we found the elders of the Jews, who had been in exile, ⁹building in the city of Jerusalem a great new house for the Lord, of hewn stone, with costly timber laid in the walls. ¹⁰These operations are going on rapidly,

5.62 The comment all the people sounded trumpets is not in Ezra 3, and is a little strange, since trumpets were usually blown by priests (e.g., Num 10.2–10). 5.64–65 Again, the references to trumpets are not paralleled in Ezra 3. 5.73 This note about being kept from building for two years seems to result from a misunderstanding of the reference to "the second year" of Darius in Ezra 4.24. The account in Ezra envisages cessation of work on the temple from about the second year of Cyrus (537 B.C.E.) to the second year of Darius (520 B.C.E.).

6.1–34 Work begins again. 6.4 Finishing all the other things. Perhaps the author of 1 Esdras has in mind that other buildings in addition to the temple were in progress (as in 3.18 the building of the temple and the building of the city are and the work is prospering in their hands and being completed with all splendor and care. ¹¹Then we asked these elders, 'At whose command are you building this house and laying the foundations of this structure?' ¹²In order that we might inform you in writing who the leaders are, we questioned them and asked them for a list of the names of those who are at their head. ¹³They answered us, 'We are the servants of the Lord who created the heaven and the earth. ¹⁴The house was built many years ago by a king of Israel who was great and strong, and it was finished. ¹⁵But when our ancestors sinned against the Lord of Israel who is in heaven, and provoked him, he gave them over into the hands of King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon, king of the Chaldeans; ¹⁶and they pulled down the house, and burned it, and carried the people away captive to Babylon. ¹⁷But in the first year that Cyrus reigned over the country of Babylonia, King Cyrus wrote that this house should be rebuilt. ¹⁸And the holy vessels of gold and of silver, which Nebuchadnezzar had taken out of the house in Jerusalem and stored in his own temple, these King Cyrus took out again from the temple in Babylon, and they were delivered to Zerubbabel and Sheshbazzar^v the governor ¹⁹with the command that he should take all these vessels back and put them in the temple at Jerusalem, and that this temple of the Lord should be rebuilt on its site. ²⁰Then this Sheshbazzar, after coming here, laid the foundations of the house of the Lord that is in Jerusalem. Although it has been in process of construction from that time until now, it has not yet reached completion.' ²¹Now therefore, O king, if it seems wise to do so, let search be made in the royal archives of our lord^w the king that are in Babylon; ²²if it is found that the building of the house of the Lord in Jerusalem was done with the consent of King Cyrus, and if it is approved by our lord the king, let him send us directions concerning these things."

Official Permission Granted

²³ Then Darius commanded that search be made in the royal archives that were deposited in Babylon. And in Ecbatana, the fortress that is in the country of Media, a scroll^x was found in which this was recorded: ²⁴"In the first year of the reign of King Cyrus, he ordered the building of the house of the Lord in Jerusalem, where they sacrifice with perpetual fire; ²⁵its height to be sixty cubits and its width sixty cubits, with three courses of hewn stone and one course of new native timber; the cost to be paid from the treasury of King Cyrus; ²⁶and that the holy vessels of the house of the Lord, both of gold and of silver, which Nebuchadnezzar took out of the house in Jerusalem and carried away to Babylon, should be restored to the house in Jerusalem, to be placed where they had been."

²⁷ So Darius^y commanded Sisinnus the governor of Syria and Phoenicia, and Sathrabuzanes, and their associates, and those who were appointed as local rulers in Syria and Phoenicia, to keep away from the place, and to permit Zerubbabel, the servant of the Lord and governor of Judea, and the elders of the Jews to build this house of the Lord on its site. ²⁸"And I command that it be built completely, and that full effort be made to help those who have returned from the exile of Judea, until the house of the Lord is finished; ²⁹and that out of the tribute of Coesylria and Phoenicia a portion be scrupulously given to these men, that is, to Zerubbabel the governor, for sacrifices to the Lord, for bulls and rams and lambs. ³⁰and likewise wheat and salt and wine and oil, regularly every year, without quibbling, for daily use as the priests in Jerusalem may indicate, ³¹in order that libations may be made to the Most High God for the king and his children, and prayers be offered for their lives."

Nevertheless, it is Sheshbazzar, not Zerubbabel, who lays the foundations of the temple

(6.20). 6.27 In Ezra 6.7 the reference is solely to "the governor of the Jews"; the naming of Zerubbabel, and especially the title given to him, the servant of the Lord and governor of Judea, are evidence of his importance in the eyes of the author of 1 Esdras.

32 He commanded that if anyone should transgress or nullify any of the things herein written,^z a beam should be taken out of the house of the perpetrator, who then should be impaled upon it, and all property forfeited to the king.

34 "I, King Darius, have decreed that it be done with all diligence as here prescribed."

The Temple Is Dedicated

7 Then Sisinnus the governor of Coel-syria and Phoenicia, and Sathrabuzanes, and their associates, following the orders of King Darius, ²supervised the holy work with very great care, assisting the elders of the Jews and the chief officers of the temple. ³The holy work prospered, while the prophets Haggai and Zechariah prophesied; ⁴and they completed it by the command of the Lord God of Israel. So with the consent of Cyrus and Darius and Artaxerxes, kings of the Persians, ⁵the holy house was finished by the twenty-third day of the month of Adar, in the sixth year of King Darius. ⁶And the people of Israel, the priests, the Levites, and the rest of those who returned from exile who joined them, did according to what was written in the book of Moses. ⁷They offered at the dedication of the temple of the Lord one hundred bulls, two hundred rams, four hundred lambs, ⁸and twelve male goats for the sin of all Israel, according to the number of the twelve leaders of the tribes of Israel; ⁹and the priests and the Levites stood arrayed in their vestments, according to kindred, for the services of the Lord God of Israel in accordance with the book of Moses; and the gatekeepers were at each gate.

The Passover

10 The people of Israel who came from exile kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month, after the priests and the Levites were purified together. ¹¹Not all of the returned captives were purified, but the Levites were all purified together,^a ¹²and they sacrificed the passover lamb for all the returned captives and for their kindred the priests and for themselves. ¹³The people of Israel who had returned from exile ate it, all those who had separated themselves from the abominations of the peoples of the land and sought the Lord. ¹⁴They also kept the festival of unleavened bread seven days, rejoicing before the Lord, ¹⁵because he had changed the will of the king of the Assyrians concerning them, to strengthen their hands for the service of the Lord God of Israel.

Ezra Arrives in Jerusalem

8 After these things, when Artaxerxes, the king of the Persians, was reigning, Ezra came, the son of Seraiah, son of Azariah, son of Hilkiah, son of Shallum, ²son of Zadok, son of Ahitub, son of Amariah, son of Uzzi, son of Bukki, son of Abishua, son of Phineas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the high^b priest. ³This Ezra came up from Babylon as a scribe skilled in the law of Moses, which was given by the God of Israel; ⁴and the king showed him honor, for he found favor before the king^c in all his requests. ⁵There came up with him to Jerusalem some of the people of Israel and some of the priests and

7.1-9 The temple is dedicated. 7.2 The account in Ezra 6.13 speaks only of the non-Jews doing what Darius had ordered—providing resources for the temple work. Here they are, strangely enough, actively involved in the rebuilding as they supervised the holy work. 7.5 The twenty-third day of the month of Adar, April 1, 515 B.C.E. This clause, lacking in Ezra 6.20, perhaps results from a scribal error, though there may be an allusion to 2 Chr 30.18, where some unpurified Northerners nevertheless were able to celebrate Passover. 7.15 King of the Assyrians is an unusual title for Darius (cf. Ezra 6.22).

The King's Mandate

⁸ The following is a copy of the written commission from King Artaxerxes that was delivered to Ezra the priest and reader of the law of the Lord:

⁹ "King Artaxerxes to Ezra the priest and reader of the law of the Lord, greeting. ¹⁰In accordance with my gracious decision, I have given orders that those of the Jewish nation and of the priests and Levites and others in our realm, those who freely choose to do so, may go with you to Jerusalem. ¹¹Let as many as are so disposed, therefore, leave with you, just as I and the seven Friends who are my counselors have decided, ¹²in order to look into matters in Judea and Jerusalem, in accordance with what is in the law of the Lord, ¹³and to carry to Jerusalem the gifts for the Lord of Israel that I and my Friends have vowed, and to collect for the Lord in Jerusalem all the gold and silver that may be found in the country of Babylonia, ¹⁴together with what is given by the nation for the temple of their Lord that is in Jerusalem, both gold and silver for bulls and rams and lambs and what goes with them, ¹⁵so as to offer sacrifices on the altar of their Lord that is in Jerusalem. ¹⁶Whatever you and your kindred are minded to do with the gold and silver, perform it in accordance with the will of your God; ¹⁷deliver the holy vessels of the Lord that are given you for the use of the temple of your God that is in Jerusalem. ¹⁸And whatever else occurs to you as necessary for the temple of your God, you may provide out of the royal treasury.

²³ "And you, Ezra, according to the wisdom of God, appoint judges and justices to judge all those who know the law of your God, throughout all Syria and Phoenicia; and you shall teach it to those who do not know it. ²⁴All who transgress the law of your God or the law of the kingdom shall be strictly punished, whether by death or some other punishment, either fine or imprisonment."

Ezra Praises God

²⁵ Then Ezra the scribe said,^e "Blessed be the Lord alone, who put this into the heart of the king, to glorify his house that is in Jerusalem, ²⁶and who honored me in the sight of the king and his counselors and all his Friends and nobles. ²⁷I was encouraged by the help of the Lord my God, and I gathered men from Israel to go up with me."

The Leaders Who Returned

the descendants of David, Hattush son of Shecaniah. ³⁰Of the descendants of Parosh, Zechariah, and with him a hundred fifty men enrolled. ³¹Of the descendants of Pahath-moab, Eliehoenai son of Zerahiah, and with him two hundred men. ³²Of the descendants of Zattu, Shecaniah son of Jahaziel, and with him three hundred men. Of the descendants of Adin, Obed son of Jonathan, and with him two hundred fifty men. ³³Of the descendants of Elam, Jeshaiiah son of Gotholiah, and with him seventy men. ³⁴Of the descendants of Shephatiah, Zeraiah son of Michael, and with him seventy men. ³⁵Of the descendants of Joab, Obadiah son of Jehiel, and with him two hundred twelve men. ³⁶Of the descendants of Bani, Shelomith son of Josiphiah, and with him a hundred sixty men. ³⁷Of the descendants of Bebai, Zechariah son of Bebai, and with him twenty-eight men. ³⁸Of the descendants of Azgad, Johanan son of Hakatan, and with him a hundred ten men. ³⁹Of the descendants of Adonikam, the last ones, their names being Eliphelet, Jeuel, and Shemaiah, and with them seventy men. ⁴⁰Of the descendants of Bigvai, Uthai son of Istalcurus, and with him seventy men.

⁴¹ I assembled them at the river called Theras, and we encamped there three days, and I inspected them. ⁴²When I found there none of the descendants of the priests or of the Levites, ⁴³I sent word to Eliezar, Idue, Maasmas, ⁴⁴Elnathan, Shemaiah, Jarib, Nathan, Elnathan, Zechariah, and Meshullam, who were leaders and men of understanding; ⁴⁵I told them to go to Iddo, who was the leading man at the place of the treasury, ⁴⁶and ordered them to tell Iddo and his kindred and the treasurers at that place to send us men to serve as priests in the house of our Lord. ⁴⁷And by the mighty hand of our Lord they brought us competent men of the descendants of Mahli son of Levi, son of Israel, namely Sherebiah^f with his descendants and kinsmen, eighteen; ⁴⁸also Hashabiah and Annunus and his brother Jeshaiiah, of the descendants of Hananiah, and their descendants, twenty men; ⁴⁹and of the temple servants, whom David and the leaders had given for the service of the Levites, two hundred twenty temple servants; the list of all their names was reported.

Ezra Proclaims a Fast

⁵⁰ There I proclaimed a fast for the young men before our Lord, to seek from him a prosperous journey for ourselves and for our children and the livestock that were with us. ⁵¹For I was ashamed to ask the king for foot soldiers and cavalry and an escort to keep us safe from our adversaries; ⁵²for we had said to the king, "The power of our Lord will be with those who seek him, and will support them in every way." ⁵³And again we prayed to our Lord about these things, and we found him very merciful.

The Gifts for the Temple

⁵⁴ Then I set apart twelve of the leaders of the priests, Sherebiah and Hashabiah, and ten of their kinsmen with them; ⁵⁵and I weighed out to them the silver and the gold and the holy vessels of the house of our Lord, which the king himself and his counselors and the nobles and all Israel had given. ⁵⁶I weighed and gave to them six hundred fifty talents of silver, and silver vessels worth a hundred talents, and a hundred talents of gold, ⁵⁷and twenty golden bowls, and twelve bronze vessels of fine bronze that glittered like gold. ⁵⁸And I said to them, "You are holy to the Lord, and the vessels are holy, and the silver and the gold are vowed to the Lord, the Lord of our ancestors. ⁵⁹Be watchful and on guard until you deliver them to the leaders of the priests and the Levites, and to the heads of the ancestral houses of Israel, in Jerusalem, in the chambers of the house of our Lord." ⁶⁰So the priests and the Levites who took the silver and the gold and the vessels that had been in Jerusalem carried them to the temple of the Lord.

⁶¹ We left the river Theras on the twelfth day of the first month; and we arrived in Jerusalem by the mighty hand of our Lord, which was upon us; he delivered us from every enemy on the way, and so we came to Jerusalem. ⁶²When we had been there three days, the silver and the gold were weighed and delivered in the house of our Lord to the priest Meremoth son of Uriah; ⁶³with him was Eleazar son of Phinehas, and with them were Jozabad son of Jeshua and Moeth son of Binnui,^g the Levites. ⁶⁴The whole was counted and weighed, and the weight of everything was recorded at that very time. ⁶⁵And those who had returned from exile offered sacrifices to the Lord, the God of Israel, twelve bulls for all Israel, ninety-six rams, ⁶⁶seventy-two lambs, and as a thank offering twelve male goats—all as a sacrifice to the Lord. ⁶⁷They delivered the king's orders to the royal stewards and to the governors of Coelesyria and Phoenicia; and these officials^h honored the people and the temple of the Lord.

Ezra's Prayer

⁶⁸ After these things had been done, the leaders came to me and said, ⁶⁹"The people of Israel and the rulers and the priests and the Levites have not put away from themselves the alien peoples of the land and their pollutions, the Canaanites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Jebusites, the Moabites, the Egyptians, and the Edomites. ⁷⁰For they and their descendants have married the daughters of these people,ⁱ and the holy race has been mixed with the alien peoples of the land; and from the beginning of this matter the leaders and the nobles have been sharing in this iniquity."

⁷¹ As soon as I heard these things I tore my garments and my holy mantle, and pulled out hair from my head and beard, and sat down in anxiety and grief. ⁷²And all who were ever moved at^j the word of the Lord of Israel gathered around me, as I mourned over this iniquity, and I sat grief-stricken until the evening sacrifice. ⁷³Then I rose from my fast, with my garments and my holy mantle torn, and kneeling down and stretching out my hands to the Lord ⁷⁴I said,

"O Lord, I am ashamed and confused before your face. ⁷⁵For our sins have risen higher than our heads, and our mistakes have mounted up to heaven ⁷⁶from the times of our ancestors, and we are in great sin to this day. ⁷⁷Because of our sins and the sins of our ancestors, we with our kindred and our kings and our priests were given over to the kings of the earth, to the sword and exile and plundering, in shame until this day. ⁷⁸And now in some measure mercy has come to us from you, O Lord, to leave to us a root and a name in your holy place, ⁷⁹and to uncover a light for us in the house of the Lord our God, and to give us food in the time of our servitude. ⁸⁰Even in our bondage we were not forsaken by our Lord, but he brought us into favor with the kings of the Persians, so that they have given us food ⁸¹and glorified the temple of our Lord, and raised Zion from desolation, to give us a stronghold in Judea and Jerusalem.

⁸² "And now, O Lord, what shall we say, when we have these things? For we have transgressed your commandments, which you gave by your servants the prophets, saying, ⁸³'The land that you are entering to take possession of is a land polluted with the pollution of the aliens of the land, and they have filled it with their uncleanness. ⁸⁴Therefore do not give your daughters in marriage to their descendants, and do not take their daughters for your descendants; ⁸⁵do not seek ever to have peace with them, so that you may be strong and eat the good things of the land and leave it for an inheritance to your children forever.' ⁸⁶And all that has happened to us has come about because of our evil deeds and our great sins. For you, O Lord, lifted the burden of our sins ⁸⁷and gave us such a root as this; but we turned back again to transgress your law by mixing with the uncleanness of the peoples of the land. ⁸⁸Were you not angry enough with us to destroy us without leaving a root or seed or name? ⁸⁹O Lord of Israel, you are faithful; for we are left as a root to this day. ⁹⁰See, we are now before you in our iniquities; for we can no longer stand in your presence because of these things."

8.66 Ezra 8.35 has "seventy-seven lambs"; 1 Esdras may preserve the correct number seventy-two, which is a multiple of twelve, symbolizing the twelve tribes of Israel. 8.71 My holy mantle.

Ezra 9.3 has simply "my mantle," but Ezra is of course a priest, so his garments are holy. 8.80 Have given us food. Ezra 9.9 has a less literal phrase, "to give us new life."

The Plan for Ending Mixed Marriages

91 While Ezra was praying and making his confession, weeping and lying on the ground before the temple, there gathered around him a very great crowd of men and women and youths from Jerusalem; for there was great weeping among the multitude. 92 Then Shecaniah son of Jehiel, one of the men of Israel, called out, and said to Ezra, "We have sinned against the Lord, and have married foreign women from the peoples of the land; but even now there is hope for Israel. 93 Let us take an oath to the Lord about this, that we will put away all our foreign wives, with their children, 94 as seems good to you and to all who obey the law of the Lord. 95 Rise up^k and take action, for it is your task, and we are with you to take strong measures." 96 Then Ezra rose up and made the leaders of the priests and Levites of all Israel swear that they would do this. And they swore to it.

The Expulsion of Foreign Wives

9 Then Ezra set out and went from the court of the temple to the chamber of Jehohanan son of Eliashib, 2 and spent the night there; and he did not eat bread or drink water, for he was mourning over the great iniquities of the multitude. 3 And a proclamation was made throughout Judea and Jerusalem to all who had returned from exile that they should assemble at Jerusalem, 4 and that if any did not meet there within two or three days, in accordance with the decision of the ruling elders, their livestock would be seized for sacrifice and the men themselves^l expelled from the multitude of those who had returned from the captivity.

5 Then the men of the tribe of Judah and Benjamin assembled at Jerusalem within three days; this was the ninth month, on the twentieth day of the month. 6 All the multitude sat in the open square before the temple, shivering because of the bad weather that prevailed. 7 Then Ezra stood up and said to them, "You have broken the law and married foreign women, and so have increased the sin of Israel. 8 Now then make confession and give glory to the Lord the God of our ancestors, 9 and do his will; separate yourselves from the peoples of the land and from your foreign wives."

10 Then all the multitude shouted and said with a loud voice, "We will do as you have said. 11 But the multitude is great and it is winter, and we are not able to stand in the open air. This is not a work we can do in one day or two, for we have sinned too much in these things. 12 So let the leaders of the multitude stay, and let all those in our settlements who have foreign wives come at the time appointed, 13 with the elders and judges of each place, until we are freed from the wrath of the Lord over this matter."

14 Jonathan son of Asahel and Jahzeiah son of Tikvah^m undertook the matter on these terms, and Meshullam and Levi and Shabbethai served with them as judges. 15 And those who had returned from exile acted in accordance with all this.

16 Ezra the priest chose for himself the leading men of their ancestral houses, all of them by name; and on the new moon of the tenth month they began their sessions to investigate the matter. 17 And the cases of the men who had foreign wives were brought to an end by the new moon of the first month.

18 Of the priests, those who were brought in and found to have foreign wives were: 19 of the descendants of Jeshua son of Jozadak and his kindred, Maaseiah, Eliezar, Jarib, and Jodan. 20 They pledged themselves to put away their wives, and to offer rams in expiation of their error. 21 Of the descendants of Immer: Hanani and Zebadiah and Maaseiah and Shemaiah and Jehiel and Azariah. 22 Of the descendants of Pashhur: Elieonai, Maaseiah, Ishmael, and Nathanael, and Gedaliah, and Salthas.

Ezra Reads the Law to the People

37 The priests and the Levites and the Israelites settled in Jerusalem and in the country. On the new moon of the seventh month, when the people of Israel were in their settlements, ³⁸the whole multitude gathered with one accord in the open square before the east gate of the temple; ³⁹they told Ezra the chief priest and reader to bring the law of Moses that had been given by the Lord God of Israel. ⁴⁰So Ezra the chief priest brought the law, for all the multitude, men and women, and all the priests to hear the law, on the new moon of the seventh month. ⁴¹He read aloud in the open square before the gate of the temple from early morning until midday, in the presence of both men and women; and all the multitude gave attention to the law. ⁴²Ezra the priest and reader of the law stood on the wooden platform that had been prepared; ⁴³and beside him stood Mattathiah, Shema, Ananias, Azariah, Uriah, Hezekiah, and Baalsamus on his right, ⁴⁴and on his left Pedaiah, Mishaël, Malchijah, Lothasubus, Nabariah, and Zechariah. ⁴⁵Then Ezra took up the book of the law in the sight of the multitude, for he had the place of honor in the presence of all. ⁴⁶When he opened the law, they all stood erect. And Ezra blessed the Lord God Most High, the God of hosts, the Almighty, ⁴⁷and the multitude answered, "Amen." They lifted up their hands, and fell to the ground and worshiped the Lord. ⁴⁸Jeshua and Anniuth and Sherebiah, Jadinus, Akkub, Shabbethai, Hodiah, Maiannas and Kelita, Azariah and Jozabad, Hanan, Pelaiah, the Levites, taught the law of the Lord,^p at the same time explaining what was read.

⁴⁹ Then Attharates^q said to Ezra the rather that these men opposed the proposal of the people. 9.36 The reading they put them away together with their children is more intelligible than the Hebrew text of the parallel in Ezra 10.44, and it perhaps preserves the original Hebrew reading.

9.37–55 The narrative jumps to Nehemiah 7.73b–8.12, where the story of Ezra continues in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah. The work of Nehemiah is entirely omitted from the narrative of 1 Esdras. Historically, the events of these verses, set at the beginning of the seventh month (1 Esd 9.37), probably occurred between Ezra's arrival in Jerusalem in the fifth month of the seventh year of Artaxerxes (8.6) and the twentieth day of the ninth month, when the assembly met to consider the question of the mixed marriages (9.5). See also Neh 7.73b–8.13. The effect of narrating the reading of the law at the very end of 1 Esdras is to make even more clear than in Ezra and Nehemiah that the reading and acceptance of the law was the goal of Ezra's mission. 9.49 Attharates is a transformation of the Hebrew title Tirshata, "governor," into a personal name. The parallel in Neh 8.9 has "Nehemiah, who was the governor"; but 1 Esdras is ignoring the work of Nehemiah almost entirely (though cf. note on 5.40). It is a little strange that it is the governor here who tells Ezra and the Levites how the people should behave on the holy day. The reading of Neh 8.9 is more probable, where it is Ezra and chief priest and reader, and to the Levites who were teaching the multitude, and to all, ⁵⁰“This day is holy to the Lord” — now they were all weeping as they heard the law — ⁵¹“so go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions to those who have none; ⁵²for the day is holy to the Lord; and do not be sorrowful, for the Lord will exalt you.” ⁵³The Levites commanded all the people, saying, “This day is holy; do not be sorrowful.” ⁵⁴Then they all went their way, to eat and drink and enjoy themselves, and to give portions to those who had none, and to make great rejoicing; ⁵⁵because they were inspired by the words which they had been taught. And they came together.^r

^r The Greek text ends abruptly; compare Neh 8.13

the Levites (along with the governor Nehemiah, if indeed his name rightly belongs in the verse), who give the people directions. 9.55 They were inspired by the words. Neh 8.12 has, more prosaically, “they had understood the words.” And they came together. These words clearly imply that a continuation of the narrative has been lost. They seem to be from Neh 8.13, and we may assume that 1 Esdras originally included at least the narrative of the celebration of the Festival of Booths that is found in Neh 8.13–18.

PRAYER OF MANASSEH

THE PRAYER OF MANASSEH is included in Greek and Slavonic Bibles and, since the Council of Trent (1546), has been included with 3 and 4 Esdras in the appendix to the Vulgate. In two Septuagint manuscripts it appears as part of a collection entitled “Odes,” a group of fifteen psalms or canticles that, with the exception of this prayer and one other, are also found in other books of one of the Christian canons (e.g., Ex 15; Deut 32; Lk 1).

Setting

Manasseh, king of Judah of the house of David from about 698 to 642 B.C.E., reigned longer than any other monarch. In 2 Kings (21.1–18) he is portrayed as the worst possible offender of the laws set forth in the Torah and as the cause of the downfall of Judah. In 2 Chr 33.10–17, Manasseh, while still depicted as Judah’s most sinful king before his deportation to Babylon, is reported to have humbly repented in exile and earnestly prayed to God who restored him to kingship in Jerusalem where he rectified his most serious idolatrous offenses. His prayer is further mentioned in the concluding record of his reign (33.18–19).

But Chronicles fails to include the prayer. Many ancient readers would have noted the lack; and one of them filled the void by piecing together familiar liturgical and psalmic phrases found elsewhere in the Bible as well as a few interesting nonbiblical expressions (vv. 8, 11, 13). It is thought by some that the Prayer of Manasseh was originally composed in Greek late in the first century B.C.E. It was translated in antiquity into Latin and Syriac.

Style and Theology

The Prayer of Manasseh, though largely composed (like 1 Chr 16.8–36) of older biblical terms and phrases, is a classic of penitential intention with limited literary quality. The theology is resonant with that of early Judaism generally: God, though clearly the God of justice, is equally the God of mercy and repentance. He is especially the God of those who repent of their ways (v. 13). The theme was important to the developing theology of exilic and postexilic Judaism, which constantly lived under repressive regimes throughout the eastern Mediterranean region. The consequences of Manasseh's sin devolved upon the whole kingdom of Judah and upon the following generations (see Ex 34.7). The scriptural base of the prayer's theology of repentance is found in the pivotal affirmations of individual responsibility within the covenant community found in Jer 31.29-30; Ezek 18. Manasseh's repentance, while apparently efficacious for himself and his immediate generation (2 Chr 33.14-17), was limited to his personal restoration and did nothing to halt the demise of the kingdom of Judah.

Manasseh as king had the power to do the evil that, in the divine economy, brought about the destruction of Judah. In the Jewish mind of the period, however, if Manasseh was excluded from repentance and redemption, there would be doubt about who could repent and especially about God's being the God of mercy as well as of justice. God is not only Creator and Sustainer (vv. 1-4), but also Redeemer, "of great compassion, long-suffering, and very merciful" (v. 7). God, therefore, appointed repentance not for the righteous, like Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, but ordained it for all sinners (v. 8), even Manasseh.

Ascription of Praise

- 1 O Lord Almighty,
God of our ancestors,
of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob
and of their righteous offspring;
- 2 you who made heaven and earth
with all their order;
- 3 who shackled the sea by your word of command,
who confined the deep
and sealed it with your terrible
and glorious name;
- 4 at whom all things shudder,
and tremble before your power,
- 5 for your glorious splendor cannot
be borne,

- and the wrath of your threat to sinners is unendurable;
- 6 yet immeasurable and unsearchable
is your promised mercy,
 - 7 for you are the Lord Most High,
of great compassion,
long-suffering, and very merciful,
and you relent at human suffering.
O Lord, according to your great
goodness
you have promised repentance
and forgiveness
to those who have sinned
against you,

1-7 An invocation to the God of our ancestors (Ex 3.6, 15; 1 Chr 29.18; Dan 2.23); the first and longest of the three strophes that make up the prayer. It lists the divine attributes starting with God's creating heaven and earth with all their order (Gen 1.1; Gen 2.1 in the Septuagint version). 3 Who shackled the sea recalls Job 38.8-11; Ps 104.7, 9. Who confined the deep expresses the power of God to control the chthonian forces of chaos and evil (e.g., Gen 1.2; 7.11; 8.2; Pss 63.9; 88.5-6). 7 Of great compassion, long-suffering, and very merciful. See Joel 2.13 (Septuagint version). The second part of the verse, O Lord, according . . . be saved, reminding God of the divine promises, is preserved in the Latin and Syriac versions and in some late Greek manuscripts.

and in the multitude of your mercies
you have appointed repentance
for sinners,
so that they may be saved.^a

Confession of Sins

- 8 Therefore you, O Lord, God of the righteous,
have not appointed repentance
for the righteous,
for Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, who did not sin
against you,
but you have appointed repentance for me, who am
a sinner.
- 9 For the sins I have committed are more in number than the sand of the sea;
my transgressions are multiplied,
O Lord, they are
multiplied!
I am not worthy to look up and see the height of heaven
because of the multitude of my iniquities.
- 10 I am weighted down with many
an iron fetter,
so that I am rejected^b because of my sins,
and I have no relief;
for I have provoked your wrath
and have done what is evil in your sight,

setting up abominations and multiplying offenses.

Supplication for Pardon

- 11 And now I bend the knee of my heart,
implore you for your kindness.
- 12 I have sinned, O Lord, I have sinned,
and I acknowledge my
transgressions.
- 13 I earnestly implore you,
forgive me, O Lord, forgive me!
Do not destroy me with my
transgressions!
Do not be angry with me forever
or store up evil for me;
do not condemn me to the depths of the earth.
For you, O Lord, are the God of
those who repent,
- 14 and in me you will manifest your
goodness;
for, unworthy as I am, you will save me according to your great mercy,
- 15 and I will praise you continually
all the days of my life.
For all the host of heaven sings
your praise,
and yours is the glory forever.
Amen.

8-10 Manasseh's confession of sins more numerous than the sand of the sea (v. 9). The contrast between the righteous (Mk 2.17; Lk 5.32; 1 Tim 1.15) and sinners (Lk 15.7; 18.13) reflects first-century thinking such as may be found in the NT and the Dead Sea Scrolls.

11-15 Manasseh's petition for forgiveness. 11 The expression bend the knee of my heart is not found elsewhere and well expresses the depth of sincerity of the truly penitent. 12-13 The two-fold repetition I have sinned is matched in pathos by the double supplication forgive me, O Lord, forgive me. Depths of the earth. See note on v. 3. The phrase the God of those who repent, like the phrase God of the righteous (v. 8), is not found in the Bible and should probably neither be generalized nor seen to conflict with biblical thinking; rather it expresses the spirit of one who feels deeply the need to repent and be restored to the fold of the faithful. 15 The prayer closes with a doxology expressing the hope that the praise of God, which Manasseh vows all the days of my life, would be caught up into the praise of the whole host of heaven (see 2 Chr 18.18).

PSALM 151

PSALM 151 IS KNOWN in four ancient text forms, Hebrew, Greek, Latin, and Syriac. The oldest is the Hebrew, which is found in a scroll of biblical psalms discovered in 1956 in Qumran Cave 11 (11QPs^a); the manuscript dates to the first half of the first century C.E. The Greek Psalm 151 was a recension of the original Hebrew. The Syriac (except for one verse), like the Latin, was translated from the Greek. As indicated in the accompanying notes, the psalm underwent revision in antiquity as well as translation.

The reason Psalm 151 is included in the apocryphal section of the NRSV is that it forms a part of Bibles of communities of faith today, those revering Eastern Orthodox canons, including the Greek and Slavonic. Its discovery, therefore, in a Hebrew Psalter belonging to a pre-Christian Jewish community was notable indeed; it has never, to our knowledge, formed a part of a Jewish canon since that time.

It is called Psalm 151 not only because it follows Ps 150 in some Greek Psalter manuscripts but also because it is numbered Psalm 151 in what is probably the oldest and most reliable Greek manuscript (Sinaiticus) and in some medieval Syriac Psalters (one of which has four further psalms specifically numbered up to Ps 155).

The text of Greek Psalm 151 is straightforward with few problems and only one important variant in v. 3. The text of the Hebrew at vv. 3–4 is by contrast highly multivalent, lending itself to different understandings. This was probably the reason the psalm was condensed in translation into Greek, or had been condensed already in Hebrew.

While the Greek (Latin and Syriac) version of the psalm appears to be a single unit of seven verses, the Hebrew text comprises two poetic units each bearing a superscription in the manner of other psalms purporting to reflect events in David's life (e.g., Pss 3; 7; 18). The first Hebrew unit is a poetic midrash on events reported in 1 Sam 16.1–13, and the second is on events noted in 1 Sam 17.17–54. The first unit was condensed into Greek vv. 1–5, and the second into vv. 6–7.

The date of the composition of Hebrew Psalm 151 is unknown; estimates vary from the sixth century B.C.E. to sometime in the Hellenistic period. The latter is more likely. The translation into Greek would probably have been made by the beginning of the second century C.E. James A. Sanders

This psalm is ascribed to David as his own composition (though it is outside the number^a), after he had fought in single combat with Goliath.

1 I was small among my brothers, and the youngest in my father's house;
I tended my father's sheep.

2 My hands made a harp;
my fingers fashioned a lyre.

3 And who will tell my Lord?
The Lord himself; it is he who hears.^b

4 It was he who sent his messenger^c
and took me from my father's sheep,
and anointed me with his anointing oil.

5 My brothers were handsome and tall,
but the Lord was not pleased
with them.

a Other ancient authorities add of the one hundred fifty (psalms) b Other ancient authorities add everything; others add me; others read who will hear me c Or angel

1 Small. In Hebrew, the same adjective is used to describe David in 1 Sam 16.11; 17.14 ("the youngest"), and by Solomon in speaking of himself in 1 Kings 3.7 ("a little child"). Youngest. Gideon describes himself with the same adjective in Judg 6.15 ("the least"); see Ps 119.141. This verse in the Hebrew reads, "Smaller was I than my brothers and the youngest of the sons of my father, yet he made me shepherd of his flock and ruler over his kids" (on "shepherd," see 1 Sam 16.11; on "ruler," see Ps 105.21). Some Syriac manuscripts conclude v. 1 with "and I found a lion and a wolf and I killed and rent them." 2 The Hebrew concludes v. 2 with "and (so) have I rendered glory to the LORD, thought I within myself." 3 The Hebrew text here is both longer and multivalent:

The mountains do not witness to him,
nor do the hills proclaim;
The trees have cherished my words
and the flocks my works.
For who can proclaim and who can bespeak
and who can recount the deeds of the Lord?
Everything has God seen,
everything has he heard and he has heeded.

Greek manuscripts vary considerably in the reading The Lord himself; it is he who hears; one important Greek witness (Sinaiticus) reads "the Lord himself, he hears everything," reflecting, like the Hebrew, 1 Sam 16.7. The reason the Hebrew recensionist or Greek translator omitted most of the above lines of the Hebrew was that they apparently contradict frequent biblical assertions that nature does indeed proclaim the glory of God. In the context of the Hebrew poem, whereas the surrounding mountains and hills seem to be mute, the solitary shepherd dedicates his musical gifts to glorification of God by fashioning musical instruments, tunes, and words (2 Chr 29.26; cf. Am 6.5). 5 The first poetic unit of Psalm 151 in the Hebrew scroll concludes,

He sent his prophet to anoint me,
Samuel to make me great;
My brothers went out to meet him,
handsome of figure and appearance.
Though they were tall of stature
and handsome by their hair,
The Lord God chose
them not.
But he sent and took me from behind the flock
and anointed me with holy oil.
And he made me leader of his people
and ruler over the people of his covenant.

6 I went out to meet the Philistine,^d
 and he cursed me by his
 idols.

I beheaded him, and took away disgrace from the people of Israel.

7 But I drew his own sword;

6 The second poetic unit in the original Hebrew, with its superscription, reads: "At the beginning of David's power after the prophet of God had anointed him. Then I [saw] a Philistine uttering defiance from the ranks of the enemy]." By his idols. See 1 Sam 17.43. Some later Latin, Arabic, and Ethiopic manuscripts continue, "and I threw three stones at him in the middle of his forehead and felled him by the power of the Lord" (cf. "a stone" in 1 Sam 17.49–50). 7 His own sword. See 1 Sam 17.51.

3 MACCABEES

THE TITLE 3 MACCABEES is a misnomer, as the book has nothing to do with the Maccabees. It is found in some manuscripts of the Greek Bible (Alexandrinus and Venetus, but not Vaticanus or Sinaiticus). The title probably comes from the fact that this book follows 1 and 2 Maccabees in the manuscripts and is set in the Hellenistic period. Because it was not included in the Latin Vulgate, it is not one of the deuterocanonical books that are accepted by the Catholic church, nor is it among the traditional Protestant Apocrypha. It is, however, regarded as deuterocanonical in the Eastern Orthodox churches.

Contents and Historical Accuracy

3 Maccabees describes three episodes in the reign of Ptolemy IV Philopator, king of Egypt (221–204 B.C.E.). 1.1–5 describes how an attempted assassination of Ptolemy was foiled by the intervention of an apostate Jew named Dositheus. An unsuccessful attempt by the king to enter the Jerusalem temple is recorded in 1.6–2.24. And 2.25–7.23, the main body of the book, describes Ptolemy's persecution of the Egyptian Jews.

Although some scholars have accepted 3 Maccabees as either wholly or partly a historical account, the genre of the narrative raises grave doubts about its historical value. The story has strong legendary features and seems designed to edify and inspire wonder rather than to report accurately. The plot to assassinate Ptolemy (1.2) is also reported by the second-century B.C.E. Greek historian Polybius, but without mention of the Jew Dositheus, whose role in 3 Maccabees is reminiscent of that of Mordecai in Esth 2.21–23. The unsuccessful attempt to enter the temple has a parallel in 2 Macc 3 in the story of Heliodorus. A variant of the longest episode, the persecution of the Egyptian Jews, is found in the tract Against Apion (2.53–55) written by the Jewish historian Josephus at the end of the first century C.E. There, however, Ptolemy is identified not as Philopator but as Ptolemy VIII Euergetes II (Physcon, 144–117 B.C.E.). This variation shows that the story became traditional and that historical accuracy was not the primary consideration in its transmission. It may, of course, refer to historical events (such as the battle of Raphia), but these references are incidental. The book is best viewed as a historical novel with a religious message.

Language, Place, and Date of Composition

There is general agreement that 3 Maccabees was written in Greek, probably in Alexandria (in Egypt). It was most likely written during the Roman era (between 30 B.C.E. and 70 C.E.). It shows signs of dependence on the Greek editions of Esther and Daniel, which would require a date no earlier than the first century B.C.E. The most specific indication of date is the statement in 2.28 that "all Jews shall be subjected to a registration involving poll tax and to the status of slaves." The Greek word laographia, lit. "census," here translated "registration," acquired a special connotation in Roman times because of a poll tax introduced by Augustus in 24/23 B.C.E. Greeks were exempt from this tax, but Jews were not, so they suffered a de facto reduction in status. This tax bore directly on the issue of whether the Jews had "equal citizenship with the Alexandrians" (2.30).

A further indication of date lies in the book's peculiar combination of episodes that find parallels in different sources and may have circulated as independent stories. The decision of the author of 3 Maccabees to combine the story of a threat to the Jerusalem temple with that of the persecution of Egyptian Judaism brings to mind the reign of Caligula (37–41 C.E.). During that reign there was a pogrom in Alexandria and also an attempt to introduce a statue of Caligula into the Jerusalem temple (both incidents are described in the treatise On the Embassy to Gaius by the Jewish philosopher Philo of Alexandria). Though the stories in 3 Maccabees are traditional tales and were not composed as allegories for the crisis of the Roman era, that crisis may have been the occasion for their combination and edition in this book.

Message and Outlook

3 Maccabees is reminiscent of the stories of Esther and Dan 1–6 as a description of life in the Jewish Diaspora. It describes a situation of divided loyalty. The Jews are loyal servants of the king but also strict observers of the Jewish law. Problems arise because of the arrogance, even madness, of the king and his bad advisers. But these problems are aberrations. In the end, the king comes to his senses and all is well for the Jews. 3 Maccabees also distinguishes sharply between the Alexandrians, who are hostile to the Jews, and "the Greeks," who are sympathetic. This distinction is of dubious historical value, but it reflects the desire of the Jewish community to be accepted as Greek and its refusal to dignify its enemies with that name.

3 Maccabees can be seen as an illustration of the problems of a religious minority in an alien land, and as such it is relevant to situations that have recurred throughout history. The viewpoint of 3 Maccabees is optimistic. Evil is an aberration, and divine providence will prevail. The religious message of the book is that God responds to those who pray for deliverance (see 2.21; 5.28; 6.18).

There is no appeal to the ideas of immortality or afterlife that were widely accepted in Hellenistic Judaism by this time. The optimistic theology of the book was still possible for Jews in the time of Caligula, but in the following century the Jewish community in Egypt was virtually destroyed. Unfortunately, subsequent history has more often reminded readers of the book's picture of Jews being rounded up for destruction (ch. 4) than its picture of miraculous deliverance.

The Battle of Raphia

1 When Philopator learned from those who returned that the regions that he had controlled had been seized by Antiochus, he gave orders to all his forces, both infantry and cavalry, took with him his sister Arsinoë, and marched out to the region near Raphia, where the army of Antiochus was encamped. ²But a certain Theodotus, determined to carry out the plot he had devised, took with him the best of the Ptolemaic arms that had been previously issued to him,^a and crossed over by night to the tent of Ptolemy, intending single-handed to kill him and thereby end the war. ³But Dositheus, known as the son of Drimylus, a Jew by birth who later changed his religion and apostatized from the ancestral traditions, had led the king away and arranged that a certain insignificant man should sleep in the tent; and so it turned out that this man incurred the vengeance meant for the king.^b ⁴When a bitter fight resulted, and matters were turning out rather in favor of Antiochus, Arsinoë went to the troops with wailing and tears, her locks all disheveled, and exhorted them to defend themselves and their children and wives bravely, promising to give them each two minas of gold if they won the battle. ⁵And so it came about that the enemy was routed in the action, and many captives also were taken. ⁶Now that he had foiled the plot, Ptolemy^c decided to visit the neighboring cities and encourage them. ⁷By doing this, and by endowing their sacred enclosures with gifts, he strengthened the morale of his subjects.

Philopator Attempts to Enter the Temple

8 Since the Jews had sent some of their council and elders to greet him, to bring him gifts of welcome, and to congratulate him on what had happened, he was all the more eager to visit them as soon as possible. ⁹After he had arrived in Jerusalem, he offered sacrifice to the su-

1.1–7 The battle of Raphia (217 B.C.E.). The abrupt beginning suggests that this passage was adapted from a longer account. A full description of the battle is found in Polybius The Histories 5.79–86. 1.1 Philopator is Ptolemy IV, king of Egypt (221–204 B.C.E.). Antiochus is Antiochus III, later called the Great, king of Syria (223–187 B.C.E.). Raphia was a town in Palestine, three miles from Gaza, near the Egyptian border. 1.2 According to Polybius, Theodotus had been commander in chief of the Egyptian forces in Syria but had defected to Antiochus. Single-handed. Polybius says Theodotus took two soldiers with him. 1.3 Dositheus was the name of a Jewish general in Egypt in the mid-second century B.C.E. Dositheus son of Drimylus occurs as the name of a pagan priest in a papyrus from the third century

B.C.E. (Papyrus Hibeh 90), but there is no evidence that this individual was Jewish. Note that apostate Jews are held in abhorrence in 2.33. Polybius identifies the man who slept in the tent as Andreas, the king's physician, who was not insignificant. The author of 3 Maccabees may have misread "Andreas" as andra (Greek for "man"). 1.5 According to Polybius, Antiochus lost nearly 10,000 foot soldiers and 300 cavalry, and 4,000 were taken prisoners, while Ptolemy lost 1,500 foot soldiers and 700 cavalry.

1.8–15 Ptolemy attempts to enter the Jerusalem temple. Cf. the story of Heliodorus in 2 Macc 3. 1.9 The supreme (lit. "greatest") God is mentioned often in 3 Maccabees and also in 2 Macc 3.36. Josephus claims that Alexander the Great also sacrificed to God in Jerusalem (Antiquities

preme God^d and made thank offerings and did what was fitting for the holy place.^e Then, upon entering the place and being impressed by its excellence and its beauty, ¹⁰he marveled at the good order of the temple, and conceived a desire to enter the sanctuary. ¹¹When they said that this was not permitted, because not even members of their own nation were allowed to enter, not even all of the priests, but only the high priest who was pre-eminent over all—and he only once a year—the king was by no means persuaded. ¹²Even after the law had been read to him, he did not cease to maintain that he ought to enter, saying, “Even if those men are deprived of this honor, I ought not to be.” ¹³And he inquired why, when he entered every other temple,^f no one there had stopped him. ¹⁴And someone answered thoughtlessly that it was wrong to take that as a portent.^g ¹⁵“But since this has happened,” the king^h said, “why should not I at least enter, whether they wish it or not?”

The Jewish Reaction

¹⁶ Then the priests in all their vestments prostrated themselves and entreated the supreme God^d to aid in the present situation and to avert the violence of this evil design, and they filled the temple with cries and tears; ¹⁷those who remained behind in the city were agitated and hurried out, supposing that something mysterious was occurring. ¹⁸Young women who had been secluded in their chambers rushed out with their mothers, sprinkled their hair with dust,ⁱ and filled the streets with groans and lamentations. ¹⁹Those women who had recently been arrayed for marriage abandoned the bridal chambers;^j prepared for wedded union, and, neglecting proper modesty, in a disorderly rush flocked together in the city. ²⁰Mothers and nurses abandoned even newborn children here and there, some in houses and some in the streets, and without a backward look they crowded together at the most high temple. ²¹Various were the supplications of those gathered there because of what the king was profanely plotting. ²²In addition, the bolder of the citizens would not tolerate the completion of his plans or the fulfillment of his intended purpose. ²³They shouted to their compatriots to take arms and die courageously for the ancestral law, and created a considerable disturbance in the holy place;^k and being barely restrained by the old men and the elders,^l they resorted to the same posture of supplication as the others. ²⁴Meanwhile the crowd, as before, was engaged in prayer, ²⁵while the elders near the king tried in various ways to change his arrogant mind from the plan that he had conceived. ²⁶But he, in his arrogance, took heed of nothing, and began now to approach, determined to bring the aforesaid plan to a conclusion. ²⁷When those who were around him observed this, they turned, together with our people, to call upon him who has all power to defend them in the present trouble and not to overlook this unlawful and haughty deed. ²⁸The continuous, vehement, and concerted cry of the crowds^l resulted in an immense uproar; ²⁹for it seemed that not only the people but also the walls and the whole earth around echoed, because indeed all at that

The Prayer of the High Priest Simon

2 Then the high priest Simon, facing the sanctuary, bending his knees and extending his hands with calm dignity, prayed as follows:ⁿ 2 "Lord, Lord, king of the heavens, and sovereign of all creation, holy among the holy ones, the only ruler, almighty, give attention to us who are suffering grievously from an impious and profane man, puffed up in his audacity and power. 3 For you, the creator of all things and the governor of all, are a just Ruler, and you judge those who have done anything in insolence and arrogance. 4 You destroyed those who in the past committed injustice, among whom were even giants who trusted in their strength and boldness, whom you destroyed by bringing on them a boundless flood. 5 You consumed with fire and sulfur the people of Sodom who acted arrogantly, who were notorious for their vices;^o and you made them an example to those who should come afterward. 6 You made known your mighty power by inflicting many and varied punishments on the audacious Pharaoh who had enslaved your holy people Israel. 7 And when he pursued them with chariots and a mass of troops, you overwhelmed him in the depths of the sea, but carried through safely those who had put their confidence in you, the Ruler over the whole creation. 8 And when they had seen works of your hands, they praised you, the Almighty. 9 You, O King, when you had created the boundless and immeasurable earth, chose this city and sanctified this place for your name, though you have no need of anything; and when you had glorified it by your magnificent manifestation,^p you made it a firm foundation for the glory of your great and honored name. 10 And because you love the house of Israel, you promised that if we should have reverses and tribulation should overtake us, you would listen to our petition when we come to this place and pray. 11 And indeed you are faithful and true. 12 And because of tentimes when our fathers were oppressed you helped them in their humiliation, and rescued them from great evils, 13 see now, O holy King, that because of our many and great sins we are crushed with suffering, subjected to our enemies, and overtaken by helplessness. 14 In our downfall this audacious and profane man undertakes to violate the holy place on earth dedicated to your glorious name. 15 For your dwelling is the heaven of heavens, unapproachable by human beings. 16 But because you graciously bestowed your glory on your people Israel, you sanctified this place. 17 Do not punish us for the defilement committed by these men, or call us to account for this profanation, otherwise the transgressors will boast in their wrath and exult in the arrogance of their tongue, saying, 18 "We have trampled down the house of the sanctuary as the houses of the abominations are trampled down." 19 Wipe away our sins and disperse our errors, and reveal your mercy at this hour. 20 Speedily let your mercies overtake us, and put praises in the mouth of those who are downcast and broken in spirit, and give us peace."

2.1-20 The high priest's prayer conforms to a type common in postexilic Judaism (Ezra 9; Neh 9; Dan 9; Bar 1.15-3.8) that reviews salvation history and emphasizes the righteousness of God and the sinfulness of Israel. This prayer differs from the others in that it does not relate the distress of Israel to the exile and that it places less emphasis on confession of sin. 2.1 The high priest Simon is Simon II, called "the Just." God's Punishment of Ptolemy

21 Thereupon God, who oversees all things, the first Father of all, holy among the holy ones, having heard the lawful supplication, scourged him who had exalted himself in insolence and audacity. 22 He shook him on this side and that as a reed is shaken by the wind, so that he lay helpless on the ground and, besides being paralyzed in his limbs, was unable even to speak, since he was smitten^q by a righteous judgment. 23 Then both friends and bodyguards, seeing the severe punishment that had overtaken him, and fearing that he would lose his life, quickly dragged him out, panic-stricken in their exceedingly great fear. 24 After a while he recovered, and though he had been punished, he by no means repented, but went away uttering bitter threats.

The Demand Made on the Jews

25 When he arrived in Egypt, he increased in his deeds of malice, abetted by the previously mentioned drinking companions and comrades, who were strangers to everything just. 26 He was not content with his uncounted licentious deeds, but even continued with such audacity that he framed evil reports in the various localities; and many of his friends, intently observing the king's purpose, themselves also followed his will. 27 He proposed to inflict public disgrace on the Jewish community,^r and he set up a stone^s on the tower in the courtyard with this inscription: 28 "None of those who do not sacrifice shall enter their sanctuaries, and all Jews shall be subjected to a registration involving poll tax and to the status of slaves. Those who object to this are to be taken by force and put to death; 29 those who are registered are also to be branded on their bodies by fire with the ivy-leaf symbol of Dionysus, and they shall also be reduced to their former limited status." 30 In order that he might not appear to be an enemy of all, he inscribed below: "But if any of them prefer to join those who have been initiated into the mysteries, they shall have equal citizenship with the Alexandrians."

31 Now some, however, with an obvious abhorrence of the price to be exacted for maintaining the religion of their city,^t readily gave themselves up, since they expected to enhance their reputation by their future association with the king. 32 But the majority acted firmly with a courageous spirit and did not abandon

2.21–24 The punishment of Ptolemy. 2.21 Scourged. Cf. 2 Macc 3.26, where two young men appeared and scourged Heliodorus, and 2 Macc 9.5, where the Lord struck Antiochus Epiphanes an incurable and unseen blow. 2.24 Ptolemy by no means repented though 2 Maccabees says that both Heliodorus and Antiochus Epiphanes repented (2 Macc 3.31–40; 9.11–29). Here the repentance of the king is deferred to a later point in the story.

2.25–33 The demand made on the Jews. 2.25 The previously mentioned drinking companions have not in fact been previously mentioned. Either the beginning of the book has been lost or this passage was excerpted from a more detailed source. 2.27 He set up a stone. Decrees were often displayed on palace walls. 2.28 Those who do not sacrifice can only refer to the Jews. A registration involving poll tax. See Introduction. The idea was probably inspired by the poll tax introduced by Augustus in 24/23 B.C.E. Status of slaves. The author may have confused branding in honor of Dionysus (2.29) with the branding of slaves. In the Maccabean wars, the Syrian commanders sold Jewish captives into slavery (1 Macc 3.41).

2.29 Branded . . . with the ivy-leaf symbol of Dionysus. Greeks and Romans often confused Judaism with the cult of Dionysus, because of the Feast of Tabernacles at the height of the vintage and the Jewish ritual use of wine (see Plutarch Table Talk 4.6.1–2). During the persecution by Antiochus Epiphanes, Jews were compelled to walk in procession in honor of Dionysus, wearing wreaths of ivy (2 Macc 6.7). Philopator was known for his devotion to Dionysus, and it is possible that he made some attempt to organize Judaism as a Dionysiac cult. The custom of branding or tattooing was associated with the cult of Dionysus from ancient times. Their former limited status probably refers to the condition of Jewish captives before their liberation by Ptolemy II Philadelphus (Letter of Aristeas 22). 2.30 The Jews in Egypt very much wanted equal citizenship with the Alexandrians, but most were unwilling to perform the pagan religious acts that citizenship would have required. Cf. the offer in 1 Macc 2.18 to number Mattathias and his sons among the Friends of the king if they perform the pagan sacrifice. 2.31 As in the Maccabean crisis, many Jews forsook the law (1 Macc 1.52). 2.32 But the majority acted firmly. Cf. Dan 11.32; their religion; and by paying money in exchange for life they confidently attempted to save themselves from the registration. ³³They remained resolutely hopeful of obtaining help, and they abhorred those who separated themselves from them, considering them to be enemies of the Jewish nation,^u and depriving them of companionship and mutual help.

The Slander Against the Jews

3 When the impious king comprehended this situation, he became so infuriated that not only was he enraged against those Jews who lived in Alexandria, but was still more bitterly hostile toward those in the countryside; and he ordered that all should promptly be gathered into one place, and put to death by the most cruel means. ²While these matters were being arranged, a hostile rumor was circulated against the Jewish nation by some who conspired to do them ill, a pretext being given by a report that they hindered others^v from the observance of their customs. ³The Jews, however, continued to maintain goodwill and unswerving loyalty toward the dynasty; ⁴but because they worshiped God and conducted themselves by his law, they kept their separateness with respect to foods. For this reason they appeared hateful to some; ⁵but since they adorned their style of life with the good deeds of upright people, they were established in good repute with everyone. ⁶Nevertheless those of other races paid no heed to their good service to their nation, which was common talk among all; ⁷instead they gossiped about the differences in worship and foods, alleging that these people were loyal neither to the king nor to his authorities, but were hostile and greatly opposed to his government. So they attached no ordinary reproach to them.

⁸ The Greeks in the city, though wronged in no way, when they saw an unexpected tumult around these people and the crowds that suddenly were forming, were not strong enough to help them, for they lived under tyranny. They did try to console them, being grieved at the situation, and expected that matters would change; ⁹for such a great community ought not be left to its fate when it had committed no offense. ¹⁰And already some of their neighbors and friends and business associates had taken some of them aside privately and were pledging to protect them and to exert more earnest efforts for their assistance.

Ptolemy's Decree

¹¹ Then the king, boastful of his present good fortune, and not considering the might of the supreme God,^w but assuming that he would persevere constantly in his same purpose, wrote this letter against them:

¹² "King Ptolemy Philopator to his generals and soldiers in Egypt and all its districts, greetings and good health:

1 Macc 1.62. 2.33 Renegades, that is, those who separated themselves, are singled out for special contempt.

3.1-10 The slander against the Jews. 3.1 This situation is the refusal of the Jews to submit to registration. Enraged against those Jews. Cf. Philo's comment on the situation under Caligula: "A vast and truceless war was prepared against the nation" (On the Embassy to Gaius 119). The following story deals initially with the threat to the Jews in the countryside (see note on 4.12). It would seem that this part of the story came from a distinct source. 3.2 There was a tradition of anti-Jewish polemic in Egypt, beginning with the historian Manetho about 300 B.C.E. and reaching a crescendo in the first century C.E. (see Josephus Against Apion). Among the recurring charges were "atheism" and "inhospitality" because of the exclusivism of the Jewish religion. 3.3 The Jews in Egypt were known for their goodwill and . . . loyalty to the Ptolemies, and also at first to the Romans; this loyalty exacerbated their relations with the native Egyptians. 3.4 Jewish dietary laws that required separateness with respect to foods were incomprehensible to the Greeks but were an essential marker of separate identity. Letter of Aristaeas 128-66 defends the dietary laws but gives them an allegorical explanation. 3.8 The author insists that the enemies of the Jews were not the Greeks in the city, although the Friends of the king must surely have been Greeks.

3.11-30 Ptolemy's decree. Cf. the decree in Add Esth 13.1-7. 3.11 In boasting and not considering the might of the supreme God, the king is guilty of hubris, the typical sin of kings in both Greek tragedy and Hebrew prophecy (Isa 14; Ezek 28). 3.12 The Ptolemies did not use titles such as Philopator in their decrees until about 13 "I myself and our government are faring well. 14When our expedition took place in Asia, as you yourselves know, it was brought to conclusion, according to plan, by the gods' deliberate alliance with us in battle, 15and we considered that we should not rule the nations inhabiting Coelesyria and Phoenicia by the power of the spear, but should cherish them with clemency and great benevolence, gladly treating them well. 16And when we had granted very great revenues to the temples in the cities, we came on to Jerusalem also, and went up to honor the temple of those wicked people, who never cease from their folly. 17They accepted our presence by word, but insincerely by deed, because when we proposed to enter their inner temple and honor it with magnificent and most beautiful offerings, 18they were carried away by their traditional arrogance, and excluded us from entering; but they were spared the exercise of our power because of the benevolence that we have toward all. 19By maintaining their manifest ill-will toward us, they become the only people among all nations who hold their heads high in defiance of kings and their own benefactors, and are unwilling to regard any action as sincere.

20 "But we, when we arrived in Egypt victorious, accommodated ourselves to their folly and did as was proper, since we treat all nations with benevolence. 21Among other things, we made known to all our amnesty toward their compatriots here, both because of their alliance with us and the myriad affairs liberally entrusted to them from the beginning; and we ventured to make a change, by deciding both to deem them worthy of Alexandrian citizenship and to make them participants in our regular religious rites.^x 22But in their innate malice they took this in a contrary spirit, and disdained what is good. Since they incline constantly to evil, 23they not only spurn the priceless citizenship, but also both by speech and by silence they abominate those few among them who are sincerely disposed toward us; in every situation, in accordance with their infamous way of life, they secretly suspect that we may soon alter our policy. 24Therefore, fully convinced by these indications that they are ill-disposed toward us in every way, we have taken precautions so that, if a sudden disorder later arises against us, we shall not have these impious people behind our backs as traitors and barbarous enemies. 25Therefore we have given orders that, as soon as this letter arrives, you are to send to us those who live among you, together with their wives and children, with insulting and harsh treatment, and bound securely with iron fetters, to suffer the sure and shameful death that befits enemies. 26For when all of these have been punished, we are sure that for the remaining time the government will be established for ourselves in good order and in the best state. 27But those who shelter any of the Jews, whether old people or children or even infants, will be tortured to death with the most hateful torments, together with their families. 28Any who are willing to give information will receive the property of those who incur the punishment, and also two thousand drachmas from the royal treasury, and will be awarded their freedom.^y 29Every place detected sheltering a Jew is to be made unapproachable and burned with fire, and shall become useless for all time to any mortal creature." 30The letter was written in the above form.

100 B.C.E. 3.17 Insincerely by deed. The refusal of admission to the temple is construed as a lack of genuine respect for the king. Similarly, Caligula failed to understand or accept the reasons for Jewish resistance to placing his statue in the temple. 3.21 Myriad affairs liberally entrusted to them from the beginning. Jews were entrusted with military duties as early as the fifth century B.C.E. at Elephantine in southern Egypt. We ventured to make a change. The king's claim that his actions were benevolent seems hypocritical from a Jewish viewpoint. Note, however, that Gentiles such as the Roman historian Tacitus thought that Antiochus Epiphanes was trying to civilize the Jews by forcing them to adopt Greek customs. 3.23 The priceless citizenship was offered to the Jews of Alexandria, but the punishment falls on the Jews of the countryside. 3.25 Cf. Esth 3.13, where orders to kill the Jews were sent to all the provinces. In 3 Maccabees the Jews are to be gathered for destruction. 3.26 The government will be established. Cf. Add Esth 13.7. 3.28 The statement that informers will be awarded their freedom is presumably addressed to the native Egyptians.

The Imprisonment of the Jews

4 In every place, then, where this decree arrived, a feast at public expense was arranged for the Gentiles with shouts and gladness, for the inveterate enmity that had long ago been in their minds was now made evident and outspoken. ²But among the Jews there was incessant mourning, lamentation, and tearful cries; everywhere their hearts were burning, and they groaned because of the unexpected destruction that had suddenly been decreed for them. ³What district or city, or what habitable place at all, or what streets were not filled with mourning and wailing for them? ⁴For with such a harsh and ruthless spirit were they being sent off, all together, by the generals in the several cities, that at the sight of their unusual punishments, even some of their enemies, perceiving the common object of pity before their eyes, reflected on the uncertainty of life and shed tears at the most miserable expulsion of these people. ⁵For a multitude of gray-headed old men, sluggish and bent with age, was being led away, forced to march at a swift pace by the violence with which they were driven in such a shameful manner. ⁶And young women who had just entered the bridal chamber^z to share married life exchanged joy for wailing, their myrrh-perfumed hair sprinkled with ashes, and were carried away unveiled, all together raising a lament instead of a wedding song, as they were torn by the harsh treatment of the heathen.^a ⁷In bonds and in public view they were violently dragged along as far as the place of embarkation. ⁸Their husbands, in the prime of youth, their necks encircled with ropes instead of garlands, spent the remaining days of their marriage festival in lamentations instead of good cheer and youthful revelry, seeing death immediately before them.^b ⁹They were brought on board like wild animals, driven under the constraint of iron bonds; some were fastened by the neck to the benches of the boats, others had their feet secured by unbreakable fetters, ¹⁰and in addition they were confined under a solid deck, so that, with their eyes in total darkness, they would undergo treatment befitting traitors during the whole voyage.

¹¹ When these people had been brought to the place called Schedia, and the voyage was concluded as the king had decreed, he commanded that they should be enclosed in the hippodrome that had been built with a monstrous perimeter wall in front of the city, and that was well suited to make them an obvious spectacle to all coming back into the city and to those from the city^c going out into the country, so that they could neither communicate with the king's forces nor in any way claim to be inside the circuit of the city.^d ¹²And when this had happened, the king, hearing that the Jews' compatriots from the city frequently went out in secret to lament bitterly the ignoble misfortune of their kindred, ¹³ordered in his rage that these people be dealt with in precisely the same fashion as the others, not omitting any detail of their punishment. ¹⁴The entire race was to be registered individually, not for the hard labor that has been briefly mentioned before, but to be tortured with the outrages that he had ordered, and at the end to be destroyed in the space of a single day. ¹⁵The registration of these people was therefore conducted with bitter haste and zealous intensity from the rising of the sun until

4.1-21 The imprisonment of the Jews. The emotionalism of the account is typical of Greek historiography in this period. 4.1 A feast at public expense. Cf. the feast of the Jews in Esth 8.17. 4.2 Incessant mourning. See Esth 4.3. 4.11 Schedia is a promontory about three miles from Alexandria. The hippodrome was located at the east or Canobic gate of the city. A canal joined Schedia and the Canobic gate (Strabo The Geography 17.1.10, 16). 4.12 Given that the Jews' compatriots from the city frequently went out, it is clear that only the Jews from the countryside were imprisoned initially. Perhaps the story originally concerned an attempt to register the Jews from the countryside by bringing them to one place. 4.14 The entire race was to be registered individually, presumably so that no one would escape, but the process seems unduly laborious. Again this may point to an original story concerned with registration rather than annihilation. 4.15 Forty days is a stereotypical figure. This is the length of time it takes for Moses to transcribe the law and the

its setting, coming to an end after forty days but still uncompleted.

16 The king was greatly and continually filled with joy, organizing feasts in honor of all his idols, with a mind alienated from truth and with a profane mouth, praising speechless things that are not able even to communicate or to come to one's help, and uttering improper words against the supreme God.^e 17 But after the previously mentioned interval of time the scribes declared to the king that they were no longer able to take the census of the Jews because of their immense number,¹⁸ though most of them were still in the country, some still residing in their homes, and some at the place;^f the task was impossible for all the generals in Egypt. 19 After he had threatened them severely, charging that they had been bribed to contrive a means of escape, he was clearly convinced about the matter²⁰ when they said and proved that both the papers^g and the pens they used for writing had already given out. 21 But this was an act of the invincible providence of him who was aiding the Jews from heaven.

The Frustration of the King's Plans

5 Then the king, completely inflexible, was filled with overpowering anger and wrath; so he summoned Hermon, keeper of the elephants, 2 and ordered him on the following day to drug all the elephants—five hundred in number—with large handfuls of frankincense and plenty of unmixed wine, and to drive them in, maddened by the lavish abundance of drink, so that the Jews might meet their doom. 3 When he had given these orders he returned to his feasting, together with those of his Friends and of the army who were especially hostile toward the Jews. 4 And Hermon, keeper of the elephants, proceeded faithfully to carry out the orders. 5 The servants in charge of the Jews^h went out in the evening and bound the hands of the wretched people and arranged for their continued custody through the night, convinced that the whole nation would experience its final destruction. 6 For to the Gentiles it appeared that the Jews were left without any aid, 7 because in their bonds they were forcibly confined on every side. But with tears and a voice hard to silence they all called upon the Almighty Lord and Ruler of all power, their merciful God and Father, praying 8 that he avert with vengeance the evil plot against them and in a glorious manifestation rescue them from the fate now prepared for them. 9 So their entreaty ascended fervently to heaven.

10 Hermon, however, when he had drugged the pitiless elephants until they had been filled with a great abundance of wine and satiated with frankincense, presented himself at the courtyard early in the morning to report to the king about these preparations. 11 But the Lordⁱ sent upon the king a portion of sleep, that beneficence that from the beginning, night and day, is bestowed by him who grants it to whomever he wishes. 12 And by the action of the Lord he was overcome by so pleasant and deep a sleep^j that he quite failed in his lawless purpose and was completely frustrated in his inflexible plan. 13 Then the Jews, since they had escaped the appointed hour, praised their holy God and again implored him who is easily elephants were trained to trample and would have been more difficult to control if they were drugged. Five hundred. At the battle of Raphia, Philopator had only seventy-three elephants, still an impressive number. 5.3 The Friends of the king constituted a special honorific class in the Hellenistic age. 5.5 Bound the hands. According to 3.25, the Jews had been sent to Alexandria in fetters. reconciled to show the might of his all-powerful hand to the arrogant Gentiles.

14 But now, since it was nearly the middle of the tenth hour, the person who was in charge of the invitations, seeing that the guests were assembled, approached the king and nudged him. 15 And when he had with difficulty roused him, he pointed out that the hour of the banquet was already slipping by, and he gave him an account of the situation. 16 The king, after considering this, returned to his drinking, and ordered those present for the banquet to recline opposite him. 17 When this was done he urged them to give themselves over to revelry and to make the present^k portion of the banquet joyful by celebrating all the more. 18 After the party had been going on for some time, the king summoned Hermon and with sharp threats demanded to know why the Jews had been allowed to remain alive through the present day. 19 But when he, with the corroboration of the king's^l Friends, pointed out that while it was still night he had carried out completely the order given him, 20 the king,^m possessed by a savagery worse than that of Phalaris, said that the Jewsⁿ were benefited by today's sleep, "but," he added, "tomorrow without delay prepare the elephants in the same way for the destruction of the lawless Jews!" 21 When the king had spoken, all those present readily and joyfully with one accord gave their approval, and all went to their own homes. 22 But they did not so much employ the duration of the night in sleep as in devising all sorts of insults for those they thought to be doomed.

23 Then, as soon as the cock had crowed in the early morning, Hermon, having equipped^o the animals, began to move them along in the great colonnade. 24 The crowds of the city had been assembled for this most pitiful spectacle and they were eagerly waiting for daybreak. 25 But the Jews, at their last gasp—since the time had run out—stretched their hands toward heaven and with most tearful supplication and mournful dirges implored the supreme God^p to help them again at once. 26 The rays of the sun were not yet shed abroad, and while the king was receiving his Friends, Hermon arrived and invited him to come out, indicating that what the king desired was ready for action. 27 But he, on receiving the report and being struck by the unusual invitation to come out—since he had been completely overcome by incomprehension—inquired what the matter was for which this had been so zealously completed for him. 28 This was the act of God who rules over all things, for he had implanted in the king's mind a forgetfulness of the things he had previously devised. 29 Then Hermon and all the king's Friends^q pointed out that the animals and the armed forces were ready, "O king, according to your eager purpose."^r 30 But at these words he was filled with an overpowering wrath, because by the providence of God his whole mind had been deranged concerning these matters; and with a threatening look he said, 31 "If your parents or children were present, I would have prepared them to be a rich feast for the savage animals instead of the Jews, who give me no ground for complaint and have exhibited to an extraordinary degree a full and firm loyalty to my ancestors. 32 In fact you would have been deprived of life instead of these, if it were not for an affection arising from our nurture in common and your usefulness." 33 So Hermon suffered an unexpected and dangerous threat, and his eyes wavered and his face fell. 34 The king's Friends one by one sullenly slipped away and dismissed^s the assembled people to their own occupations. ³⁵Then the Jews, on hearing what the king had said, praised the manifest Lord God, King of kings, since this also was his aid that they had received.

³⁶The king, however, reconvened the party in the same manner and urged the guests to return to their celebrating. ³⁷After summoning Hermon he said in a threatening tone, "How many times, you poor wretch, must I give you orders about these things? ³⁸Equip^t the elephants now once more for the destruction of the Jews tomorrow!" ³⁹But the officials who were at table with him, wondering at his instability of mind, remonstrated as follows: ⁴⁰"O king, how long will you put us to the test, as though we are idiots, ordering now for a third time that they be destroyed, and again revoking your decree in the matter?" ⁴¹As a result the city is in a tumult because of its expectation; it is crowded with masses of people, and also in constant danger of being plundered."

⁴²At this the king, a Phalaris in everything and filled with madness, took no account of the changes of mind that had come about within him for the protection of the Jews, and he firmly swore an irrevocable oath that he would send them to death^v without delay, mangled by the knees and feet of the animals, ⁴³and would also march against Judea and rapidly level it to the ground with fire and spear, and by burning to the ground the temple inaccessible to him^w would quickly render it forever empty of those who offered sacrifices there. ⁴⁴Then the Friends and officers departed with great joy, and they confidently posted the armed forces at the places in the city most favorable for keeping guard.

⁴⁵Now when the animals had been brought virtually to a state of madness, so to speak, by the very fragrant draughts of wine mixed with frankincense and had been equipped with frightful devices, the elephant keeper ⁴⁶entered at about dawn into the courtyard—the city now being filled with countless masses of people crowding their way into the hippodrome—and urged the king on to the matter at hand. ⁴⁷So he, when he had filled his impious mind with a deep rage, rushed out in full force along with the animals, wishing to witness, with invulnerable heart and with his own eyes, the grievous and pitiful destruction of the aforementioned people.

⁴⁸When the Jews saw the dust raised by the elephants going out at the gate and by the following armed forces, as well as by the trampling of the crowd, and heard the loud and tumultuous noise, ⁴⁹they thought that this was their last moment of life, the end of their most miserable suspense, and giving way to lamentation and groans they kissed each other, embracing relatives and falling into one another's arms^x—parents and children, mothers and daughters, and others with babies at their breasts who were drawing their last milk. ⁵⁰Not only this, but when they considered the help that they had received before from heaven, they prostrated themselves with one accord on the ground, removing the babies from their breasts, ⁵¹and cried out in a very loud voice, imploring the Ruler over every power to manifest himself and be merciful to them, as they stood now at the gates of death."

The Prayer of Eleazar

6 Then a certain Eleazar, famous among the priests of the country, who had attained a ripe old age and throughout his life had been adorned with every virtue, directed the elders around him to stop calling upon the holy God, and he prayed as follows: ²"King of

6.1-15 The prayer of Eleazar further delays the climax and builds the suspense. It also balances the prayer of Simon in ch. 2. 6.1 Eleazar is the name of a high priest in Letter of Aristaeas 41 and of a martyr in 2 Macc 6.18-31 and 4 Macc 5-7. The Reversal of Fortune

¹⁶ Just as Eleazar was ending his prayer, the king arrived at the hippodrome with the animals and all the arrogance of his forces. ¹⁷And when the Jews observed this they raised great cries to heaven so that even the nearby valleys resounded with them and brought an uncontrollable terror upon the army. ¹⁸Then the most glorious, almighty, and true God revealed his holy face and opened the heavenly gates, from which two glorious angels of fearful aspect descended, visible to all but the Jews. ¹⁹They opposed the forces of the enemy and filled them with confusion and terror, binding them with immovable shackles. ²⁰Even the king began to shudder bodily, and he forgot his sullen insolence. ²¹The animals turned back upon the armed

22 Then the king's anger was turned to pity and tears because of the things that he had devised beforehand. 23 For when he heard the shouting and saw them all fallen headlong to destruction, he wept and angrily threatened his Friends, saying, 24 "You are committing treason and surpassing tyrants in cruelty; and even me, your benefactor, you are now attempting to deprive of dominion and life by secretly devising acts of no advantage to the kingdom. 25 Who has driven from their homes those who faithfully kept our country's fortresses, and foolishly gathered every one of them here? 26 Who is it that has so lawlessly encompassed with outrageous treatment those who from the beginning differed from^b all nations in their goodwill toward us and often have accepted willingly the worst of human dangers? 27 Loose and untie their unjust bonds! Send them back to their homes in peace, begging pardon for your former actions!^c 28 Release the children of the almighty and living God of heaven, who from the time of our ancestors until now has granted an unimpeded and notable stability to our government." 29 These then were the things he said; and the Jews, immediately released, praised their holy God and Savior, since they now had escaped death.

The Celebration

30 Then the king, when he had returned to the city, summoned the official in charge of the revenues and ordered him to provide to the Jews both wines and everything else needed for a festival of seven days, deciding that they should celebrate their rescue with all joyfulness in that same place in which they had expected to meet their destruction. 31 Accordingly those disgracefully treated and near to death,^d or rather, who stood at its gates, arranged for a banquet of deliverance instead of a bitter and lamentable death, and full of joy they apportioned to celebrants the place that had been prepared for their destruction and burial. 32 They stopped their chanting of dirges and took up the song of their ancestors, praising God, their Savior and worker of wonders.^e Putting an end to all mourning and wailing, they formed choruses^f as a sign of peaceful joy. 33 Likewise also the king, after convening a great banquet to celebrate these events, gave thanks to heaven unceasingly and lavishly for the unexpected rescue that he^g had experienced. 34 Those who had previously believed that the Jews would be destroyed and become food for birds, and had joyfully registered them, groaned as they themselves were overcome by disgrace, and their fire-breathing boldness was ignominiously^h quenched.

35 The Jews, as we have said before, arranged the aforementioned choral groupⁱ and passed the time in feasting to the accompaniment of joyous thanksgiving and psalms. 36 And when they had ordained a public rite for these things in their whole community and for their descendants, they instituted the observance of the aforesaid days as a festival, not for drinking and gluttony, but because of the deliverance that had come to them through God. 37 Then they petitioned the king, asking for dismissal to their homes. 38 So their registration was carried out from the twenty-fifth of Pachon to the

Ptolemy's Letter on Behalf of the Jews

7 "King Ptolemy Philopator to the generals in Egypt and all in authority in his government, greetings and good health:

² "We ourselves and our children are faring well, the great God guiding our affairs according to our desire. ³Certain of our friends, frequently urging us with malicious intent, persuaded us to gather together the Jews of the kingdom in a body and to punish them with barbarous penalties as traitors; ⁴for they declared that our government would never be firmly established until this was accomplished, because of the ill-will that these people had toward all nations. ⁵They also led them out with harsh treatment as slaves, or rather as traitors, and, girding themselves with a cruelty more savage than that of Scythian custom, they tried without any inquiry or examination to put them to death. ⁶But we very severely threatened them for these acts, and in accordance with the clemency that we have toward all people we barely spared their lives. Since we have come to realize that the God of heaven surely defends the Jews, always taking their part as a father does for his children,⁷ and since we have taken into account the friendly and firm goodwill that they had toward us and our ancestors, we justly have acquitted them of every charge of whatever kind. ⁸We also have ordered all people to return to their own homes, with no one in any place^m doing them harm at all or reproaching them for the irrational things that have happened. ⁹For you should know that if we devise any evil against them or cause them any grief at all, we always shall have not a mortal but the Ruler over every power, the Most High God, in everything and inescapably as an antagonist to avenge such acts. Farewell."

Revenge on Apostates

¹⁰ On receiving this letter the Jewsⁿ did not immediately hurry to make their departure, but they requested of the king that at their own hands those of the Jewish nation who had willfully transgressed against the holy God and the law of God should receive the punishment they deserved. ¹¹They declared that those who for the belly's sake had transgressed the divine commandments would never be favorably disposed toward the king's government. ¹²The king^o then, admitting and approving the truth of what they said, granted them a general license so that freely, and without royal authority or supervision, they might destroy those everywhere in his kingdom who had transgressed the law of God. ¹³When they had applauded him in fitting manner, their priests and the whole multitude shouted the Hallelujah and joyfully departed. ¹⁴And so on their way they punished and put to a public and shameful death any

7.1–9 Ptolemy's letter. 7.2 Our children. Philopator had only one legitimate son, who later reigned as Ptolemy V Epiphanes. 7.3 Again the king puts the blame on certain . . . friends, in blatant contradiction of the story. 7.5 The Scythians were proverbial for barbarism and cruelty. See 2 Macc 4.47; 4 Macc 10.7. 7.6 Jewish stories of this period often have the pagan king acknowledge the true God (Dan 2.47; 4.2, 37; 6.26; 2 Macc 9.12, 13). God of heaven is a title that might be used by both Jews and Gentiles. Philopator does not necessarily concede that Judaism is the only true religion, but he does concede that the universal God protects it.

7.10–16 Revenge on apostates. In Esther, the king authorized the Jews to slaughter their gentile enemies (Esth 8.11–13; 9.1–17). Here there is no revenge on the Gentiles, but more than three hundred Jewish apostates are killed, even though they acted under duress. This reflects the tensions within the Jewish community in time of crisis. It is ironic that 3 Maccabees began with an exploit of the apostate Dositheus.

whom they met of their compatriots who had become defiled. ¹⁵In that day they put to death more than three hundred men; and they kept the day as a joyful festival, since they had destroyed the profaners. ¹⁶But those who had held fast to God even to death and had received the full enjoyment of deliverance began their departure from the city, crowned with all sorts of very fragrant flowers, joyfully and loudly giving thanks to the one God of their ancestors, the eternal Savior^p of Israel, in words of praise and all kinds of melodious songs.

The Departure

¹⁷ When they had arrived at Ptolemais, called "rose-bearing" because of a characteristic of the place, the fleet waited for them, in accordance with the common desire, for seven days. ¹⁸There they celebrated their deliverance,^q for the king had generously provided all things to them for their journey until all of them arrived at their own houses. ¹⁹And when they had all landed in peace with appropriate thanksgiving, there too in like manner they decided to observe these days as a joyous festival during the time of their stay. ²⁰Then, after inscribing them as holy on a pillar and dedicating a place of prayer at the site of the festival, they departed unharmed, free, and overjoyed, since at the king's command they had all of them been brought safely by land and sea and river to their own homes. ²¹They also possessed greater prestige among their enemies, being held in honor and awe; and they were not subject at all to confiscation of their belongings by anyone. ²²Besides, they all recovered all of their property, in accordance with the registration, so that those who held any of it restored it to them with extreme fear.^r So the supreme God perfectly performed great deeds for their deliverance. ²³Blessed be the Deliverer of Israel through all times! (c) The following book is included in the Slavonic Bible as 3 Esdras, but is not found in the Greek. It is included in the Appendix to the Latin Vulgate Bible as 4 Esdras.

2 ESDRAS

THE BOOK WE KNOW AS 2 ESDRAS is made up of three works: 4 Ezra, an apocalypse by a Jewish author (chs. 3–14), and two independent Christian supplements, 5 Ezra (chs. 1–2) and 6 Ezra (chs. 15–16). Esdras, the Greek form of the Hebrew name Ezra, is the seer who receives seven visions in the main portion of the book. The pseudepigraphic author writes as if he were the Ezra who figures in the books of Ezra and Nehemiah.

4 Ezra

4 Ezra was written in the aftermath of the destruction of the Second Temple by the Romans in 70 C.E. On the basis of the identification of the heads in the fifth vision (chs. 11–12), its date can be set more precisely in the last decade of the first century C.E. Other indications of date have been sought in the work, but no convincing argument for them can be made.

The original audience of 4 Ezra was Jewish, probably living in the land of Israel, and was wrestling with the implications of the destruction of the temple. 12.42 may indicate the author's prophetic status within his own community. We have little indication of how 4 Ezra may have functioned in that community or how it was used.

It is almost universally held today that 4 Ezra was written in a Semitic language, most probably Hebrew. The original Hebrew text and the Greek primary translation of it have perished, except for a few quotations from the Greek text by ancient authors. The text translated here is basically the Latin version, with some account taken of Syriac, Ethiopic, Arabic, Armenian, and Georgian versions. Previous theories of the composition of 4 Ezra from five sources are no longer entertained. It is believed to be the work of one individual, who draws at points on older material. 4.35–36a; 6.49–52; 13.1–20; 13.40–47 seem to be pre-existing blocks of material included in the work.

4 Ezra is composed of seven visions separated by fasts. The first three visions are unusual in form, composed of addresses, dialogues, and predictions. In the first two visions (3.1–6.34) the seer's problems in the addresses are partly answered in the predictive dialogues and direct predictions. The third vision (6.35–9.25) is very long and much more complex. The address of the first vision (3.4–36) indicts God the creator for the state of the world and of Israel. Israel's suffering under Rome raises for the author the question of God's justice. The angel's responses in this and the following visions gradually lead Ezra from skepticism to acceptance of God's incomprehensible providence.

This acceptance provides the basis for the fourth vision (9.26–10.59), the seer's conversion followed by his waking experience of heavenly Jerusalem. After his conversion, he becomes a more conventional apocalyptic seer. In the fifth (11.1–12.51) and sixth (13.1–58) visions, we find symbolic dreams interpreted by an angel, as is customary in apocalypses. In the seventh vision (14.1–48), Ezra is granted a revelation of the ninety-four secret and public books of scripture. The visions are set within a narrative framework, indicating the progression of the seer's experience.

4 Ezra was an influential writing. It is deeply imbued with Hebrew scriptures and has an explicit relationship to the book of Daniel, which sets it in an apocalyptic tradition. Of ancient Jewish writing, it is extremely closely related to 2 Apocalypse of Baruch, although scholars differ as to which work was written first. A number of later Christian apocalypses exist, fashioned on the form of 4 Ezra. The chief such writings are 6 Ezra, the Greek Esdras Apocalypse, the Apocalypse of Sedrach (Greek), the Revelation of Ezra (Latin), and the Questions of Ezra (Armenian). 4 Ezra had a deep and broad influence in both Eastern and Western Christianity. No impression on rabbinic or later Judaism has been discerned.

5 and 6 Ezra

5 Ezra is of Christian authorship; there are some indications that it was written in the second century C.E. although this is not certain. 6 Ezra was probably written by a Christian and can be dated on internal grounds to the third century C.E. Both works indicate how 4 Ezra was read in the centuries after its composition. 5 Ezra seems to have been written as a separate literary unit. It comprises two parts, of varied character, a prophetic indictment of God's people (1.4–2.9) and an assurance of redemption to a new people (2.10–48). 6 Ezra, composed of predictions, woes, and exhortations to God's people, was written to encourage a third-century Christian audience in time of oppression. Some dependence on the NT has been discerned in both works.

It is agreed that 5 Ezra was originally written in Greek. A papyrus fragment of the Greek text of 6 Ezra has been identified, and there seems no reason to doubt its composition in that language. Both 5 Ezra and 6 Ezra survive in full only in Latin. 5 Ezra had no known influence on Jewish literature but has influenced the Roman church, particularly in its liturgy. 6 Ezra seems to have had no particular influence in Jewish or Christian circles. The three writings occur together only in the Latin version.

Canonical Status

No part of 2 Esdras has canonical status in the Jewish tradition. Except for a few quotations and its utilization in the Greek apocalypses mentioned above, it had no standing in the Greek church. The Western church was much attached to it and it was often found in manuscripts of the Vulgate; however, the book did not form part of the Roman Catholic canon as defined by the Council of Trent (1546). In the Armenian church it has a semicanonical status, being mentioned in some canon lists and occurring exclusively in biblical manuscripts. In Ethiopic, too, it occurs in biblical manuscripts (though the concept of canon in the Ethiopic church is not always clear). The fact that there are only a few copies in Christian Arabic and Georgian indicates that it had no canonical role in these churches.

1.1–2.48 Chs. 1–2 form a separate, Christian work often entitled 5 Ezra (see Introduction).

1.1–3 Ezra is here described both as priest (cf. Ezra 7.1–5; 1 Esd 8.1–2) and prophet. The latter is unusual. In the biblical book Ezra is a scribe (Ezra 7.6).

1.4–11 A summary of God's gracious deeds and Israel's rejection of them. 1.4 Such prophetic calls are found, e.g., in Jer 1.4; Ezek 7.1.

1.8 Pull out the hair of your head, a sign of mourning; cf. Ezra 9.3. 1.10 See Ex 14.28; 20.2.

1.11 The verse is obscure; Tyre and Sidon are cities, not provinces, and are west, not east, of Media (cf. v. 3).

God's Mercies to Israel

12 "But speak to them and say, Thus says the Lord: ¹³Surely it was I who brought you through the sea, and made safe highways for you where there was no road; I gave you Moses as leader and Aaron as priest; ¹⁴I provided light for you from a pillar of fire, and did great wonders among you. Yet you have forgotten me, says the Lord.

15 "Thus says the Lord Almighty:^f The quails were a sign to you; I gave you camps for your protection, and in them you complained. ¹⁶You have not exulted in my name at the destruction of your enemies, but to this day you still complain.^g ¹⁷Where are the benefits that I bestowed on you? When you were hungry and thirsty in the wilderness, did you not cry out to me, ¹⁸saying, 'Why have you led us into this wilderness to kill us? It would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in this wilderness.' ¹⁹I pitied your groanings and gave you manna for food; you ate the bread of angels. ²⁰When you were thirsty, did I not split the rock so that waters flowed in abundance? Because of the heat I clothed you with the leaves of trees.^h ²¹I divided fertile lands among you; I drove out the Canaanites, the Perizzites, and the Philistinesⁱ before you. What more can I do for you? says the Lord. ²²Thus says the Lord Almighty:^j When you were in the wilderness, at the bitter stream, thirsty and blaspheming my name, ²³I did not send fire on you for your blasphemies, but threw a tree into the water and made the stream sweet.

Israel's Disobedience and Rejection

24 "What shall I do to you, O Jacob? You, Judah, would not obey me. I will turn to other nations and will give them my name, so that they may keep my statutes. ²⁵Because you have forsaken me, I also will forsake you. When you beg mercy of me, I will show you no mercy. ²⁶When you call to me, I will not listen to you; for you have defiled your hands with blood, and your feet are swift to commit murder. ²⁷It is not as though you had forsaken me; you have forsaken yourselves, says the Lord.

28 "Thus says the Lord Almighty: Have I not entreated you as a father entreats his sons or a mother her daughters or a nurse her children, ²⁹so that you should be my people and I should be your God, and that you should be my children and I should be your father? ³⁰I gathered you as a hen gathers her chicks under her wings. But now, what shall I do to you? I will cast you out from my presence. ³¹When you offer oblations to me, I will turn my face from you; for I have rejected your^k festal days, and new moons, and circumcisions of the flesh.^k ³²I sent you my servants the prophets, but you have taken and killed them and torn their bodies^l in pieces; I will require their blood of you, says the Lord.^m

1.12–23 This passage is similar to Neh 9; Ps 78. 1.14 Pillar of fire. Cf. Ex 13.21. 1.15 God's care in the desert. 1.24–40 This section refers to a replacement of Israel by the people . . . from the east (v. 38; cf. v. 24) and is usually taken to show the Christian origin of 5 Ezra. 1.29 God as parent of Israel is a frequent image in the Hebrew Bible; cf. God's Judgment on Israel

2 "Thus says the Lord: I brought this people out of bondage, and I gave them commandments through my servants the prophets; but they would not listen to them, and made my counsels void. ²The mother who bore them^s says to them, 'Go, my children, because I am a widow and forsaken. ³I brought you up with gladness; but with mourning and sorrow I have lost you, because you have sinned before the Lord God and have done what is evil in my sight.'⁴ But now what can I do for you? For I am a widow and forsaken. Go, my children, and ask for mercy from the Lord.'⁵ Now I call upon you, father, as a witness in addition to the mother of the children, because they would not keep my covenant, ⁶so that you may bring confusion on them and bring their mother to ruin, so that they may have no offspring. ⁷Let them be scattered among the nations; let their names be blotted out from the earth, because they have despised my covenant.

⁸ "Woe to you, Assyria, who conceal the unrighteous within you! O wicked nation, remember what I did to Sodom and Gomorrah, ⁹whose land lies in lumps of pitch and heaps of ashes.^u That is what I will do to those who have not listened to me, says the Lord Almighty."

2.3) and other Jewish writings (e.g., Jubilees 1.12; 1 Enoch 89.51–53). 1.35 This verse indicates the transfer of Israel's position to the Christians. In particular, the gentile Christians are implied here. The signs are Christ's signs while alive. 1.36 Again the Gentiles are implied. The book of Jonah makes an analogous point from an intra-Israelite perspective. 1.38 The unique title father denotes Ezra; see also 2.5. Father is a prophetic title (2 Kings 2.12). Does from the east imply that the place of origin of 5 Ezra was Palestine? Is this a different group of Christians from those referred to in vv. 35–37? 1.39–40 The leaders are the three patriarchs of Israel and twelve minor prophets. 1.40 Malachi in Hebrew means "my messenger." Ezra is identified as Malachi by rabbinic sources.

2.1–9 God judges and rejects Israel as a mother rejects her children. 2.1 The laws are given through prophets; cf. Ezra 9.10–11; Dan 9.10. 2.2 Zion speaks as Israel's mother, a biblical idea (cf. esp. Bar 4.5–29). She is both widowed and deserted and rejects her children (v. 4). 2.5 The writer invokes the father, God (or perhaps Ezra), and the mother, Zion, to witness and pronounces doom on the children and ruin on the mother. The imagery of dual rejection is particularly powerful. 2.7 Scattering is an ultimate curse for disobedience (Lev 26.33); names . . . blotted out expresses annihilation — Israel's very name will be forgotten. 2.8 Assyria may be a cognomen for Rome, replacing the more common "Babylon"; cf. 3.1. The Jews and the Romans who harbored them are cursed.

2.10–14 The reward for the new Israel. 2.11 In habitations the righteous Christians are to others the everlasting habitations, which I had prepared for Israel.^v 12 The tree of life shall give them fragrant perfume, and they shall neither toil nor become weary. 13 Go^w and you will receive; pray that your days may be few, that they may be shortened. The kingdom is already prepared for you; be on the watch! 14 Call, O call heaven and earth to witness: I set aside evil and created good; for I am the Living One, says the Lord.

Exhortation to Good Works

15 "Mother, embrace your children; bring them up with gladness, as does a dove; strengthen their feet, because I have chosen you, says the Lord. 16 And I will raise up the dead from their places, and bring them out from their tombs, because I recognize my name in them. 17 Do not fear, mother of children, for I have chosen you, says the Lord. 18 I will send you help, my servants Isaiah and Jeremiah. According to their counsel I have consecrated and prepared for you twelve trees loaded with various fruits, 19 and the same number of springs flowing with milk and honey, and seven mighty mountains on which roses and lilies grow; by these I will fill your children with joy.

20 "Guard the rights of the widow, secure justice for the ward, give to the needy, defend the orphan, clothe the naked, 21 care for the injured and the weak, do not ridicule the lame, protect the maimed, and let the blind have a vision of my splendor. 22 Protect the old and the young within your walls. 23 When you find any who are dead, commit them to the grave and mark it,^x and I will give you the first place in my resurrection. 24 Pause and be quiet, my people, because your rest will come.

25 "Good nurse, nourish your children; strengthen their feet. 26 Not one of the servants^y whom I have given you will perish, for I will require them from among your number. 27 Do not be anxious, for when the day of tribulation and anguish comes, others shall weep and be sorrowful, but you shall rejoice and have abundance. 28 The nations shall envy you, but they shall not be able to do anything against you, says the Lord. 29 My power will protect^z you, so that your children may not see hell.^a

30 "Rejoice, O mother, with your children, because I will deliver you, says the Lord. 31 Remember your children that sleep, because I will bring them out of the hiding places of the earth, and will show mercy to them; for I am merciful, says the Lord Almighty. 32 Embrace your children until I come, and proclaim mercy to them; because my springs run over, and my grace will not fail."

Ezra on Mount Horeb

33 I, Ezra, received a command from the Lord on Mount Horeb to go to Israel. Some thought the tree of life exuded a fragrance or oil rather than gave fruit; cf. Life of Adam and Eve 36.2, 40–42; 2 Enoch 5.5. 2.13 Eschatological reward is created in advance. For the sense of urgency, cf., e.g., Mt 24.15–34; Mk 13.14–20; Rom 13.11–14; 1 Cor 7.29–31; 1 Thess 4.13–5.11; Rev 1.3; 22.10–12, 20.

2.15–32 The image of the mother is applied to the church. Resurrection is promised throughout this passage (e.g., vv. 16, 23, 29, 31). 2.18–19 A description of eschatological paradise. Twelve trees. Cf. Rev 22.2. Milk and honey, traditional symbols of fertility; cf. Ex 3.8. Seven . . . mountains, perhaps the mountains of paradise

(1 Enoch 24–25); Rome is known later as the city of seven hills, so this might be an inversion of Rome's role. 2.20–23 The call to protect the weak and particularly to care for the dead is standard biblical exhortation; cf. Tob 1.17 and, indeed, the whole book of Tobit. 2.24 Rest denotes eschatological reward; cf. 7.36; Heb 3.18–19; 1 Enoch 11.2. 2.25–26 The nurse is the church; your number means "the number given to you"; the phrase may derive from Jn 17.12. 2.31 Sleep, death, but resurrection is implied.

2.33–41 A first-person address by Ezra. 2.33 The depiction of Ezra on Mount Horeb (i.e., Mount Sinai) suggests a typological comparison of Ezra with Moses; see ch. 14. Israel is again rejected. 2.34 Shepherd refers to Christ.

Ezra Sees the Son of God

⁴² I, Ezra, saw on Mount Zion a great multitude that I could not number, and they all were praising the Lord with songs. ⁴³In their midst was a young man of great stature, taller than any of the others, and on the head of each of them he placed a crown, but he was more exalted than they. And I was held spellbound. ⁴⁴Then I asked an angel, "Who are these, my lord?" ⁴⁵He answered and said to me, "These are they who have put off mortal clothing and have put on the immortal, and have confessed the name of God. Now they are being crowned, and receive palms." ⁴⁶Then I said to the angel, "Who is that young man who is placing crowns on them and putting palms in their hands?" ⁴⁷He answered and said to me, "He is the Son of God, whom they confessed in the world." So I began to praise those who had stood valiantly for the name of the Lord.^c ⁴⁸Then the angel said to me, "Go, tell my people how great and how many are the wonders of the Lord God that you have seen."

First Vision: Ezra's Address

3 In the thirtieth year after the destruction of the city, I was in Babylon—I, Salathiel, who am also called Ezra. I was troubled as I lay on my bed, and my thoughts welled up in my heart,² because I saw the desolation of Zion and the wealth of those who lived in Babylon. ³My spirit was greatly agitated, and I began to speak anxious words to the Most High, and said, ⁴"O sovereign Lord, did you not speak at the beginning when you planted^d the earth—and that without help—and commanded the dust^e ⁵and it gave you Adam, a lifeless body? Yet he was the creation of your hands, and you breathed into him the breath of life, and he was made alive in your presence. ⁶And you led him into the garden that your right hand had planted before the earth appeared. ⁷And you laid upon him one commandment of yours; but he transgressed it, and immediately you appointed death for him and for his descendants. From him there sprang nations and tribes, peoples and clans without number. ⁸And every nation walked after its own will; they did ungodly things in your sight and rejected your commands, and you did not hinder them. ⁹But again, in its time you brought the flood upon the inhabitants of the world and destroyed them. ¹⁰And the same fate befell all of them: just as death came upon Adam, so the flood upon them. ¹¹But you left one of them, Noah with his household, and all the righteous who have descended from him.

3.1–14.48 Chs. 3–14 form a separate work, a Jewish apocalypse containing seven visions; it is often called 4 Ezra (see Introduction).

3.1–5.15 First vision. 3.1–3 The introduction to the first vision. 3.1 Cf. Ezek 1.1. Salathiel is used only here; cf. Dan 4.5. 3.3 The onset of inspiration is described. Most High is the usual title for God in this book. 3.4–36 Ezra's address falls into two parts. Vv. 4–27 are an indictment of God; vv. 28–36 set forth the specific charges. 3.4 Speak, without help. God creates alone (perhaps a polemical assertion) and by speech; cf. Ps 33.6. 9. 3.5 The idea of God's hands also occurs in 8.7, 44; 2 Enoch A 44.1. 3.6 Eden was created before the world, a common exegesis of Gen 2.8.

¹² "When those who lived on earth began to multiply, they produced children and peoples and many nations, and again they began to be more ungodly than were their ancestors. ¹³And when they were committing iniquity in your sight, you chose for yourself one of them, whose name was Abraham; ¹⁴you loved him, and to him alone you revealed the end of the times, secretly by night. ¹⁵You made an everlasting covenant with him, and promised him that you would never forsake his descendants; and you gave him Isaac, and to Isaac you gave Jacob and Esau. ¹⁶You set apart Jacob for yourself, but Esau you rejected; and Jacob became a great multitude. ¹⁷And when you led his descendants out of Egypt, you brought them to Mount Sinai. ¹⁸You bent down the heavens and shook^f the earth, and moved the world, and caused the depths to tremble, and troubled the times. ¹⁹Your glory passed through the four gates of fire and earthquake and wind and ice, to give the law to the descendants of Jacob, and your commandment to the posterity of Israel.

evil heart from them, so that your law might produce fruit in them. ²¹For the first Adam, burdened with an evil heart, transgressed and was overcome, as were also all who were descended from him. ²²Thus the disease became permanent; the law was in the hearts of the people along with the evil root; but what was good departed, and the evil remained. ²³So the times passed and the years were completed, and you raised up for yourself a servant, named David. ²⁴You commanded him to build a city for your name, and there to offer you oblations from what is yours. ²⁵This was done for many years; but the inhabitants of the city transgressed, ²⁶in everything doing just as Adam and all his descendants had done, for they also had the evil heart. ²⁷So you handed over your city to your enemies.

²⁸ "Then I said in my heart, Are the deeds of those who inhabit Babylon any better? Is that why it has gained dominion over Zion? ²⁹For when I came here I saw ungodly deeds without number, and my soul has seen many sinners during these thirty years.^g And my heart failed me, ³⁰because I have seen how you endure those who sin, and have spared those who act wickedly, and have destroyed your people, and protected your enemies, ³¹and have not shown to anyone how your way may be comprehended.^h Are the deeds of Babylon better than those of Zion? ³²Or has another nation known you

The Dispute

4 Then the angel that had been sent to me, whose name was Uriel, answered ²and said to me, "Your understanding has utterly failed regarding this world, and do you think you can comprehend the way of the Most High?" ³Then I said, "Yes, my lord." And he replied to me, "I have been sent to show you three ways, and to put before you three problems. ⁴If you can solve one of them for me, then I will show you the way you desire to see, and will teach you why the heart is evil."

⁵ I said, "Speak, my lord."

And he said to me, "Go, weigh for me the weight of fire, or measure for me a blastⁱ of wind, or call back for me the day that is past."

⁶ I answered and said, "Who of those that have been born can do that, that you should ask me about such things?"

⁷ And he said to me, "If I had asked you, 'How many dwellings are in the heart of the sea, or how many streams are at the source of the deep, or how many streams are above the firmament, or which are the exits of Hades, or which are the entrances^j of paradise?' ⁸perhaps you would have said to me, 'I never went down into the deep, nor as yet into Hades, neither did I ever ascend into heaven.' ⁹But now I have asked you only about fire and wind and the day—things that you have experienced and from which you cannot be separated, and you have given me no answer about them." ¹⁰He said to me, "You cannot understand the things with which you have grown up; ¹¹how then can your mind comprehend the way of the Most High? And how can one who is already worn out^k by the corrupt world understand incorruption?" ¹²When I heard this, I fell on my face^m and said to him, "It would have been better for us not to be here than to come here and live in ungodliness, and to suffer and not understand why."

¹³ He answered me and said, "I went into a forest of trees of the plain, and they made a plan ¹⁴and said, 'Come, let us go and make war against the sea, so that it may recede before us and so that we may make for ourselves more forests.' ¹⁵In like manner the waves of the sea also made a plan and said, 'Come, let us go up and subdue the forest of the plain so that there also we may gain more territory for ourselves.' ¹⁶But the plan of the forest was in vain, for the fire came and consumed it; ¹⁷likewise also the plan of the others. 3.34 The scale weighing human deeds also occurs in 1 Enoch 41.1; 61.8; 2 Enoch 44.5. 3.35-36 These verses stress the injustice of God's punishment of Israel.

4.1-25 The seer and the angel argue. 4.1 Uriel appears without introduction. He often reveals secrets; cf. 1 Enoch 19.1. 4.2 Utterly failed, better "quite confounded." 4.3 Uriel poses three riddles to Ezra, oddly called ways. 4.5-8 These questions and those in 5.36-37 imply a rejection of common subjects in apocalypses; cf. 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 59.5-11. 4.7-8 The angel shows Ezra the limitations of his knowledge.

The questions are patterned on Job 38.16-17. Streams above the firmament are the orbits of the luminaries. 4.9 The angel's point resembles that in Job 37.14-39.30. 4.11 Instead of one who is already worn out, read "your vessel," i.e., your body; cf. 7.88; Apocalypse of Moses 31.4. 4.12 Understanding is stressed. 4.13 I went into a forest of trees of the plain. The best text reads: Once upon a time the forests of trees of the plain set forth. There are other such nature parables in 4.13-18; 4.48-49; 7.3-9; 7.51-56; 8.41-43; 10.9-13. 4.15 The conflict between land and sea may have mythical roots. 4.17 For sand as a barrier, see Jer 5.22.

waves of the sea was in vain,ⁿ for the sand stood firm and blocked it. ¹⁸If now you were a judge between them, which would you undertake to justify, and which to condemn?"

²⁰ He answered me and said, "You have judged rightly, but why have you not judged so in your own case? ²¹For as the land has been assigned to the forest and the sea to its waves, so also those who inhabit the earth can understand only what is on the earth, and he who is^o above the heavens can understand what is above the height of the heavens."

²² Then I answered and said, "I implore you, my lord, why^p have I been endowed with the power of understanding? ²³For I did not wish to inquire about the ways above, but about those things that we daily experience: why Israel has been given over to the Gentiles in disgrace; why the people whom you loved has been given over to godless tribes, and the law of our ancestors has been brought to destruction and the written covenants no longer exist. ²⁴We pass from the world like locusts, and our life is like a mist,^q and we are not worthy to obtain mercy. ²⁵But what will he do for his^r name that is invoked over us? It is about these things that I have asked."

Predictive Discussion

²⁶ He answered me and said, "If you are alive, you will see, and if you live long,^s you will often marvel, because the age is hurrying swiftly to its end. ²⁷It will not be able to bring the things that have been promised to the righteous in their appointed times, because this age is full of sadness and infirmities. ²⁸For the evil about which^t you ask me has been sown, but the harvest of it has not yet come. ²⁹If therefore that which has been sown is not reaped, and if the place where the evil has been sown does not pass away, the field where the good has been sown will not come. ³⁰For a grain of evil seed was sown in Adam's heart from the beginning, and how much ungodliness it has produced until now—and will produce until the time of threshing comes! ³¹Consider now for yourself how much fruit of ungodliness a grain of evil seed has produced. ³²When heads of grain without number are sown, how great a threshing floor they will fill!"

4.21 The moral of the parable is Ezra's constitutional inability to understand the way of the Most High. 4.22–25 A rephrasing of the question of understanding; Ezra has not been convinced by the angel's argument. Israel's fate is incomprehensible in light of God's love for Israel. 4.23 The destruction of all of scripture is meant; cf. 14.21. 4.25 Cf. 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 21.21.

4.26–32 A transitional oracle. The author shifts from disputatious to predictive dialogue. 4.26 This verse implies the dominant idea of the imminence of the end and refers to the author's own time. Of course, "Ezra" is only a pseudonym. The terms marvel and "wonder" are used almost exclusively of eschatological events; cf.

7.27; 13.14; 13.50; 13.56; 14.5. 4.27 Appointed times implies predestinarian ideas. 4.28 Harvest means the fruit of action, i.e., recompense. Agricultural imagery dominates this passage. 4.29 The harvest is both in the human heart and this world. There will be a new heart and a new world.

4.33–52 Ezra continues to elicit information about the end by posing questions. 4.33 Why are our years few and evil, preferably "for our years are few and evil," expresses Ezra's sense of urgency. 4.34 Do not be in a greater hurry than the Most High. Cf. 5.33, 44; 8.47. 4.35–36a These verses may be from another source. 4.35 Chambers are where souls repose after death; cf. 4.41; 7.32.

reward come?’³⁶ And the archangel Jeremiel answered and said, ‘When the number of those like yourselves is completed;^w for he has weighed the age in the balance, ³⁷and measured the times by measure, and numbered the times by number; and he will not move or arouse them until that measure is fulfilled.’”

³⁸ Then I answered and said, “But, O sovereign Lord, all of us also are full of ungodliness. ³⁹It is perhaps on account of us that the time of threshing is delayed for the righteous—on account of the sins of those who inhabit the earth.”

⁴⁰ He answered me and said, “Go and ask a pregnant woman whether, when her nine months have been completed, her womb can keep the fetus within her any longer.”

⁴¹ And I said, “No, lord, it cannot.”

He said to me, “In Hades the chambers of the souls are like the womb. ⁴²For just as a woman who is in labor makes haste to escape the pangs of birth, so also do these places hasten to give back those things that were committed to them from the beginning. ⁴³Then the things that you desire to see will be disclosed to you.”

⁴⁴ I answered and said, “If I have found favor in your sight, and if it is possible, and if I am worthy, ⁴⁵show me this also: whether more time is to come than has passed, or whether for us the greater part has gone by. ⁴⁶For I know what has gone by, but I do not know what is to come.”

⁴⁷ And he said to me, “Stand at my right side, and I will show you the interpretation of a parable.”

⁴⁸ So I stood and looked, and lo, a flaming furnace passed by before me, and when the flame had gone by I looked, and

lo, the smoke remained. ⁴⁹And after this a cloud full of water passed before me and poured down a heavy and violent rain, and when the violent rainstorm had passed, drops still remained in the cloud.^x

⁵⁰ He said to me, “Consider it for yourself; for just as the rain is more than the drops, and the fire is greater than the smoke, so the quantity that passed was far greater; but drops and smoke remained.”

⁵¹ Then I prayed and said, “Do you think that I shall live until those days? Or who will be alive in those days?”

⁵² He answered me and said, “Concerning the signs about which you ask me, I can tell you in part; but I was not sent to tell you concerning your life, for I do not know.

And it will answer, 'No.' 12 At that time people shall hope but not obtain; they shall labor, but their ways shall not prosper. 13 These are the signs that I am permitted to tell you, and if you pray again, and weep as you do now, and fast for seven days, you shall hear yet greater things than these."

Conclusion of the Vision

14 Then I woke up, and my body shuddered violently, and my soul was so troubled that it fainted. 15 But the angel who had come and talked with me held me and strengthened me and set me on my feet.

Narrative Transition

16 Now on the second night Phaltiel, a chief of the people, came to me and said, "Where have you been? And why is your face sad? 17 Or do you not know that Israel has been entrusted to you in the land of their exile? 18 Rise therefore and eat some bread, and do not forsake us, like a shepherd who leaves the flock in the power of savage wolves."

19 Then I said to him, "Go away from me and do not come near me for seven days; then you may come to me."

He heard what I said and left me. 20 So I fasted seven days, mourning and weeping, as the angel Uriel had commanded me.

Second Vision: Ezra's Address

21 After seven days the thoughts of my heart were very grievous to me again. 22 Then my soul recovered the spirit of understanding, and I began once more to speak words in the presence of the Most High. 23 I said, "O sovereign Lord, from every forest of the earth and from all its trees you have chosen one vine, 24 and from all the lands of the world you have chosen for yourself one region,^d and from all the flowers of the world you have

This is not a specific ruler, but the expected wicked future king; cf. 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 40.1. 5.8 Chaos, better "chasms"; cf. 5.14–15 Conclusion of the vision. 5.14 Woke up describes Ezra's leaving the trance; he is frightened and faints; cf. Zech 4.1; Dan 7.15. The angel functions similarly in Dan 8.18; 10.10–11.

5.16–22 Narrative transition to the second vision. The only similar narrative is 12.40–50.

Vv. 20–22 resemble the other transitions; see 3.1–3. 5.16 Phaltiel is no known person; for the name, cf. Num 34.26; 2 Sam 3.15. 5.18 The image of shepherds is often used for the leaders of the people: see Acts 20.29; 1 Enoch 89. 5.19 Add at the end of the verse "and I will tell you the matter." 5.22 Recovered, better "received." This is the onset of the seer's inspiration.

5.23–6.34 Second vision. 5.23–30 Ezra's address functions just like 3.4–36 in the first vision. Vv. 23–27 have a common rhetorical structure, from all . . . you have chosen, highlighting the election of Israel. 5.23 Cf. Apocalypse of Sedrach 8.2. Israel is a vine; see 2 Esd 9.21; Isa 5.7; Jer 2.21. 5.24 From all the lands . . . one region, the election of the land; see Gen 12.1; 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 40.2; and many other sources. Lily. Dispute

31 When I had spoken these words, the angel who had come to me on a previous night was sent to me. ³²He said to me, "Listen to me, and I will instruct you; pay attention to me, and I will tell you more."
33 Then I said, "Speak, my lord." And he said to me, "Are you greatly disturbed in mind over Israel? Or do you love him more than his Maker does?"

34 I said, "No, my lord, but because of my grief I have spoken; for every hour I suffer agonies of heart, while I strive to understand the way of the Most High and to search out some part of his judgment."

35 He said to me, "You cannot." And I said, "Why not, my lord? Why then was I born? Or why did not my mother's womb become my grave, so that I would not see the travail of Jacob and the exhaustion of the people of Israel?"

36 He said to me, "Count up for me those who have not yet come, and gather for me the scattered raindrops, and make the withered flowers bloom again for me; ³⁷open for me the closed chambers, and bring out for me the winds shut up in them, or show me the picture of a voice; and then I will explain to you the travail that you ask to understand."^f

38 I said, "O sovereign Lord, who is able to know these things except him whose dwelling is not with mortals? ³⁹As for me, I am without wisdom, and how can I speak concerning the things that you have asked me?"

40 He said to me, "Just as you cannot do one of the things that were mentioned, so you cannot discover my judgment, or the goal of the love that I have promised to my people."

Predictive Dialogue About the Last Things

41 I said, "Yet, O Lord, you have charge of those who are alive at the end, but what will those do who lived before me, or we, ourselves, or those who come after us?"

42 He said to me, "I shall liken my judgment to a circle;^g just as for those who are last there is no slowness, so for those who are first there is no haste."

43 Then I answered and said, "Could you not have created at one time those who have been and those who are and those who will be, so that you might show your judgment the sooner?"

50 Then I inquired and said, "Since you have now given me the opportunity, let me speak before you. Is our mother, of whom you have told me, still young? Or is she now approaching old age?"

51 He replied to me, "Ask a woman who bears children, and she will tell you. 52 Say to her, 'Why are those whom you have borne recently not like those whom you bore before, but smaller in stature?' 53 And she herself will answer you, 'Those born in the strength of youth are different from those born during the time of old age, when the womb is failing.' 54 Therefore you also should consider that you and your contemporaries are smaller in stature than those who were before you, 55 and those who come after you will be smaller than you, as born of a cre-

Prediction of Signs

They will tremble and be shaken, for they know that their end must be changed."

17 When I heard this, I got to my feet and listened; a voice was speaking, and its sound was like the sound of mighty^o waters. ¹⁸It said, "The days are coming when I draw near to visit the inhabitants of the earth, ¹⁹and when I require from the doers of iniquity the penalty of their iniquity, and when the humiliation of Zion is complete. ²⁰When the seal is placed upon the age that is about to pass away, then I will show these signs: the books shall be opened before the face of the firmament, and all shall see my judgment^p together. ²¹Children a year old shall speak with their voices, and pregnant women shall give birth to premature heard by the Most High; for the Mighty One has seen your uprightness and has also observed the purity that you have maintained from your youth. ³³Therefore he sent me to show you all these things, and to say to you: 'Believe and do not be afraid! ³⁴Do not be quick to think vain thoughts concerning the former times; then you will not act hastily in the last times.'

Third Vision: Ezra's Address

³⁵ Now after this I wept again and fasted seven days in the same way as before, in order to complete the three weeks that had been prescribed for me. ³⁶Then on the eighth night my heart was troubled within me again, and I began to speak in the presence of the Most High. ³⁷My spirit was greatly aroused, and my soul was in distress.

³⁸ I said, "O Lord, you spoke at the beginning of creation, and said on the first day, 'Let heaven and earth be made,' and your word accomplished the work. ³⁹Then the spirit was blowing, and darkness and silence embraced everything; the sound of human voices was not yet there." ⁴⁰Then you commanded a ray of light to be brought out from your store-chambers, so that your works could be seen.

⁴¹ "Again, on the second day, you created the spirit of the firmament, and commanded it to divide and separate the waters, so that one part might move upward and the other part remain beneath.

⁴² "On the third day you commanded the waters to be gathered together in a seventh part of the earth; six parts you dried up and kept so that some of them might be planted and cultivated and be of service before you. ⁴³For your word went forth, and at once the work was done. ⁴⁴Immediately fruit came forth in endless abundance and of varied appeal to the taste, and flowers of inimitable color, and odors of inexpressible fragrance. These were made on the third day.

⁴⁵ "On the fourth day you commanded the brightness of the sun, the light of the moon, and the arrangement of the stars to come into being; ⁴⁶and you commanded them to serve humankind, about to be formed.

⁴⁷ "On the fifth day you commanded the seventh part, where the water had been gathered together, to bring forth living creatures, birds, and fishes; and so it was done. ⁴⁸The dumb and lifeless water produced living creatures, as it was commanded, so that therefore the nations might declare your wondrous works.

⁴⁹ "Then you kept in existence two living creatures;" the one you called Behemoth" and the name of the other Leviathan. ⁵⁰And you separated one from the other, for the seventh part where the water had been gathered together could not hold them both. ⁵¹And you gave Behemoth" one of the parts that had been dried up on the third day, to live in it, where there are a thousand mountains; ⁵²but to Leviathan you gave the seventh part, the watery part; and you have kept them to be eaten by whom you wish, and when you wish.

⁵³ "On the sixth day you commanded the earth to bring forth before you cattle, wild animals, and creeping things; ⁵⁴and over these you placed Adam, as ruler over all the works that you had made; and from him we have all come, the people whom you have chosen.

55 "All this I have spoken before you, O Lord, because you have said that it was for us that you created this world.^x 56 As for the other nations that have descended from Adam, you have said that they are nothing, and that they are like spittle, and you have compared their abundance to a drop from a bucket. 57 And now, O Lord, these nations, which are reputed to be as nothing, domineer over us and devour us. 58 But we your people, whom you have called your firstborn, only begotten, zealous for you,^y and most dear, have been given into their hands. 59 If the world has indeed been created for us, why do we not possess our world as an inheritance? How long will this be so?"

Dialogic Dispute

7 When I had finished speaking these words, the angel who had been sent to me on the former nights was sent to me again. 2 He said to me, "Rise, Ezra, and listen to the words that I have come to speak to you."

3 I said, "Speak, my lord." And he said to me, "There is a sea set in a wide expanse so that it is deep and vast, 4 but it has an entrance set in a narrow place, so that it is like a river. 5 If there are those who wish to reach the sea, to look at it or to navigate it, how can they come to the broad part unless they pass through the narrow part? 6 Another example: There is a city built and set on a plain, and it is full of all good things; 7 but the entrance to it is narrow and set in a precipitous place, so that there is fire on the right hand and deep water on the left. 8 There is only one path lying between them, that is, between the fire and the water, so that only one person can walk on the path. 9 If now the city is given to someone as an inheritance, how will the heir receive the inheritance unless by passing through the appointed danger?"

10 I said, "That is right, lord." He said to me, "So also is Israel's portion. 11 For I made the world for their sake, and when Adam transgressed my statutes, what had been made was judged. 12 And so the entrances of this world were made narrow and sorrowful and toilsome; they are few and evil, full of dangers and involved in great hardships. 13 But the entrances of the greater world are broad and safe, and yield the fruit of immortality. 14 Therefore unless the living pass through the difficult and futile experiences, they can never receive those things that have been reserved for them. 15 Now therefore why are you disturbed, seeing that you are to perish? Why are you moved, seeing that you are mortal? 16 Why have you not considered in your mind what is to come, rather than what is now present?"

17 Then I answered and said, "O sovereign Lord, you have ordained in your law that the righteous shall inherit these things, but that the ungodly shall perish. 18 The righteous, therefore, can endure difficult circumstances while hoping for easier ones; but those who have done wickedly have suffered the difficult circumstances and will never see the easier ones."

On standing for solemn events, cf. 4.47; 6.13. 7.3–5 The origins of this parable are unclear. 7.5 Navigate is an emendation of "rule over." 7.6–9 A second similar parable follows, as in Mk 4.26–33. The plenteous city evokes Jerusalem with the righteous. Similar images occur in Hermas Similitudes 9.12.5; Testament of Job 18.6. Good things means eschatological reward. 7.7 The word translated entrance could be "way." The way, with dangers on both sides, occurs in Ps 66.12 (Septuagint, Vulgate); Sir 15.11, 15–17; Avot de Rabbi Nathan A 28. 7.9 Israel is to inherit the world; cf. 6.59. 7.11 See note on 6.55. This view of the result of Adam's sin is to be found in contemporary Judaism. 7.12–13 Note the contrast this world/age and the greater (or "coming") world/age, common terms in NT and rabbinic sources. The fruit gives immortality; cf. Gen 3.6, 22. 7.14 Difficulties precede reward. 7.15–16 Rebuke questions, implying an assertion of Ezra's future immortality. 7.17 Sovereign Lord. The angel is frequently addressed as God.

19 He said to me, "You are not a better judge than the Lord,^z or wiser than the Most High! 20 Let many perish who are now living, rather than that the law of God that is set before them be disregarded! 21 For the Lord^a strictly commanded those who came into the world, when they came, what they should do to live, and what they should observe to avoid punishment. 22 Nevertheless they were not obedient, and spoke against him;

they devised for themselves vain thoughts,

23 and proposed to themselves wicked frauds;
they even declared that the Most High does not exist,
and they ignored his ways.

24 They scorned his law,
and denied his covenants;
they have been unfaithful to his statutes,
and have not performed his works.

25 That is the reason, Ezra, that empty things are for the empty, and full things are for the full.

Dialogic Dispute

⁴⁵ I answered and said, "O sovereign Lord, I said then and^k I say now: Blessed are those who are alive and keep your commandments! ⁴⁶But what of those for whom I prayed? For who among the living is there that has not sinned, or who is there among mortals that has not transgressed your covenant? ⁴⁷And now I see that the world to come will bring delight to few, but torments to many. ⁴⁸For an evil heart has grown up in us, which has alienated us from God,^l and has brought us into corruption and the ways of death, and has shown us the paths of perdition and removed us far from life—and that not merely for a few but for almost all who have been created."

⁴⁹ He answered me and said, "Listen to me, Ezra,^m and I will instruct you, and will admonish you once more. ⁵⁰For this reason the Most High has made not one world but two. ⁵¹Inasmuch as you have said that the righteous are not many but few, while the ungodly abound, hear the explanation for this.

⁵⁹ He answered me and said, "Consider within yourself^o what you have thought, for the person who has what is hard to get rejoices more than the person who has what is plentiful. ⁶⁰So also will be the judgment^p that I have promised; for I will rejoice over the few who shall be that all have sinned is ancient and widespread. e.g., 1 Kings 8.46; Prov 20.9. The book often takes extreme positions at the start of an argument. 7.47 In the world to come the righteous will be few; see 8.1–3. This issue of the few and the many pervades the rest of the third vision. 7.48 See 3.2–22. Life means eternal life. As in 7.47, sin is not quite universal. 7.51 The ungodly abound. The angel corrects Ezra's words in vv. 46–47. 7.52–57 A parable of precious and base metals. A similar image is the droplets and the wave (9.14–16). 7.59 What you have thought, i.e., in the preceding verse. 7.60–61 The few and the many from the angel's perspective. Name, like glory, is a divine hypostasis; cf. Apocalypse of Abraham 29.17. Mist, flame, and smoke all convey impermanence already in the Hebrew scrip-saved, because it is they who have made my glory to prevail now, and through them my name has now been honored. ⁶¹I will not grieve over the great number of those who perish; for it is they who are now like a mist, and are similar to a flame and smoke—they are set on fire and burn hotly, and are extinguished."

⁶²I replied and said, "O earth, what have you brought forth, if the mind is made out of the dust like the other created things? ⁶³For it would have been better if the dust itself had not been born, so that the mind might not have been made from it. ⁶⁴But now the mind grows with us, and therefore we are tormented, because we perish and we know it. ⁶⁵Let the human race lament, but let the wild animals of the field be glad; let all who have been born lament, but let the cattle and the flocks rejoice. ⁶⁶It is much better with them than with us; for they do not look for a judgment, and they do not know of any torment or salvation promised to them after death. ⁶⁷What does it profit us that we shall be preserved alive but cruelly tormented? ⁶⁸For all who have been born are entangled in^q iniquities, and are full of sins and burdened with transgressions. ⁶⁹And if after death we were not to come into judgment, perhaps it would have been better for us."

⁷⁰He answered me and said, "When the Most High made the world and Adam and all who have come from him, he first prepared the judgment and the things that pertain to the judgment. ⁷¹But now, understand from your own words—for you have said that the mind grows with us. ⁷²For this reason, therefore, those who live on earth shall be tormented, because though they had understanding, they committed iniquity; and though they received the commandments, they did not keep them; and though they obtained the law, they dealt unfaithfully with what they received. ⁷³What, then, will they have to say in the judgment, or how will they answer in the last times? ⁷⁴How long the Most High has been patient with those who inhabit the world!—and not for their sake, but because of the times that he has foreordained."

Prediction of the Postmortem State

⁷⁵I answered and said, "If I have found favor in your sight, O Lord, show this also to your servant: whether after death, as soon as everyone of us yields up the soul, we shall be kept in rest until those times come when you will renew the creation, or whether we shall be tormented at once?"

⁷⁶He answered me and said, "I will show you that also, but do not include yourself with those who have shown scorn, or number yourself among those who are tormented. ⁷⁷For you have a treasure of works stored up with the Most High, but it will not be shown to you until the last times. ⁷⁸Now concerning death, the teaching is: When the decisive decree has gone out from the Most High that a person shall die, as the spirit leaves the body to return again to him who gave it, first of all it adores the glory of the Most High. ⁷⁹If it is one of those who have shown scorn and have not kept the way of the Most High, who have despised his law and hated those who fear God—⁸⁰such spirits shall not enter into habitations, but shall immediately wander about in torments, always grieving and sad, in seven ways. ⁸¹The first way, because they have

scorned the law of the Most High. ⁸²The second way, because they cannot now make a good repentance so that they may live. ⁸³The third way, they shall see the reward laid up for those who have trusted the covenants of the Most High. ⁸⁴The fourth way, they shall consider the torment laid up for themselves in the last days. ⁸⁵The fifth way, they shall see how the habitations of the others are guarded by angels in profound quiet. ⁸⁶The sixth way, they shall see how some of them will cross over^r into torments. ⁸⁷The seventh way, which is worse^s than all the ways that have been mentioned, because they shall utterly waste away in confusion and be consumed with shame,^t and shall wither with fear at seeing the glory of the Most High in whose presence they sinned while they were alive, and in whose presence they are to be judged in the last times.

⁸⁸ "Now this is the order of those who have kept the ways of the Most High, when they shall be separated from their mortal body."^u ⁸⁹During the time that they lived in it,^v they laboriously served the Most High, and withstood danger every hour so that they might keep the law of the Lawgiver perfectly. ⁹⁰Therefore this is the teaching concerning them: ⁹¹First of all, they shall see with great joy the glory of him who receives them, for they shall have rest in seven orders. ⁹²The first order, because they have striven with great effort to overcome the evil thought that was formed with them, so that it might not lead them astray from life into death. ⁹³The second order, because they see the perplexity in which the souls of the ungodly wander and the punishment that awaits them. ⁹⁴The third order, they see the witness that he who formed them

bears concerning them, that throughout their life they kept the law with which they were entrusted. ⁹⁵The fourth order, they understand the rest that they now enjoy, being gathered into their chambers and guarded by angels in profound quiet, and the glory waiting for them in the last days. ⁹⁶The fifth order, they rejoice that they have now escaped what is corruptible and shall inherit what is to come; and besides they see the straits and toil^v from which they have been delivered, and the spacious liberty that they are to receive and enjoy in immortality. ⁹⁷The sixth order, when it is shown them how their face is to shine like the sun, and how they are to be made like the light of the stars, being incorruptible from then on. ⁹⁸The seventh order, which is greater than all that have been mentioned, because they shall rejoice with boldness, and shall be confident without confusion, and shall be glad without fear, for they press forward to see the face of him whom they served in life and from whom they are to receive their reward when glorified. ⁹⁹This is the order of the souls of the righteous, as henceforth is announced;^w and the previously mentioned are the ways of torment that those who would not give heed shall suffer hereafter."

freedom for seven days, so that during these seven days they may see the things of which you have been told, and afterwards they shall be gathered in their habitations."

102 I answered and said, "If I have found favor in your sight, show further to me, your servant, whether on the day of judgment the righteous will be able to intercede for the ungodly or to entreat the Most High for them—¹⁰³ fathers for sons or sons for parents, brothers for brothers, relatives for their kindred, or friends for those who are most dear."

104 He answered me and said, "Since you have found favor in my sight, I will show you this also. The day of judgment is decisive^x and displays to all the seal of truth. Just as now a father does not send his son, or a son his father, or a master his servant, or a friend his dearest friend, to be ill^y or sleep or eat or be healed in his place,¹⁰⁵ so no one shall ever pray for another on that day, neither shall anyone lay a burden on another;^z for then all shall bear their own righteousness and unrighteousness."

36 106 I answered and said, "How then do we find that first Abraham prayed for the people of Sodom, and Moses for our ancestors who sinned in the desert,^{37 107} and Joshua after him for Israel in the days of Achan,^{38 108} and Samuel in the days of Saul,^a and David for the plague, and Solomon for those at the dedication,^{39 109} and Elijah for those who received the rain, and for the one who was dead, that he might live,^{40 110} and Hezekiah for the people in the days of Sennacherib, and many others prayed for many? ^{41 111} So if now, when corruption has increased and unrighteousness has multiplied, the righteous have prayed for the ungodly, why will it not be so then as well?"

42 112 He answered me and said, "This present world is not the end; the full glory does not^b remain in it;^c therefore those who were strong prayed for the weak. ^{43 113} But the day of judgment will be the end of this age and the beginning^d of the immortal age to come, in which corruption has passed away, ^{44 114} sinful indulgence has come to an end, unbelief has been cut off, and righteousness has increased and truth has appeared. ^{45 115} Therefore no one will then be able to have mercy on someone who has been condemned in the judgment, or to harm^e someone who is victorious."

Dispute

46 116 I answered and said, "This is my first and last comment: it would have been better if the earth had not produced Adam, or else, when it had produced him, had restrained him from sinning. ^{47 117} For what good is it to all that they live in sorrow now and expect punishment after death? ^{48 118} O Adam, what have you done? For though it was you who sinned, the fall was not yours alone, but ours also who are your descendants. ^{49 119} For what good is it to us, if an immortal time has been promised to us, but we have done deeds that bring death? ^{50 120} And what good is it that an everlasting hope has been promised to us, but we

⁵⁷ 127 He answered and said, "This is the significance of the contest that all who are born on earth shall wage: ⁵⁸ 128 if they are defeated they shall suffer what you have said, but if they are victorious they shall receive what I have said. ^g ⁵⁹ 129 For this is the way of which Moses, while he was alive, spoke to the people, saying, 'Choose life for yourself, so that you may live!' ⁶⁰ 130 But they did not believe him or the prophets after him, or even myself who have spoken to them. ⁶¹ 131 Therefore there shall not be ^h grief at their destruction, so much as joy over those to whom salvation is assured."

⁶² 132 I answered and said, "I know, O Lord, that the Most High is now called merciful, because he has mercy on those who have not yet come into the world; ⁶³ 133 and gracious, because he is gracious to those who turn in repentance to his law; ⁶⁴ 134 and patient, because he shows patience toward those who have sinned, since they are his own creatures; ⁶⁵ 135 and bountiful, because he would rather give than take away; ⁱ ⁶⁶ 136 and abundant in

8 He answered me and said, "The Most High made this world for the sake of many, but the world to come for the sake of only a few. ² But I tell you a parable, Ezra. Ezra's Prayer

The beginning of the words of Ezra's prayer,^r before he was taken up. He said: ²⁰"O Lord, you who inhabit eternity,^s whose eyes are exalted^t and whose upper chambers are in the air, ²¹whose throne is beyond measure and whose glory is beyond comprehension, before whom the hosts of angels stand trembling ²²and at whose command they are changed to wind and fire,^u whose word is sure and whose utterances are certain, whose command is strong and whose ordinance is terrible, ²³whose look dries up the depths and whose indignation makes the mountains melt away, and whose truth is established^v forever— ²⁴hear, O Lord, the prayer of your servant, and give ear to the petition of your creature; attend to my words. ²⁵For as long as I live I will speak, and as long as I have understanding I will answer. ²⁶O do not look on the sins of your people, but on those who serve you in truth. ²⁷Do not take note of the endeavors of those who act wickedly, but of the endeavors of those who have kept your covenants amid afflictions. ²⁸Do not think of those who have lived wickedly in your sight, but remember those who have willingly acknowledged that you are to be feared. ²⁹Do not will the destruction of those who have the ways of cattle, but regard those who have gloriously taught your law.^w ³⁰Do not be angry with those who are deemed worse than wild animals, but love those who have always put their trust in your glory. ³¹For we and our ancestors have passed our lives in ways that bring death;^x but it is because of us sinners that you are called merciful. ³²For if you have desired to have pity on us, who have no works of righteousness, then you will be called merciful. ³³For the righteous, who have many works laid up with you, shall receive their reward in consequence of their own deeds. ³⁴But what are mortals, that you are angry with them; or what is a corruptible race, that you are so bitter against it? ³⁵For in truth there is no one among those who have been born who has not acted wickedly; among those who have existed^y there is no one who has not done wrong. ³⁶For in this, O Lord, your righteousness and goodness will be declared, when you are merciful to those who have no store of good works.”

Dispute

³⁷ He answered me and said, “Some things you have spoken rightly, and it will turn out according to your words. ³⁸For indeed I will not concern myself about the fashioning of those who have sinned, or about their death, their judgment, or their destruction; ³⁹but I will rejoice over the creation of the righteous, over their pilgrimage also, and their salvation, and their receiving their reward. ⁴⁰As I have spoken, therefore, so it shall be.

⁴¹ “For just as the farmer sows many seeds in the ground and plants a multitude of seedlings, and yet not all that have been sown will come up^z in due season, and not all that were planted will take root; so also those who have been sown in the world will not all be saved.”

⁴² I answered and said, “If I have found favor in your sight, let me speak. ⁴³If the farmer’s seed does not come up, because it has not received your rain in due season, or if it has been ruined by too much rain, it perishes.^a ⁴⁴But people, who have been formed by your hands and are called your own image because they are made like you, and for whose sake you have formed all things—have you also made them like the farmer’s seed? ⁴⁵Surely not, O Lord^b above! But spare your people and have mercy on your inheritance, for you have mercy on your own creation.”

⁴⁶ He answered me and said, “Things that are present are for those who live now, and things that are future are for those who will live hereafter. ⁴⁷For you come far short of being able to love my creation more than I love it. But you have often compared yourself^c to the unrighteous. Never do so! ⁴⁸But even in this respect you will be praiseworthy before the Most High, ⁴⁹because you have humbled yourself, as is becoming for you, and have not considered yourself to be among the righteous. pride. ⁵¹But think of your own case, and inquire concerning the glory of those who are like yourself, ⁵²because it is for you that paradise is opened, the tree of life is planted, the age to come is prepared, plenty is provided, a city is built, rest is appointed,^d goodness is established and wisdom perfected beforehand. ⁵³The root of evil^e is sealed up from you, illness is banished from you, and death^f is hidden; Hades has fled and corruption has been forgotten;^g ⁵⁴sorrows have passed away, and in the end the treasure of immortality is made manifest. ⁵⁵Therefore do not ask any more questions about the great number of those who perish. ⁵⁶For when they had opportunity to choose, they despised the Most High, and were contemptuous of his law, and abandoned his ways. ⁵⁷Moreover, they have even trampled on his righteous ones, ⁵⁸and said in their hearts that there is no God—though they knew well that they must die. ⁵⁹For just as the things that I have predicted await^h you, so the thirst and torment that are prepared await them. For the Most High did not intend that anyone should be destroyed; ⁶⁰but those who were created have themselves defiled the name of him who made them, and have been ungrateful to him who prepared life for them now. ⁶¹Therefore my judgment is now drawing near; ⁶²I have not shown this to all people, but only to you and a few like you.”

Prediction About Signs of the End

Then I answered and said, ⁶³“O Lord, you have already shown me a great number of the signs that you will do in the last times, but you have not shown me when you will do them.”

9 He answered me and said, “Measure carefully in your mind, and when you see that some of the predicted signs have occurred, ²then you will know that it is the very time when the Most High is about to visit the world that he has made. ³So when there shall appear in the world earthquakes, tumult of peoples, intrigues of nations, wavering of leaders, confusion of princes, ⁴then you will know that it was of these that the Most High spoke from the days that were of old, from the beginning. ⁵For just as with everything that has occurred in the world, the beginning is evident,ⁱ and the end manifest; ⁶so also are the times of the Most High: the beginnings are manifest in wonders and mighty works, and the end in penalties^j and in signs.

8.63–9.22 A prediction comparable to 5.1–13; 6.11–29. This one bears a distinct dialogic character. 8.63 Signs is a technical term often used specifically to denote those terrible events that will presage the end of this world-age. 9.1–2 This is the most explicit answer to the question “When?” (How long, 4.33). Predicted refers to 5.1–13; 6.18–28. These lists are a sort of diagnostic device. Visit means “penal visitation.” 9.3 Earthquakes are a common sign of the end; see Mk 13.8; 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 27.7. Tumult of peoples . . . confusion of princes. Cf. 12.30; Ps 2.1–2. 9.4 From the beginning is probably an addition to the text. Eschatological things were foreordained and revealed to Abraham and Moses (3.14; 14.5). 9.5–6 The end is manifested in deeds and signs, the latter having just been mentioned. God's power, visible in creation, will be manifested in the eschaton. 9.8 For those who survive the messianic woes, particularly in the land of dangers that have been predicted, and will see my salvation in my land and within my borders, which I have sanctified for myself from the beginning.⁹ Then those who have now abused my ways shall be amazed, and those who have rejected them with contempt shall live in torments.¹⁰ For as many as did not acknowledge me in their lifetime, though they received my benefits,¹¹ and as many as scorned my law while they still had freedom, and did not understand but despised it^k while an opportunity of repentance was still open to them,¹² these must in torment acknowledge it^k after death.¹³ Therefore, do not continue to be curious about how the ungodly will be punished; but inquire how the righteous will be saved, those to whom the age belongs and for whose sake the age was made.”¹

14 I answered and said, ¹⁵“I said before, and I say now, and will say it again: there are more who perish than those who will be saved, ¹⁶as a wave is greater than a drop of water.”

17 He answered me and said, “As is the field, so is the seed; and as are the flowers, so are the colors; and as is the work, so is the product; and as is the farmer, so is the threshing floor.¹⁸ For there was a time in this age when I was preparing for those who now exist, before the world was made for them to live in, and no one opposed me then, for no one existed; ¹⁹but now those who have been created in this world, which is supplied both with an unfailing table and an inexhaustible pasture,^m have become corrupt in their ways.²⁰ So I considered my world, and saw that it was lost. I saw that my earth was in peril because of the devices of those whoⁿ had come into it.²¹ And I saw and spared some^o with great difficulty, and saved for myself one grape out of a cluster, and one plant out of a great forest.^p ²²So let the multitude perish that has been born in vain, but let my grape and my plant be saved, because with much labor I have perfected them.

9.29–37 An address devoted to Torah and

us, to our ancestors in the wilderness when they came out from Egypt and when they came into the untrodden and unfruitful wilderness; ³⁰and you said, 'Hear me, O Israel, and give heed to my words, O descendants of Jacob. ³¹For I sow my law in you, and it shall bring forth fruit in you, and you shall be glorified through it forever.' ³²But though our ancestors received the law, they did not keep it and did not observe the^r statutes; yet the fruit of the law did not perish—for it could not, because it was yours. ³³Yet those who received it perished, because they did not keep what had been sown in them. ³⁴Now this is the general rule that, when the ground has received seed, or the sea a ship, or any dish food or drink, and when it comes about that what was sown or what was launched or what was put in is destroyed, ³⁵they are destroyed, but the things that held them remain; yet with us it has not been so. ³⁶For we who have received the law and sinned will perish, as well as our hearts that received it; ³⁷the law, however, does not perish but survives in its glory."

The Vision of a Weeping Woman

38 When I said these things in my heart, I looked around,^s and on my right I saw a woman; she was mourning and weeping with a loud voice, and was deeply grieved at heart; her clothes were torn, and there were ashes on her head. ³⁹Then I dismissed the thoughts with which I had been engaged, and turned to her ⁴⁰and said to her, "Why are you weeping, and why are you grieved at heart?"

41 She said to me, "Let me alone, my lord, so that I may weep for myself and continue to mourn, for I am greatly embittered in spirit and deeply distressed."

42 I said to her, "What has happened to you? Tell me."

43 And she said to me, "Your servant was barren and had no child, though I lived with my husband for thirty years. ⁴⁴Every hour and every day during those thirty years I prayed to the Most High, night and day. ⁴⁵And after thirty years God heard your servant, and looked upon my low estate, and considered my distress, and gave me a son. I rejoiced greatly over him, I and my husband and all my neighbors; and we gave great glory to the Mighty One. ⁴⁶And I brought him up with much care. ⁴⁷So when he grew up and I came to take a wife for him, I set a day for the marriage feast.

10 "But it happened that when my son entered his wedding chamber, he fell down and died. ²So all of us put out our lamps, and all my neighbors attempted to console me; I remained quiet until the evening of the second day. ³But when all of them had stopped consoling me, encouraging me to be quiet, I got up in the night and fled, and I came to this field, as you see. ⁴And now I intend not to return to the town, but to stay here; I will neither eat nor drink, but will mourn and fast continually until I die."

For Torah as seed, see 3.20; its fruit is eternal glory. 9.32 The Torah's eternity and human disobedience are contrasted. 9.36–37 Conclusions are drawn from the inverted analogy in vv. 34–35.

9.38–10.4 Vision. The first-person narrative continues. The woman's tale may be an earlier piece incorporated by the author. Folk motifs resemble those in Tobit and 1 Sam 1–2. In general, the parallels between the Ezra of the first three visions and the woman here are notable. 9.38 On my right. Cf. 4.47. This is a waking vision; no trance or dream state is implied. 9.39 An attempt to account for the discrepancy that the vision is not a response to the address. The verse is repeated in 10.5 and may further indicate the abandonment of the issues motivating the first three visions. 9.41 Cf. 1 Sam 1.10. 9.43 An imitation of biblical style; cf. 12.8; 13.14; and particularly 1 Sam 1.16. Thirty may evoke the period from exile to Ezra's vision (3.1). 9.44 Cf. the role of prayer in 1 Sam 1.9–11. 9.45 Low estate, better "affliction." 9.47 The mother takes a wife for her son; cf. Gen 21.21; contrast Mishnah Kid-dushin 2.1; 3.7–9. A feast celebrating a marriage was common in biblical times; cf. Mt 25.1–10. 10.1 Cf. Tob 7.11; 8.10. 10.2 The night of the second day marked the end of the first period of mourning. Sitting in silence and extinguishing lamps are ancient Jewish mourning customs.

Ezra's Response

5 Then I broke off the reflections with which I was still engaged, and answered her in anger and said, ⁶"You most foolish of women, do you not see our mourning, and what has happened to us? ⁷For Zion, the mother of us all, is in deep grief and great distress. ⁸It is most appropriate to mourn now, because we are all mourning, and to be sorrowful, because we are all sorrowing; you are sorrowing for one son, but we, the whole world, for our mother."⁹ Now ask the earth, and she will tell you that it is she who ought to mourn over so many who have come into being upon her. ¹⁰From the beginning all have been born of her, and others will come; and, lo, almost all go^v to perdition, and a multitude of them will come to doom. ¹¹Who then ought to mourn the more, she who lost so great a multitude, or you who are grieving for one alone? ¹²But if you say to me, 'My lamentation is not like the earth's, for I have lost the fruit of my womb, which I brought forth in pain and bore in sorrow; ¹³but it is with the earth according to the way of the earth—the multitude that is now in it goes as it came'; ¹⁴then I say to you, 'Just as you brought forth in sorrow, so the earth also has from the beginning given her fruit, that is, humankind, to him who made her.'¹⁵ Now, therefore, keep your sorrow to yourself, and bear bravely the troubles that have come upon you. ¹⁶For if you acknowledge the decree of God to be just, you will receive your son back in due time, and will be praised among women. ¹⁷Therefore go into the town to your husband."

18 She said to me, "I will not do so; I will not go into the city, but I will die here."

19 So I spoke again to her, and said, ²⁰"Do not do that, but let yourself be persuaded—for how many are the adversities of Zion?—and be consoled because of the sorrow of Jerusalem. ²¹For you see how our sanctuary has been laid waste, our altar thrown down, our temple destroyed; ²²our harp has been laid low, our song has been silenced, and our rejoicing has been ended; the light of our lampstand has been put out, the ark of our covenant has been plundered, our holy things have been polluted, and the name by which we are called has been almost profaned; our children^w have suffered abuse, our priests have been burned to death, our Levites have gone into exile, our virgins have been defiled, and our wives have been ravished; our righteous men^x have been carried off, our little ones have been cast out, our young men have been enslaved and our strong men made powerless. ²³And, worst of all, the seal of Zion has been deprived of its glory, and given over into the hands of those that hate us. ²⁴Therefore shake off your great sadness and lay aside your many sorrows, so that the Mighty One may be merciful to you again, and the Most High may give you rest, a respite from your troubles."

10.5–24 The second part of Ezra's vision; here Ezra dominates, as the woman did in the preceding section. Ezra takes on the angel's characteristics, and the woman takes on Ezra's. This is possible because Ezra has accepted the teachings contained in the angel's earlier speech, yet his pain persists. 10.5 See 9.39. 10.6 The phrase our mourning and what has happened to us points ahead to the next part of the vision. Cf. the angel's reproach in 4.2; 5.33. 10.7 Zion or Jerusalem as mother is biblical, e.g., Isa 50.1; Jer 50.12; Gal 4.26. A striking parallel story is Pesiqta Rabbati 26. 10.8 The phrase but we ... mother does not seem to be original: the verse's structure resembles 10.20. 10.9 This apostrophe quotes 7.54; cf. 4.40. The earth begets humans; cf. 5.48; 6.53. 10.10 This teaching Ezra rejected in the third vision. His perception has changed. 10.12 Pain and sorrow. Cf. Gen 3.16. 10.14 The earth also undergoes a sort of travail. 10.16 This focuses Ezra's earlier concern with justice. Here he asserts what he rejected previously. The return of the son may be an element of the older folk tale. Due time implies predestination. 10.17 The husband's role is secondary. 10.21–22 Note this poetic lament; cf. 1 Macc 1.36–40; 2.7–13, relating to the desecration of the temple; also cf. Lam 1.10; 2.7. This is the last lament in 4 Ezra. The destruction of the temple and the ensuing issue of theodicy are central in ancient Judaism. 10.22 This verse mentions temple-related features and different groups of the population. 10.23 The exact meaning of seal is unclear but the point is that Zion is in enemy hands.

Transformation

25 While I was talking to her, her face suddenly began to shine exceedingly; her countenance flashed like lightning, so that I was too frightened to approach her, and my heart was terrified. While^y I was wondering what this meant, ²⁶she suddenly uttered a loud and fearful cry, so that the earth shook at the sound. ²⁷When I looked up, the woman was no longer visible to me, but a city was being built,^z and a place of huge foundations showed itself. I was afraid, and cried with a loud voice and said, ²⁸"Where is the angel Uriel, who came to me at first? For it was he who brought me into this overpowering bewilderment; my end has become corruption, and my prayer a reproach."

The Appearance of the Angel

29 While I was speaking these words, the angel who had come to me at first came to me, and when he saw me ³⁰lying there like a corpse, deprived of my understanding, he grasped my right hand and strengthened me and set me on my feet, and said to me, ³¹"What is the matter with you? And why are you troubled? And why are your understanding and the thoughts of your mind troubled?"

32 I said, "It was because you abandoned me. I did as you directed, and went out into the field, and lo, what I have seen and can still see, I am unable to explain."

33 He said to me, "Stand up like a man, and I will instruct you."

34 I said, "Speak, my lord; only do not forsake me, so that I may not die before my time.^a ³⁵For I have seen what I did not know, and I hear^b what I do not understand ³⁶—or is my mind deceived, and my soul dreaming? ³⁷Now therefore I beg you to give your servant an explanation of this bewildering vision."

Interpretation of the Vision

38 He answered me and said, "Listen to me, and I will teach you, and tell you about the things that you fear; for the Most High has revealed many secrets to you. ³⁹He has seen your righteous conduct, and that you have sorrowed continually for your people and mourned greatly over Zion. ⁴⁰This therefore is the meaning of the vision. ⁴¹The woman who appeared to you a little while ago, whom you saw mourning and whom you began to console ⁴²(you do not now see the form of a woman, but there appeared to you a city being built)^c ⁴³and who told you about the misfortune of her son—this is the interpretation: ⁴⁴The woman whom you saw is Zion, which you now behold as a city being built.^d ⁴⁵And as for her

10.25–28 Transformation. Nothing had hinted that the woman was other than what she seemed. The description of her transformation is unparalleled in apocalyptic literature. Ezra is terrified and faints; he undergoes an intense emotional experience. 10.25 Face . . . began to shine. See note on 7.97. 10.26 The earth shakes at portentous events and cries accompany them; see 3.18; 6.13–15. 10.27 But a city was being built should be read as but there was an established city (text note z). See 7.26; 8.52; 13.36. Foundations. Cf. Heb 11.10; Rev 21.14, 19. 10.28 Uriel is the usual interpreting angel in the book.

10.29–37 The angel's role as interpreter here differs from that in 5.31; 7.1 and is more traditional. A strong sense of Ezra's turmoil is conveyed. 10.30 Lying there like a corpse. Fainting is described; cf. 5.14. 10.31 Cf. 4.2. 10.32 And can still see implies that the vision has not passed. Unable to explain, different from 2 Cor 12.4.

10.33 Stand up. Cf. 4.47; 6.13; 7.2. 10.34 Danger accompanies such experiences. 10.35 Hear, better have heard (text note b). A sense of numinous awe is conveyed; Ezra has seen the ineffable. 10.36 Cf. Sir 34.1–8.

10.38–54 Interpretation of the vision; cf. 12.10; 13.25. The detailed interpretation of the vision's symbols (vv. 44–48) is followed by an explanation of Ezra's experience (vv. 49–54). The center stage is held by the woman, and the son's role is quite passive. 10.38 Secrets indicates the special nature of the ensuing. 10.39 Cf. 10.50. 10.40 General introduction to the interpretation; cf. 4.47. Meaning of the vision, lit. "word." 10.42 A city being built, better an established city (text note c), and similarly in v. 44. Cf. 10.27. 10.43 This verse marks the shift from relating the symbol to offering its interpretation. 10.45 Metaphorical barrenness; see 5.1; 6.28. Temple offerings are central; cf. 3.24. A millen-

telling you that she was barren for thirty years, the reason is that there were three thousand^e years in the world before any offering was offered in it.^f 46 And after three thousand^g years Solomon built the city, and offered offerings; then it was that the barren woman bore a son. 47 And as for her telling you that she brought him up with much care, that was the period of residence in Jerusalem. 48 And as for her saying to you, 'My son died as he entered his wedding chamber,' and that misfortune had overtaken her,^h this was the destruction that befell Jerusalem. 49 So you saw her likeness, how she mourned for her son, and you began to console her for what had happened.ⁱ 50 For now the Most High, seeing that you are sincerely grieved and profoundly distressed for her, has shown you the brilliance of her glory, and the loveliness of her beauty. 51 Therefore I told you to remain in the field where no house had been built, 52 for I knew that the Most High would reveal these things to you. 53 Therefore I told you to go into the field where there was no foundation of any building, 54 because no work of human construction could endure in a place where the city of the Most High was to be revealed.

Concluding Injunctions

55 "Therefore do not be afraid, and do not let your heart be terrified; but go in and see the splendor of the vastness of the building, as far as it is possible for your eyes to see it, 56 and afterward you will hear as much as your ears can hear. 57 For you are more blessed than many, and you have been called to be with^k the Most High as few have been. 58 But tomorrow night you shall remain here, 59 and the Most High will show you in those dream visions what the Most High will do to those who inhabit the earth in the last days."

So I slept that night and the following one, as he had told me.

Fifth Vision: The Vision of the Eagle

11 On the second night I had a dream: I saw rising from the sea an eagle that had twelve feathered wings and three heads. 2 I saw it spread its wings over^l the whole earth, and all the winds of heaven blew upon it, and the clouds were gathered around it.^m 3 I saw that out of its wings there grew opposing wings; but they became little, puny wings. 4 But its heads were at rest; the middle head was larger than the other heads, but it too was at rest with them. 5 Then I saw that the eagle flew with its wings, and it reigned over the earth and over those who inhabit it. 6 And I saw how all things under heaven were subjected to it, and no

On glory, see 3.19; 7.42. 10.51 Field. Cf. 9.24.

10.55–59 Concluding injunctions of the fourth vision. 10.55 Go in and see implies that the city is still standing; cf. 10.32. 10.56 Afterward, after you enter the building. Ezra's experience in the city is not related. The limits of human knowledge are stressed by as much as. 10.57 Called, better "named"; cf. 14.35; Isa 45.4. Only few resemble Ezra. 10.59 The preparation for the fifth vision differs from preceding visions: only two nights' wait, no fast, and dream visions are promised, which are a new type in the book.

11.1–12.39, 51 Fifth vision. 11.1–12.3a This long vision is a dream the writer had at night. It resembles other apocalypses and is related to them by 11.40, which recalls Dan 7: cf. 2 Esd 12.11. The vision is composed of the description of the eagle (11.1–35), the judgment scene (11.36–46), and the execution of judgment (12.1–3a). 11.1 General description of the eagle. The eagle was also the symbol found on the standards of the Roman legions. Feathered, probably secondary. 11.2–4 Initial stance of the eagle. 11.2 Spread. Cf. Ex 19.4; Deut 32.11. 11.3 The puny wings have particular significance. 11.5–6 The eagle's rule extended over the whole earth. 11.6 Creature may signify one spoke against it—not a single creature that was on the earth. ⁷Then I saw the eagle rise upon its talons, and it uttered a cry to its wings, saying, ⁸“Do not all watch at the same time; let each sleep in its own place, and watch in its turn; ⁹but let the heads be reserved for the last.”

¹⁰ I looked again and saw that the voice did not come from its heads, but from the middle of its body. ¹¹I counted its rival wings, and there were eight of them. ¹²As I watched, one wing on the right side rose up, and it reigned over all the earth. ¹³And after a time its reign came to an end, and it disappeared, so that even its place was no longer visible. Then the next wing rose up and reigned, and it continued to reign a long time. ¹⁴While it was reigning its end came also, so that it disappeared like the first. ¹⁵And a voice sounded, saying to it, ¹⁶“Listen to me, you who have ruled the earth all this time; I announce this to you before you disappear. ¹⁷After you no one shall rule as long as you have ruled, not even half as long.”

¹⁸ Then the third wing raised itself up, and held the rule as the earlier ones had done, and it also disappeared. ¹⁹And so it went with all the wings; they wielded power one after another and then were never seen again. ²⁰I kept looking, and in due time the wings that followedⁿ also rose up on the right^o side, in order to rule. There were some of them that ruled, yet disappeared suddenly; ²¹and others of them rose up, but did not hold the rule.

²² And after this I looked and saw that the twelve wings and the two little wings had disappeared, ²³and nothing remained on the eagle's body except the three heads that were at rest and six little wings.

²⁴ As I kept looking I saw that two little wings separated from the six and remained under the head that was on the right side; but four remained in their place. ²⁵Then I saw that these little wings^p planned to set themselves up and hold the rule. ²⁶As I kept looking, one was set up, but suddenly disappeared; ²⁷a second also, and this disappeared more quickly than the first. ²⁸While I continued to look the two that remained were planning between themselves to reign together; ²⁹and while they were planning, one of the heads that were at rest (the one that was in the middle) suddenly awoke; it was greater than the other two heads. ³⁰And I saw how it allied the two heads with itself, ³¹and how the head turned with those that were with it and devoured the two little wings^p that were planning to reign. ³²Moreover this head gained control of the whole earth, and with much oppression dominated its inhabitants; it had greater power over the world than all the wings that had gone before.

³⁶ Then I heard a voice saying to me, “Look in front of you and consider what you see.” ³⁷When I looked, I saw what seemed to be a lion roused from the forest, roaring; and I heard how it uttered a human voice to the eagle, and spoke, saying, ³⁸“Listen and I will speak to you. The Most High says to you, ³⁹Are you not the “human being.” 11.7–11 Preparation for the sequence of rulers. 11.8 Watch, i.e., “be awake.” 11.9 The last is an eschatological term. 11.12–19 Rule of right-hand wings. The right side is dominant and favorable. 11.13 And after a time, text uncertain. The next wing is treated in detail because of its importance; cf. 12.15. 11.22–23 Summary. 11.24–27 Rule of four little wings. 11.25 These little wings, better “these four little wings.” 11.26–27 Brief rule of first two wings. 11.28–32 Fate of next two wings. They did not achieve even a brief rule.

11.33–35 Fate of the heads. 11.35 The Dead Sea Scrolls Peshar on Habakkuk (1QpHab) 3.11 refers to the Kittim, which devour like an eagle. 11.36–38 The appearance of a lion. 11.36 I. Ezra becomes personally involved. 11.37 The lion symbolizes the Messiah. The voice is a human attribute. 11.38–43 Indictment of the eagle. These verses have a clearly legal character. 11.39 My times, better “the times.” This verse establishes the identification of the eagle; cf. 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 39.7. Kings and empires are foreordained by God; the eagle's domination is one that remains of the four beasts that I had made to reign in my world, so that the end of my times might come through them? ⁴⁰You, the fourth that has come, have conquered all the beasts that have gone before; and you have held sway over the world with great terror, and over all the earth with grievous oppression; and for so long you have lived on the earth with deceit.^q ⁴¹You have judged the earth, but not with truth, ⁴²for you have oppressed the meek and injured the peaceable; you have hated those who tell the truth, and have loved liars; you have destroyed the homes of those who brought forth fruit, and have laid low the walls of those who did you no harm. ⁴³Your insolence has come up before the Most High, and your pride to the Mighty One. ⁴⁴The Most High has looked at his times; now they have ended, and his ages have reached completion. ⁴⁵Therefore you, eagle, will surely disappear, you and your terrifying wings, your most evil little wings, your malicious heads, your most evil talons, and your whole worthless body, ⁴⁶so that the whole earth, freed from your violence, may be refreshed and relieved, and may hope for the judgment and mercy of him who made it."

12 While the lion was saying these words to the eagle, I looked ²and saw that the remaining head had disappeared. The two wings that had gone over to it rose up and ^rset themselves up to reign, and their reign was brief and full of tumult. ³When I looked again, they were already vanishing. The whole body of the eagle was burned, and the earth was exceedingly terrified.

Response to the Vision

Then I woke up in great perplexity of mind and great fear, and I said to my spirit, ⁴"You have brought this upon me, because you search out the ways of the Most High. ⁵I am still weary in mind and very weak in my spirit, and not even a little strength is left in me, because of the great fear with which I have been terrified tonight. ⁶Therefore I will now entreat the Most High that he may strengthen me to the end."

⁷ Then I said, "O sovereign Lord, if I have found favor in your sight, and if I have been accounted righteous before you beyond many others, and if my prayer has indeed come up before your face, ⁸strengthen me and show me, your servant, the interpretation and meaning of this terrifying vision so that you may fully comfort my soul. ⁹For you have judged me worthy to be shown the end of the times and the last events of the times."

The Interpretation of the Vision

¹⁰ He said to me, "This is the interpretation of this vision that you have seen: ¹¹The eagle that you saw coming up from the sea is the fourth kingdom that appeared in a vision to your brother Daniel. ¹²But it was not explained to him as I now explain to you or have explained it. ¹³The days are coming when a kingdom shall rise on earth, and it shall be more terrifying than all the kingdoms that have been the zenith of evil, preceding the end. 11.40 A parallel structure is in 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 39.8. 11.42 Meek, peaceable. Cf. Mt 5.5, 9. 11.43 Pride is typical of the wicked kingdom. 11.44–46 Sentencing of the eagle. 11.46 Whole earth, freed . . . refreshed and relieved apparently hints at the messianic kingdom. 12.1–3a Execution of the sentence. Enemies of God are often destroyed by fire and terror; cf. Mal 3.19.

12.3b–9 In function, this section resembles 10.5–24; 13.13b–20a, describing the seer's reaction to the vision: fear, perplexity of mind, and prayer. 12.3b The seer's state of mind is similarly described in 5.33. 12.4 An apostrophe to his spirit or mind; cf. 7.62. The frightening dream is precipitated by his mind's search for understanding. 12.5 Cf. Dan 7.15; mind, like spirit, indicates the seer's consciousness. 12.7 O sovereign Lord. God is addressed. 12.8 Similar requests for interpretation may be seen in Dan 2.26; 5.26. 12.9 The revelation is of a special nature; cf. 3.14; 14.5.

12.10–36 Interpretation of the vision by the angel. Note the recapitulation of the symbol, followed by its meaning. The vision is related to apocalyptic tradition and explicitly to Dan 7.11. It also provides a date for the book. The vision and interpretation cohere closely, giving information about particular stages of the eschatological process. 12.10 Cf. 10.40; 13.25. 12.11 The eagle is the fourth kingdom (cf. Dan 7) and, implicitly, Rome. This vision supersedes Daniel's.

before it. ¹⁴And twelve kings shall reign in it, one after another. ¹⁵But the second that is to reign shall hold sway for a longer time than any other one of the twelve. ¹⁶This is the interpretation of the twelve wings that you saw.

¹⁷ "As for your hearing a voice that spoke, coming not from the eagle's heads but from the midst of its body, this is the interpretation: ¹⁸In the midst of the time of that kingdom great struggles shall arise, and it shall be in danger of falling; nevertheless it shall not fall then, but shall regain its former power."^u ¹⁹As for your seeing eight little wings^v clinging to its wings, this is the interpretation: ²⁰Eight kings shall arise in it, whose times shall be short and their years swift; ²¹two of them shall perish when the middle of its time draws near; and four shall be kept for the time when its end approaches, but two shall be kept until the end.

²² "As for your seeing three heads at rest, this is the interpretation: ²³In its last days the Most High will raise up three kings,^w and they^x shall renew many things in it, and shall rule the earth ²⁴and its inhabitants more oppressively than all who were before them. Therefore they are called the heads of the eagle, ²⁵because it is they who shall sum up his wickedness and perform his last actions. ²⁶As for your seeing that the large head disappeared, one of the kings^y shall die in his bed, but in agonies. ²⁷But as for the two who remained, the sword shall devour them. ²⁸For the sword of one shall devour him who was with him; but he also shall fall by the sword in the last days.

²⁹ "As for your seeing two little wings^z passing over to^a the head which was on the right side, ³⁰this is the interpretation: It is these whom the Most High has kept for the eagle's^s end; this was the reign which was brief and full of tumult, as you have seen.

³¹ "And as for the lion whom you saw rousing up out of the forest and roaring and speaking to the eagle and reproving him for his unrighteousness, and as for all his words that you have heard, ³²this is the Messiah^b whom the Most High has kept until the end of days, who will arise from the offspring of David, and will come and speak^c with them. He will denounce them for their ungodliness and for their wickedness, and will display before them their contemptuous dealings. ³³For first he will bring them alive before his judgment seat, and when he has reprovved them, then he will destroy them. ³⁴But in mercy he will set free the remnant of my people, those who have been saved throughout my borders, and he will make them joyful until the end comes, the day of judgment, of which I spoke to you at the beginning. ³⁵This is the dream that you saw, and this is its interpretation. ³⁶And you alone were worthy to learn this secret of the Most High. ³⁷Therefore write all these things that you have seen in a book, put it^d in a hidden place; ³⁸and you shall teach them to the wise among your people, whose hearts you know are able to comprehend and keep these perors. 12.33 Before his judgment seat, better "in judgment." The Messiah executes judgment. 12.34 Describes the messianic kingdom; cf. 9.8; 13.48. Remnant, those who survive the terrible "woes"; see 5.1–13. The day of judgment will follow the messianic kingdom. Borders. Note the role of the holy land here; cf. 13.48. 12.35 Cf. Dan 2.45. 12.36 The special secret status of the revealed information is stressed; cf. 10.38–39.

12.13 Terrifying; cf. Dan 7.7, 19, 23. 12.14 Twelve kings are expected. 12.15 The king with a long rule is Augustus (27 B.C.E.–14 C.E.). 12.23 The idea is that evil will peak with the rule of the heads. 12.25 Sum up, better "be the heads of," making the wordplay evident. 12.26 The author adds information from contemporary events. The head is Vespasian (69–79 C.E.). 12.27–28 The two, Titus (79–81 C.E.) and Domitian (81–96 C.E.). The vision was written in the time of Domitian. 12.29–30 The little wings are part of the eschatological events. 12.31 Cf. 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 39.8–40.3. Lion. The Messiah is associated with Judah and David. His activity is basically legal in character. 12.32 Indictment by the Messiah; them, the Roman em-

12.37–39 Conclusion. 12.37 The command to write the revelation in a book is new in 4 Ezra; cf. Dan 12.4, 9. 12.38 The transmission of secret books to the wise is a prominent feature in ch. 14. A change has taken place in Ezra's role and in the vision's content.

secrets. ³⁹But as for you, wait here seven days more, so that you may be shown whatever it pleases the Most High to show you." Then he left me.

The People Come to Ezra

40 When all the people heard that the seven days were past and I had not returned to the city, they all gathered together, from the least to the greatest, and came to me and spoke to me, saying, ⁴¹"How have we offended you, and what harm have we done you, that you have forsaken us and sit in this place? ⁴²For of all the prophets you alone are left to us, like a cluster of grapes from the vintage, and like a lamp in a dark place, and like a haven for a ship saved from a storm. ⁴³Are not the disasters that have befallen us enough? ⁴⁴Therefore if you forsake us, how much better it would have been for us if we also had been consumed in the burning of Zion. ⁴⁵For we are no better than those who died there." And they wept with a loud voice.

Then I answered them and said, ⁴⁶"Take courage, O Israel; and do not be sorrowful, O house of Jacob; ⁴⁷for the Most High has you in remembrance, and the Mighty One has not forgotten you in your struggle. ⁴⁸As for me, I have neither forsaken you nor withdrawn from you; but I have come to this place to pray on account of the desolation of Zion, and to seek mercy on account of the humiliation of our^e sanctuary. ⁴⁹Now go to your homes, every one of you, and after these days I will come to you." ⁵⁰So the people went into the city, as I told them to do. ⁵¹But I sat in the field seven days, as the angel^f had commanded me; and I ate only of the flowers of the field, and my food was of plants during those days.

Sixth Vision: The Man from the Sea

13 After seven days I dreamed a dream in the night. ²And lo, a wind arose from the sea and stirred up^g all its waves. ³As I kept looking the wind made something like the figure of a man come up out of the heart of the sea. And I saw^h that this man flewⁱ with the clouds of heaven; and wherever he turned his face to look, everything under his gaze trembled, ⁴and whenever his voice issued from his mouth, all who heard his voice melted as wax melts^j when it feels the fire.

⁵ After this I looked and saw that an innumerable multitude of people were gathered together from the four winds of heaven to make war against the man who came up out of the sea. ⁶And I looked and saw that he carved out for himself a great mountain, and flew up on to it. ⁷And I tried to see the region or place from which the mountain was carved, but I could not.

⁸ After this I looked and saw that all who had gathered together against him, to wage war with him, were filled with fear, and yet they dared to fight. ⁹When he saw the onrush of the approaching multitude, he neither lifted his hand nor vision. This injunction belongs with 12.37–39.

12.40–50 A narrative interlude and transition comparable to 5.16–22. 12.40 The days of the first six visions add up to forty, corresponding to the forty days of Ezra's new revelation in ch. 14. City, presumably Babylon. 12.42 Ezra is called prophet for the first time in 4 Ezra and this is his first "ordinary" apocalyptic revelation. He accepts this role. Grapes indicate election; see 9.21–22. Lamp. See 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 77.13. 12.44 Reapplication of an old idea, stated in 4.12 of Ezra himself. 12.47 In your struggle, or else "forever." God's relationship to Israel is inalienable. 12.48 Cf. 12.38; he keeps the revelation secret and says he was praying for the people, as a prophet should.

12.51 This is a second conclusion to the fifth

13.1–58 Sixth vision. 13.1–13a This vision is much simpler than the fifth. The closeness of the end is not mentioned. 13.1 Seven days. See 12.51. This is explicitly a dream; Ezra is prostrate (cf. 13.57). 13.2 Wind, better "great wind." Cf. Dan 7.2. 13.3 Cf. Dan 7.13; the figure of a man is a redeemer. 13.4 Melting of enemies is a divine characteristic; cf. Ps 97.5; Mic 1.4. The superhuman nature of the figure is strongly suggested. 13.5 The eschatological attack (see Rev 16.12–15), an idea originating in Deut 28.49; Joel 2.1–10. 13.6 Carved out ... a great mountain. Cf. Dan 2.34, 45. 13.7 The dreamer intervenes here. 13.9 Nor ... any weapon of war; cf. Psalms of Solomon 17.33–34; fire (v. 10) is God's chief held a spear or any weapon of war; ¹⁰but I saw only how he sent forth from his mouth something like a stream of fire, and from his lips a flaming breath, and from his tongue he shot forth a storm of sparks.^k ¹¹All these were mingled together, the stream of fire and the flaming breath and the great storm, and fell on the onrushing multitude that was prepared to fight, and burned up all of them, so that suddenly nothing was seen of the innumerable multitude but only the dust of ashes and the smell of smoke. When I saw it, I was amazed.

¹² After this I saw the same man come down from the mountain and call to himself another multitude that was peaceable. ¹³Then many people^l came to him, some of whom were joyful and some sorrowful; some of them were bound, and some were bringing others as offerings.

Response to the Vision

Then I woke up in great terror, and prayed to the Most High, and said, ¹⁴"From the beginning you have shown your servant these wonders, and have deemed me worthy to have my prayer heard by you; ¹⁵now show me the interpretation of this dream also. ¹⁶For as I consider it in my mind, alas for those who will be left in those days! And still more, alas for those who are not left! ¹⁷For those who are not left will be sad ¹⁸because they understand the things that are reserved for the last days, but cannot attain them. ¹⁹But alas for those also who are left, and for that very reason! For they shall see great dangers and much distress, as these dreams show. ²⁰Yet it is better^m to come into these things,ⁿ though incurring peril, than to pass from the world like a cloud, and not to see what will happen in the last days."

The Interpretation of the Dream

He answered me and said, ²¹"I will tell you the interpretation of the vision, and I will also explain to you the things that you have mentioned. ²²As for what you said about those who survive, and concerning those who do not survive,^o this is the interpretation: ²³The one who brings the peril at that time will protect those who fall into peril, who have works and faith toward the Almighty. ²⁴Understand therefore that those who are left are more blessed than those who have died.

²⁵ "This is the interpretation of the vision: As for your seeing a man come up from the heart of the sea, ²⁶this is he whom the Most High has been keeping for many ages, who will himself deliver his creation; and he will direct those who are left. ²⁷And as for your seeing wind and fire and a storm coming out of his mouth, ²⁸and as for his not holding a spear or weapon of war, yet destroying the onrushing multitude that came to conquer him, this is the interpretation: ²⁹The days are coming when the Most High will deliver those who are on the earth. ³⁰And bewilderment of mind shall come over those who inhabit the earth. ³¹They shall plan to make war against one another, city against city, place against place, people against people, and kingdom against weapon; cf. Ps 97.3. 13.10 This perhaps hints at God's effective word; see Ps 2.9; Isa 11.4; Psalms of Solomon 17.35. 13.11 Again the dreamer intervenes. 13.13a See Isa 66.20; the ingathering of converted Gentiles.

13.13b–20a The response functions like 12.3b–9. 13.14 Ezra asserts his own worthiness; cf. 12.7–9. Wonders is the eschatological revelation in the book. 13.16 Woe pronouncement: survivors live on after the woes; see 13.19. 13.18 The seeing of reward or punishment is part of recompense; see 7.66, 83, 93. 13.20 Yet it is better . . . in the last days, the reversal of the idea that death is better; cf. 4.12. Ezra, now a prophet, no longer despairs.

13.20b–55 The interpretation of the dream is unclear and repetitive. The author may have composed the interpretation for a previously existing vision he took over. 13.21 Ezra's dream and prayer are to be interpreted. No angel appears. 13.22 Ezra's words are interpreted just like the dream. 13.24 Ezra's view is confirmed. 13.26 Who will himself, better "through whom he will." The Messiah is precreated. Those who are left, after the messianic woes. 13.27–28 A restatement of vv. 10–11, but the interpretation comes only in vv. 36–38. 13.29 The days are coming. A predictive passage starts, relating to the woes. 13.30 Cf. 2 Apocalypse of Baruch 25.3; 70.2. Bewilderment of mind leads to internekingdom. ³²When these things take place and the signs occur that I showed you before, then my Son will be revealed, whom you saw as a man coming up from the sea.^p

³³ "Then, when all the nations hear his voice, all the nations shall leave their own lands and the warfare that they have against one another; ³⁴and an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as you saw, wishing to come and conquer him. ³⁵But he shall stand on the top of Mount Zion. ³⁶And Zion shall come and be made manifest to all people, prepared and built, as you saw the mountain carved out without hands. ³⁷Then he, my Son, will reprove the assembled nations for their ungodliness (this was symbolized by the storm), ³⁸and will reproach them to their face with their evil thoughts and the torments with which they are to be tortured (which were symbolized by the flames), and will destroy them without effort by means of the law^q (which was symbolized by the fire).

³⁹ "And as for your seeing him gather to himself another multitude that was peaceable, ⁴⁰these are the nine^r tribes that were taken away from their own land into exile in the days of King Hoshea, whom Shalmaneser, king of the Assyrians, made captives; he took them across the river, and they were taken into another land. ⁴¹But they formed this plan for themselves, that they would leave the multitude of the nations and go to a more distant region, where no human beings had ever lived, ⁴²so that there at least they might keep their statutes that they had not kept in their own land. ⁴³And they went in by the narrow passages of the

Euphrates river. ⁴⁴For at that time the Most High performed signs for them, and stopped the channels of the river until they had crossed over. ⁴⁵Through that region there was a long way to go, a journey of a year and a half; and that country is called Arzareth.^s

⁴⁶ "Then they lived there until the last times; and now, when they are about to come again, ⁴⁷the Most High will stop^r the channels of the river again, so that they may be able to cross over. Therefore you saw the multitude gathered together in peace. ⁴⁸But those who are left of your people, who are found within my holy borders, shall be saved.^u ⁴⁹Therefore when he destroys the multitude of the nations that are gathered together, he will defend the people who remain. ⁵⁰And then he will show them very many wonders."

⁵¹ I said, "O sovereign Lord, explain this to me: Why did I see the man coming up from the heart of the sea?"

⁵² He said to me, "Just as no one can explore or know what is in the depths of the sea, so no one on earth can see my Son or those who are with him, except in the time of his day.^v ⁵³This is the interpretation of the dream that you saw. And you alone have been enlightened about this, ⁵⁴because you have forsaken your own ways and have applied yourself to mine, and have searched out my law; ⁵⁵for you have devoted your life to wisdom, and called understanding your mother. ⁵⁶Therefore I have shown you these things; for there is a reward laid up with the Most High. For it will be that after three more days I will tell you other things, and explain weighty and wondrous matters to you."

⁵⁷ Then I got up and walked in the field, giving great glory and praise to the Most High for the wonders that he does^w from time to time, ⁵⁸and because he governs the times and whatever things come to pass in their seasons. And I stayed there three days.

Seventh Vision: Address to Ezra

14 On the third day, while I was sitting under an oak, suddenly a voice came out of a bush opposite me and said, "Ezra, Ezra!" ²And I answered, "Here I am, Lord," and I rose to my feet. ³Then he said to me, "I revealed myself in a bush and spoke to Moses when my people were in bondage in Egypt; ⁴and I sent him and led^x my people out of Egypt; and I led him up on Mount Sinai, where I kept him with me many days. ⁵I told him many wondrous things, and showed him the secrets of the times and declared to him^y the end of the times. Then I commanded him, saying, ⁶'These words you shall publish openly, and these you shall keep secret.'⁷ And now I say to you: ⁸Lay up in your heart the signs that I have shown you, the dreams that you have seen, and the interpretations that you have heard; ⁹for you shall be taken up from among humankind, and henceforth you shall live with my Son and with those who are like you, until the times are ended. ¹⁰The age has lost its youth, and the times begin to grow old. ¹¹For the age is divided into twelve parts, and nine^z of its parts have already passed, ¹²as well as half of the tenth part; so two of its parts remain, besides half of the tenth part.^a ¹³Now therefore, set your house in order, and reprove your people; comfort the lowly among them, and instruct those that are wise.^b And now renounce the life that is corruptible, ¹⁴and put away from you mortal thoughts; cast away from you the burdens of humankind, and divest yourself now of your weak nature; ¹⁵lay to one side the thoughts that are most grievous to you, and hurry to escape from these times. ¹⁶For evils worse than those that you have now seen happen shall take place hereafter. ¹⁷For the weaker the world becomes through old age, the more shall evils be increased upon its inhabitants. ¹⁸Truth shall go farther away, and falsehood shall come near. Ezra's Response

19 Then I answered and said, "Let me speak^d in your presence, Lord. 20 For I will go, as you have commanded me, and I will reprove the people who are now living; but who will warn those who will be born hereafter? For the world lies in darkness, and its inhabitants are without light. 21 For your law has been burned, and so no one knows the things which have been done or will be done by you. 22 If then I have found favor with you, send the holy spirit into me, and I will write everything that has happened in the world from the beginning, the things that were written in your law, so that people may be able to find the path, and that those who want to live in the last days may do so."

Injunctions

23 He answered me and said, "Go and gather the people, and tell them not to seek you for forty days. 24 But prepare for yourself many writing tablets, and take with you Sarea, Dabria, Selemia, Ethan, and Asiel—these five, who are trained to write rapidly; 25 and you shall come here, and I will light in your heart the lamp of understanding, which shall not be put out until what you are about to write is finished. 26 And when you have finished, some things you shall make public, and some you shall deliver in secret to the wise; tomorrow at this hour you shall begin to write."

Ezra's Speech

27 Then I went as he commanded me, and I gathered all the people together, and said, 28 "Hear these words, O Israel. 29 At first our ancestors lived as aliens in Egypt, and they were liberated from there 30 and received the law of life, which they did not keep, which you also have transgressed after them. 31 Then land was given to you for a possession in the land of Zion; but you and your ancestors committed iniquity and did not keep the ways that the Most High commanded you. 32 And since he is a righteous judge, in due time he took from you what he had given. 33 And now you are here, and your people^e are farther in the interior.^f 34 If you, then, will rule over your minds and discipline your hearts, you shall be kept alive, and after death you shall obtain mercy. 35 For after death the judgment will come, when we shall live again; and then the names of the righteous shall become manifest, and the deeds of the ungodly shall be disclosed. 36 But let no one come to me now, and let no one seek me for forty days."

The Revelation of the Scriptures

37 So I took the five men, as he commanded me, and we proceeded to the field, and remained there. 38 And on the next day a voice called me, saying, "Ezra, open your mouth and drink what I give you to drink." 39 So I opened my mouth, and a full cup was offered to me; it was

Commission of the Prophet

15^k Speak in the ears of my people the words of the prophecy that I will put in your mouth, says the Lord, ²and cause them to be written on paper; for they are trustworthy and true. ³Do not fear the plots against you, and do not be troubled by the unbelief of those who oppose you. ⁴For all unbelievers shall die in their unbelief.^l

Prediction of Doom

5 Beware, says the Lord, I am bringing evils upon the world, the sword and famine, death and destruction, ⁶because iniquity has spread throughout every land, and their harmful doings have reached their limit. ⁷Therefore, says the Lord, ⁸I will be silent no longer concerning their ungodly acts that they impiously commit, neither will I tolerate their wicked practices. Innocent and righteous blood cries out to me, and the souls of the righteous cry out continually. ⁹I will surely avenge them, says the Lord, and will receive to myself all the innocent blood from among them. ¹⁰See, my people are being led like a flock to the slaughter; I will not allow them to live any longer in the land of Egypt, ¹¹but I will bring them out with a mighty hand and with an uplifted arm, and will strike Egypt with plagues, as before, and will destroy all its land.

Vision of Judgment

34 See the clouds from the east, and from the north to the south! Their appearance is exceedingly threatening, full of wrath and storm. 35 They shall clash against one another and shall pour out a heavy tempest on the earth, and their own tempest;^t and there shall be blood from the sword as high as a horse's belly 36 and a man's thigh and a camel's hock. 37 And there shall be fear and great trembling on the earth; those who see that wrath shall be horror-stricken, and they shall be seized with trembling. 38 After that, heavy storm clouds shall be stirred up from the south, and from the north, and another part from the west. 39 But the winds from the east shall prevail over the cloud that was^u raised in wrath, and shall dispel it; and the tempest^v that was to cause destruction by the east wind shall be driven violently toward the south and west. 40 Great and mighty clouds, full of wrath and tempest, shall rise and destroy all the earth and its inhabitants, and shall pour out upon every high and lofty place^w a terrible tempest, 41 fire and hail and flying swords and floods of water, so that all the fields and all the streams shall be filled with the abundance of those waters. 42 They shall destroy cities and walls, mountains and hills, trees of the forests, and grass of the meadows, and their grain. 43 They shall go on steadily to Babylon and blot it out. 44 They shall come to it and surround it; they shall pour out on it the tempest^v and all its fury;^w then the dust and smoke shall reach the sky, and all who are around it shall mourn for it. 45 And those who survive shall serve those who have destroyed it.

Judgment on Asia

46 And you, Asia, who share in the splendor of Babylon and the glory of her person — 47 woe to you, miserable wretch! For you have made yourself like her; you have decked out your daughters for prostitution to please and glory in your lovers, who have always lusted after you. 48 You have imitated that hateful one in all her deeds and devices.^x Therefore God^y says, 49 I will send evils upon you: widowhood, poverty, famine, sword, and pestilence, bringing ruin to your houses, bringing destruction and death. 50 And the glory of your strength shall wither like a flower when the heat shall rise that is sent upon you. 51 You shall be weakened like a wretched woman who is beaten and wounded, so that you cannot receive your mighty lovers. 52 Would I have dealt with you so violently, says the Lord, 53 if you had not killed my chosen people continually, exulting and clapping your hands and talking about their death when you were drunk?

54 Beautify your face! 55 The reward of a prostitute is in your lap; therefore you shall receive your recompense. 56 As you will do to my chosen people, says the Lord, so God will do to you, and will hand you over to adversities. 57 Your children shall die of hunger, and you shall fall by the sword; your cities shall be wiped out, and all your people who are in the open country shall fall by the sword. 58 Those

The Inevitability of Judgment

16 Woe to you, Babylon and Asia! Woe to you, Egypt and Syria! ²Bind on sackcloth and cloth of goats' hair,^c and wail for your children, and lament for them; for your destruction is at hand. ³The sword has been sent upon you, and who is there to turn it back? ⁴A fire has been sent upon you, and who is there to quench it? ⁵Calamities have been sent upon you, and who is there to drive them away? ⁶Can one drive off a hungry lion in the forest, or quench a fire in the stubble once it has started to burn?^d ⁷Can one turn back an arrow shot by a strong archer? ⁸The Lord God sends calamities, and who will drive them away? ⁹Fire will go forth from his wrath, and who is there to quench it? ¹⁰He will flash lightning, and who will not be afraid? He will thunder, and who will not be terrified? ¹¹The Lord will threaten, and who will not be utterly shattered at his presence? ¹²The earth and its foundations quake, the sea is churned up from the depths, and its waves and the fish with them shall be troubled at the presence of the Lord and the glory of his power. ¹³For his right hand that bends the bow is strong, and his arrows that he shoots are sharp and when they are shot to the ends of the world will not miss once. ¹⁴Calamities are sent forth and shall not return until they come over the earth. ¹⁵The fire is kindled, and shall not be put out until it consumes the foundations of the earth. ¹⁶Just as an arrow shot by a mighty archer does not return, so the calamities that are sent upon the earth shall not return. ¹⁷Alas for me! Alas for me! Who will deliver me in those days?

The Desolation

⁴⁹Just as a respectable and virtuous woman abhors a prostitute, ⁵⁰so righteousness shall abhor iniquity, when she decks herself out, and shall accuse her to her face when he comes who will defend the one who searches out every sin on earth.

The Power and Wisdom of God

⁵¹ Therefore do not be like her or her works. ⁵²For in a very short time iniquity will be removed from the earth, and righteousness will reign over us. ⁵³Sinners must not say that they have not sinned;ⁱ for God^j will burn coals of fire on the head of everyone who says, "I have not sinned before God and his glory." ⁵⁴The Lord^k certainly knows everything that people do; he knows their imaginations and their thoughts and their hearts. ⁵⁵He said, "Let the earth be made," and it was made, and "Let the heaven be made," and it was made. ⁵⁶At his word the stars were fixed in their places, and he knows the number of the stars. ⁵⁷He searches the abyss and its treasures; he has measured the sea and its contents; ⁵⁸he has confined the sea in the midst of the waters;^l and by his word he has suspended the earth over the water. ⁵⁹He has spread out the heaven like a dome and made it secure upon the waters; ⁶⁰he has put springs of water in the desert, and pools on the tops of the mountains, so as to send rivers from the heights to water the earth. ⁶¹He formed human beings and put a heart in the midst of each body, and gave each person breath and life and understanding ⁶²and the spirit^m of Almighty God,ⁿ who surely made all things and searches out hidden things in hidden places. ⁶³He knows your imaginations and what you think in your hearts! Woe to those who sin and want to hide their sins! ⁶⁴The Lord will strictly examine all their works, and will make a public spectacle of all of you. ⁶⁵You shall be put to shame when your sins come out before others, and your own iniquities shall stand as your accusers on that day. ⁶⁶What will you do? Or how will you hide your sins before the Lord and his glory? ⁶⁷Indeed, God^o is the judge; fear him! Cease from your sins, and forget your iniquities, never to commit them again; so God^o will lead you forth and deliver you from all tribulation.

Impending Persecution of God's People

⁶⁸ The burning wrath of a great multitude is kindled over you; they shall drag some of you away and force you to eat what was sacrificed to idols. ⁶⁹And those who consent to eat shall be held in derision and contempt, and shall be trampled under foot. ⁷⁰For in many places^p and in neighboring cities there shall be a great uprising against those who fear the Lord. ⁷¹They shall^q be like maniacs, sparing no one, but plundering and destroying those who continue to fear the Lord.^r ⁷²For they shall destroy and plunder their goods, and drive them out of house and home. ⁷³Then the tested quality of my elect shall be manifest, like gold that is tested by fire.

(d) The following book appears in an appendix to the Greek Bible.

4 MACCABEES

THE BOOK OF 4 MACCABEES is found as an appendix to some manuscripts of the Septuagint, although it was never considered canonical. It is also found in some manuscripts of the works of the first-century C.E. Jewish historian Flavius Josephus, although Josephus's authorship of 4 Maccabees is now universally rejected.

Content and Purpose

4 Maccabees is divided into two parts. The first part (1.1–3.18) is a philosophical discourse demonstrating the supremacy of “religious reason” over the emotions and the compatibility of reason with Mosaic law. This compatibility is illustrated by several biblical examples. The second and much longer part (3.19–18.24) gives three examples to support the thesis of the supremacy of religious reason over the emotions. After an introductory narrative that sets the scene (3.19–4.26), the author tells the stories of the torture and martyrdom by the Seleucid ruler Antiochus IV Epiphanes of the elderly priest Eleazar (5.1–7.23), of seven brothers (8.1–14.10), and of their mother (14.11–18.19). These examples are followed by a brief conclusion (18.20–24). The author's purpose was, through the use of Greek rhetorical and philosophical conventions, to persuade his fellow diaspora Jews to observe the Mosaic law strictly even in the most terrible of circumstances.

Literary Genre, Occasion, and Sources

4 Maccabees was originally composed in Greek, and its author was familiar with Greek rhetorical conventions and, to a limited extent, Greek philosophical viewpoints. The style of 4 Maccabees represents the florid, elaborate, Asianic style of Greek rhetoric rather than the classical, Attic style. The book is a combination of two literary genres: moral instruction and funeral oration. The genre of moral instruction, with its emphasis on the domination of religious reason over the emotions, is most prominent in 1.1–3.18 but is also found scattered throughout the book (e.g., 6.31–35; 13.1–5). The genre of funeral oration dominates the rest of 4 Maccabees, that is, the actual descriptions of the sufferings and deaths of Eleazar, the seven brothers, and their mother. Greek funeral orations, such as Pericles' funeral oration for the Athenian dead (Thucydides The Peloponnesian Wars 2.35–46) and Plato's Menexemus, have many thematic elements in common with 4 Maccabees. These themes include praise of the noble birth, education, courage, piety, and endurance of those who have fallen, praise of their opposition to a tyrannical king, and praise of the ancestral land for which they died. Both Greek funeral orations and 4 Maccabees were intended to encourage the living to show similar virtues.

It has been suggested that 4 Maccabees was written as a synagogue homily, a lecture, or a genuine funeral oration commemorating the anniversary of the deaths of the martyrs. Given its combination of literary genres and its highly ornate and rhetorical style, it was more likely composed as a fictive discourse unconnected with any particular occasion, similar to the discourse in Plato's Menexemus.

The source of the stories in 4 Maccabees is 2 Maccabees. 4 Macc 3.19–4.14 derives from 2 Macc 3.1–40, 4 Macc 4.15–26 from 2 Macc 4.7–6.11, 4 Macc 5.1–6.35 from 2 Macc 6.18–31, and 4 Macc 8.1–18.19 from 2 Macc 7.1–42. Although the author of 4 Maccabees may have been acquainted with the work of Jason of Cyrene, of which 2 Maccabees is a “summary,” it is much more likely that the differences between 4 Maccabees and 2 Maccabees are due to reinterpretations and rhetorical expansions by the author of 4 Maccabees himself.

Author, Place, and Date of Composition

The identity of the author of 4 Maccabees is unknown, but he was certainly an observant Jew of the Hellenistic Diaspora who had a Greek rhetorical education. While he makes use of Greek philosophical concepts and vocabulary (such as the cardinal virtues and the supremacy of reason over the emotions), his knowledge of Greek philosophy is neither wide nor deep and represents an eclectic Stoicism that was quite common during this period. It is the philosophical knowledge someone would have obtained as part of a rhetorical rather than a philosophical education. In the end it serves exclusively to support his views about the importance of the faithful observance of Mosaic law.

The precise date and place of composition of 4 Maccabees are unclear. It was almost certainly composed in the Hellenistic-Jewish Diaspora, that is, outside of Palestine. Alexandria in Egypt, Antioch in Syria, or one of the coastal cities in Asia Minor, all of which had significant Jewish communities, have been suggested as places of composition. Since later Jewish and Christian tradition located the tombs of these martyrs at Antioch, that city may be the most plausible suggestion, although the others cannot be ruled out. Various dates of composition have been suggested, from the middle of the first century B.C.E. through the early second century C.E. The most plausible range of dates, however, is probably from the middle of the first century C.E. to the early second century.

Theological Perspectives

From a theological point of view, 4 Maccabees is notable for its belief in the immortality of the soul (e.g., 9.22; 14.5; 15.3; 16.13; 17.12; 18.23), a viewpoint it shares with the Wisdom of Solomon (ca. 30 B.C.E.–50 C.E.) and the writings of Philo of Alexandria (ca. 10 B.C.E.–50 C.E.). The pure and immortal soul will enter into the incorruption of everlasting life. There is also a strong belief in divine reward (e.g., 5.37; 9.8; 15.3; 17.12) and retribution (e.g., 4.10–12; 9.9, 32; 10.11, 15, 21; 11.3; 12.12, 18; 18.5, 22). God will reward those who die for the sake of Mosaic law and will punish both in this life and after death those who torture and execute them. Finally, there is the belief that the sufferings and deaths of these martyrs have a redemptive efficacy and have secured God's pardon for Israel (1.11; 6.28–29; 9.24; 12.17; 17.10, 21–22; 18.4). The idea of vicarious atonement was also used in the NT to explain the efficacy of Jesus' suffering and death (e.g., Mt 20.28; Mk 10.45; Rom 5.5–21; 1 Tim 2.6; Heb 9.11–14). Though it is possible that some NT writers took this concept from 4 Maccabees, it is much more likely that both 4 Maccabees and the NT writers shared a belief that, while not widespread, was certainly present in Judaism during this period (see the Dead Sea Scrolls Rule of the Community [1QS] 5.6; 8.3–4, 10; 9.4). *Thomas H. The Author's Definition of His Task

1 The subject that I am about to discuss is most philosophical, that is, whether devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. So it is right for me to advise you to pay earnest attention to philosophy. ²For the subject is essential to everyone who is seeking knowledge, and in addition it includes the praise of the highest virtue—I mean, of course, rational judgment. ³If, then, it is evident that reason rules over those emotions that hinder self-control, namely, gluttony and lust, ⁴it is also clear that it masters the emotions that hinder one from justice, such as malice, and those that stand in the way of courage, namely anger, fear, and pain. ⁵Some might perhaps ask, "If reason rules the emotions, why is it not sovereign over forgetfulness and ignorance?" Their attempt at argument is ridiculous!^a ⁶For reason does not rule its own emotions, but those that are opposed to jus-

^a Or They are attempting to make my argument ridiculous!

1.1–3.18 In a lengthy philosophical introduction, the author develops his thesis about the supremacy of reason over the emotions and the compatibility of reason with Jewish law. He then offers the conduct of King David as an example.

1.1–12 This section serves as a rhetorical exordium (prologue). The author states the philosophical thesis that devout reason is sovereign over the emotions (1.1–7) and promises to prove this thesis by the examples of Eleazar and the seven brothers and their mother (1.8–12). 1.2–4 Rational judgment (or prudence), self-control (or temperance), justice, and courage are the four cardinal virtues commonly discussed in writings of both the Platonic and Stoic schools of Greek philosophy. They are also discussed in Wis 8.7 and frequently in the works of Philo of Alexandria (e.g., Allegories on the Law 1.71). See 1.18; 5.23–24; 15.10. 1.5–6 See 2.24–3.5 for a fuller answer to the objection that reason is not sovereign over forgetfulness and ignorance. Though Stoics generally held that reason was able to eradicate the emotions, that position was not universal. The Stoic Posidonius (ca. 135–51 B.C.E.) held that emotions could be tice, courage, and self-control;^b and it is not for the purpose of destroying them, but so that one may not give way to them.

7 I could prove to you from many and various examples that reason^c is dominant over the emotions,⁸ but I can demonstrate it best from the noble bravery of those who died for the sake of virtue, Eleazar and the seven brothers and their mother.⁹ All of these, by despising sufferings that bring death, demonstrated that reason controls the emotions.¹⁰ On this anniversary^d it is fitting for me to praise for their virtues those who, with their mother, died for the sake of nobility and goodness, but I would also call them blessed for the honor in which they are held.¹¹ All people, even their torturers, marveled at their courage and endurance, and they became the cause of the downfall of tyranny over their nation. By their endurance they conquered the tyrant, and thus their native land was purified through them.¹² I shall shortly have an opportunity to speak of this; but, as my custom is, I shall begin by stating my main principle, and then I shall turn to their story, giving glory to the all-wise God.

The Supremacy of Reason

13 Our inquiry, accordingly, is whether reason is sovereign over the emotions.¹⁴ We shall decide just what reason is and what emotion is, how many kinds of emotions there are, and whether reason rules over all these.¹⁵ Now reason is the mind that with sound logic prefers the life of wisdom.¹⁶ Wisdom, next, is the knowledge of divine and human matters and the causes of these.¹⁷ This, in turn, is education in the law, by which we learn divine matters reverently and human affairs to our advantage.¹⁸ Now the kinds of wisdom are rational judgment, justice, courage, and self-control.¹⁹ Rational judgment is supreme over all of these, since by means of it reason rules over the emotions.²⁰ The two most comprehensive types^e of the emotions are pleasure and pain; and each of these is by nature concerned with both body and soul.²¹ The emotions of both pleasure and pain have many consequences.²² Thus desire precedes pleasure and delight follows it.²³ Fear precedes pain and sorrow comes after.²⁴ Anger, as a person will see by reflecting on this experience, is an emotion embracing pleasure and pain.²⁵ In pleasure there exists even a malevolent tendency, which is the most complex of all the emotions.²⁶ In the soul it is boastfulness, covetousness, thirst for honor, rivalry, and malice; ²⁷ in the body, indiscriminate eating, gluttony, and solitary gormandizing.

28 Just as pleasure and pain are two plants growing from the body and the soul, so there are many offshoots of these plants,^f ²⁹ each of which the master cultivator, reason, weeds and prunes and ties up and waters and thoroughly irrigates, and so tames the jungle of habits and emotions.³⁰ For reason is the guide of the virtues, but over the emotions it is sovereign.

Observe now, first of all, that rational judgment is sovereign over the emotions by virtue of the restraining power of self-control.³¹ Self-control, then, is dominance controlled but not eradicated. 1.8 Eleazar and the seven brothers and their mother serve as examples not only of the dominance of reason over the emotions but also of the virtues of courage and endurance, which led to the downfall of the tyrant (the Seleucid king Antiochus IV) and the purification of their native land. This second element is more prominent in 3.19–18.24 than the first. 1.10 The phrase on this anniversary (lit. at this time; see text note d) has led some (probably incorrectly) to believe that 4 Maccabees may have been composed in connection with some sort of commemoration of the deaths of Eleazar and the seven brothers and their mother. See also 3.19; 14.9.

1.13–35 This section consists of a series of philosophical definitions and distinctions intended to show more specifically how reason dominates various emotions. This discussion is then connected with the Mosaic law (1.17, 33–34). 1.16 This definition of wisdom was commonplace in Greek philosophy and was used by both Stoics and Platonists (Cicero Tusculan Disputations 4.26.57; Philo On the Preliminary Studies 79). 1.17 Wisdom is equated with education in the law. 1.18–27 This exposition of the virtues and their relationship to various vices is filled with philosophical commonplaces. 1.18 See 1.2–4. 1.26–27 A catalogue of vices; such catalogues were common in Greco-Roman over the desires. ³²Some desires are mental, others are physical, and reason obviously rules over both. ³³Otherwise, how is it that when we are attracted to forbidden foods we abstain from the pleasure to be had from them? Is it not because reason is able to rule over appetites? I for one think so. ³⁴Therefore when we crave seafood and fowl and animals and all sorts of foods that are forbidden to us by the law, we abstain because of domination by reason. ³⁵For the emotions of the appetites are restrained, checked by the temperate mind, and all the impulses of the body are bridled by reason.

Compatibility of the Law with Reason

2 And why is it amazing that the desires of the mind for the enjoyment of beauty are rendered powerless? ²It is for this reason, certainly, that the temperate Joseph is praised, because by mental effort^g he overcame sexual desire. ³For when he was young and in his prime for intercourse, by his reason he nullified the frenzy^h of the passions. ⁴Not only is reason proved to rule over the frenzied urge of sexual desire, but also over every desire.ⁱ ⁵Thus the law says, "You shall not covet your neighbor's wife or anything that is your neighbor's." ⁶In fact, since the law has told us not to covet, I could prove to you all the more that reason is able to control desires.

Just so it is with the emotions that hinder one from justice. ⁷Otherwise how could it be that someone who is habitually a solitary gormandizer, a glutton, or even a drunkard can learn a better way, unless reason is clearly lord of the emotions? ⁸Thus, as soon as one adopts a way of life in accordance with the law, even though a lover of money, one is forced to act contrary to natural ways and to lend without interest to the needy and to cancel the debt when the seventh year arrives. ⁹If one is greedy, one is ruled by the law through reason so that one neither gleans the harvest nor gathers the last grapes from the vineyard.

In all other matters we can recognize that reason rules the emotions. ¹⁰For the law prevails even over affection for parents, so that virtue is not abandoned for their sakes. ¹¹It is superior to love for one's wife, so that one rebukes her when she breaks the law. ¹²It takes precedence over love for children, so that one punishes them for misdeeds. ¹³It is sovereign over the relationship of friends, so that one rebukes friends when they act wickedly. ¹⁴Do not consider it paradoxical when reason, through the law, can prevail even over enmity. The fruit trees of the enemy are not cut down, but one preserves the property of enemies from marauders and helps raise up what has fallen.^j ethics. See also Rom 1.28–32; Gal 5.19–23. 1.33 Forbidden foods. The author once again brings in Jewish law, which then becomes more prominent in the rest of the philosophical introduction. 1.34 Seafood and . . . animals. For the various kinds of unclean creatures, see Lev 11.1–47; Deut 14.3–21; Acts 10.10–14.

¹⁵It is evident that reason rules even^k the more violent emotions: lust for power, vainglory, boasting, arrogance, and malice. ¹⁶For the temperate mind repels all these malicious emotions, just as it repels anger—for it is sovereign over even this. ¹⁷When Moses was angry with Dathan and Abiram, he did nothing against them in anger, but controlled his anger by reason. ¹⁸For, as I have said, the temperate mind is able to get the better of the emotions, to correct some, and to ren-

2.1–3.5 Biblical examples and texts are now used to illustrate the compatibility of reason and Mosaic law. 2.2–3 The patriarch Joseph is used as an example of temperance. See Gen 39.7–12. 2.5 See Ex 20.17. 2.8 On lending without interest (to fellow Jews), see Ex 22.25; Lev 25.35–37; Deut 23.19–20; on canceling the debt when the sev-

This discussion foreshadows the stories of Eleazar, the mother, and her seven sons, which form the main part of 4 Maccabees. See 14.1. 2.14 Fruit trees . . . not cut down. Cutting down enemies' fruit trees is forbidden by Deut 20.19 (see Josephus Against Apion 2.211–12). 2.15–23 The examples of Moses and Jacob show that reason/law rules over even violent emotions such as anger. 2.17 On Dathan and Abiram, see Num 16.12–15, 23–35; Sir der others powerless. ¹⁹Why else did Jacob, our most wise father, censure the households of Simeon and Levi for their irrational slaughter of the entire tribe of the Shechemites, saying, "Cursed be their anger"? ²⁰For if reason could not control anger, he would not have spoken thus. ²¹Now when God fashioned human beings, he planted in them emotions and inclinations, ²²but at the same time he enthroned the mind among the senses as a sacred governor over them all. ²³To the mind he gave the law; and one who lives subject to this will rule a kingdom that is temperate, just, good, and courageous.

²⁴ How is it then, one might say, that if reason is master of the emotions, it does not control forgetfulness and ignorance?

3 ¹But this argument is entirely ridiculous; for it is evident that reason rules not over its own emotions, but over those of the body. ²No one of us^l can eradicate that kind of desire, but reason can provide a way for us not to be enslaved by desire. ³No one of us can eradicate anger from the mind, but reason can help to deal with anger. ⁴No one of us can eradicate malice, but reason can fight at our side so that we are not overcome by malice. ⁵For reason does not uproot the emotions but is their antagonist.

King David's Thirst

⁶ Now this can be explained more clearly by the story of King David's thirst. ⁷David had been attacking the Philistines all day long, and together with the soldiers of his nation had killed many of them. ⁸Then when evening fell, he^m

came, sweating and quite exhausted, to the royal tent, around which the whole army of our ancestors had encamped. ⁹Now all the rest were at supper, ¹⁰but the king was extremely thirsty, and though springs were plentiful there, he could not satisfy his thirst from them. ¹¹But a certain irrational desire for the water in the enemy's territory tormented and inflamed him, undid and consumed him. ¹²When his guards complained bitterly because of the king's craving, two staunch young soldiers, respectingⁿ the king's desire, armed themselves fully, and taking a pitcher climbed over the enemy's ramparts. ¹³Eluding the sentinels at the gates, they went searching throughout the enemy camp ¹⁴and found the spring, and from it boldly brought the king a drink. ¹⁵But David,^o though he was burning with thirst, considered it an altogether fearful danger to his soul to drink what was regarded as equivalent to blood. ¹⁶Therefore, opposing reason to desire, he poured out the drink as an offering to God. ¹⁷For the temperate mind can conquer the drives of the emotions and quench the flames of frenzied desires; ¹⁸it can overthrow bodily agonies even when they are extreme, and by nobility of reason spurn all domination by the emotions.

See 14.2. 2.24–3.5 This section gives a fuller refutation of the objection raised in 1.5–6. The point is that reason can control the emotions but not eradicate them. The inability of reason to master forgetfulness is discussed in Philo

On the Migration of Abraham 206.

3.6–18 With some differences of detail, the story of David's thirst is the same as that found in 2 Sam 23.13–17; 1 Chr 11.15–19. The author uses the story as the prime example of how reason, the temperate mind, can overcome irrational, frenzied desires. 3.11 That David's desire is irrational is emphasized.

3.19–18.24 The narratives of the martyrdoms of Eleazar and of the seven brothers and their mother make up the bulk of 4 Maccabees. They consist of two introductory narratives that set the scene (3.19–4.26), followed by the narratives of the martyrdoms of Eleazar (5.1–7.23), of the seven brothers (8.1–14.10), and finally of their mother (14.11–18.19). For the most part, these narratives emphasize themes such as courage,

20 At a time when our ancestors were enjoying profound peace because of their observance of the law and were prospering, so that even Seleucus Nicanor, king of Asia, had both appropriated money to them for the temple service and recognized their commonwealth—²¹just at that time certain persons attempted a revolution against the public harmony and caused many and various disasters.

4 Now there was a certain Simon, a political opponent of the noble and good man, Onias, who then held the high priesthood for life. When despite all manner of slander he was unable to injure Onias in the eyes of the nation, he fled the country with the purpose of betraying it.² So he came to Apollonius, governor of Syria, Phoenicia, and Cilicia, and said, ³“I have come here because I am loyal to the king’s government, to report that in the Jerusalem treasuries there are deposited tens of thousands in private funds, which are not the property of the temple but belong to King Seleucus.” ⁴When Apollonius learned the details of these things, he praised Simon for his service to the king and went up to Seleucus to inform him of the rich treasure.⁵ On receiving authority to deal with this matter, he proceeded quickly to our country accompanied by the accursed Simon and a very strong military force.⁶ He said that he had come with the king’s authority to seize the private funds in the treasury.⁷ The people indignantly protested his words, considering it outrageous that those who had committed deposits to the sacred treasury should be deprived of them, and did all that they could to prevent it.⁸ But, uttering threats, Apollonius went on to the temple.⁹ While the priests together with women and children were imploring God in the temple to shield the holy place that was being treated so contemptuously,¹⁰ and while Apollonius was going up with his armed forces to seize the money, angels on horseback with lightning flashing from their weapons appeared from heaven, instilling in them great fear and trembling.¹¹ Then Apollonius fell down half dead in the temple area that was open to all, stretched out his hands toward heaven, and with tears begged the Hebrews to pray for him and propitiate the wrath of the heavenly army.¹² For he said that he had committed a sin deserving of death, and that if he were spared he would praise the blessedness of the holy place before all people.¹³ Moved by these words, the high priest Onias, although otherwise he had scruples about doing so, prayed for him so that King Seleucus would not suppose that Apollonius had been overcome by human treachery and not by divine justice.¹⁴ So Apollonius,^p having been saved beyond all expectations, went away to report to the king what had happened to him.

The author has confused Seleucus I Nicanor (311–281 B.C.E.) with Seleucus IV Philopator (187–175 B.C.E.), who is the actual Seleucid king in this story. 4.1 Simon, according to 2 Macc 3.4, was the captain of the Jerusalem temple. Onias III was the son of the high priest Simon II the Just praised in Sir 50.1–21. Life tenure for the high priest was the common, although not constant, practice until the first century C.E., when the Roman procurators disregarded it (Josephus Antiquities 17.339; 18.34–35; 20.224–51). 4.2 Cilicia was attached to Syria and Phoenicia from 44 B.C.E. until the Roman emperor Vespasian made it a separate province in 72 C.E. The connection in this verse is probably a historical anachronism rather than a clue to the date of the composition of 4 Maccabees. 4.3 In the . . . treasuries there are . . . private funds. The temple treasury, among other things, served as a kind of bank (Josephus Jewish War 6.282). 4.4–5 In 2 Macc 3.7 another official, Heliodorus, not Apollonius, was put in command of the expedition. The author of 4 Maccabees has simplified the story.

4.15–26 This section is a much-shortened version of 2 Macc 4.7–6.11. 4.15 Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 B.C.E.) was the brother, not the son, of Seleucus IV. Both were sons of Antio-16who removed Onias from the priesthood and appointed Onias's⁹ brother Jason as high priest. 17Jason^r agreed that if the office were conferred on him he would pay the king three thousand six hundred sixty talents annually. 18So the king appointed him high priest and ruler of the nation. 19Jason^r changed the nation's way of life and altered its form of government in complete violation of the law, 20so that not only was a gymnasium constructed at the very citadel^s of our native land, but also the temple service was abolished. 21The divine justice was angered by these acts and caused Antiochus himself to make war on them. 22For when he was warring against Ptolemy in Egypt, he heard that a rumor of his death had spread and that the people of Jerusalem had rejoiced greatly. He speedily marched against them, 23and after he had plundered them he issued a decree that if any of them were found observing the ancestral law they should die. 24When, by means of his decrees, he had not been able in any way to put an end to the people's observance of the law, but saw that all his threats and punishments were being disregarded 25—even to the extent that women, because they had circumcised their sons, were thrown headlong from heights along with their infants, though they had known beforehand that they would suffer this— 26when, I say, his decrees were despised by the people, he himself tried through torture to compel everyone in the nation to eat defiling foods and to renounce Judaism.

Antiochus's Encounter with Eleazar

5 The tyrant Antiochus, sitting in state with his counselors on a certain high place, and with his armed soldiers standing around him, 2ordered the guards to seize each and every Hebrew and to compel them to eat pork and food sacrificed to idols. 3If any were not willing to eat defiling food, they were to be broken on the wheel and killed. 4When many persons had been rounded up, one man, Eleazar by name, leader of the flock, was brought^t before the king. He was a man of priestly family, learned in the law, advanced in age, and known to many in the tyrant's court because of his philosophy.^u

5 When Antiochus saw him he said, 6“Before I begin to torture you, old man, I would advise you to save yourself by eating pork, 7for I respect your age and your gray hairs. Although you have had them for so long a time, it does not seem to me that you are a philosopher when you observe the religion of the Jews. 8When nature has granted it to us, why should you abhor eating the very excellent meat of chus III. 4.16 Jason was the Jewish high priest ca. 175–172 B.C.E. 4.20 The gymnasium, in addition to being a place of physical training, was more importantly a place where the Greek way of life was imparted to young men. The gymnasium was not actually built on the citadel. 4.22 On Ptolemy VI Philometor (180–145 B.C.E.), see 1 Macc 1.16–19. People of Jerusalem suggests that the events described in 4 Maccabees took place in Jerusalem, although the city is not mentioned again until 18.5. Later Jewish and Christian traditions placed the tombs of the martyrs in Antioch. 4.24–26 The author emphasizes the extent to which the Jews would go to continue observing their law. 4.26 Defiling foods, especially pork. See 5.2.

5.1–7.23 The source of the story of the martyrdom of Eleazar is 2 Macc 6.18–31. The story has been significantly expanded in 4 Maccabees, especially by means of speeches by Eleazar and Antiochus.

5.1–38 The emphasis in the encounter between Antiochus and Eleazar is on two speeches, one by Antiochus (5.5–13) and the other by Eleazar (5.14–38). 5.1 A tyrant, for the Greeks, was a ruler unlimited by either law or a constitution; the term usually had a negative connotation. 5.2 During the Maccabean period and later, the refusal to eat pork became a touchstone to Jews for observance of the law in a hostile environment and as important as not eating food sacrificed to idols. 5.4 The name Eleazar in Hebrew means “God has helped.” The author of 4 Maccabees, in addition to pointing out Eleazar's other qualities, emphasizes the recognition he has received from members of Antiochus's court because of his philosophy. 5.5–13 Antiochus tries to persuade Eleazar to eat pork first on the basis of philosophical arguments (5.8–12) and then by claiming that compulsion is a legitimate excuse for transgressing a law (5.13). Antiochus's philosophical arguments are Stoic in character, being based on “living according to nature.” 5.7 The Greek word thrēskeia usually means religious cult or practice, but here this animal? ⁹It is senseless not to enjoy delicious things that are not shameful, and wrong to spurn the gifts of nature. ¹⁰It seems to me that you will do something even more senseless if, by holding a vain opinion concerning the truth, you continue to despise me to your own hurt. ¹¹Will you not awaken from your foolish philosophy, dispel your futile reasonings, adopt a mind appropriate to your years, philosophize according to the truth of what is beneficial, ¹²and have compassion on your old age by honoring my humane advice? ¹³For consider this: if there is some power watching over this religion of yours, it will excuse you from any transgression that arises out of compulsion.”

¹⁴ When the tyrant urged him in this fashion to eat meat unlawfully, Eleazar asked to have a word. ¹⁵When he had received permission to speak, he began to address the people as follows: ¹⁶“We, O Antiochus, who have been persuaded to govern our lives by the divine law, think that there is no compulsion more powerful than our obedience to the law. ¹⁷Therefore we consider that we should not transgress it in any respect. ¹⁸Even if, as you suppose, our law were not truly divine and we had wrongly held it to be divine, not even so would it be right for us to invalidate our reputation for piety. ¹⁹Therefore do not suppose that it would be a petty sin if we were to eat defiling food; ²⁰to transgress the law in matters either small or great is of equal seriousness, ²¹for in either case the law is equally despised. ²²You scoff at our philosophy as though living by it were irrational, ²³but it teaches us self-control, so that we master all pleasures and desires, and it also trains us in courage, so that we endure any suffering willingly; ²⁴it instructs us in justice, so that in all our dealings we act impartially,^v and it teaches us piety, so that with proper reverence we worship the only living God.

²⁵ “Therefore we do not eat defiling food; for since we believe that the law was established by God, we know that in the nature of things the Creator of the world in giving us the law has shown sympathy toward us. ²⁶He has permitted us to eat what will be most suitable for our lives,^w but he has forbidden us to eat meats that would be contrary to this. ²⁷It would be tyrannical for you to compel us not only to transgress the law, but also to eat in such a way that you may deride us for eating defiling foods, which are most hateful to us. ²⁸But you shall have no such occasion to laugh at me, ²⁹nor will I transgress the sacred oaths of my ancestors concerning the keeping of the law, ³⁰not even if you gouge out my eyes and burn my entrails. ³¹I am not so old and cowardly as not to be young in reason on behalf of piety. ³²Therefore get your torture wheels ready and fan the fire more vehemently! ³³I do not so pity my old age as to break the ancestral law by my own act. ³⁴I will not play false to you, O law that trained me, nor will I renounce you, beloved self-control. ³⁵I will not put you to shame, philosophical reason, nor will I reject you, honored priesthood and knowledge of the law. ³⁶You, O king,^x shall not defile the honorable mouth of my old age, nor my long life lived lawfully. ³⁷My

it means something more general, i.e., religion. See Wis 14.18, 27 for a similar usage. 5.13 The idea of God watching over human beings is a Greek philosophical concept frequently found also in the works of Jewish writers (2 Macc 7.35; 9.5; 3 Macc 2.21; Philo Against Flaccus 121). The same argument that compulsion is an excuse is found in 8.14, 25. 5.14–38 Eleazar's speech emphasizes not only his absolute commitment to observance of the law but also that this commitment is a rational one and in accordance with nature. Eleazar uses Stoic viewpoints to refute Antiochus's Stoic arguments. 5.20 The author seems to espouse the Stoic position that all transgressions are of equal seriousness. 5.23–24 Self-control, courage, justice, three of the four cardinal virtues. Eleazar substitutes piety (Greek eusebeia), that is, proper reverence toward God, for the usual rational judgment (Greek phronēsis; see 1.2–4, 18; 15.10). The substitution of piety for one of the cardinal virtues is also found in Xenophon Memorabilia 4.6, Josephus Against Apion 2.170, and Philo On the Cherubim 96. 5.26 Eleazar claims that eating certain foods and refraining from eating others has its basis in what is suitable for our lives (lit. “souls”; see text note w). A similar approach to the purity regulations is found in Letter of Aristeas 128–71 and often in Philo's interpretations. See Lev 11.1–23. 5.37 My ancestors will receive me. See 13.17; 17.12, which indicate the immortality of the martyrs more clearly.

ancestors will receive me as pure, as one who does not fear your violence even to death. ³⁸You may tyrannize the ungodly, but you shall not dominate my religious principles, either by words or through deeds."

Martyrdom of Eleazar

6 When Eleazar in this manner had made eloquent response to the exhortations of the tyrant, the guards who were standing by dragged him violently to the instruments of torture. ²First they stripped the old man, though he remained adorned with the gracefulness of his piety. ³After they had tied his arms on each side they flogged him, ⁴while a herald who faced him cried out, "Obey the king's commands!" ⁵But the courageous and noble man, like a true Eleazar, was unmoved, as though being tortured in a dream; ⁶yet while the old man's eyes were raised to heaven, his flesh was being torn by scourges, his blood flowing, and his sides were being cut to pieces. ⁷Although he fell to the ground because his body could not endure the agonies, he kept his reason upright and unswerving. ⁸One of the cruel guards rushed at him and began to kick him in the side to make him get up again after he fell. ⁹But he bore the pains and scorned the punishment and endured the tortures. ¹⁰Like a noble athlete the old man, while being beaten, was victorious over his torturers; ¹¹in fact, with his face bathed in sweat, and gasping heavily for breath, he amazed even his torturers by his courageous spirit.

¹² At that point, partly out of pity for his old age, ¹³partly out of sympathy from their acquaintance with him, partly out of admiration for his endurance, some of the king's retinue came to him and said, ¹⁴"Eleazar, why are you so irrationally destroying yourself through these evil things? ¹⁵We will set before you some cooked meat; save yourself by pretending to eat pork."

¹⁶ But Eleazar, as though more bitterly tormented by this counsel, cried out: ¹⁷"Never may we, the children of Abraham,^y think so basely that out of cowardice we feign a role unbecoming to us! ¹⁸For it would be irrational if having lived in accordance with truth up to old age and having maintained in accordance with law the reputation of such a life, we should now change our course ¹⁹and ourselves become a pattern of impiety to the young by setting them an example in the eating of defiling food. ²⁰It would be shameful if we should survive for a little while and during that time be a laughingstock to all for our cowardice, ²¹and be despised by the tyrant as unmanly by not contending even to death for our divine law. ²²Therefore, O children of Abraham, die nobly for your religion! ²³And you, guards of the tyrant, why do you delay?"

²⁴ When they saw that he was so courageous in the face of the afflictions, and that he had not been changed by their compassion, the guards brought him to the fire. ²⁵There they burned him with maliciously contrived instruments, threw him down, and poured stinking liquids into his nostrils. ²⁶When he was now burned to his very bones and about to expire, he lifted up his eyes to God and said, ²⁷"You know, O God, that though I might have saved myself, I am dying in burning torments for the sake of the law. ²⁸Be merciful to your people, and let our punishment suffice for them. ²⁹Make my blood their purification, and take my life in exchange for theirs." ³⁰After he said this, the holy man died nobly in his tortures; even in the tortures of death he resisted, by virtue of reason, for the sake of the law.

y Or O children of Abraham

6.1–35 This account of Eleazar's death is marked by its graphic description of Eleazar's tortures and his speeches (6.16–23, 27–29) during the tortures. Cf. 2 Macc 6.28–29. 6.5 A true Eleazar, a worthy successor to his namesake Eleazar, the third and most prominent son of Aaron, who became high priest at Aaron's death (Num 20.25–28). 6.10 A noble athlete, an image also used in 9.8; 11.20–21; 14.5; 15.29; 16.16; 17.11–16 about the seven brothers and their mother, and also popular in Christian martyrdom literature. 6.16–23 In reply to the suggestion that he pretend to eat pork, Eleazar emphasizes that it would be irrational for him, after a long life of observing the law, now to eat defiled food and thus give an example of impiety to the young and become a laughingstock to all because of his cowardice. 6.28–29 The notion that the martyr's death was a vicarious atonement is found especially in 17.22 (see also 12.17; 17.10, 21–22;

31 Admittedly, then, devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. 32 For if the emotions had prevailed over reason, we would have testified to their domination. 33 But now that reason has conquered the emotions, we properly attribute to it the power to govern. 34 It is right for us to acknowledge the dominance of reason when it masters even external agonies. It would be ridiculous to deny it.^z 35 I have proved not only that reason has mastered agonies, but also that it masters pleasures and in no respect yields to them.

An Encomium on Eleazar

7 For like a most skillful pilot, the reason of our father Eleazar steered the ship of religion over the sea of the emotions,² and though buffeted by the stormings of the tyrant and overwhelmed by the mighty waves of tortures,³ in no way did he turn the rudder of religion until he sailed into the haven of immortal victory. 4 No city besieged with many ingenious war machines has ever held out as did that most holy man. Although his sacred life was consumed by tortures and racks, he conquered the besiegers with the shield of his devout reason. 5 For in setting his mind firm like a jutting cliff, our father Eleazar broke the maddening waves of the emotions. 6 O priest, worthy of the priesthood, you neither defiled your sacred teeth nor profaned your stomach, which had room only for reverence and purity, by eating defiling foods. 7 O man in harmony with the law and philosopher of divine life! 8 Such should be those who are administrators of the law, shielding it with their own blood and noble sweat in sufferings even to death. 9 You, father, strengthened our loyalty to the law through your glorious endurance, and you did not abandon the holiness that you praised, but by your deeds you made your words of divine^a philosophy credible. 10 O aged man, more powerful than tortures; O elder, fiercer than fire; O supreme king over the passions, Eleazar! 11 For just as our father Aaron, armed with the censer, ran through the multitude of the people and conquered the fiery^b angel, 12 so the descendant of Aaron, Eleazar, though being consumed by the fire, remained unmoved in his reason. 13 Most amazing, indeed, though he was an old man, his body no longer tense and firm,^c his muscles flabby, his sinews feeble, he became young again 14 in spirit through reason; and by reason like that of Isaac he rendered the many-headed rack ineffective. 15 O man of blessed age and of venerable gray hair and of law-abiding life, whom the faithful seal of death has perfected!

16 If, therefore, because of piety an aged man despised tortures even to death, most certainly devout reason is governor of the emotions. 17 Some perhaps might say, "Not all have full command of their emotions, because not all have prudent reason." 18 But as many as attend to religion with a whole heart, these alone are able to control the passions of the flesh, 19 since they believe that they, like our patriarchs Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, do not die to God, but live to God. 20 No contradiction therefore arises when some persons appear to be dominated by their emotions because of the weakness of their reason. 21 What person who lives as a philosopher by the whole rule of philosophy, and trusts in God, 22 and knows that it is blessed to endure any suffering for the sake of virtue, would not be able to overcome the emotions through godliness?

Introduction). 6.31-35 The author again emphasizes that devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. This emphasis is further developed in 7.1-23. See also 13.1-5, which closely parallels this passage.

7.1-23 The author lavishes praise on Eleazar as an example of how devout reason can dominate the emotions. 7.1-3 The metaphor of the pilot and the ship is common in Greek literature and recurs in 13.6-7; 15.31-32. See 1 Pet 3.20. 7.7-10 Eleazar's ability to control his emotions is linked to his loyalty to the law. 7.11 Aaron averted a plague (Num 16.46-50); in Wis 18.22 the plague is connected to an "avenger," similar to the angel in this verse. 7.14 An allusion to Gen 22.1-19. See note on 13.12. 7.16-23 Not everyone can dominate emotions with reason, but only those who attend to religion and live as philosophers by the whole rule of philosophy, that is, the law. 7.19 See 16.25; Ex 3.6; Mk 12.26; Rom 6.10; 14.8; Gal 2.19.

23 For only the wise and courageous are masters of their emotions.

Seven Brothers Defy the Tyrant

8 For this is why even the very young, by following a philosophy in accordance with devout reason, have prevailed over the most painful instruments of torture. 2 For when the tyrant was conspicuously defeated in his first attempt, being unable to compel an aged man to eat defiling foods, then in violent rage he commanded that others of the Hebrew captives be brought, and that any who ate defiling food would be freed after eating, but if any were to refuse, they would be tortured even more cruelly.

3 When the tyrant had given these orders, seven brothers—handsome, modest, noble, and accomplished in every way—were brought before him along with their aged mother. 4 When the tyrant saw them, grouped about their mother as though a chorus, he was pleased with them. And struck by their appearance and nobility, he smiled at them, and summoned them nearer and said, 5 “Young men, with favorable feelings I admire each and every one of you, and greatly respect the beauty and the number of such brothers. Not only do I advise you not to display the same madness as that of the old man who has just been tortured, but I also exhort you to yield to me and enjoy my friendship. 6 Just as I am able to punish those who disobey my orders, so I can be a benefactor to those who obey me. 7 Trust me, then, and you will have positions of authority in my government if you will renounce the ancestral tradition of your national life. 8 Enjoy your youth by adopting the Greek way of life and by changing your manner of living. 9 But if by disobedience you rouse my anger, you will compel me to destroy each and every one of you with dreadful punishments through tortures. 10 Therefore take pity on yourselves. Even I, your enemy, have compassion for your youth and handsome appearance. 11 Will you not consider this, that if you disobey, nothing remains for you but to die on the rack?”

12 When he had said these things, he ordered the instruments of torture to be brought forward so as to persuade them out of fear to eat the defiling food. 13 When the guards had placed before them wheels and joint-dislocators, rack and hooks^d and catapults^e and caldrons, braziers and thumbscrews and iron claws and wedges and bellows, the tyrant resumed speaking: 14 “Be afraid, young fellows; whatever justice you revere will be merciful to you when you transgress under compulsion.”

15 But when they had heard the inducements and saw the dreadful devices, not only were they not afraid, but they also opposed the tyrant with their own philosophy, and by their right reasoning nullified his tyranny. 16 Let us consider, on the other hand, what arguments might have been used if some of them had been cowardly and unmanly. Would they not have been the following? 17 “O wretches that we are and so senseless! Since the king has summoned and exhorted us to accept kind treatment if we obey him, 18 why do we take pleasure in vain resolves and venture upon a disobedience that brings death? 19 O men and brothers, should we not fear the instruments of torture and consider the threats of torments, and give up this vain opinion and this arrogance that threatens to destroy us? 20 Let us take pity on our youth and have compassion on our mother’s age; 21 and

8.1–9.9 This section is an expansion of 2 Macc 7.1–2 with speeches by the tyrant Antiochus (8.5–11) and the brothers (9.1–9), as well as a description of what the brothers could have said had they given in (8.17–26). 8.4–11 Antiochus attempts to persuade the brothers to give up their ancestral tradition of . . . national life and to adopt the Greek way of life by threatening them with severe tortures and death and by promising them his friendship and benefaction, two things highly sought after from autocratic Hellenistic rulers.

8.4 The chorus, which was important in Greek plays, usually spoke its lines in unison. See 8.29; 13.8–18; 14.7; 18.23. 8.12 Most of the instruments of torture cannot be described precisely. 8.14 See 5.13; 8.25. 8.16–26 By presenting this imaginary speech listing all of the possible reasons for giving in, the author highlights the strength of the brothers’ character in refusing to submit. The brothers’ actual speech follows (9.1–9). The same technique is used in the story of the mother; an imaginary speech in 16.6–11 is followed by the

let us seriously consider that if we disobey we are dead! ²²Also, divine justice will excuse us for fearing the king when we are under compulsion. ²³Why do we banish ourselves from this most pleasant life and deprive ourselves of this delightful world? ²⁴Let us not struggle against compulsion^f or take hollow pride in being put to the rack. ²⁵Not even the law itself would arbitrarily put us to death for fearing the instruments of torture. ²⁶Why does such contentiousness excite us and such a fatal stubbornness please us, when we can live in peace if we obey the king?"

²⁷ But the youths, though about to be tortured, neither said any of these things nor even seriously considered them. ²⁸For they were contemptuous of the emotions and sovereign over agonies, ²⁹so that as soon as the tyrant had ceased counseling them to eat defiling food, all with one voice together, as from one mind, said:

9 "Why do you delay, O tyrant? For we are ready to die rather than transgress our ancestral commandments; ²we are obviously putting our forebears to shame unless we should practice ready obedience to the law and to Moses^g our counselor. ³Tyrant and counselor of lawlessness, in your hatred for us do not pity us more than we pity ourselves.^h ⁴For we consider this pity of yours, which insures our safety through transgression of the law, to be more grievous than death itself. ⁵You are trying to terrify us by threatening us with death by torture, as though a short time ago you learned nothing from Eleazar. ⁶And if the aged men of the Hebrews because of their religion lived piouslyⁱ while enduring torture, it would be even more fitting that we young men should die despising your coercive tortures, which our aged instructor also overcame. ⁷Therefore, tyrant, put us to the test; and if you take our lives because of our religion, do not suppose that you can injure us by torturing us. ⁸For we, through this severe suffering and endurance, shall have the prize of virtue and shall be with God, on whose account we suffer; ⁹but you, because of your blood-thirstiness toward us, will deservedly undergo from the divine justice eternal torment by fire."

The Torture of the First Brother

¹⁰ When they had said these things, the tyrant was not only indignant, as at those who are disobedient, but also infuriated, as at those who are ungrateful. ¹¹Then at his command the guards brought forward the eldest, and having torn off his tunic, they bound his hands and arms with thongs on each side. ¹²When they had worn themselves out beating him with scourges, without accomplishing anything, they placed him upon the wheel. ¹³When the noble youth was stretched out around this, his limbs were dislocated, ¹⁴and with every member disjointed he denounced the tyrant, saying, ¹⁵"Most abominable tyrant, enemy of heavenly justice, savage of mind, you are mangling me in this manner, not because I am a murderer, or as one who acts actual speech in 16.16–23. 8.22 The law would not condemn fearing the instruments of torture and death, but it would condemn submitting to the tyrant by committing idolatry, even in these circumstances. See 5.13; 8.14, 25. 8.27–9.9 In their actual speech the brothers defy the tyrant and refuse to shame their ancestors by transgressing the law. 9.5 See 5.4–6.30. 9.6 Aged men of the Hebrews, perhaps the prophets who, according to some Jewish traditions, were martyred. See The Lives of the Prophets (first century C.E.). 9.8–9 The brothers will be rewarded with immortality with God; the tyrant will suffer eternal torment. These are constant themes throughout 4 Maccabees.

9.10–12.19 In comparison to 2 Macc 7.1–40, the account of the tortures and deaths of the seven brothers has been significantly expanded by graphic descriptions of the tortures and by speeches from each of the brothers. Rhetorically these serve to increase the pathos of the scene. The speeches also comment on the significance of the events and bring out the themes the author wants to emphasize. In good rhetorical fashion, the descriptions of the tortures and deaths of the first brother (9.10–25) and the last brother (12.1–19) are the most elaborate.

9.10–25 In this section tyranny is contrasted to endurance for the sake of the law. 9.14 Opposition to tyranny was a common theme in funeral orations. 9.15–18 In the speech of the first brother, the themes of commitment to the Mosaic law, the power of reason, and the invincible ... virtue of the Hebrews are emphasized.

impiously, but because I protect the divine law.”¹⁶ And when the guards said, “Agree to eat so that you may be released from the tortures,”¹⁷ he replied, “You abominable lackeys, your wheel is not so powerful as to strangle my reason. Cut my limbs, burn my flesh, and twist my joints;¹⁸ through all these tortures I will convince you that children of the Hebrews alone are invincible where virtue is concerned.”¹⁹ While he was saying these things, they spread fire under him, and while fanning the flames^j they tightened the wheel further.²⁰ The wheel was completely smeared with blood, and the heap of coals was being quenched by the drippings of gore, and pieces of flesh were falling off the axles of the machine.²¹ Although the ligaments joining his bones were already severed, the courageous youth, worthy of Abraham, did not groan,²² but as though transformed by fire into immortality, he nobly endured the rackings.²³ “Imitate me, brothers,” he said. “Do not leave your post in my struggle^k or renounce our courageous family ties.²⁴ Fight the sacred and noble battle for religion. Thereby the just Providence of our ancestors may become merciful to our nation and take vengeance on the accursed tyrant.”²⁵ When he had said this, the saintly youth broke the thread of life.

The Torture of the Second Brother

26 While all were marveling at his courageous spirit, the guards brought in the next eldest, and after fitting themselves with iron gauntlets having sharp hooks, they bound him to the torture machine and catapult.²⁷ Before torturing him, they inquired if he were willing to eat, and they heard his noble decision.¹ These leopard-like beasts tore out his sinews with the iron hands, flayed all his flesh up to his chin, and tore away his scalp. But he steadfastly endured this agony and said,²⁹ “How sweet is any kind of death for the religion of our ancestors!”³⁰ To the tyrant he said, “Do you not think, you most savage tyrant, that you are being tortured more than I, as you see the arrogant design of your tyranny being defeated by our endurance for the sake of religion?”³¹ I lighten my pain by the joys that come from virtue,³² but you suffer torture by the threats that come from impiety. You will not escape, you most abominable tyrant, the judgments of the divine wrath.”

The Torture of the Third Brother

10 When he too had endured a glorious death, the third was led in, and many repeatedly urged him to save himself by tasting the meat.² But he shouted, “Do you not know that the same father begot me as well as those who died, and the same mother bore me, and that I was brought up on the same teachings?”³ I do not renounce the noble kinship that binds me to my brothers.”^m Enraged by the man’s boldness, they disjoined his hands and feet with their instruments,

9.18 Virtue was also a standard theme in funeral orations. 9.21 Worthy of Abraham. The connection with ancestors was yet another common theme in funeral orations. 9.22 Immortality, lit. “incorruption.” See also 14.5; 16.13; 17.12; 18.23. The purifying power of fire is a common biblical metaphor, especially in sacrificial contexts (e.g., Lev 1.9, 13; 2.2; 3.5; see also Mal 3.2). 9.24 Religion, lit. “piety.” Providence, a Stoic theme found in the works of Greek historians and of Josephus (see also 13.19; 17.22). Note also the themes of reward and punishment and the belief that the brothers’ deaths will lead God to be merciful to the Jewish people.

9.26–11.27 The tortures of the second brother through the sixth brother are told more briefly. 9.29 A similar theme can be found in the Latin poet Horace’s Ode 3.2.13 (“How sweet and noble to die for one’s fatherland”). 9.30–32 Again the themes of opposition to tyranny, endurance for the sake of religion (lit. “piety”), virtue, and eventual punishment of the tyrant recur.

10.1–11 The themes of noble kinship (10.2–3), suffering for virtue (2.10), and eventual punishment of the tyrant (2.11) remain prominent. 10.4 See text note m. This verse is not found in one of the most important manuscripts (Codex Alexandrinus) and may be an interpola-dismembering him by prying his limbs from their sockets, ⁶and breaking his fingers and arms and legs and elbows. ⁷Since they were not able in any way to break his spirit,ⁿ they abandoned the instruments^o and scalped him with their fingernails in a Scythian fashion. ⁸They immediately brought him to the wheel, and while his vertebrae were being dislocated by this, he saw his own flesh torn all around and drops of blood flowing from his entrails. ⁹When he was about to die, he said, ¹⁰"We, most abominable tyrant, are suffering because of our godly training and virtue, ¹¹but you, because of your impiety and bloodthirstiness, will undergo unceasing torments."

The Torture of the Fourth Brother

12 When he too had died in a manner worthy of his brothers, they dragged in the fourth, saying, ¹³"As for you, do not give way to the same insanity as your brothers, but obey the king and save yourself." ¹⁴But he said to them, "You do not have a fire hot enough to make me play the coward. ¹⁵No—by the blessed death of my brothers, by the eternal destruction of the tyrant, and by the everlasting life of the pious, I will not renounce our noble family ties. ¹⁶Contrive tortures, tyrant, so that you may learn from them that I am a brother to those who have just now been tortured." ¹⁷When he heard this, the bloodthirsty, murderous, and utterly abominable Antiochus gave orders to cut out his tongue. ¹⁸But he said, "Even if you remove my organ of speech, God hears also those who are mute. ¹⁹See, here is my tongue; cut it off, for in spite of this you will not make our reason speechless. ²⁰Gladly, for the sake of God, we let our bodily members be mutilated. ²¹God will visit you swiftly, for you are cutting out a tongue that has been melodious with divine hymns."

The Torture of the Fifth Brother

11 When he too died, after being cruelly tortured, the fifth leaped up, saying, ²"I will not refuse, tyrant, to be tortured for the sake of virtue. ³I have come of my own accord, so that by murdering me you will incur punishment from the heavenly justice for even more crimes. ⁴Hater of virtue, hater of humankind, for what act of ours are you destroying us in this way? ⁵Is it because^p we revere the Creator of all things and live according to his virtuous law? ⁶But these deeds deserve honors, not tortures."^q ⁹While he was saying these things, the guards bound him and dragged him to the catapult; ¹⁰they tied him to it on his knees, and fitting iron clamps on them, they twisted his back^r around the wedge on the wheel,^s so that he was completely curled back like a scorpion, and all his members were disjointed. ¹¹In this condition, gasping for breath and in anguish of body, ¹²he said, "Tyrant, they are splendid favors that you grant us against your will, because through these noble sufferings you give us an opportunity to show our endurance for the law."

The Torture of the Sixth Brother

13 When he too had died, the sixth, a mere boy, was led in. When the tyrant inquired whether he was willing to eat and be released, he said, ¹⁴"I am younger in age than my brothers, but I am their equal in mind. ¹⁵Since to this end we were born and bred, we ought likewise to die for the same principles. ¹⁶So if you intend

10.12–21 The themes here are quite similar to those in 10.1–11. 10.19–20 See Isa 53.7–12, the suffering of the servant. 10.21 See Isa 35.6.

11.1–12 This brother too suffers for the sake of virtue, but he adds that he also does it so that the tyrant will be punished. 11.7–8 See text note q. These verses are missing from Codex Sinaiticus and are probably interpolations. 11.12 The fifth brother claims, with some irony, that suffering for the law is not simply a necessity, but an opportunity.

11.13–27 The speeches of the sixth brother become more elaborate as the author builds toward a climax. 11.13 The pathos is heightened by the fact that the sixth brother is a mere boy.

to torture me for not eating defiling foods, go on torturing!" ¹⁷When he had said this, they led him to the wheel. ¹⁸He was carefully stretched tight upon it, his back was broken, and he was roasted^t from underneath. ¹⁹To his back they applied sharp spits that had been heated in the fire, and pierced his ribs so that his entrails were burned through. ²⁰While being tortured he said, "O contest befitting holiness, in which so many of us brothers have been summoned to an arena of sufferings for religion, and in which we have not been defeated! ²¹For religious knowledge, O tyrant, is invincible. ²²I also, equipped with nobility, will die with my brothers, ²³and I myself will bring a great avenger upon you, you inventor of tortures and enemy of those who are truly devout. ²⁴We six boys have paralyzed your tyranny. ²⁵Since you have not been able to persuade us to change our mind or to force us to eat defiling foods, is not this your downfall? ²⁶Your fire is cold to us, and the catapults painless, and your violence powerless. ²⁷For it is not the guards of the tyrant but those of the divine law that are set over us; therefore, unconquered, we hold fast to reason."

The Torture of the Seventh Brother

12 When he too, thrown into the caldron, had died a blessed death, the seventh and youngest of all came forward. ²Even though the tyrant had been vehemently reproached by the brothers, he felt strong compassion for this child when he saw that he was already in fetters. He summoned him to come nearer and tried to persuade him, saying, ³"You see the result of your brothers' stupidity,

for they died in torments because of their disobedience. ⁴You too, if you do not obey, will be miserably tortured and die before your time, ⁵but if you yield to persuasion you will be my friend and a leader in the government of the kingdom." ⁶When he had thus appealed to him, he sent for the boy's mother to show compassion on her who had been bereaved of so many sons and to influence her to persuade the surviving son to obey and save himself. ⁷But when his mother had exhorted him in the Hebrew language, as we shall tell a little later, ⁸he said, "Let me loose, let me speak to the king and to all his friends that are with him." ⁹Extremely pleased by the boy's declaration, they freed him at once. ¹⁰Running to the nearest of the braziers, ¹¹he said, "You profane tyrant, most impious of all the wicked, since you have received good things and also your kingdom from God, were you not ashamed to murder his servants and torture on the wheel those who practice religion? ¹²Because of this, justice has laid up for you intense and eternal fire and tortures, and these throughout all time" will never let you go. ¹³As a man, were you not ashamed, you most savage beast, to cut out the tongues of men who have feelings like yours and are made of the same elements as you, and to maltreat and torture them in this way? ¹⁴Surely they by dying nobly fulfilled their service to God, but you will wail bitterly for having killed without cause the contestants for virtue." ¹⁵Then because he too was about to die, he said, ¹⁶"I do not desert the excellent example^u of my brothers, ¹⁷and I call on the God of 11.20–21 The last words of the sixth brother are filled with images of an athletic contest in which he and his brothers are victorious because religious knowledge . . . is invincible. See note on 6.10.

12.1–19 The dramatic character of the torture of the seventh and youngest brother is enhanced by the tyrant's compassion for him and for his mother (12.2, 5), by the mother's exhortation to her son (12.7), and by the son's asking to speak (12.8). For a moment the catastrophe seems avoidable. 12.7 The mother exhorts her son in Hebrew, which emphasizes the sacred nature of the exhortation and also allows for dramatic tension in the minds of the hearers about what she is saying. The promise that the words of this speech will be given later seems to be fulfilled in 18.6–19. 12.8 Friends, a title for the king's courtiers. 12.11–18 The youngest brother's speech sums up a number of the themes found in the other speeches but emphasizes especially the injustice and savagery of the tyrant and the punishment awaiting him for all eternity. 12.13 Who have feelings . . . as you, a Stoic commonplace about the unity of all human beings, also found in Wis 7.1–16. 12.14 See Wis 5.1–13 for a similar lamentation by the wicked for their persecution of the pious. 12.17 To be merciful to our nation is perhaps an allusion to the notion that the martyr-

Reason's Sovereignty in the Seven

13 Since, then, the seven brothers despised sufferings even unto death, everyone must concede that devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. ²For if they had been slaves to their emotions and had eaten defiling food, we would say that they had been conquered by these emotions. ³But in fact it was not so. Instead, by reason, which is praised before God, they prevailed over their emotions. ⁴The supremacy of the mind over these cannot be overlooked, for the brothers^y mastered both emotions and pains. ⁵How then can one fail to confess the sovereignty of right reason over emotion in those who were not turned back by fiery agonies? ⁶For just as towers jutting out over harbors hold back the threatening waves and make it calm for those who sail into the inner basin, ⁷so the seven-towered right reason of the youths, by fortifying the harbor of religion, conquered the tempest of the emotions. ⁸For they constituted a holy chorus of religion and encouraged one another, saying, ⁹"Brothers, let us die like brothers for the sake of the law; let us imitate the three youths in Assyria who despised the same ordeal of the furnace. ¹⁰Let us not be cowardly in the demonstration of our piety." ¹¹While one said, "Courage, brother," another said, "Bear up nobly," ¹²and another reminded them, "Remember whence you came, and the father by whose hand Isaac would have submitted to being slain for the sake of religion." ¹³Each of them and all of them together looking at one another, cheerful and undaunted, said, "Let us with all our hearts consecrate ourselves to God, who gave us our lives,^z and let us use our bodies as a bulwark for the law. ¹⁴Let us not fear him who thinks he is killing us, ¹⁵for great is the struggle of the soul and the danger of eternal torment lying before those who transgress the commandment of God. ¹⁶Therefore let us put on the full armor of self-control, which is divine reason. ¹⁷For if we so die,^a Abraham and Isaac and Jacob will welcome us, and all the fathers will praise us." ¹⁸Those who were left behind said to each of the brothers who were being dragged away, "Do not put us to shame, brother, or betray the brothers who have died before us."

13.1–14.10 After the graphic and emotionally charged description of the deaths of the seven brothers, the author returns to the theme that reason is sovereign over the emotions and then goes on to praise the brothers' courage, piety, and endurance for the sake of religion. See 1.1–3.18; 6.31–35. 13.1–5 This section closely parallels 6.31–35 both in content and in its position immediately after a description of martyrdom. The style is dry and pedantic. 13.6–7 These verses return to the oratorical style that marked the description of the deaths of the seven brothers. 13.6 The metaphor of towers jutting out over harbors is similar to the nautical imagery in 7.1–3 and especially 7.5. 13.7 Seven-towered right reason. See Prov 9.1 (the seven pillars of wisdom).

13.8 The imagery of the chorus is again used (see note on 8.4). The author breaks up the chorus into short phrases uttered by individual members; some Greek tragedies do the same (see Aeschylus Agamemnon 1346–71). 13.9 See Dan 3, the story of the three youths in the fiery furnace who also endured great trials for the sake of religion. 13.12 Remember whence you came. See Isa 51.1–2. The father . . . slain. See Gen 22.1–19, in which Abraham nearly sacrifices his son Isaac. This story is alluded to also in 7.14; 14.20; 15.28; 16.20; 17.6; 18.11. See also Wis 10.5; Heb 11.17–19. 13.13 All of them together. After speaking separately, the brothers unite, again as in a Greek chorus, for the climactic closing lines. 13.14–15 See Mt 10.28. 13.16 Armor. See Eph 6.11–14. 13.17 See 5.37. 13.19–14.1 This section praises the family ties, education, and affection that encouraged the brothers to endure their trials together. Such praises were rhetorical commonplaces, especially in funeral orations. 13.19 Divine and all-wise Providence, a Stoic con-

19 You are not ignorant of the affection of family ties, which the divine and all-wise Providence has bequeathed through the fathers to their descendants and which was implanted in the mother's womb. 20 There each of the brothers spent the same length of time and was shaped during the same period of time; and growing from the same blood and through the same life, they were brought to the light of day. 21 When they were born after an equal time of gestation, they drank milk from the same fountains. From such embraces brotherly-loving souls are nourished; 22 and they grow stronger from this common nurture and daily companionship, and from both general education and our discipline in the law of God.

23 Therefore, when sympathy and brotherly affection had been so established, the brothers were the more sympathetic to one another. 24 Since they had been educated by the same law and trained in the same virtues and brought up in right living, they loved one another all the more. 25 A common zeal for nobility strengthened their goodwill toward one another, and their concord, 26 because they could make their brotherly love more fervent with the aid of their religion. 27 But although nature and companionship and virtuous habits had augmented the affection of family ties, those who were left endured for the sake of religion, while watching their brothers being maltreated and tortured to death.

14 Furthermore, they encouraged them to face the torture, so that they not only despised their agonies, but also mastered the emotions of brotherly love.

2 O reason,^b more royal than kings and freer than the free! 3 O sacred and harmonious concord of the seven brothers on behalf of religion! 4 None of the seven youths proved coward or shrank from death, 5 but all of them, as though running the course toward immortality, hastened to death by torture. 6 Just as the hands and feet are moved in harmony with the guidance of the mind, so those holy youths, as though moved by an immortal spirit of devotion, agreed to go to death for its sake. 7 O most holy seven, brothers in harmony! For just as the seven days of creation move in choral dance around religion, 8 so these youths, forming a chorus, encircled the sevenfold fear of tortures and dissolved it. 9 Even now, we ourselves shudder as we hear of the suffering of these young men; they not only saw what was happening, not only heard the direct word of threat, but also bore the sufferings patiently, and in agonies of fire at that. 10 What could be more excruciatingly painful than this? For the power of fire is intense and swift, and it consumed their bodies quickly.

See also 1.10; 3.19.

14.11–17.6 The death of the mother, which is simply mentioned in 2 Macc 7.41, is transformed in 4 Maccabees into the climax of the oration. In this section, written as an encomium in praise of the mother, the author emphasizes her terrible torments in being forced to watch the tortures and deaths of all of her seven sons. Through her commitment to religion and the law, her reason overcomes the weakness of her gender and even her maternal affection. 14.11–12 The author's assumption, a common one in the ancient in their tortures, since the mind of woman despised even more diverse agonies, ¹²for the mother of the seven young men bore up under the rackings of each one of her children.

¹³ Observe how complex is a mother's love for her children, which draws everything toward an emotion felt in her inmost parts. ¹⁴Even unreasoning animals, as well as human beings, have a sympathy and parental love for their offspring. ¹⁵For example, among birds, the ones that are tame protect their young by building on the housetops, ¹⁶and the others, by building in precipitous chasms and in holes and tops of trees, hatch the nestlings and ward off the intruder. ¹⁷If they are not able to keep the intruder away, they do what they can to help their young by flying in circles around them in the anguish of love, warning them with their own calls. ¹⁸And why is it necessary to demonstrate sympathy for children by the example of unreasoning animals, ¹⁹since even bees at the time for making honeycombs defend themselves against intruders and, as though with an iron dart, sting those who approach their hive and defend it even to the death? ²⁰But sympathy for her children did not sway the mother of the young men; she was of the same mind as Abraham.

15 O reason of the children, tyrant over the emotions! O religion, more desirable to the mother than her children! ²Two courses were open to this mother, that of religion, and that of preserving her seven sons for a time, as the tyrant had promised. ³She loved religion more, the religion that preserves them for eternal life according to God's promise. ⁴In what manner might I express the emotions of parents who love their children? We impress upon the character of a small child a wondrous likeness both of mind and of form. Especially is this true of mothers, who because of their birth pangs have a deeper sympathy toward their offspring than do the fathers. ⁵Considering that mothers are the weaker sex and give birth to many, they are more devoted to their children. ⁶The mother of the seven boys, more than any other mother, loved her children. In seven pregnancies she had implanted in herself tender love toward them, ⁷and because of the many pains she suffered with each of them she had sympathy for them; ⁸yet because of the fear of God she disdained the temporary safety of her children. ⁹Not only so, but also because of the nobility of her sons and their ready obedience to the law, she felt a greater tenderness toward them. ¹⁰For they were righteous and self-controlled and brave and magnanimous, and loved their brothers and their mother, so that they obeyed her even to death in keeping the ordinances.

¹¹ Nevertheless, though so many factors influenced the mother to suffer with them out of love for her children, in the c Gk it d Gk according to God e Or For to the degree that mothers are weaker and the more children they bear, the more they are devoted to their children.

world, was that reason is less dominant in women than in men. Consequently, if the mother could endure her agonies, it is not amazing that reason had full command over the seven sons in theirs. This theme also occurs in 15.5, 23, 30; 16.1–2, 14. 14.13–20 The power of parental love in human beings is compared to that in unreasoning animals. The examples of birds (14.15–17) and bees (14.19) demonstrate that the parental instinct to protect one's young is extremely powerful. Yet sympathy for her children did not sway the mother's mind (14.20). This combination of natural history and sentimentality is not uncommon in writings of this period. 14.20 Abraham's willingness to sacrifice his own son is the prime example of someone overcoming parental affection for the sake of religion. See note on 13.12. 15.1–32 For the sake of religion, the woman overcomes maternal affection. This section emphasizes both the power of that affection and the mother's ability to overcome it for the sake of religion. 15.2–3 The mother's choice was between religion and preserving her seven sons for a time. She chose the former. See 15.24–28, where the same theme occurs. 15.4 Likeness both of mind and of form, a Stoic doctrine which held that children are like their parents both in soul and in body. See Plutarch On the Opinions of the Philosophers 7.11.3. 15.4b–7 Parental affection is especially strong in mothers because they bear their children in their wombs. 15.5 See note on 14.11–12. 15.9 Her sons' nobility and obedience to the law only increased her affection for them. 15.10 Righteous . . . self-controlled . . . brave, three of the four cardinal virtues. Magnanimous is substituted for rational in judgment. See 1.2–4, 18; 5.23–24. 15.11–23 This section emphasizes the pathos of the situation by calling to mind the sons' tortures, case of none of them were the various tortures strong enough to pervert her reason. ¹²But each child separately and all of them together the mother urged on to death for religion's sake. ¹³O sacred nature and affection of parental love, yearning of parents toward offspring, nurture and indomitable suffering by mothers! ¹⁴This mother, who saw them tortured and burned one by one, because of religion did not change her attitude. ¹⁵She watched the flesh of her children being consumed by fire, their toes and fingers scattered^f on the ground, and the flesh of the head to the chin exposed like masks.

¹⁶ O mother, tried now by more bitter pains than even the birth pangs you suffered for them! ¹⁷O woman, who alone gave birth to such complete devotion! ¹⁸When the firstborn breathed his last, it did not turn you aside, nor when the second in torments looked at you piteously nor when the third expired; ¹⁹nor did you weep when you looked at the eyes of each one in his tortures gazing boldly at the same agonies, and saw in their nostrils the signs of the approach of death. ²⁰When you saw the flesh of children burned upon the flesh of other children, severed hands upon hands, scalped heads upon heads, and corpses fallen on other corpses, and when you saw the place filled with many spectators of the torturings, you did not shed tears. ²¹Neither the melodies of sirens nor the songs of swans attract the attention of their hearers as did the voices of the children in torture calling to their mother. ²²How great and how many torments the mother then suffered as her sons were tortured on the wheel and with the hot irons! ²³But devout reason, giving her heart a man's courage in the very midst of her emotions, strengthened her to disregard, for the time, her parental love.

²⁴ Although she witnessed the destruction of seven children and the ingenious and various rackings, this noble mother disregarded all these^g because of faith in God. ²⁵For as in the council chamber of her own soul she saw mighty advocates—nature, family, parental love, and the rackings of her children—²⁶this mother held two ballots, one bearing death and the other deliverance for her children. ²⁷She did not approve the deliverance that would preserve the seven sons for a short time, ²⁸but as the daughter of God-fearing Abraham she remembered his fortitude.

16 If, then, a woman, advanced in years and mother of seven sons, endured seeing her children tortured to death, it must be admitted that devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. ²Thus I have demonstrated not only that men have ruled over the emotions, but also that a woman has despised the fiercest tortures. ³The lions surrounding Daniel were not so savage, nor was the raging fiery furnace of Michael so intensely hot, as was her innate parental love, inflamed as she saw her seven sons tortured in such which the mother was forced to witness but which did not pervert her reason. 15.16–20 An apostrophe to the mother gives vividness to the scene (see also 15.29–32; 16.14–15; 17.2–6). 15.21 Melodies of sirens, the songs that sought to lure Odysseus and his companions to their deaths (Odyssey 12.39–58, 154–200). Songs of swans, the plaintive cries of swans, which, according to myth, they utter as they are about to die. 15.23 A man's courage. See note on 14.11–12. 15.24–28 The author returns to the mother's choice between dying for religion and temporary deliverance (see 15.1–3). 15.25–26 The imagery is that of balloting in the Greek assembly. 15.29–32 Another apostrophe to the mother (see note on 15.16–20). Note also the imagery of the athletic contest (see note on 6.10). 15.30 See note on 14.11–12. 15.31 See Gen 6.5–8.22. 16.1–4 The author returns to the theme with which he began this section in 15.1: reason is sovereign over the emotions. 16.3 On Daniel in the lions' den, see Dan 6; on the three youths in the fiery furnace, see varied ways. ⁴But the mother quenched so many and such great emotions by devout reason.

⁵ Consider this also: If this woman, though a mother, had been fainthearted, she would have mourned over them and perhaps spoken as follows: ⁶"O how wretched am I and many times unhappy! After bearing seven children, I am now the mother of none! ⁷O seven childbirths all in vain, seven profitless pregnancies, fruitless nurturings and wretched nursings! ⁸In vain, my sons, I endured many birth pangs for you, and the more grievous anxieties of your upbringing. ⁹Alas for my children, some unmarried, others married and without offspring.^h I shall not see your children or have the happiness of being called grandmother. ¹⁰Alas, I who had so many and beautiful children am a widow and alone, with many sorrows.ⁱ ¹¹And when I die, I shall have none of my sons to bury me."

¹² Yet that holy and God-fearing mother did not wail with such a lament for any of them, nor did she dissuade any of them from dying, nor did she grieve as they were dying. ¹³On the contrary, as though having a mind like adamant and giving rebirth for immortality to the whole number of her sons, she implored them and urged them on to death for the sake of religion. ¹⁴O mother, soldier of God in the cause of religion, elder and woman! By steadfastness you have conquered even a tyrant, and in word and deed you have proved more powerful than a man. ¹⁵For when you and your sons were arrested together, you stood and watched Eleazar being tortured, and said to your sons in the Hebrew language, ¹⁶"My sons, noble is the contest to which you are called to bear witness for the nation. Fight zealously for our ancestral law. ¹⁷For it would be shameful if, while an aged man endures such agonies for the sake of religion, you young men were to be terrified by tortures. ¹⁸Remember that it is through God that you have had a share in the world and have enjoyed life, ¹⁹and therefore you ought to endure any suffering for the sake of God. ²⁰For his sake also our father Abraham was zealous to sacrifice his son Isaac, the ancestor of our nation; and when Isaac saw his father's hand wielding a knife^j and descending upon him, he did not cower. ²¹Daniel the righteous was thrown to the lions, and Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael were hurled into the fiery furnace and endured it for the sake of God. ²²You too must have the same faith in God and not be grieved. ²³It is unreasonable for people who have religious knowledge not to withstand pain."

²⁴ By these words the mother of the seven encouraged and persuaded each of her sons to die rather than violate God's commandment. ²⁵They knew also that those who die for the sake of God live to God, as do Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the patriarchs.

17 Some of the guards said that when she also was about to be seized and put to death she threw herself into the flames so that no one might touch her body.

Dan 3. 16.5–23 As in 8.16–9.9 regarding the seven brothers, the author contrasts a speech that the mother could have given had she been fainthearted (16.6–11) with the one that she actually gave (16.16–23). 16.6–11 The speech emphasizes the sorrows of a mother whose children all die before her. 16.10 A widow and alone. The place of a widow in the ancient world was always a precarious one. 16.11 To have no children to give one a proper burial was considered tragic in the ancient world among both Jews and Greeks. 16.12–15 Instead of grieving over the deaths of her sons, she urges them on to rebirth for immortality (see note on 9.22) for the sake of religion and to victory over the tyrant. 16.14–15 Another apostrophe to the mother (see note on 15.16–20). 16.14 See note on 14.11–12. 16.15 This speech was supposedly delivered when Eleazar was being tortured. This seems, however, to be inconsistent with 5.4; 8.3, which indicate that the mother and her sons were brought in only after the death of Eleazar. The Hebrew language. See 12.7. 16.16–22 The initial imagery is that of an athletic contest in which the seven sons are to fight zealously for Mosaic law (see note on 6.10). This is followed by appeals to the examples of Eleazar (5.1–7.23), Abraham's willingness to sacrifice his son Isaac (Gen 22.1–19; see note on 13.12), Daniel in the lions' den (Dan 6), and the three youths in the fiery furnace (Dan 3). 16.23 Because reason (Greek logismos) can dominate the emotions, it would be unreasonable (Greek alogiston) not to endure pain for the sake of religion. 16.25 See note on 7.19. 17.1 See 2 Macc 7.41. The mother

2 O mother, who with your seven sons nullified the violence of the tyrant, frustrated his evil designs, and showed the courage of your faith! 3 Nobly set like a roof on the pillars of your sons, you held firm and unswerving against the earthquake of the tortures. 4 Take courage, therefore, O holy-minded mother, maintaining firm an enduring hope in God. 5 The moon in heaven, with the stars, does not stand so august as you, who, after lighting the way of your star-like seven sons to piety, stand in honor before God and are firmly set in heaven with them. 6 For your children were true descendants of father Abraham.^k

The Effect of the Martyrdoms

7 If it were possible for us to paint the history of your religion as an artist might, would not those who first beheld it have shuddered as they saw the mother of the seven children enduring their varied tortures to death for the sake of religion? 8 Indeed it would be proper to inscribe on their tomb these words as a reminder to the people of our nation:^l

9 "Here lie buried an aged priest and an aged woman and seven sons, because of the violence of the tyrant who wished to destroy the way of life of the Hebrews. 10 They vindicated their nation, looking to God and enduring torture even to death."

11 Truly the contest in which they were engaged was divine, 12 for on that day virtue gave the awards and tested them for their endurance. The prize was immortality in endless life. 13 Eleazar was the first contestant, the mother of the seven sons entered the competition, and the brothers contended. 14 The tyrant was the antagonist, and the world and the human race were the spectators. 15 Reverence for God was victor and gave the crown to its own athletes. 16 Who did not admire the athletes of the divine^m legislation? Who were not amazed?

17 The tyrant himself and all his council marveled at theirⁿ endurance, 18 because of which they now stand before the divine throne and live the life of eternal blessedness. 19 For Moses says, "All who are consecrated are under your hands." 20 These, then, who have been consecrated for the sake of God,^o are honored, not only with this honor, but also by the fact that because of them our enemies did not rule over our nation, 21 the tyrant was punished, and the homeland purified—they having become, as it were, a ransom for the sin of our nation. 22 And through the blood of those devout here throws herself into the flames rather than let the guards violate her chastity by touching her. On the question of suicide, see note on 12.19. 17.2–6 This section is a final apostrophe to the mother (see note on 15.16–20). 17.2 A short summary of some of the principal themes of 4 Maccabees. 17.5 See Dan 12.3: "those who lead many to righteousness" shall shine "like the stars"; see also Testament of Job 39.9–40.5. Plato and the Stoics thought of the stars as living beings.

17.7–18.5 The author describes the effects of the martyrdoms on the martyrs themselves, on the tyrant, his council, and his soldiers, and, as the author hopes, on his fellow Jews. 17.7 Paint . . . as an artist might. Descriptions of artworks and their effects were common in Greek literature. 17.8–10 Because the mention of imaginary epitaphs is a classical rhetorical device, its mention here does not prove that 4 Maccabees was intended to be delivered as an oration at the martyrs' tomb. 17.10 They vindicated their nation, perhaps another allusion to some sort of vicarious atonement for the nation (see note on 6.28–29). 17.11–16 This passage develops most fully the metaphor of the martyrs' torture and death as an athletic contest in which the prize for a life tested by virtue is immortality (see notes on 6.10; 9.22). 17.14 The world and the human race gives a universal significance to the contest. 17.17–24 Descriptions of the amazement of Antiochus and his council (17.17–18, 23–24) precede and follow a summary of the effects of the martyrdoms on the Jewish people (17.19–22). 17.19 The quotation, from Deut 33.3, indicates that the martyrs are protected by God. 17.20–22 A summary of the results of the martyrs' deaths that credits them with the eventual victory of the Maccabees and the defeat of Antiochus. 17.21–22 This imagery, which draws on the description of the ritual of the Day of Atonement in Lev 16.1–34, is the most developed imagery in 4 Maccabees of vicarious atonement (see note on 6.28–29). The Greek ones and their death as an atoning sacrifice, divine Providence preserved Israel that previously had been mistreated.

23 For the tyrant Antiochus, when he saw the courage of their virtue and their endurance under the tortures, proclaimed them to his soldiers as an example for their own endurance,²⁴ and this made them brave and courageous for infantry battle and siege, and he ravaged and conquered all his enemies.

18 O Israelite children, offspring of the seed of Abraham, obey this law and exercise piety in every way,² knowing that devout reason is master of all emotions, not only of sufferings from within, but also of those from without.

3 Therefore those who gave over their bodies in suffering for the sake of religion were not only admired by mortals, but also were deemed worthy to share in a divine inheritance. 4 Because of them the nation gained peace, and by reviving observance of the law in the homeland they ravaged the enemy. 5 The tyrant Antiochus was both punished on earth and is being chastised after his death. Since in no way whatever was he able to compel the Israelites to become pagans and to abandon their ancestral customs, he left Jerusalem and marched against the Persians.

The Mother's Address to Her Children

6 The mother of seven sons expressed also these principles to her children: 7 "I was a pure virgin and did not go outside my father's house; but I guarded the rib from which woman was made.^p 8 No seducer corrupted me on a desert plain, nor did the destroyer, the deceitful serpent, defile the purity of my virginity. 9 In the time of my maturity I remained with my husband, and when these sons had grown up their father died. A happy man was he, who lived out his life with good children, and did not have the grief of bereavement. 10 While he was still with you, he taught you the law and the prophets. 11 He read to you about Abel slain by Cain, and Isaac who was offered as a burnt offering, and about Joseph in prison. 12 He told you of the zeal of Phinehas, and he taught you about Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishaël in the fire. 13 He praised Daniel in the den of the lions and blessed him. 14 He reminded you of the scripture of Isaiah, which says, 'Even though you go through the fire, the flame shall not consume you.' 15 He sang to you songs of the psalmist David, who said, 'Many are the afflictions of the righteous.' 16 He recounted to you Solomon's proverb, 'There is a tree of life for those who do his will.' 17 He confirmed the query of Ezekiel, 'Shall these dry bones live?' 18 For he did not forget to teach you the song that Moses taught, which says, 19 'I kill and I make alive: this is your life and the length of your days.'"

20 O bitter was that day—and yet not bitter—when that bitter tyrant of the Greeks quenched fire with fire in his cruel caldrons, and in his burning rage brought those seven sons of the daughter of Abraham to the catapult and back again to more^q tortures, 21 pierced the pupils of their eyes and cut out their tongues, and term for atoning sacrifice (hilastērion) also occurs in Rom 3.25. See also Heb 9.11–15; 1 Pet 1.18–19; 1 Jn 1.7. 17.23–24 The tyrant Antiochus is so amazed by the martyrs' courage that he uses them as examples for his soldiers. 18.1–5 A concluding exhortation to the author's fellow Jews emphasizing the values of obeying the law, mastering the emotions with reason, and suffering for the sake of religion. 18.5 Jerusalem. See 4.22, the only other place in 4 Maccabees that Jerusalem is mentioned.

18.6–19 This seems to be the address promised in 12.7; it is placed here for greater rhetorical effect. Though emotional, it is not bombastic. It emphasizes the mother's chastity and the father's proper education of his sons in the heroic examples of the Jewish past, the law, and the prophets. See 2 Macc 7.22–29. 18.7 Rib. See Gen 2.22. 18.8 The verse alludes to Gen 3.1–7; Deut 22.25–27. 18.11 Abel . . . Cain. See Gen 4.2–15. Isaac. See Gen 22.1–19; note on 13.12. Joseph. See Gen 39.7–23. 18.12 Phinehas. See Num 25.7–13. Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishaël. See Dan 3. 18.13 Daniel in the den of the lions. 18.20–24 The section serves as the peroraput them to death with various tortures.²² For these crimes divine justice pursued and will pursue the accursed tyrant.²³ But the sons of Abraham with their victorious mother are gathered together into the chorus of the fathers, and have received pure and immortal^r souls from God,²⁴ to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

Genre

THE FIRST GOSPEL resists neat genre classification. It is a narrative about Jesus that has a quality of historical “pastness,” yet it speaks to the time of its composition and it stresses the future. While such elements are reminiscent of a fusion of history, myth, and apocalyptic eschatology, the book also seems similar to an ancient Hellenistic “biography” that lauds its miracle-working hero. It has Jewish qualities as well: poetic parallelism; scribal argument; an emphasis on law, practice, and piety; an interest in symbolic numbers; scriptural quotation and fulfillment; and a genealogy. It also has distinctive Christian elements, including accounts of the virgin Mary, church discipline, teaching, baptism, prayer, Jesus’ last meal, the promise of his continuing presence, a special role for the apostle Peter, and strongly developed views of Jesus as Messiah. These elements have contributed to its preeminence as the First Gospel of the orthodox Christian canon.

Authorship and Date

Some early traditions speak of a document written in a Hebrew dialect by Matthew, one of Jesus’ twelve disciples. Nevertheless, most contemporary scholars are reluctant to identify the First Gospel with this document, for Matthew is written in Greek, and though it betrays Semitic (Hebrew or Aramaic) language influence, it is not a translation. Furthermore, according to the widely held “Two-Source Theory,” the author of Matthew used as sources the Gospel of Mark (written in the late 60s), a lost sayings source (designated “Q”), and some special traditions (designated “M”). References within the Gospel suggest that its author knew about the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 c.e. (see 21.41; 22.7; 24.15–16), and the author highlights the Pharisees as Jesus’ main opponents though this sect asserted its authority only after 70 c.e. Thus, internal references combined with source analysis point to a date between 80 and 90 c.e. So late a date makes composition by a disciple unlikely, though not impossible. The Gospel may have been composed in Palestine, but it is more likely that it was written in Antioch, Syria, where Bishop Ignatius seems to cite Matthean passages as early as 110 c.e.

Since anonymous works in antiquity were often attributed to prominent persons, cumulative evidence suggests that an unknown Greek-speaking Jewish Christian, probably a scribe (see 13.52), composed this Gospel and that in the second century it was attributed to the disciple Matthew primarily to lend it authority.

Circumstances of Writing

This Gospel stresses the Pharisees as Jesus' major opponents (see 9.11, 34; 12.2; 27.62); accuses them of being "hypocrites" (ch. 23); emphasizes "righteousness" that exceeds theirs (5.17–20); and speaks of "their scribes" (7.29) and "their synagogues" (4.23; 9.35). These themes suggest that the author represented a group of Jewish Christians or Christian Jews no longer in communion with post-70 C.E., Pharisee-led Judaism (see 21.28–23.39). At the same time, there is evidence that the Matthean group was disrupted internally. The church seems to be viewed as a mixed body of both good and bad (13.24–30, 47–50; 22.1–14); there are "false prophets" and Christians who seem to want freedom from Torah obedience altogether (7.15–23); and there are some in the church who threaten the faith of others (18.6–7, 10–14). Indeed, the disciples themselves are characterized by "little faith" (6.30; 8.26; 14.31; 16.8), though clearly they show a measure of understanding (13.51). In this connection, only in this Gospel is the word "church" (Greek ekklesia) used, first in relation to the authority of Peter (16.17–19) and later in relation to the assembled group's power to excommunicate errant members (18.17).

Structure and Composition

The sequence of Matthew generally follows the geographical outline of Mark from Galilee to Jerusalem, but it diverges with the addition of the birth stories at the beginning (chs. 1–2) and the resurrection appearance and the final commissioning scene at the end (28.9–20) and with the reordering of sources in chs. 5–11. The narrative is marked by temporal statements in 4.17 and 16.21 ("from that time Jesus began . . ."), but structurally its most striking features are the five major discourses (5.1–7.27; 10.5–42; 13.1–52; 18.1–35; 24.3–25.46), each of which is concluded by a similar formula, "and when Jesus had finished saying these things . . ." (7.28; 11.1; 13.53; 19.1; 26.1). These discourses may be intended to recall the five books of the Torah, then thought to have been authored by Moses, and the author may have viewed Jesus as a new Moses offering a new Torah that fulfills, yet supersedes, the old (13.52). Moreover, the author stresses fourteen "formula quotations" showing that events fulfill the holy scriptures (see note on 1.22–23).

This Gospel contains a sharp anti-Pharisaism, moral stringency, and apocalyptic severity. Yet it has a marvelous vision of Jesus as the compassionate, healing Messiah/Son of David, the royal Son of God, and the apocalyptic Son of Man.

who is claimed as the fulfillment of the Torah and the prophets (5.17-20) and who calls his followers to spread the good news of the kingdom of heaven to the whole world (28.16-20). Dennis C. Duling

The Genealogy of Jesus the Messiah

1 An account of the genealogy^a of Jesus the Messiah,^b the son of David, the son of Abraham.

2 Abraham was the father of Isaac, and Isaac the father of Jacob, and Jacob the father of Judah and his brothers,³ and Judah the father of Perez and Zerah by Tamar, and Perez the father of Hezron, and Hezron the father of Aram,⁴ and Aram the father of Aminadab, and Aminadab the father of Nahshon, and Nahshon the father of Salmon,⁵ and Salmon the father of Boaz by Rahab, and Boaz the father of Obed by Ruth, and Obed the father of Jesse,⁶ and Jesse the father of King David.

And David was the father of Solomon by the wife of Uriah,⁷ and Solomon the father of Rehoboam, and Rehoboam the father of Abijah, and Abijah the father of Asaph,^c ⁸and Asaph^c the father of Jehoshaphat, and Jehoshaphat the father of Joram, and Joram the father of Uzziah,⁹ and Uzziah the father of Jotham, and Jotham the father of Ahaz, and Ahaz the father of Hezekiah,¹⁰ and Hezekiah the father of Manasseh, and Manasseh the father of Amos,^d and Amos^d the father of Josiah,¹¹ and Josiah the father of Jeconiah and his brothers, at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

12 And after the deportation to Babylon: Jeconiah was the father of Salathiel, and Salathiel the father of Zerubbabel,¹³ and Zerubbabel the father of Abiud, and Abiud the father of Eliakim, and Eliakim the father of Azor,¹⁴ and Azor the father of Zadok, and Zadok the father of Achim, and Achim the father of Eliud,¹⁵ and Eliud the father of Eleazar, and Eleazar the father of Matthan, and Matthan the father of Jacob,¹⁶ and Jacob the father of Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, who is called the Messiah.^e

17 So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David to the deportation to Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the deportation to Babylon to the Messiah,^e fourteen generations.

The Birth of Jesus the Messiah

18 Now the birth of Jesus the Messiah^f took place in this way. When his mother Mary had been engaged to Joseph, but before they lived together, she was found to be with child from the Holy Spirit. ¹⁹Her husband Joseph, being a righteous man and unwilling to expose her to public disgrace, planned to dismiss her quietly. ²⁰But just when he had resolved to do this, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, "Joseph, son of David, do not be afraid to take Mary as your wife, for the child conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit. ²¹She will bear a son, and you are to name him Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins." ²²All this took place to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet:

²³ "Look, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and they shall name him Emmanuel,"

which means, "God is with us." ²⁴When Joseph awoke from sleep, he did as the angel of the Lord commanded him; he took her as his wife, ²⁵but had no marital

The Visit of the Wise Men

2 In the time of King Herod, after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, wise men^h from the East came to Jerusalem, ²asking, "Where is the child who has been born king of the Jews? For we observed his star at its rising,ⁱ and have come to pay him homage." ³When King Herod heard this, he was frightened, and all Jerusalem with him; ⁴and calling together all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Messiah^j was to be born. ⁵They told him, "In Bethlehem of Judea; for so it has been written by the prophet:

⁶ 'And you, Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, are by no means least among the rulers of Judah; for from you shall come a ruler who is to shepherd^k my people Israel.'

These emphasize that events fulfill prophecy and thus conform to the will of God. This first one quotes Isa 7.14 (Septuagint). Virgin. The Hebrew text refers to a "young woman" (almah). 1.25 Until. Matthew's birth narrative does not seem to imply the perpetual 7 Then Herod secretly called for the wise men^l and learned from them the exact time when the star had appeared. 8 Then he sent them to Bethlehem, saying, "Go and search diligently for the child; and when you have found him, bring me word so that I may also go and pay him homage." 9 When they had heard the king, they set out; and there, ahead of them, went the star that they had seen at its rising,^m until it stopped over the place where the child was. 10 When they saw that the star had stopped,ⁿ they were overwhelmed with joy. 11 On entering the house, they saw the child with Mary his mother; and they knelt down and paid him homage. Then, opening their treasure chests, they offered him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. 12 And having been warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they left for their own country by another road.

The Escape to Egypt

13 Now after they had left, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream and said, "Get up, take the child and his mother, and flee to Egypt, and remain there until I tell you; for Herod is about to search for the child, to destroy him." 14 Then Joseph^o got up, took the child and his mother by night, and went to Egypt, 15 and remained there until the death of Herod. This was to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet, "Out of Egypt I have called my son."

The Massacre of the Infants

16 When Herod saw that he had been tricked by the wise men,^l he was infuriated, and he sent and killed all the children in and around Bethlehem who were two years old or under, according to the time that he had learned from the wise men.^l 17 Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah:

18 "A voice was heard in Ramah,
wailing and loud lamentation,
Rachel weeping for her children;
she refused to be consoled,
because they are no more."

The Return to Nazareth

19 When Herod died, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt and said, 20 "Get up, take the child and his mother, and go to the land of Israel, for those who were seeking the child's life are dead." 21 Then Joseph^o got up, took the child and his mother, and went to the land of Israel. 22 But when he heard that Archelaus was ruling over Judea in place of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there. And after being warned in a dream, he went away to the district of Galilee. 23 There he made his home in a town called Nazareth, so that what had been spoken through the prophets might be fulfilled, "He will be called a Nazorean."

Mt 11.18-19).

The Proclamation of John the Baptist

3 In those days John the Baptist appeared in the wilderness of Judea, proclaiming, ²“Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near.”^p ³This is the one of whom the prophet Isaiah spoke when he said,

“The voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
‘Prepare the way of the Lord,
make his paths straight.’”

⁴Now John wore clothing of camel's hair with a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey.
⁵Then the people of Jerusalem and all Judea were going out to him, and all the region along the Jordan, ⁶and they were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.

⁷ But when he saw many Pharisees and Sadducees coming for baptism, he

He will baptize you with^q the Holy Spirit and fire. ¹²His winnowing fork is in his hand, and he will clear his threshing floor and will gather his wheat into the granary; but the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire."

The Baptism of Jesus

¹³ Then Jesus came from Galilee to John at the Jordan, to be baptized by him. ¹⁴John would have prevented him, saying, "I need to be baptized by you, and do you come to me?" ¹⁵But Jesus answered him, "Let it be so now; for it is proper for us in this way to fulfill all righteousness." Then he consented. ¹⁶And when Jesus had been baptized, just as he came up from the water, suddenly the heavens were opened to him and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and alighting on him. ¹⁷And a voice from heaven said, "This is my Son, the Beloved,^r with whom I am well pleased."

The Temptation of Jesus

4 Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. ²He fasted forty days and forty nights, and afterwards he was famished. ³The tempter came and said to him, "If you are the Son of God, command these stones to become loaves of bread." ⁴But he answered, "It is written,

'One does not live by bread alone,
but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.'

⁵ Then the devil took him to the holy city and placed him on the pinnacle of the temple, ⁶saying to him, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down; for it is written,

'He will command his angels concerning you,'
and 'On their hands they will bear you up,
so that you will not dash your

Jesus Begins His Ministry in Galilee

12 Now when Jesus^s heard that John had been arrested, he withdrew to Galilee. ¹³He left Nazareth and made his home in Capernaum by the sea, in the territory of Zebulun and Naphtali, ¹⁴so that what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled:

¹⁵ "Land of Zebulun, land of Naphtali,
on the road by the sea, across the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles—

¹⁶ the people who sat in darkness
have seen a great light,
and for those who sat in the region and shadow of death
light has dawned."

¹⁷From that time Jesus began to proclaim, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near."

Jesus Calls the First Disciples

18 As he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. ¹⁹And he said to them, "Follow me, and I will make you fish for people." ²⁰Immediately they left their nets and followed him. ²¹As he went from there, he saw two other brothers, James son of Zebedee and his brother John, in the boat with their father Zebedee, mending their nets, and he called them. ²²Immediately they left the boat and their father, and followed him.

Jesus Ministers to Crowds of People

²⁷ "You have heard that it was said, 'You shall not commit adultery.' ²⁸But I say to you that everyone who looks at a woman with lust has already committed adultery with her in his heart. ²⁹If your right eye causes you to sin, tear it out and throw it away; it is better for you to lose one of your members than for your whole body to be thrown into hell.^d ³⁰And if your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away; it is better for you to lose one of your members than for your whole body to go into hell.^d

³¹ "It was also said, 'Whoever divorces his wife, let him give her a certificate of divorce.' ³²But I say to you that anyone who divorces his wife, except on the ground of unchastity, causes her to commit adultery; and whoever marries a divorced woman commits adultery.

³⁸ "You have heard that it was said, 'An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.' ³⁹But I say to you, Do not resist an evil-doer. The Piety That God Rewards

6 “Beware of practicing your piety before others in order to be seen by them; for then you have no reward from your Father in heaven.

² “So whenever you give alms, do not sound a trumpet before you, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, so that they may be praised by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. ³ But when you give alms, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, ⁴ so that your alms may be done in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.ⁱ

⁵ “And whenever you pray, do not be like the hypocrites; for they love to stand and pray in the synagogues and at the street corners, so that they may be seen by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. ⁶ But whenever you pray, go into your room and shut the door and pray to your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.ⁱ

⁷ “When you are praying, do not heap up empty phrases as the Gentiles do; for they think that they will be heard because of their many words. ⁸ Do not be like them, for your Father knows what you need before you ask him.

⁹ “Pray then in this way:

Our Father in heaven,
hallowed be your name.

¹⁰ Your kingdom come.
Your will be done,
on earth as it is in heaven.

¹¹ Give us this day our daily bread.^j

¹² And forgive us our debts,
as we also have forgiven
our debtors.

¹³ And do not bring us to the time of trial,^k
but rescue us from the evil one.^l

¹⁴ For if you forgive others their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; ¹⁵ but if you do not forgive others, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

Matthew inserts a model prayer, revised from Q, perhaps in the light of familiar liturgy. The prayer contains an address (v. 9b), three “God-petitions” (vv. 9c–10), and four “human-petitions” (vv. 11–13). 6.9 The term Father (Aramaic ‘Abba’) suggests familial intimacy but also respect and obedience when used by sons and daughters. Hallowed, i.e., honored as holy. 6.10 Your kingdom come. Lk 11.2; see Mt 7.21; 12.50; 18.14; 21.31; 26.42. 6.11 Daily translates a rare Greek word that probably means bread in the morning for the rest of the day or for tomorrow (see text note j); see 6.34; 10.10. 6.12 Debts, lit. “what is owed”; cf. Orientation to God

19 "Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rustⁿ consume and where thieves break in and steal; ²⁰but store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rustⁿ consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal. ²¹For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

22 "The eye is the lamp of the body. So, if your eye is healthy, your whole body will be full of light; ²³but if your eye is unhealthy, your whole body will be full of darkness. If then the light in you is darkness, how great is the darkness!

24 "No one can serve two masters; for a slave will either hate the one and love the other, or be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth.^o

25 "Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink,^p or about your body, what you will wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing? ²⁶Look at the birds of the air; they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they? ²⁷And can any of you by worrying add a single hour to your span of life?^q ²⁸And why do you worry about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither toil nor spin, ²⁹yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not clothed like one of these. ³⁰But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will he not much more clothe you—you of little faith? ³¹Therefore do not worry, saying, 'What will we eat?' or 'What will we drink?' or 'What will we wear?' ³²For it is the Gentiles who strive for all these things; and indeed your heavenly Father knows that you need all these things. ³³But strive first for the kingdom of God^r and his^s righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well.

34 "So do not worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will bring worries of its own. Today's trouble is enough for today.

Are grapes gathered from thorns, or figs from thistles? ¹⁷In the same way, every good tree bears good fruit, but the bad tree bears bad fruit. ¹⁸A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. ¹⁹Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. ²⁰Thus you will know them by their fruits.

21 "Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only the one who does the will of my Father in heaven. ²²On that day many will say to me, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and cast out demons in your name, and do many deeds of power in your name?' ²³Then I will declare to them, 'I never knew you; go away from me, you evildoers.'

24 "Everyone then who hears these words of mine and acts on them will be like a wise man who built his house on rock. ²⁵The rain fell, the floods came, and the winds blew and beat on that house, but it did not fall, because it had been founded on rock. ²⁶And everyone who hears these words of mine and does not act on them will be like a foolish man who

cure him.” ⁸The centurion answered, “Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; but only speak the word, and my servant will be healed. ⁹For I also am a man under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say to one, ‘Go,’ and he goes, and to another, ‘Come,’ and he comes, and to my slave, ‘Do this,’ and the slave does it.” ¹⁰When Jesus heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one^z in Israel have I found such faith. ¹¹I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, ¹²while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” ¹³And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

brought to him many who were possessed with demons; and he cast out the spirits with a word, and cured all who were sick. ¹⁷This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah, "He took our infirmities and bore our diseases."

Would-Be Followers of Jesus

18 Now when Jesus saw great crowds around him, he gave orders to go over to the other side. ¹⁹A scribe then approached and said, "Teacher, I will follow you wherever you go." ²⁰And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." ²¹Another of his disciples said to him, "Lord, first let me go and bury my father." ²²But Jesus said to him, "Follow me, and let the dead bury their own dead."

Jesus Stills the Storm

23 And when he got into the boat, his disciples followed him. ²⁴A windstorm arose on the sea, so great that the boat was being swamped by the waves; but he was asleep. ²⁵And they went and woke him up, saying, "Lord, save us! We are perishing!" ²⁶And he said to them, "Why are you afraid, you of little faith?" Then he got up and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a dead calm. ²⁷They were amazed, saying, "What sort of man is this, that even the winds and the sea obey him?"

Jesus Heals the Gadarene Demoniacs

28 When he came to the other side, to the country of the Gadarenes,^a two demoniacs coming out of the tombs met him. They were so fierce that no one could pass that way. ²⁹Suddenly they shouted, "What have you to do with us, Son of God? Have you come here to torment us before the time?" ³⁰Now a large herd of swine was feeding at some distance from them. ³¹The demons begged him, "If you cast us out, send us into the herd of swine." ³²And he said to them, "Go!" So they came out and entered the swine; and suddenly, the whole herd rushed down the steep bank into the sea and perished in the water. ³³The swineherds ran off, and on going into the town, they told the whole story about what had happened to the demoniacs. ³⁴Then the whole town came out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him, they begged him to leave their neighborhood. ¹And after getting into a boat he crossed the sea and came to his own town.

Jesus frequently refers to himself as Son of Man in one of three different senses: as the final judge, usually reflecting Dan 7.13–14 (see, e.g., Mt 24.30–31); as the one who must suffer, usually from prophecies about his death in Mark (see 16.21); or, as here, with reference to his present circumstances, from an Aramaic idiom for speaking about oneself as human, perhaps with humility, modesty, or allusion to danger or death (see text note f to Ezek 2.1). 8.21 Lord. See note on 7.21. 8.22 Follow me. See note on 4.19. Let the dead bury their own dead. Jesus' words challenge the traditional and honorable duty to bury one's parents (see, e.g., Tob 4.3–4).

8.23–27 Cf. Mk 4.35–41; Lk 8.22–25. Matthew's handling of this miracle shows that he interprets the miracle as an allegory for following Jesus. 8.23 His disciples followed. Jesus Heals a Paralytic

2 And just then some people were carrying a paralyzed man lying on a bed. When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "Take heart, son; your sins are forgiven." ³Then some of the scribes said to themselves, "This man is blaspheming." ⁴But Jesus, perceiving their thoughts, said, "Why do you think evil in your hearts? ⁵For which is easier, to say, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Stand up and walk'? ⁶But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he then said to the paralytic—"Stand up, take your bed and go to your home." ⁷And he stood up and went to his home. ⁸When the crowds saw it, they were filled with awe, and they glorified God, who had given such authority to human beings.

The Call of Matthew

9 As Jesus was walking along, he saw a man called Matthew sitting at the tax booth; and he said to him, "Follow me." And he got up and followed him.

Tax Collectors and Sinners

10 And as he sat at dinner^b in the house, many tax collectors and sinners came and were sitting^c with him and his disciples. ¹¹When the Pharisees saw this, they said to his disciples, "Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?" ¹²But when he heard this, he said, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick. ¹³Go and learn what this means, 'I desire mercy, not sacrifice.' For I have come to call not the righteous but sinners."

The Question About Fasting

14 Then the disciples of John came to him, saying, "Why do we and the Pharisees fast often,^d but your disciples do not fast?" ¹⁵And Jesus said to them, "The wedding guests cannot mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them, can they? The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast. ¹⁶No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak, for the patch pulls away from the cloak, and a worse tear is made. ¹⁷Neither is new wine put into old wineskins; otherwise, the skins burst, and the wine is spilled, and the skins are destroyed; but new wine is put into fresh wineskins, and so both are preserved."

A Girl Restored to Life and a Woman Healed

18 While he was saying these things to them, suddenly a leader of the synagogue^e came in and knelt before him, saying, "My daughter has just died; but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live." ¹⁹And Jesus got up and followed him, with his disciples. ²⁰Then

suddenly a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years came up behind him and touched the fringe of his cloak, ²¹for she said to herself, "If I only touch his cloak, I will be made well." ²²Jesus turned, and seeing her he said, "Take heart, daughter; your faith has made you well." And instantly the woman was made well. ²³When Jesus came to the leader's house and saw the flute players and the crowd making a commotion, ²⁴he said, "Go away; for the girl is not dead but sleeping." And they laughed at him. ²⁵But when the crowd had been put outside, he went in and took her by the hand, and the girl got up. ²⁶And the report of this spread throughout that district.

Jesus Heals Two Blind Men

²⁷ As Jesus went on from there, two blind men followed him, crying loudly, "Have mercy on us, Son of David!" ²⁸When he entered the house, the blind men came to him; and Jesus said to them, "Do you believe that I am able to do this?" They said to him, "Yes, Lord." ²⁹Then he touched their eyes and said, "According to your faith let it be done to you." ³⁰And their eyes were opened. Then Jesus sternly ordered them, "See that no one knows of this." ³¹But they went away and spread the news about him throughout that district.

Jesus Heals One Who Was Mute

³² After they had gone away, a demoniac who was mute was brought to him. ³³And when the demon had been cast out, the one who had been mute spoke; and the crowds were amazed and said, "Never has anything like this been seen in Israel." ³⁴But the Pharisees said, "By the ruler of the demons he casts out the demons."^f

The Harvest Is Great, the Laborers Few

³⁵ Then Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, and curing every disease and every sickness. ³⁶When he saw the crowds, he had compassion for them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. ³⁷Then he said to his disciples, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; ³⁸therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest."

The Mission of the Twelve

5 These twelve Jesus sent out with the following instructions: "Go nowhere among the Gentiles, and enter no town of the Samaritans, ⁶but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. ⁷As you go, proclaim the good news, 'The kingdom of heaven has come near.'ⁱ ⁸Cure the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers,^j cast out demons. You received without payment; give without payment. ⁹Take no gold, or silver, or copper in your belts, ¹⁰no bag for your journey, or two tunics, or sandals, or a staff; for laborers deserve their food. ¹¹Whatever town or village you enter, find out who in it is worthy, and stay there until you leave. ¹²As you enter the house, greet it. ¹³If the house is worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it is not worthy, let your peace return to you. ¹⁴If anyone will not welcome you or listen to your words, shake off the dust from your feet as you leave that house or town. ¹⁵Truly I tell you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that town.

Coming Persecutions

16 "See, I am sending you out like sheep into the midst of wolves; so be wise as serpents and innocent as doves. ¹⁷Beware of them, for they will hand you over to councils and flog you in their synagogues; ¹⁸and you will be dragged before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony to them and the Gentiles. ¹⁹When they hand you over, do not worry about how you are to speak or what you are to say; for what you are to say will be given to you at that time; ²⁰for it is not you who speak, but the Spirit of your of voluntary poverty is similar to that of the wandering Cynic philosophers but is rooted in the ethos of 6.25–34; see Didache 11–12. Wandering Cynic preachers carried a begging bag to symbolize their self-sufficiency. 11 Now when Jesus had finished instructing his twelve disciples, he went on from there to teach and proclaim his message in their cities.

Messengers from John the Baptist

2 When John heard in prison what the Messiah¹ was doing, he sent word by his^m disciples³ and said to him, “Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?”⁴ Jesus answered them, “Go and tell John what you hear and see: ⁵the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepersⁿ are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the poor have good news brought to them. ⁶And blessed is anyone who takes no offense at me.”

John the Baptist Identified as Elijah

7 As they went away, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John: “What did you go out into the wilderness to look at? A reed shaken by the wind? ⁸What then did you go out to see? Someone^o dressed in soft robes? Look, those who wear soft robes are in royal palaces.

⁹What then did you go out to see? A prophet? ^pYes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. ¹⁰This is the one about whom it is written,

‘See, I am sending my messenger ahead of you,
who will prepare your way
before you.’

¹⁸For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, 'He has a demon'; ¹⁹the Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, 'Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!' Yet wisdom is vindicated by her deeds."^s

Woes to Unrepentant Cities

²⁰ Then he began to reproach the cities in which most of his deeds of power had been done, because they did not repent. ²¹"Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the deeds of power done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. ²²But I tell you, on the day of judgment it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon than for you. ²³And you, Capernaum, will you be exalted to heaven?

No, you will be brought down to Hades.

For if the deeds of power done in you had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day. ²⁴But I tell you that on the day of judgment it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom than for you."

Jesus as Wisdom's Spokesperson

²⁵ At that time Jesus said, "I thank you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the intelligent and have revealed them to infants; ²⁶yes, Father, for such was your gracious will."^u ²⁷All things have been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows the Son except the Father, and no one knows the Father except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.

²⁸ "Come to me, all you that are weary and are carrying heavy burdens, and I will give you rest. ²⁹Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me; for I am gentle and humble in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. ³⁰For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light."

Plucking Grain on the Sabbath

12 At that time Jesus went through the grainfields on the sabbath; his disciples were hungry, and they began to pluck heads of grain and to eat. ²When the Pharisees saw it, they said to him, "Look, your disciples are doing what is not lawful to do on the sabbath."³ He said

The Man with a Withered Hand

9 He left that place and entered their synagogue; ¹⁰a man was there with a withered hand, and they asked him, "Is it lawful to cure on the sabbath?" so that they might accuse him. ¹¹He said to them, "Suppose one of you has only one sheep and it falls into a pit on the sabbath; will you not lay hold of it and lift it out? ¹²How much more valuable is a human being than a sheep! So it is lawful to do good on the sabbath." ¹³Then he said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and it was restored, as sound as the other. ¹⁴But the Pharisees went out and conspired against him, how to destroy him.

God's Chosen Servant

him, and he cured all of them, ¹⁶and he ordered them not to make him known. ¹⁷This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah:

- ¹⁸ "Here is my servant, whom I have chosen,
my beloved, with whom my soul is well pleased.
I will put my Spirit upon him,
and he will proclaim justice to the Gentiles.
¹⁹ He will not wrangle or cry aloud,
nor will anyone hear his voice in the streets.
²⁰ He will not break a bruised reed
or quench a smoldering wick
until he brings justice to victory.
²¹ And in his name the Gentiles will hope."

Jesus and Beelzebul

²² Then they brought to him a demoniac who was blind and mute; and he cured him, so that the one who had been mute could speak and see. ²³All the crowds were amazed and said, "Can this be the Son of David?" ²⁴But when the Pharisees heard it, they said, "It is only by Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons, that this fellow casts out the demons." ²⁵He knew what they were thinking and said to them, "Every kingdom divided against itself is laid waste, and no city or house

Therefore they will be your judges. ²⁸But if it is by the Spirit of God that I cast out demons, then the kingdom of God has come to you. ²⁹Or how can one enter a strong man's house and plunder his property, without first tying up the strong man? Then indeed the house can be plundered. ³⁰Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me scatters. ³¹Therefore I tell you, people will be forgiven for every sin and blasphemy, but blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. ³²Whoever speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven, but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven, either in this age or in the age to come.

A Tree and Its Fruit

³³ "Either make the tree good, and its fruit good; or make the tree bad, and its fruit bad; for the tree is known by its fruit. ³⁴You brood of vipers! How can you speak good things, when you are evil? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks. ³⁵The good person brings good things out of a good treasure, and the evil person brings evil things out of an evil treasure. ³⁶I tell you, on the day of judgment you will have to give an account for every careless word you utter; ³⁷for by your words you will be justified, and by your words you will be condemned."

The Sign of Jonah

³⁸ Then some of the scribes and Pharisees said to him, "Teacher, we wish to see a sign from you." ³⁹But he answered them, "An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah. ⁴⁰For just as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the sea monster, so for three days and three nights the Son of Man will be in the heart of the earth. ⁴¹The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the proclamation of Jonah, and see, something greater than Jonah is here! ⁴²The queen of the South will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and see, something greater than Solomon is here!

The Return of the Unclean Spirit

⁴³ "When the unclean spirit has gone out of a person, it wanders through waterless regions looking for a resting place, but it finds none. ⁴⁴Then it says, 'I will return to my house from which I came.' When it comes, it finds it empty, swept, and put in order. ⁴⁵Then it goes and brings along seven other spirits more evil than itself, and they enter and live there; and the last state of that person is worse than the first. So will it be also with this evil generation."

The True Kindred of Jesus

46 While he was still speaking to the crowds, his mother and his brothers were standing outside, wanting to speak to him. 47 Someone told him, "Look, your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to speak to you."^x 48 But to the one who had told him this, Jesus^y replied, "Who is my mother, and who are my brothers?" 49 And pointing to his disciples, he said, "Here are my mother and my brothers! 50 For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother."

The Parable of the Sower

13 That same day Jesus went out of the house and sat beside the sea. 2 Such great crowds gathered around him that he got into a boat and sat there, while the whole crowd stood on the beach. 3 And he told them many things in parables, saying: "Listen! A sower went out to sow. 4 And as he sowed, some seeds fell on the path, and the birds came and ate them up. 5 Other seeds fell on rocky ground, where they did not have much soil, and they sprang up quickly, since they had no depth of soil. 6 But when the sun rose, they were scorched; and since they had no root, they withered away. 7 Other seeds fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked them. 8 Other seeds fell on good soil and brought forth grain, some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty. 9 Let anyone with ears^z listen!"

The Purpose of the Parables

10 Then the disciples came and asked him, "Why do you speak to them in parables?" 11 He answered, "To you it has been given to know the secrets^a of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given. 12 For to those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. 13 The reason I speak to them in parables is that 'seeing they do not perceive, and hearing they do not listen, nor do they understand.' 14 With them indeed is fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah that says:

'You will indeed listen, but never understand,
and you will indeed look, but never perceive.

15 For this people's heart has grown dull,
and their ears are hard of hearing,
and they have shut their eyes;
so that they might not look with their eyes,
and listen with their ears,
and understand with their heart
and turn —
and I would heal them.'

16 But blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear. 17 Truly I tell you, many prophets and righteous

The Parable of the Sower Explained

18 "Hear then the parable of the sower. 19 When anyone hears the word of the kingdom and does not understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what is sown in the heart; this is what was sown on the path. 20 As for what was sown on rocky ground, this is the one who hears the word and immediately receives it with joy; 21 yet such a person has no root, but endures only for a while, and when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, that person immediately falls away.^b 22 As for what was sown among thorns, this is the one who hears the word, but the cares of the world and the lure of wealth choke the word, and it yields nothing. 23 But as for what was sown on good soil, this is the one who hears the word and understands it, who indeed bears fruit and yields, in one case a hundredfold, in another sixty, and in another thirty."

The Parable of Weeds Among the Wheat

24 He put before them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven may be compared to someone who sowed good seed in his field; 25 but while everybody was asleep, an enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and then went away. 26 So when the plants came up and bore grain, then the weeds appeared as well. 27 And the slaves of the householder came and said to him, 'Master, did you not sow good seed in your field? Where, then, did these weeds come from?' 28 He answered, 'An enemy has done this.' The slaves said to him, 'Then do you want us to go and gather them?' 29 But he replied, 'No; for in gathering the weeds you would uproot the wheat along with them. 30 Let both of them grow together until the harvest; and at harvest time I will tell the reapers, Collect the weeds first and bind them in bundles to be burned, but gather the wheat into my barn.'"

The Parable of the Mustard Seed

31 He put before them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in his field; 32 it is the smallest of all the seeds, but when it has grown it is the greatest of shrubs and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and make nests in its branches."

The Parable of the Yeast

33 He told them another parable: "The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with three measures of flour until all of it was leavened."

The Use of Parables

Jesus Explains the Parable of the Weeds

36 Then he left the crowds and went into the house. And his disciples approached him, saying, "Explain to us the parable of the weeds of the field." 37 He answered, "The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man; 38 the field is the world, and the good seed are the children of the kingdom; the weeds are the children of the evil one, 39 and the enemy who sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the age, and the reapers are angels. 40 Just as the weeds are collected and burned up with fire, so will it be at the end of the age. 41 The Son of Man will send his angels, and they will collect out of his kingdom all causes of sin and all evil-doers, 42 and they will throw them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. 43 Then the righteous will shine like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Let anyone with ears^f listen!

Three Parables

44 "The kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field, which someone found and hid; then in his joy he goes and

sells all that he has and buys that field.

45 "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls; 46 on finding one pearl of great value, he went and sold all that he had and bought it.

47 "Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net that was thrown into the sea and caught fish of every kind; 48 when it was full, they drew it ashore, sat down, and put the good into baskets but threw out the bad. 49 So it will be at the end of the age. The angels will come out and separate the evil from the righteous 50 and throw them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Treasures New and Old

51 "Have you understood all this?" They answered, "Yes." 52 And he said to them, "Therefore every scribe who has been trained for the kingdom of heaven is like the master of a household who brings out of his treasure what is new and what is old." 53 When Jesus had finished these parables, he left that place.

The Rejection of Jesus at Nazareth

54 He came to his hometown and began to teach the people^g in their synagogue, so that they were astounded and said, "Where did this man get this wisdom and these deeds of power? ⁵⁵Is not this the carpenter's son? Is not his mother called Mary? And are not his brothers James and Joseph and Simon and Judas? ⁵⁶And are not all his sisters with us? Where then did this man get all this?" ⁵⁷And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, "Prophets are not without honor except in their own country and in their own house." ⁵⁸And he did not do many deeds of power there, because of their unbelief.

13.54–17.27 Matthew rejoins the Marcan outline. Rejection of Jesus in his hometown, misunderstanding by "Israel," and growing opposition by Pharisees lead Jesus to stress teaching to the disciples. 13.54–58 Cf. Mk 6.1–6;

The Death of John the Baptist

14 At that time Herod the ruler^h heard reports about Jesus; ²and he said to his servants, "This is John the Baptist; he has been raised from the dead, and for this reason these powers are at work in him." ³For Herod had arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife;ⁱ ⁴because John had been telling him, "It is not lawful for you to have her." ⁵Though Herod^j wanted to put him to death, he feared the crowd, because they regarded him as a prophet. ⁶But when Herod's birthday came, the daughter of Herodias danced before the company, and she pleased Herod ⁷so much that he promised on oath to grant her whatever she might ask. ⁸Prompted

by her mother, she said, "Give me the head of John the Baptist here on a platter." ⁹The king was grieved, yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he commanded it to be given; ¹⁰he sent and had John beheaded in the prison. ¹¹The head was brought on a platter and given to the girl, who brought it to her mother. ¹²His disciples came and took the body and buried it; then they went and told Jesus.

Feeding the Five Thousand

¹³ Now when Jesus heard this, he withdrew from there in a boat to a deserted place by himself. But when the crowds heard it, they followed him on foot from the towns. ¹⁴When he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them and cured their sick. ¹⁵When it was evening, the disciples came to him and said, "This is a deserted place, and the hour is now late; send the crowds away so that they may go into the villages and buy food for themselves." ¹⁶Jesus said to them, "They need not go away; you give them something to eat." ¹⁷They replied, "We have nothing here but five loaves and two fish." ¹⁸And he said, "Bring them here to me." ¹⁹Then he ordered the crowds to sit down on the grass. Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. ²⁰And all ate and were filled; and they took up what was left over of the broken pieces, twelve baskets full. ²¹And those who ate were about five thousand men, besides women and children.

Jesus Walks on the Water

²² Immediately he made the disciples get into the boat and go on ahead to the other side, while he dismissed the crowds. ²³And after he had dismissed the crowds, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. When evening came, he was there alone, ²⁴but by this time the boat, battered by the waves, was far from the land,^k for the wind was against them. ²⁵And early in the morning he came walking toward them on the sea. ²⁶But when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were terrified, saying, "It is a ghost!" And they cried out in fear. ²⁷But immediately Jesus spoke to them and said, "Take heart, it is I; do not be afraid."

²⁸ Peter answered him, "Lord, if it is you, command me to come to you on the water." ²⁹He said, "Come." So Peter got out of the boat, started walking on the water, and came toward Jesus. ³⁰But when he noticed the strong wind,^l he became frightened, and beginning to sink, he cried out, "Lord, save me!" ³¹Jesus immediately reached out his hand and caught him, saying to him, "You of little faith, why did you doubt?" ³²When they got into the boat, the wind ceased. ³³And those in the boat worshiped him, saying, "Truly you are the Son of God."

Jesus Heals the Sick in Gennesaret

³⁴ When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret. ³⁵After the people of that place recognized him, they sent word throughout the region and brought all who were sick to him, ³⁶and begged him that they might touch even the fringe of his cloak; and all who touched it were healed.

The Tradition of the Elders

15 Then Pharisees and scribes came to Jesus from Jerusalem and said, ^{2a}"Why do your disciples break the tradition of the elders? For they do not wash their hands before they eat." ³He answered them, "And why do you break the commandment of God for the sake of your tradition? ⁴For God said,^m 'Honor your father and your mother,' and, 'Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must surely die.' ⁵But you say that whoever tells father or mother, 'Whatever support you might have had from me is given to God,'ⁿ then that person need not honor teaching human precepts as doctrines.'

Things That Defile

¹⁰ Then he called the crowd to him and said to them, "Listen and understand: ¹¹it is not what goes into the mouth that defiles a person, but it is what comes out of the mouth that defiles." ¹²Then the disciples approached and said to him, "Do you know that the Pharisees took offense when they heard what you said?" ¹³He answered, "Every plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be uprooted. ¹⁴Let them alone; they are blind guides of the blind.^q And if one blind person guides another, both will fall into a pit." ¹⁵But Peter said to him, "Explain this parable to us." ¹⁶Then he said, "Are you also still without understanding? ¹⁷Do you not see that whatever goes into the mouth enters the stomach, and goes out into the sewer? ¹⁸But what comes out of the mouth proceeds from the heart, and this is what defiles. ¹⁹For out of the heart come evil intentions, murder, adultery, fornication, theft, false witness, slander. ²⁰These are what defile a person, but to eat with unwashed hands does not defile."

The Canaanite Woman's Faith

²¹ Jesus left that place and went away to the district of Tyre and Sidon. ²²Just then a Canaanite woman from that region came out and started shouting, "Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David; my daughter is tormented by a demon." ²³But he did not answer her at all. And his disciples came and urged him, saying, "Send her away, for she keeps shouting after us." ²⁴He answered, "I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." ²⁵But she came and knelt before him, saying, "Lord, help me." ²⁶He answered, "It is not fair to take the children's food and throw it to the dogs." ²⁷She said, "Yes, Lord, yet even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their masters' table." ²⁸Then Jesus answered her, "Woman, great is your faith! Let it be done for you as you wish." And her daughter was healed instantly.

went up the mountain, where he sat down.³⁰ Great crowds came to him, bringing with them the lame, the maimed, the blind, the mute, and many others. They put them at his feet, and he cured them,³¹ so that the crowd was amazed when they saw the mute speaking, the maimed whole, the lame walking, and the blind seeing. And they praised the God of Israel.

Feeding the Four Thousand

32 Then Jesus called his disciples to him and said, "I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat; and I do not want to send them away hungry, for they might faint on the way."³³ The disciples said to him, "Where are we to get enough bread in the desert to feed so great a crowd?"³⁴ Jesus asked them, "How many loaves have you?" They said, "Seven, and a few small fish."³⁵ Then ordering the crowd to sit down on the ground,³⁶ he took the seven loaves and the fish; and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds.³⁷ And all of them ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full.³⁸ Those who had eaten were four thousand men, besides women and children.³⁹ After sending away the crowds, he got into the boat and went to the region of Magadan.^r

The Demand for a Sign

16 The Pharisees and Sadducees came, and to test Jesus^s they asked him to show them a sign from heaven.² He answered them, "When it is evening, you say, 'It will be fair weather, for the sky is red.'³ And in the morning, 'It will be stormy today, for the sky is red and threatening.' You know how to interpret the appearance of the sky, but you cannot interpret the signs of the times.^t ⁴ An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah." Then he left them and went away.

The Yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees

5 When the disciples reached the other side, they had forgotten to bring any bread.⁶ Jesus said to them, "Watch out, and beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees."⁷ They said to one another, "It is because we have brought no bread."⁸ And becoming aware of it, Jesus said, "You of little faith, why are you talking about having no bread?⁹ Do you still not perceive? Do you not remember the five loaves for the five thousand, and how many baskets you gathered?¹⁰ Or the seven loaves for the four thousand, and how many baskets you gathered?¹¹ How could you fail to perceive that I was not speaking about bread? Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees!"¹² Then they understood that he had not told them to beware of the yeast of bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

and began to rebuke him, saying, "God forbid it, Lord! This must never happen to you." ²³But he turned and said to Peter, "Get behind me, Satan! You are a stumbling block to me; for you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things."

The Cross and Self-Denial

²⁴ Then Jesus told his disciples, "If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. ²⁵For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will find it. ²⁶For what will it profit them if they gain the whole world but forfeit their life? The Transfiguration

17 Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and his brother John and led them up a high mountain, by themselves. ²And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became dazzling white. ³Suddenly there appeared to them Moses and Elijah, talking with him. ⁴Then Peter said to Jesus, "Lord, it is good for us to be here; if you wish, I^y will make three dwellings^z here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah." ⁵While he was still speaking, suddenly a bright cloud overshadowed them, and from the cloud a voice said, "This is my Son, the Beloved;^a with him I am well pleased; listen to him!" ⁶When the disciples heard this, they fell to the ground and were overcome by fear. ⁷But Jesus came and touched them, saying, "Get up and do not be afraid." ⁸And when they looked up, they saw no one except Jesus himself alone.

⁹ As they were coming down the mountain, Jesus ordered them, "Tell no one about the vision until after the Son of Man has been raised from the dead." ¹⁰And the disciples asked him, "Why, then, do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?" ¹¹He replied, "Elijah is indeed coming and will restore all things; ¹²but I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they did not recognize him, but they did to him whatever they pleased. So also the Son of Man is about to suffer at their hands." ¹³Then the disciples understood that he was speaking to them about John the Baptist.

Jesus Cures a Boy with a Demon

¹⁴ When they came to the crowd, a man came to him, knelt before him, ¹⁵and said, "Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is an epileptic and he suffers terribly; he often falls into the fire and often into the water. ¹⁶And I brought him to your disciples, but they could not cure him." ¹⁷Jesus answered, "You faithless and perverse generation, how much longer must I be with you? How much longer must I put up with you? Bring him here to me." ¹⁸And Jesus rebuked the demon,^b and it^c came out of him, and the boy was cured instantly. ¹⁹Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, "Why could we not cast it out?" ²⁰He said to them, "Because of your little faith. For truly I tell you, if you have faith the size of a^d mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there,' and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you."^e

22 As they were gathering^f in Galilee, Jesus said to them, "The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into human hands, ²³and they will kill him, and on the third day he will be raised." And they were greatly distressed.

Jesus and the Temple Tax

24 When they reached Capernaum, the collectors of the temple tax^g came to Peter and said, "Does your teacher not pay the temple tax?" ²⁵He said, "Yes, he does." And when he came home, Jesus spoke of it first, asking, "What do you think, Simon? From whom do kings of the earth take toll or tribute? From their children or from others?" ²⁶When Peter^h said, "From others," Jesus said to him, "Then the children are free. ²⁷However, so that we do not give offense to them, go to the sea and cast a hook; take the first fish that comes up; and when you open its mouth, you will find a coin;ⁱ take that and give it to them for you and me."

True Greatness

18 At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, "Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?" ²He called a child, whom he put among them, ³and said, "Truly I tell you, unless you change and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven. ⁴Whoever becomes humble like this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. ⁵Whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me.

The Parable of the Lost Sheep

10 "Take care that you do not despise one of these little ones; for, I tell you, in heaven their angels continually see the face of my Father in heaven.^k ¹²What do you think? If a shepherd has a hundred sheep, and one of them has gone astray, does he not leave the ninety-nine on the mountains and go in search of the one that went astray? ¹³And if he finds it, truly I tell you, he rejoices over it more than over the ninety-nine that never went astray. ¹⁴So it is not the will of your^l Father in heaven that one of these little ones should be lost.

Disciplining Members of the Church

15 "If another member of the church^m sins against you,ⁿ go and point out the fault when the two of you are alone. If the member listens to you, you have regained that one.^o ¹⁶But if you are not listened to, take one or two others along with you, so that every word may be confirmed by the evidence of two or three witnesses. ¹⁷If the member refuses to listen to them, tell it to the church; and if the offender refuses to listen even to the church, let such a one be to you as a Gentile and a tax collector. ¹⁸Truly I tell you, whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven. ¹⁹Again, truly I tell you, if two of you agree on earth about anything you ask, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven. ²⁰For where two or three are gathered in my name, I am there among them."

Forgiveness

21 Then Peter came and said to him, "Lord, if another member of the church^p sins against me, how often should I forgive? As many as seven times?" ²²Jesus said to him, "Not seven times, but, I tell you, seventy-seven^q times.

I forgave you all that debt because you pleaded with me. ³³Should you not have had mercy on your fellow slave, as I had mercy on you?' ³⁴And in anger his lord handed him over to be tortured until he would pay his entire debt. ³⁵So my heavenly Father will also do to every one of you, if you do not forgive your brother or sister^t from your heart."

Teaching About Divorce

19 When Jesus had finished saying these things, he left Galilee and went to the region of Judea beyond the Jordan. ²Large crowds followed him, and he cured them there.

³ Some Pharisees came to him, and to test him they asked, "Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for any cause?" ⁴He answered, "Have you not read that the one who made them at the beginning 'made them male and female,' ⁵and said, 'For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh'? ⁶So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate." ⁷They said to him, "Why then did Moses command us to give a certificate of dismissal and to divorce her?" ⁸He said to them, "It was because you were so hard-hearted that Moses allowed you to divorce your wives, but from the beginning it was not so. ⁹And I say to you, whoever divorces his wife, except for unchastity, and marries another commits adultery."^u

¹⁰ His disciples said to him, "If such is the case of a man with his wife, it is better not to marry." ¹¹But he said to them, "Not everyone can accept this teaching, but only those to whom it is given. ¹²For there are eunuchs who have been so from birth, and there are eunuchs who have been made eunuchs by others, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let anyone accept this who can."

The Rich Young Man

¹⁶ Then someone came to him and said, "Teacher, what good deed must I do to have eternal life?" ¹⁷And he said to him, "Why do you ask me about what is good? There is only one who is good. If you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments." ¹⁸He said to him, "Which ones?" And Jesus said, "You shall not murder; You shall not commit adultery; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; ¹⁹Honor your father and mother; also, You shall love your neighbor as yourself." ²⁰The young man said to him, "I have kept all these; what do I still lack?" ²¹Jesus said to him, "If you wish to be perfect, go, sell your possessions, and give the money^w to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me." ²²When the young man heard this word, he went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

²³ Then Jesus said to his disciples, "Truly I tell you, it will be hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven. ²⁴Again I tell you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." ²⁵When the disciples heard this, they were greatly astounded and said, "Then who can be saved?" ²⁶But Jesus looked at them and said, "For mortals it is impossible, but for God all things are possible."

²⁷ Then Peter said in reply, "Look, we have left everything and followed you. What then will we have?" ²⁸Jesus said to them, "Truly I tell you, at the renewal of all things, when the Son of Man is seated on the throne of his glory, you who have followed me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. ²⁹And everyone who has left houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother or children or fields, for my name's sake, will receive a hundredfold,^x and will inherit eternal life. ³⁰But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.

A Third Time Jesus Foretells His Death and Resurrection

17 While Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside by themselves, and said to them on the way, ¹⁸"See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and scribes, and they will condemn him to death;¹⁹ then they will hand him over to the Gentiles to be mocked and flogged and crucified; and on the third day he will be raised."

*The Request of the Mother of James

20 Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to him with her sons, and kneeling before him, she asked a favor of him.²¹ And he said to her, "What do you want?" She said to him, "Declare that these two sons of mine will sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your kingdom."²² But Jesus answered, "You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I am about to drink?"^c They said to him, "We are able."²³ He said to them, "You will indeed drink my cup, but to sit at my right hand and at my left, this is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared by my Father."

24 When the ten heard it, they were angry with the two brothers.²⁵ But Jesus called them to him and said, "You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them.²⁶ It will not be so among you; but whoever wishes to be great among you must be your servant,²⁷ and whoever

James was later martyred (see Acts 12.2) and various legends report John's death. Not mine to grant. Here Matthew subordinates the Son to the Father (cf. 11.27). 20.24–28 Cf. Mk 10.41–45;

Jesus Heals Two Blind Men

²⁹ As they were leaving Jericho, a large crowd followed him. ³⁰ There were two blind men sitting by the roadside. When they heard that Jesus was passing by, they shouted, "Lord,^d have mercy on us, Son of David!" ³¹ The crowd sternly ordered them to be quiet; but they shouted even more loudly, "Have mercy on us, Lord, Son of David!" ³² Jesus stood still and called them, saying, "What do you want me to do for you?" ³³ They said to him, "Lord, let our eyes be opened." ³⁴ Moved with compassion, Jesus touched their eyes. Immediately they regained their sight and followed him.

Jesus' Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem

21 When they had come near Jerusalem and had reached Bethphage, at the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two disciples, ² saying to them, "Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied, and a colt with her; untie them and bring them to me. ³ If anyone says anything to you, just say this, 'The Lord needs them.' And he will send them immediately.^e" ⁴ This took place to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet, saying,

⁵ "Tell the daughter of Zion,
Look, your king is coming to you,
humble, and mounted on
a donkey,
and on a colt, the foal of
a donkey."

⁶ The disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them; ⁷ they brought the donkey and the colt, and put their cloaks on them, and he sat on them. ⁸ A very large crowd^f spread their cloaks on the road, and others cut branches from the trees and spread them on the road. ⁹ The crowds that went ahead of him and that followed were shouting,

"Hosanna to the Son of David!
Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord!
Hosanna in the highest heaven!"

¹⁰ When he entered Jerusalem, the whole city was in turmoil, asking, "Who is this?" ¹¹ The crowds were saying, "This is the prophet Jesus from Nazareth in Galilee."

Humble. See 11.29; 20.28. In the poetic text of Zechariah, the same thought is often expressed in successive lines and on a colt is simply a repetition of on a donkey. Matthew interprets them as two different animals (see 21.7; cf. Mk 11.7). 21.8 Spread . . . cloaks. See 2 Kings 9.13. the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves. ¹³He said to them, "It is written,

'My house shall be called a house
of prayer';
but you are making it a den
of robbers."

¹⁴The blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he cured them. ¹⁵But when the chief priests and the scribes saw the amazing things that he did, and heard^h the children crying out in the temple, "Hosanna to the Son of David," they became angry ¹⁶and said to him, "Do you hear what these are saying?" Jesus said to them, "Yes; have you never read,

'Out of the mouths of infants and nursing babies
you have prepared praise for
yourself'?"

¹⁷He left them, went out of the city to Bethany, and spent the night there.

Jesus Curses the Fig Tree

¹⁸In the morning, when he returned to the city, he was hungry. ¹⁹And seeing a fig tree by the side of the road, he went to it and found nothing at all on it but leaves. Then he said to it, "May no fruit ever come from you again!" And the fig tree withered at once. ²⁰When the disciples saw it, they were amazed, saying, "How did the fig tree wither at once?" ²¹Jesus answered them, "Truly I tell you, if you have faith and do not doubt, not only will you do what has been done to the fig tree, but even if you say to this mountain, 'Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,' it will be done. ²²Whatever you ask for in prayer with faith, you will receive."

The Authority of Jesus Questioned

²³When he entered the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came to him as he was teaching, and said, "By what authority are you doing these things, and who gave you this authority?" ²⁴Jesus said to them, "I will also ask you one question; if you tell me the answer, then I will also tell you by what authority I do these things. ²⁵Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin?" And they argued with one another, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say to us, 'Why then did you not believe him?'" ²⁶But if we say, 'Of human origin,' we are afraid of the crowd; for all regard John as a prophet." ²⁷So they answered Jesus, "We do not know." And he said to them, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things.

The Parable of the Wicked Tenants

³³ "Listen to another parable. There was a landowner who planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a wine press in it, and built a watchtower. Then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. ³⁴When the harvest time had come, he sent his slaves to the tenants to collect his produce. ³⁵But the tenants seized his slaves and beat one, killed another, and stoned another. ³⁶Again he sent other slaves, more than the first; and they treated them in the same way. ³⁷Finally he sent his son to them, saying, 'They will respect my son.' ³⁸But when the tenants saw the son, they said to themselves, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him and get his inheritance.' ³⁹So they seized him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him. ⁴⁰Now when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenants?" ⁴¹They said to him, "He will put those wretches to a miserable death, and lease the vineyard to other tenants who will give him the produce at the harvest time."

⁴² Jesus said to them, "Have you never read in the scriptures:

'The stone that the builders
rejected

has become the cornerstone;^j
this was the Lord's doing,
and it is amazing in our eyes?'

⁴³Therefore I tell you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a people that produces the fruits of the kingdom.^k ⁴⁴The one who falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls."^l

⁴⁵ When the chief priests and the Pharisees heard his parables, they realized that he was speaking about them. ⁴⁶They wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowds, because they regarded him as a prophet.

The Parable of the Wedding Banquet

22 Once more Jesus spoke to them in parables, saying: ²"The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king who gave a wedding banquet for his son. ³He sent his slaves to call those who had been invited to the wedding banquet, but they would not come. ⁴Again he sent other slaves, saying, 'Tell those who have been invited: Look, I have prepared my dinner, my oxen and my fat calves have been slaughtered, and everything is ready; come to the wedding banquet.' ⁵But they made light of it and went away, one to his farm, another to his business, while the rest seized his slaves, mistreated them, and killed them. ⁷The king was enraged. He sent his troops, destroyed those murderers, and burned their city. ⁸Then he said to his slaves, 'The wedding is ready, but those invited were not worthy. ⁹Go therefore into the main streets, and invite everyone you find to the wedding banquet.' ¹⁰Those slaves went out into the streets and gathered all whom they found, both good and bad; so the wedding hall was filled with guests.

¹¹ "But when the king came in to see the guests, he noticed a man there who was not wearing a wedding robe, ¹²and he said to him, 'Friend, how did you get in here without a wedding robe?' And he was speechless. ¹³Then the king said to the attendants, 'Bind him hand and foot, and throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.' ¹⁴For many are called, but few are chosen."

The Question About Paying Taxes

¹⁵ Then the Pharisees went and plotted to entrap him in what he said. ¹⁶So they sent their disciples to him, along with the Herodians, saying, "Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and teach the way of God in accordance with truth, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality. ¹⁷Tell us, then, what you think. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not?" ¹⁸But Jesus, aware of their malice, said, "Why are you putting me to the test, you hypocrites? ¹⁹Show me the coin used for the tax." And they brought him a denarius. ²⁰Then he said to them, "Whose head is this, and whose title?" ²¹They answered, "The emperor's." Then he said to them, "Give therefore to the emperor the things that are the emperor's, and to God the things that are God's." ²²When they heard this, they were amazed; and they left him and went away.

the Israelites. 22.4 Other slaves are probably Christian apostles or prophets (see note on 21.36). 22.6 On the persecution and martyrdom of Israelite prophets and Christian apostles, see 10.16–23; 21.35–36; 23.29–35. 22.7 The graphic description of the punishment (cf. 21.41) seems to be a reference to the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus in 70 C.E. 22.10 Both good and bad are within the Christian community (see note on 13.41), leading to the comments in 22.11–14. 22.11–14 A fourth allegorical parable, added by Matthew to the preceding one. 22.11 A wedding robe would not be expected of someone summoned off the streets (22.9–10); it probably symbolizes a new way of life (see Rom 13.14; Gal 3.27–28; Col 3.11–12). 22.12 Friend, probably intended sarcastically (see 20.13; 26.50). 22.13 Weeping and gnashing of teeth. See note on 8.12. 22.14 The final words of the parable serve as a warning against self-righteous arrogance among God's new people (see also 7.13–14; Rom 11.13–24; 2 Esd 8.3, 41; 9.15; Gospel of Thomas 23).

22.15–46 Three more attempts by the Jerusalem authorities to entrap Jesus intensify the conflict. 22.15–22 Cf. Mk 12.13–17; Lk

20.20–26. 22.15 Pharisees. See note on 3.7. On the plot to entrap, see 12.14; 16.1; 19.3; 22.35. 22.16 Herodians were probably the supporters of Herod Antipas (see 14.1) or the Herodian dynasty (see note on 2.1). The group is mentioned nowhere outside the Gospels (see also Mk 3.6; 12.13). Teacher. The opening words are clearly insincere flattery. Do not regard people with partiality, i.e., do not show favoritism, especially toward people of high social status (see, e.g., Jas 2.1–9; cf. Mt 23.5–7). 22.17 Since census taxes were demanded by the Romans and despised by the Jews, the trap (22.15) was to force Jesus to make a statement that was either treasonous (to Rome) or offensive (to Jews). 22.18 Hypocrites. See note on 15.7. 22.19–20 A silver denarius bore an image of the emperor's head (see Ex 20.4; Deut 5.8) and the title "TIBERIUS CAESAR, SON OF THE DIVINE AUGUSTUS, AUGUSTUS." 22.21 Jesus appears to support the state (see also 17.24–27; Rom 13.1–7; 1 Pet 2.13–17), but the political implications of his religious, social, and economic teachings and life-style were revolutionary and he was crucified by the Romans. 22.23–33 Cf. Mk 12.18–27; Lk 20.27–39. 22.23 Sadducees (see note on 3.7) did not believe in the resurrection saying, ²⁴“Teacher, Moses said, ‘If a man dies childless, his brother shall marry the widow, and raise up children for his brother.’ ²⁵Now there were seven brothers among us; the first married, and died childless, leaving the widow to his brother. ²⁶The second did the same, so also the third, down to the seventh. ²⁷Last of all, the woman herself died. ²⁸In the resurrection, then, whose wife of the seven will she be? For all of them had married her.”

²⁹ Jesus answered them, “You are wrong, because you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God. ³⁰For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angelsⁿ in heaven. ³¹And as for the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was said to you by God, ³²‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob’? He is God not of the dead, but of the living.” ³³And when the crowd heard it, they were astounded at his teaching.

The Greatest Commandment

³⁴ When the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together, ³⁵and one of them, a lawyer, asked him a question to test him. ³⁶“Teacher, which commandment in the law is the greatest?” ³⁷He said to him, “‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind.’ ³⁸This is the greatest and first commandment. ³⁹And a second is like it: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ ⁴⁰On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.”

The Question About David's Son

⁴¹ Now while the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them this question: ⁴²“What do you think of the Messiah?^o Whose son is he?” They said to him, “The son of David.” ⁴³He said to them, “How is it then that David by the Spirit^p calls him Lord, saying,

⁴⁴ ‘The Lord said to my Lord,
“Sit at my right hand,
until I put your enemies under your feet”?’

⁴⁵If David thus calls him Lord, how can he be his son?” ⁴⁶No one was able to give him an answer, nor from that day did anyone dare to ask him any more questions.

Jesus Denounces Scribes and Pharisees

23 Then Jesus said to the crowds and to his disciples, ²“The scribes and the Pharisees sit on Moses’ seat; ³therefore, do whatever they teach you and follow it; but do not do as they do, for because it is not affirmed in the Pentateuch (see Acts 23.8). 22.24 Moses, the presumed author of the Pentateuch (see note on 8.4). The quotation derives from Deut 25.5–6. The purpose of this legislation was to preserve the deceased male’s family line and name (see Gen 38.8; Ruth 4.10). 22.30 Angels, immortal beings who neither marry nor procreate (see 1 Cor 15.42–44). 22.31 Have you not read. See note on 12.3. 22.32 The quotation is from Ex 3.6. The present tense (I am) is here taken to imply that the deceased patriarchs were still living, i.e., resurrected. Evidence for the doctrine of resurrection is thus found in the Pentateuch (see note on 22.23). 22.34–40 Cf. Mk 12.28–31; Lk 10.25–28. 22.35 Lawyer, one learned in the Mosaic law. To test. It was assumed that David, the presumed author of Psalms, spoke under inspiration and thus prophetically (see Acts 2.30–31; 4.25). 22.44 Ps 110.1; see also Ps 8.6b. The Lord, here God. My Lord, originally the Israelite king, here understood to be the promised Messiah (see note on 7.21). At the right hand was a position of power (see 20.21; 25.33; 26.64). 22.45 Fathers never address their sons as “lord,” but only sons their fathers or inferiors their superiors. Since Matthew actually stresses Jesus’ Davidic sonship elsewhere (see 1.1, 6, 17; note on 9.27), this saying probably suggests that Son of God, Son of Man, and Lord are more accurate titles.

23.1–36 A vitriolic attack on the leaders of Israel. 23.1–12 Cf. Mk 12.37–39; Lk 11.46; 20.45–46. 23.1 Crowds. See note on 4.25. 23.2 Scribes. See note on 2.4. Pharisees. they do not practice what they teach. ⁴They tie up heavy burdens, hard to bear,^q and lay them on the shoulders of others; but they themselves are unwilling to lift a finger to move them. ⁵They do all their deeds to be seen by others; for they make their phylacteries broad and their fringes long. ⁶They love to have the place of honor at banquets and the best seats in the synagogues, ⁷and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, and to have people call them rabbi. ⁸But you are not to be called rabbi, for you have one teacher, and you are all students.^r ⁹And call no one your father on earth, for you have one Father—the one in heaven. ¹⁰Nor are you to be called instructors, for you have one instructor, the Messiah.^s ¹¹The greatest among you will be your servant. ¹²All who exalt themselves will be humbled, and all who humble themselves will be exalted.

For which is greater, the gift or the altar that makes the gift sacred? ²⁰So whoever swears by the altar, swears by it and by everything on it; ²¹and whoever swears by the sanctuary, swears by it and by the one who dwells in it; ²²and whoever swears by heaven, swears by the throne of God and by the one who is seated upon it.

Later in the Gospel Jesus is accused of threatening not one stone will be left here upon another; all will be thrown down."

Signs of the End of the Age

3 When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him privately, saying, "Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign of your coming and of the end of the age?" 4 Jesus answered them, "Beware that no one leads you astray. 5 For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am the Messiah!' and they will lead many astray. 6 And you will hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not alarmed; for this must take place, but the end is not yet. 7 For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there will be famines^z and earthquakes in various places: 8 all this is but the beginning of the birth pangs.

Persecutions Foretold

9 "Then they will hand you over to be tortured and will put you to death, and you will be hated by all nations because of my name. 10 Then many will fall away,^a and they will betray one another and hate one another. 11 And many false prophets will arise and lead many astray. 12 And because of the increase of lawlessness, the love of many will grow cold. 13 But the one who endures to the end will be saved. 14 And this good news^b of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the world, as a testimony to all the nations; and then the end will come.

The Desolating Sacrilege

15 "So when you see the desolating sacrilege standing in the holy place, as was spoken of by the prophet Daniel (let the reader understand), 16 then those in Judea must flee to the mountains; 17 the one on the housetop must not go down to take what is in the house; 18 the one in the field must not turn back to get a coat. 19 Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days! 20 Pray

The Mount of Olives, located east of the Jerusalem Temple Mount (see note on 4.8; 21.1; 26.30; Acts 1.12), was the place where, according to tradition, the temple-departing glory of God went (Ezek 10.18; 11.23; see 24.1) and where the Messiah was expected to appear (based on Zech 14.1-10). When will this be, i.e., the destruction of the temple, which is carefully separated from the sign of Jesus' coming for final judgment at the end of the age; cf. Mk 13.4. 24.4 Leads you astray. See 24.11, 24. 24.5 According to the Jewish writer Josephus, several people in first-century Palestine claimed to be the Messiah (Antiquities 17.271-85; see also Mt 24.23-27; Acts 5.35-39; 21.38). 24.6-8 The view was widespread that a series of earthly catastrophes would, like birth pangs, precede the coming of the Messiah or the messianic age (see Isa 26.17-21; 42.14-16; 1 Thess 5.2-3; Rev 12.2; see also 2 Esd 13.31-32; 2 Baruch 27). 24.9-14 Cf. Mk 13.9a, 13; Lk 21.12a, 17-19. Matthew omits most of Mk 13.9b-12, having used it earlier in 10.17-22. 24.9 All nations. Here persecution from outside the Jewish community is envisioned, probably in connection with the gentile mission (see 24.14; 28.19; cf. 10.17). 24.10 Fall away. See note on 13.21. 24.11 False prophets. See 24.4; also 7.15-23. 24.12 Love . . . will grow cold. The reference could be to love within the community (see 24.10; see also 5.43-46) or to love, i.e., fidelity, to God (see 13.20-21; 22.37-39; see also 2 Tim 3.1-5). 24.13 See 10.22. 24.14 This good news of the kingdom (see also 4.23; 9.35; 26.13), i.e., Jesus' teachings and deeds and perhaps also Matthew's Gospel. To all the nations. The gentile mission will precede the end (see 26.13; 28.19). 24.15-28 Cf. Mk 13.14-23; Lk 17.23-24, 37; 21.20-24. 24.15 The desolating sacrilege, from Dan 9.27; 11.31; 12.11 (see also 1 Macc 1.54; 2 Macc 8.17), where it originally referred to an altar to the Greek god Zeus set up in the Jerusalem temple in 167 B.C.E. by the Seleucid king Antiochus IV Epiphanes. The saying may once have referred to the emperor Caligula's unfulfilled plan to set up his statue in the Jerusalem temple in 40 C.E., but Matthew probably understood it as a reference to the presence of the Roman general Titus in the temple in 70 C.E. (see note on 22.7). The interruption (let the reader understand) signals the importance of the mysterious symbol. 24.16 Those in Judea must flee to the mountains. A Christian tradition (whose accuracy is much debated) claims that Jerusalem Christians obeyed an oracle to flee to Pella (a city east of the Jordan) when the Roman armies threatened the city (Eusebius Ecclesiastical History 3.5.3). 24.19 Woe, here a lament (see note on 11.21). 24.20 Travel on the sabbath was restricted by Jewish law (see Ex 16.29-30; Acts 1.12). This saying suggests that that your flight may not be in winter or on a sabbath. ²¹For at that time there will be great suffering, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, and never will be. ²²And if those days had not been cut short, no one would be saved; but for the sake of the elect those days will be cut short. ²³Then if anyone says to you, 'Look! Here is the Messiah!' ^c or 'There he is!'—do not believe it. ²⁴For false messiahs ^d and false prophets will appear and produce great signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect. ²⁵Take note, I have told you beforehand. ²⁶So, if they say to you, 'Look! He is in the wilderness,' do not go out. If they say, 'Look! He is in the inner rooms,' do not believe it. ²⁷For as the lightning comes from the east and flashes as far as the west, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. ²⁸Wherever the corpse is, there the vultures will gather.

The Coming of the Son of Man

²⁹ "Immediately after the suffering of those days

the sun will be darkened,
and the moon will not give
its light;
the stars will fall from heaven,
and the powers of heaven will be shaken.

³⁰Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven, and then all the tribes of the earth will mourn, and they will see 'the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven' with power and great glory. ³¹And he will send out his angels with a loud trumpet call, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.

The Lesson of the Fig Tree

³² "From the fig tree learn its lesson: as soon as its branch becomes tender and puts forth its leaves, you know that summer is near. ³³So also, when you see all these things, you know that he ^c is near, at the very gates. ³⁴Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all these things have taken place. ³⁵Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

The Necessity for Watchfulness

³⁶ "But about that day and hour no one knows, neither the angels of heaven, nor the Son, ^f but only the Father. ³⁷For as the days of Noah were, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. ³⁸For as in those days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, ³⁹and they knew nothing until the flood came and swept them all away, so too will be the coming of the Son of Man. ⁴⁰Then two will be in the field; one will be taken and one will be left. ⁴¹Two women will be grinding meal together; one will be

The Faithful or the Unfaithful Slave

45 "Who then is the faithful and wise slave, whom his master has put in charge of his household, to give the other slaves^h their allowance of food at the proper time? ⁴⁶Blessed is that slave whom his master will find at work when he arrives. ⁴⁷Truly I tell you, he will put that one in charge of all his possessions. ⁴⁸But if that wicked slave says to himself, 'My master is delayed,' ⁴⁹and he begins to beat his fellow slaves, and eats and drinks with drunkards, ⁵⁰the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour that he does not know. ⁵¹He will cut him in piecesⁱ and put him with the hypocrites, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

The Parable of the Ten Bridesmaids

25 "Then the kingdom of heaven will be like this. Ten bridesmaids^j took their lamps and went to meet the bridegroom.^k ²Five of them were foolish, and five were wise. ³When the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them; ⁴but the wise took flasks of oil with their lamps. ⁵As the bridegroom was delayed, all of them became drowsy and slept. ⁶But at midnight there was a shout, 'Look! Here is the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.' ⁷Then all those bridesmaids^j got up and trimmed their lamps. ⁸The foolish said to the wise, 'Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.' ⁹But the wise replied, 'No! there will not be enough for you and for us; you had better go to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.' ¹⁰And while they went to buy it, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went with him into the wedding banquet; and the door was shut. ¹¹Later the other bridesmaids^j came also, saying, 'Lord, lord, open to us.' ¹²But he replied, 'Truly I tell you, I do not know you.' ¹³Keep awake therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour.^l

The Parable of the Talents

Here you have what is yours.' ²⁶But his master replied, 'You wicked and lazy slave! You knew, did you, that I reap where I did not sow, and gather where I did not scatter? ²⁷Then you ought to have invested my money with the bankers, and on my return I would have received what was my own with interest. ²⁸So take the talent from him, and give it to the one with the ten talents. ²⁹For to all those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. ³⁰As for this worthless slave, throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.'

The Judgment of the Gentiles

³¹ "When the Son of Man comes in his glory, and all the angels with him, then he will sit on the throne of his glory. ³²All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate people one from another as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats, ³³and he will put the sheep at his right hand and the goats at the left. ³⁴Then the king will say to those at his right hand, 'Come, you that are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; ³⁵for I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, ³⁶I was naked and you gave me clothing, I was sick and you took care of me, I was in prison and you visited me.' ³⁷Then the righteous will answer him, 'Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry and gave you food, or thirsty and gave you something to drink? ³⁸And when was it that we saw you a stranger and welcomed you, or naked and gave you clothing? ³⁹And when was it that we saw you sick or in prison and visited you?' ⁴⁰And the king will answer them, 'Truly I

The Plot to Kill Jesus

26 When Jesus had finished saying all these things, he said to his disciples, ²“You know that after two days the Passover is coming, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified.”

³ Then the chief priests and the elders of the people gathered in the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas,

⁴and they conspired to arrest Jesus by stealth and kill him. ⁵But they said, “Not during the festival, or there may be a riot among the people.”

The Anointing at Bethany

⁶ Now while Jesus was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper,^o ⁷a woman came to him with an alabaster jar of very costly ointment, and she poured it on his head as he sat at the table. ⁸But when the disciples saw it, they were angry and said, “Why this waste? ⁹For this ointment could have been sold for a large sum, and the money given to the poor.” ¹⁰But Jesus, aware of this, said to them, “Why do you trouble the woman? She has performed a good service for me. ¹¹For you always have the poor with you, but you will not always have me. ¹²By pouring this ointment on my body she has prepared me for burial. ¹³Truly I tell you, wherever this good news^p is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her.”

priests ¹⁵and said, "What will you give me if I betray him to you?" They paid him thirty pieces of silver. ¹⁶And from that moment he began to look for an opportunity to betray him.

The Passover with the Disciples

17 On the first day of Unleavened Bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying, "Where do you want us to make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?" ¹⁸He said, "Go into the city to a certain man, and say to him, 'The Teacher says, My time is near; I will keep the Passover at your house with my disciples.'" ¹⁹So the disciples did as Jesus had directed them, and they prepared the Passover meal.

20 When it was evening, he took his place with the twelve;^q ²¹and while they were eating, he said, "Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me." ²²And they became greatly distressed and began to say to him one after another, "Surely not I, Lord?" ²³He answered, "The one who has dipped his hand into the bowl with me will betray me. ²⁴The Son of Man goes as it is written of him, but woe to that one by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that one not to have been born." ²⁵Judas, who betrayed him, said, "Surely not I, Rabbi?" He replied, "You have said so."

The Institution of the Lord's Supper

26 While they were eating, Jesus took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to the disciples, and said, "Take, eat; this is my body." ²⁷Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, saying, "Drink from it, all of you; ²⁸for this is my blood of the^r covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. ²⁹I tell you, I will never again drink of this fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father's kingdom."

30 When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

'I will strike the shepherd,
and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.'

³²But after I am raised up, I will go ahead of you to Galilee." ³³Peter said to him, "Though all become deserters because of you, I will never desert you." ³⁴Jesus said to him, "Truly I tell you, this very night, before the cock crows, you will deny me three times." ³⁵Peter said to him, "Even though I must die with you, I will not deny you." And so said all the disciples.

Jesus Prays in Gethsemane

36 Then Jesus went with them to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, "Sit here while I go over there and pray." 37 He took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be grieved and agitated. 38 Then he said to them, "I am deeply grieved, even to death; remain here, and stay awake with me." 39 And going a little farther, he threw himself on the ground and prayed, "My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from me; yet not what I want but what you want." 40 Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, "So, could you not stay awake with me one hour? 41 Stay awake and pray that you may not come into the time of trial; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." 42 Again he went away for the second time and prayed, "My Father, if this cannot pass unless I drink it, your will be done." 43 Again he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. 44 So leaving them again, he went away and prayed for the third time, saying the same words. 45 Then he came to the disciples and said to them, "Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? See, the hour is at hand, and the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. 46 Get up, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand."

The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus

47 While he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived; with him was a large crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and the elders of the people. 48 Now the betrayer had given them a sign, saying, "The one I will kiss is the man; arrest him." 49 At once he came up to Jesus and said, "Greetings, Rabbi!" and kissed him. 50 Jesus said to him, "Friend, do what you are here to do." Then they came and laid hands on Jesus and arrested him. 51 Suddenly, one of those with Jesus put his hand on his sword, drew it, and struck the slave of the high priest, cutting off his ear. 52 Then Jesus said to him, "Put your sword back into its place; for all who take the sword will perish by the sword. 53 Do you think that I cannot appeal to my Father, and he will at once send me more than twelve legions of angels? 54 But how then would the scriptures be fulfilled, which say it must happen in this way?" 55 At that hour Jesus said to the crowds, "Have you come out with swords and clubs to arrest me as though I were a bandit? Day after day I sat in the temple teaching, and you did not arrest me. 56 But all this has taken place, so that the scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled." Then all the disciples deserted him and fled.

Jesus Before the High Priest

57 Those who had arrested Jesus took him to Caiaphas the high priest, in whose house the scribes and the elders had gathered. 58 But Peter was following him at a distance, as far as the courtyard of the high priest; and going inside, he sat with the guards in order to see how this would end. 59 Now the chief priests and the whole council were looking for false testimony against Jesus so that they might put him to death,⁶⁰ but they found none, though many false witnesses came forward. At last two came forward⁶¹ and said, "This fellow said, 'I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days.'"⁶² The high priest stood up and said, "Have you no answer? What is it that they testify against you?"⁶³ But Jesus was silent. Then the high priest said to him, "I put you under oath before the living God, tell us if you are the Messiah,^t the Son of God."⁶⁴ Jesus said to him, "You have said so. But I tell you,

From now on you will see the Son of Man

Power
and coming on the clouds
of heaven."

⁶⁵ Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "He has blasphemed! Why do we still need witnesses? You have now heard his blasphemy."⁶⁶ What is your verdict?" They answered, "He deserves death."⁶⁷ Then they spat in his face and struck him; and some slapped him,⁶⁸ saying, "Prophecy to us, you Messiah!^t Who is it that struck you?"

Peter's Denial of Jesus

⁶⁹ Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. A servant-girl came to him and said, "You also were with Jesus the Galilean."⁷⁰ But he denied it before all of them, saying, "I do not know what you are talking about."⁷¹ When he went out to the porch, another servant-girl saw him, and she said to the bystanders, "This man was with Jesus of Nazareth."^u⁷² Again he denied it with an oath, "I do not know the man."⁷³ After a little while the bystanders came up and said to Peter, "Certainly you are also one of them, for your accent betrays you."⁷⁴ Then he began to curse, and he swore an oath, "I do not know the man!" At that moment the cock crowed.⁷⁵ Then Peter remembered what Jesus had said: "Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times." And he went out and wept bitterly.

Jesus Brought Before Pilate

27 When morning came, all the chief priests and the elders of the people conferred together against Jesus in order to bring about his death.² They bound him, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate the governor.

The Suicide of Judas

³ When Judas, his betrayer, saw that Jesus^v was condemned, he repented and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders.⁴ He said, "I have sinned by betraying innocent^w blood." But they said, "What is that to us?

controlled by priests. The session described here raises many questions, because trials during Passover, night trials, and single sessions for capital offenses were forbidden by Jewish law (codified about 200 C.E.). Moreover, capital punishment may have been illegal for Jews (see also 27.2). 26.60 Two witnesses were required by Jewish law (see note on 18.16). 26.61 See 24.2; 27.40. In three days, hinting at Jesus' resurrection (see also 12.40; 16.21). 26.63 Silent. For Christians, this was the place of the resurrected, exalted Messiah (see Ps 110.1; see also Acts 2.32–36; 7.56; Rom 8.34; Eph 1.20; Col 3.1; Heb 1.3, 13; 8.1; 10.12). Coming, i.e., for the final judgment (see 24.29–31). 26.65 Tore his clothes, a gesture of distress (see 2 Kings 18.37–19.3; Acts 14.14).

Blasphemy, normally dishonoring God's name (see note on 12.31–32), here used loosely to describe Jesus' messianic affirmation. 26.66 Death was the punishment for blasphemy (see Lev 24.10–23). 26.67 See Isa 50.6. 26.69–75 Cf. See note on 26.15. 27.4 Shedding innocent blood pollutes the land and brings "bloodguilt" on the people (see Num 35.33–34; Deut 19.10).

See to it yourself.”⁵ Throwing down the pieces of silver in the temple, he departed; and he went and hanged himself.⁶ But the chief priests, taking the pieces of silver, said, “It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, since they are blood money.”⁷ After conferring together, they used them to buy the potter’s field as a place to bury foreigners.⁸ For this reason that field has been called the Field of Blood to this day.⁹ Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah,^x “And they took^y the thirty pieces of silver, the price of the one on whom a price had been set,^z on whom some of the people of Israel had set a price,¹⁰ and they gave^a them for the potter’s field, as the Lord commanded me.”

Pilate Questions Jesus

11 Now Jesus stood before the governor; and the governor asked him, “Are you the King of the Jews?” Jesus said, “You say so.”¹² But when he was accused by the chief priests and elders, he did not answer.¹³ Then Pilate said to him, “Do you not hear how many accusations they make against you?”¹⁴ But he gave him no answer, not even to a single charge, so that the governor was greatly amazed.

Barabbas or Jesus?

15 Now at the festival the governor was accustomed to release a prisoner for the crowd, anyone whom they wanted.¹⁶ At that time they had a notorious prisoner, called Jesus^b Barabbas.¹⁷ So after they had gathered, Pilate said to them, “Whom do you want me to release for you, Jesus^b Barabbas or Jesus who is called the Messiah?”^c¹⁸ For he realized that it was out of jealousy that they had handed him over.¹⁹ While he was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent word to him, “Have nothing to do with that innocent man, for today I have suffered a great deal because of a dream about him.”²⁰ Now the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to have Jesus killed.²¹ The governor again said to them, “Which of the two do you want me to release for you?” And they said, “Barabbas.”²² Pilate said to them, “Then what should I do with Jesus who is called the Messiah?”^c All of them said, “Let him be crucified!”²³ Then he asked, “Why, what evil has he done?” But they shouted all the more, “Let him be crucified!”

Pilate Hands Jesus over to Be Crucified

24 So when Pilate saw that he could do nothing, but rather that a riot was beginning, he took some water and washed his hands before the crowd, saying, “I am innocent of this man’s blood;^d see to it yourselves.”²⁵ Then the people as a whole

See Deut 21.6–7; Pss 26.6; 73.13. 27.25 The people as a whole, more inclusive than the crowd (v. 24). His blood be on us and on our children. This familiar formula for accepting respon-answered, "His blood be on us and on our children!" ²⁶So he released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

The Soldiers Mock Jesus

27 Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the governor's headquarters,^e and they gathered the whole cohort around him. ²⁸They stripped him and put a scarlet robe on him, ²⁹and after twisting some thorns into a crown, they put it on his head. They put a reed in his right hand and knelt before him and mocked him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" ³⁰They spat on him, and took the reed and struck him on the head. ³¹After mocking him, they stripped him of the robe and put his own clothes on him. Then they led him away to crucify him.

The Crucifixion of Jesus

32 As they went out, they came upon a man from Cyrene named Simon; they compelled this man to carry his cross. ³³And when they came to a place called Golgotha (which means Place of a Skull), ³⁴they offered him wine to drink, mixed with gall; but when he tasted it, he would not drink it. ³⁵And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among themselves by casting lots;^f ³⁶then they sat down there and kept watch over him. ³⁷Over his head they put the charge against him, which read, "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews."

38 Then two bandits were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left. ³⁹Those who passed by derided^g him, shaking their heads ⁴⁰and saying, "You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross." ⁴¹In the same way the chief priests also, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking him, saying, ⁴²"He saved others; he cannot save himself.^h He is the King of Israel; let him come down from the cross now, and we will believe in him. ⁴³He trusts in God; let God deliver him now, if he wants to; for he said, 'I am God's Son.'" ⁴⁴The bandits who were

The Death of Jesus

45 From noon on, darkness came over the whole landⁱ until three in the afternoon. 46 And about three o'clock Jesus cried with a loud voice, "Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?" that is, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?" 47 When some of the bystanders heard it, they said, "This man is calling for Elijah." 48 At once one of them ran and got a sponge, filled it with sour wine, put it on a stick, and gave it to him to drink. 49 But the others said, "Wait, let us see whether Elijah will come to save him."^j 50 Then Jesus cried again with a loud voice and breathed his last.^k 51 At that moment the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom. The earth shook, and the rocks were split. 52 The tombs also were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep were raised. 53 After his resurrection they came out of the tombs and entered the holy city and appeared to many. 54 Now when the centurion and those with him, who were keeping watch over Jesus, saw the earthquake and what took place, they were terrified and said, "Truly this man was God's Son!"^l

55 Many women were also there, looking on from a distance; they had followed

Jesus from Galilee and had provided for him. 56 Among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

The Burial of Jesus

57 When it was evening, there came a rich man from Arimathea, named Joseph, who was also a disciple of Jesus. 58 He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus; then Pilate ordered it to be given to him. 59 So Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth⁶⁰ and laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn in the rock. He then rolled a great stone to the door of the tomb and went away. 61 Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting opposite the tomb.

The Resurrection of Jesus

28 After the sabbath, as the first day of the week was dawning, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to see the tomb. ²And suddenly there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord, descending from heaven, came and rolled back the stone and sat on it. ³His appearance was like lightning, and his clothing white as snow. ⁴For fear of him the guards shook and became like dead men. ⁵But the angel said to the women, "Do not be afraid; I know that you are looking for Jesus who was crucified. ⁶He is not here; for he has been raised, as he said. Come, see the place where he^o lay. ⁷Then go quickly and tell his disciples, 'He has been raised from the dead,^p and indeed he is going ahead of you to Galilee; there you will see him.' This is my message for you." ⁸So they left the tomb quickly with fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples. ⁹Suddenly Jesus met them and said, "Greetings!" And they came to him, took hold of his feet, and worshiped him. ¹⁰Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid; go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee; there they will see me."

The Report of the Guard

11 While they were going, some of the guard went into the city and told the chief priests everything that had happened. ¹²After the priests^q had assembled with the elders, they devised a plan to give a large sum of money to the soldiers, ¹³telling them, "You must say, 'His disciples came by night and stole him away while we were asleep.' ¹⁴If this comes to the governor's ears, we will satisfy him and keep you out of trouble." ¹⁵So they took the money and did as they were directed. And this story is still told among the Jews to this day.

The Commissioning of the Disciples

16 Now the eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain to which Jesus had directed them. ¹⁷When they saw him, they worshiped him; but some doubted. ¹⁸And Jesus came and said to them, "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. ¹⁹Go therefore and make

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

MARK

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MARK may have been the first sustained, literary interpretation of the traditions about Jesus in primitive Christianity.

Authorship

Christian tradition from as early as the second century c.e. ascribes the Second Gospel to “Mark,” putatively Peter’s companion in Rome (1 Pet 5.13). Later connections were forged between this figure and “Mark” in several NT Letters (Col 4.10; 2 Tim 4.11; Philem 24) and “John Mark” in Acts (12.12, 25; 15.37–39), yet nowhere in the Second Gospel is its author identified, much less correlated with other NT personalities. The authorship of Mark remains an enigma, perhaps by the author’s design.

Setting, Date, and Occasion

Certainty about the circumstances of Mark’s composition is equally unattainable. Its presumption that readers will be unfamiliar with Jewish customs, Aramaic terms, and Palestinian geography (e.g., 5.41; 7.2–4, 31) suggests an origin beyond Palestine. The pervasiveness of Latin customs and vocabulary within the Gospel (e.g., 5.9; 10.12; 12.42) points to a provenance in Syria, Italy, or elsewhere within the Roman Empire. If the civil and domestic tumult forecast in 13.5–23 mirrors the upheavals of Mark’s readers, then the Gospel may have arisen in the wake of Nero’s persecution of Christians (64 c.e.) and the Jewish revolt against imperial Rome (67–70 c.e.). Such a setting is not proved by, but is coherent with, Mark’s emphasis on the tribulations of Jesus and his followers (4.17; 10.30, 33–34; 13.9–13). A dating in the late 60s also fits with the judgment, cautiously accepted by most scholars, that Mark was the earliest of the NT Gospels and a source for Matthew and Luke, both of which are thought to have been written toward the end of the first century c.e. (see Lk 1.1).

Sources

Mark’s own sources are indeterminate. Probably underlying the Gospel are early traditions about Jesus, permeated with overt or covert interpretations of the OT

(e.g., 1.2–3, 11; 15.24, 29, 34) that could have circulated in oral or written form and that may have been known to Mark's audience. Included in the narrative are sayings (e.g., 9.42–50) and parables (4.3–32) attributed to Jesus, miracle stories (4.35–5.43), dramatized controversies between Jesus and his adversaries (3.22–30; 12.13–17), and accounts of Jesus' final days in Jerusalem (14.1–15.39).

Style, Composition, and Conclusion

Though vivid, Mark's literary style is cruder and wordier than that of Matthew or Luke. Narrative transitions in Mark are effected by the simplest means, often with the connectives "and" or "immediately" (e.g., 1.12, 18, 20). On closer inspection, however, the Second Gospel appears to have been composed with care and even skill. Although no consensus exists on the narrative's precise structure, its central portion (8.22–10.52) is generally considered pivotal to interpretation. Within and beyond that section, the author has used various techniques in adapting available traditions: arrangements of similar stories that build to a climax (e.g., 2.1–3.6; 11.27–12.37), creative juxtapositions of disparate traditions (3.19–35; 11.12–25), and repetitive cycles of confessional and didactic discourse (8.31–9.1; 9.30–37; 10.32–45). Although later Greek manuscripts add various endings to the text (e.g., 16.9–20), the earliest discernible form of the Second Gospel ends at 16.8, with Jesus' last followers fleeing the empty tomb speechless and terrified. Whether the Gospel was unfinished, or its original ending was lost, or Mark intended such a provocatively open finale remains an issue of considerable debate.

Genre

Though not exactly analogous to other literary forms in antiquity, Mark bears the stamp of many genres. It resembles, for example, accounts of the lives of Hellenistic philosophers as well as some or prophetic and apocalyptic narratives (e.g., 1 Kings 17–2 Kings 9; Dan 1–6). Like the other NT Gospels, Mark is most intelligible not as a dispassionate chronicle of Jesus' life but as a religious proclamation based on historical event. Befitting a work that explicitly presents itself as "the good news" or "gospel" about Jesus Christ (1.1; cf. Mt 1.1; Lk 1.1), Mark's substance and style have been tailored to the propagation of some distinctively Christian confessions.

Emphases

Preeminent among Mark's concerns is an interpretation of Jesus that stresses his suffering and death, rather than his exalted identity and marvelous power (8.31; 9.31; 10.33–34, 45; 15.39). Authentic discipleship, characterized as self-sacrificial service to God for the sake of the gospel (8.34–9.1; 9.33–50; 10.35–45), is exemplified in Mark not by Jesus' disciples (e.g., 10.35–41; 14.66–72) but by a cast of minor characters (e.g., 5.21–43; 12.41–44) and most profoundly by Jesus himself (14.32–42). Jesus' followers are summoned to faithful vigilance during an arduous, ambiguous time between the inauguration and consummation of the kingdom of God (1.14–15; 4.1–34; 10.1–31; 13.28–37).

Relation to Other Gospels

For understandable reasons, Mark has been overshadowed by the other NT Gospels throughout most of the church's history. Compared with Matthew and Luke, it contains little of the teaching associated with Jesus (cf. Mt 5.3–7.27; Lk 13.22–18.14) and none of the stories of his birth and resurrection appearances (cf. Mt 1.18–2.23; 28.16–20; Lk 1.5–2.52; 24.13–53). Unlike the Fourth Gospel, whose Jesus unveils and proclaims himself at length (cf. Jn 6.35–51; 10.1–18; 15.1–17), Jesus in Mark is a cryptic figure who conceals as much as he reveals (e.g., 3.11–12; 4.10–12; 9.2–9). Despite its enigmatic nature, Mark's place in the NT has been secure, perhaps because no Gospel probes more intensely the implications of "proclaim[ing] Christ crucified" (1 Cor 1.23). *C. 1.1–15 The prologue of Mark, in which the reader's introduction to Jesus (1.9–15) is grounded in the OT and prefaced by the ministry of John the baptizer (1.1–8). 1.1–8 Cf. Mt 3.1–12; Lk 3.1–20; Jn 1.19–28. 1.1 As in Isa 40.9; 52.7; 61.1, good news (gospel, see text note a) suggests glad tidings of salvation (see also 1.14–15; Mt 11.5; Rom 1.1; 1 Cor 15.1; 2 Cor 11.7; 1 Thess 2.2, 8–9). Christ, lit. "anointed one," i.e., "messiah," usually appears in Mark as an honorific title (see 8.29; 12.35; 13.21; 14.61; 15.32), though it can function as a proper name for Jesus (9.41). Son of God, a significant title for Jesus in Mark (1.11; 3.11; 5.7; 9.7; 12.6; 14.61; 15.39), apparently connotes an obedient servant within God's salvation history (see also 2 Sam 7.13–14; Ps 2.7; Hos 11.1; Wis 2.18). 1.2–3 The quotation conflates material from Isa 40.3 with Ex 23.20; Mal 3.1. 1.4 The wilderness (see also 1.3, 12, 13) is not specifically located (cf. Mt 3.1; Lk 3.3); it can symbolize Israel's rebellion against God (e.g., Pss 78.17–18; 106.13–33) or its deliverance by God (e.g., Ex 19–24; Isa 41.18–20; 43.19–21; Hos 2.14–15). On the prophets' concern for repentance and forgiveness, see Isa 1.10–20; 55.7; Jer 31.34; Hos 6.1; Joel 2.12–13; Zech 1.4. The association of those concepts with the practice of baptism is also found in the Dead Sea Scrolls. 1.5 The whole Judean countryside suggests the region of southern Palestine around Judea's capital, Jerusalem. 1.6 John's attire recalls that of Elijah (2 Kings 1.8; but cf. Zech 13.4), whose return was sometimes regarded as a sign of the end of the age (Mal 4.5; see also Mk 9.11–13;

The Baptism of Jesus

9 In those days Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee and was baptized by John in the Jordan. ¹⁰And just as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens torn apart and the Spirit descending like a dove on him. ¹¹And a voice came from heaven, "You are my Son, the Beloved;^g with you I am well pleased."

The Beginning of the Galilean Ministry

14 Now after John was arrested, Jesus came to Galilee, proclaiming the good news^h of God,ⁱ and saying, "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near;^j repent, and believe in the good news."^h

Jesus Calls the First Disciples

16 As Jesus passed along the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. ¹⁷And Jesus said to them, "Follow me and I will make you fish for people." ¹⁸And immediately they left their nets and followed him. ¹⁹As he went a little farther, he saw James son of Zebedee and his brother John, who were in their boat mending the nets. ²⁰Immediately he called them; and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men, and followed him.

The Man with an Unclean Spirit

21 They went to Capernaum; and when the sabbath came, he entered the synagogue and taught. ²²They were astounded at his teaching, for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes. ²³Just then there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit, ²⁴and he cried out, "What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Mk 15.38. Like a dove probably suggests the Spirit's hovering motion, not its form (see Gen 1.2). 1.11 The heavenly acclamation combines elements of Ps 2.7 and Isa 42.1, with possible allusions to Gen 22.2, 12, 16; Ex 4.22-23; see also Mk 9.7; Mt 12.18; 2 Pet 1.17. 1.12-13 Cf. Mt 4.1-11; Lk 4.1-13. 1.13 Forty days is reminiscent of Ex 34.28; 1 Kings 19.8. Tempted, i.e., tested, by Satan, God's adversary (see Job 2.1-8; see also Mk 3.23, 26; 4.15; 8.33). The significance of Jesus' being with the wild beasts is unclear; it may suggest the restoration of a paradisaical condition that existed before the Fall (see Gen 1.28; 2.19-20; Job 5.22; Isa 11.6-9; 65.17-25; Hos 2.18). 1.14-15 Cf. In Mark the scribes, professional interpreters of Jewish law, are typically included among Jesus' opponents (e.g., 2.6, 16). 1.23 An unclean spirit, i.e., a demon (cf., e.g., 3.22, 30). 1.24 Us, perhaps a comprehensive reference to the demonic world. I know who you are. In antiquity, knowledge of someone's name or identity was thought to provide power over that one (see also Gen 2.19-20; 32.27-29; Ex 3.13-15; Judg 13.17-18). The Holy

A new teaching—with authority! He^k commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him.”²⁸ At once his fame began to spread throughout the surrounding region of Galilee.

Jesus Heals Many at Simon's House

29 As soon as they^l left the synagogue, they entered the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John.³⁰ Now Simon's mother-in-law was in bed with a fever, and they told him about her at once.³¹ He came and took her by the hand and lifted her up. Then the fever left her, and she began to serve them.

32 That evening, at sundown, they brought to him all who were sick or possessed with demons.³³ And the whole city was gathered around the door.³⁴ And he cured many who were sick with various diseases, and cast out many demons; and he would not permit the demons to speak, because they knew him.

A Preaching Tour in Galilee

35 In the morning, while it was still very dark, he got up and went out to a deserted place, and there he prayed.³⁶ And Simon and his companions hunted for him.³⁷ When they found him, they said to him, “Everyone is searching for you.”³⁸ He answered, “Let us go on to the neighboring towns, so that I may proclaim the message there also; for that is what I came out to do.”³⁹ And he went throughout Galilee, proclaiming the message in their synagogues and casting out demons.

Jesus Cleanses a Leper

40 A leper^m came to him begging him, and kneelingⁿ he said to him, “If you choose, you can make me clean.”⁴¹ Moved with pity,^o Jesus^p stretched out his hand and touched him, and said to him, “I do choose. Be made clean!”⁴² Immediately the leprosy^m left him, and he was made clean.⁴³ After sternly warning him he sent him away at once,⁴⁴ saying to him, “See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer for your cleansing what Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.”⁴⁵ But he went out and began to proclaim it freely, and to spread the word, so that Jesus^p could no longer go into a town openly, but stayed out in the country; and people came to him from every quarter.

Jesus Heals a Paralytic

2 When he returned to Capernaum after some days, it was reported that he was at home. ²So many gathered around that there was no longer room for them, not even in front of the door; and he was speaking the word to them. ³Then some people^q came, bringing to him a paralyzed man, carried by four of them. ⁴And when they could not bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, they removed the roof above him; and after having dug through it, they let down the mat on which the paralytic lay. ⁵When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, "Son, your sins are forgiven." ⁶Now some of the scribes were sitting there, questioning in their hearts, ⁷"Why does this fellow speak in this way? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?" ⁸At once Jesus perceived in his spirit that they were discussing these questions among themselves; and he said to them, "Why do you raise such questions in your hearts? ⁹Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Stand up and take your mat and walk'?" ¹⁰But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the paralytic— ¹¹"I say to you, stand up, take your mat and go to your home." ¹²And he stood up, and immediately took the mat and went out before all of them; so that they were all amazed and glorified God, saying, "We have never seen anything like this!"

Jesus Calls Levi

¹³ Jesus^r went out again beside the sea; the whole crowd gathered around him, and he taught them. ¹⁴As he was walking along, he saw Levi son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax booth, and he said to him, "Follow me." And he got up and followed him.

¹⁵ And as he sat at dinner^s in Levi's house, many tax collectors and sinners were also sitting^u with Jesus and his disciples—for there were many who followed him. ¹⁶When the scribes of^v the Pharisees saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors, they said to his disciples, "Why does he eat^w with tax collectors and sinners?" ¹⁷When Jesus heard this, he said to them, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I have come to call not the righteous but sinners."

2.1-12 Cf. Mt 9.1-8; Lk 5.17-26. The first in a series of five controversy narratives (see also 2.13-17; 2.18-22; 2.23-28; 3.1-6), this passage embeds a story of conflict (vv. 6-10) within a story of healing (vv. 1-5, 11-12). Such narrative inter-twinings are characteristic of Mark (see also 3.1-6; 3.19-35; 5.21-43; 6.7-30; 11.12-25; 14.1-11; 14.53-72; 15.6-32). 2.4 In Palestinian design, the roof consisted of crossbeams covered with thatch and hardened mud (cf. Lk 5.19). 2.5 Here, as in other Marcan miracle stories (see also 5.34, 36; 9.23-34; 10.52), faith suggests aggressive confidence in Jesus' healing power. For the correlation of healing with being forgiven, see Lk 7.48; see also 2 Sam 12.13; 2 Chr 7.14; Pss 41.4; 103.3; Isa 38.17; 57.17-19; Jer 3.22; Hos 14.4. 2.6-7 The accusation by the scribes (see note on 1.22) of blasphemy, a capital offense (Lev 24.15-16; Mk 14.64), presumes that forgiveness was exclusively God's prerogative (see Ex 34.6-7; Isa 43.25; 44.22). 2.10 The Son of Man, Jesus' customary but ambiguous expression of self-reference in Mark (see 2.28; 8.31, 38; 9.9, 12, 31;

10.33, 45; 13.26; 14.21, 41, 62; notes on 8.31; 8.38). Here the designation focuses on Jesus' earthly authority (see also 2.28; Mt 8.20; 11.19; 12.32; Lk 6.22; 7.34; 9.58; 12.10). 2.12 Amazed. See note on 1.22. 2.13-17 Cf. Mt 9.9-13; Lk 5.27-32. 2.14 Levi son of Alphaeus does not appear among Mark's listing of the Twelve (3.16-19; cf. Mt 9.9; 10.3). Tax booth may refer to a roadside tollhouse. 2.15 Tax (or toll) collectors were despised by Jews for their presumed dishonesty, contact with Gentiles, and collaboration with Roman authorities. Sinners, the notoriously wicked who flouted Jewish law (in contrast with the righteous; see 2.17). On Jesus' association with social outcasts, see also Mt 11.19; Lk 7.34; 15.1-2. 2.16 The Pharisees, a popular reform movement within ancient Judaism, favored pious adherence to the law in all walks of life. Like the scribes (see note on 1.22), Pharisees are typically ranged among Jesus' adversaries in Mark (2.18, 24; 3.6; 7.1, 5; 8.11, 15; 10.2; 12.13). 2.17 A similar proverb is attributed to ancient philosophers such as the Cynics. 2.18-22 Cf. Pronouncement About the Sabbath

²³ One sabbath he was going through the grainfields; and as they made their way his disciples began to pluck heads of grain. ²⁴The Pharisees said to him, "Look, why are they doing what is not lawful on the sabbath?" ²⁵And he said to them, "Have you never read what David did when he and his companions were hungry and in need of food? ²⁶He entered the house of God, when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and he gave some to his companions." ²⁷Then he said to them,

"The sabbath was made for humankind, and not humankind for the sabbath; ²⁸so the Son of Man is lord even of the sabbath."

The Man with a Withered Hand

3 Again he entered the synagogue, and a man was there who had a withered hand. ²They watched him to see whether he would cure him on the sabbath, so that they might accuse him. ³And he said to the man who had the withered hand, "Come forward." ⁴Then he said to them, "Is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to kill?" But they were silent. ⁵He looked around at them with anger; he was grieved at their hardness of heart and said to the man, "Stretch out your hand." He stretched it out, and his hand was restored. ⁶The Pharisees went out and immediately conspired with the Herodians against him, how to destroy him.

See also Mt 11.2-6; Lk 7.18-23; 11.1; Jn 1.35; 3.25-30. Fasting, a sign of contrition, was prescribed as an annual practice (Lev 16.29; Zech 7.5) and also undertaken on specific occasions (Ezra 8.21-23; Jon 3.7-9); see also Lk 18.12. Mk 2.20 may have been used to justify fasting in the early church. 2.19 Imagery like the wedding guests (or "the groomsmen") and the bridegroom is used in portraying God's saving covenant elsewhere in the NT (Mt 22.1-14; 25.1-13; 2 Cor 11.2; Eph 5.32; Rev 19.7; 21.2), in the OT (Isa 54.4-8; 62.4-5; Ezek 16.1-63; Hos 2.19), and among the rabbis. 2.23-28 Cf. Mt 12.1-8; Lk 6.1-5. 2.24 What is not lawful, evidently a reference to the prohibition of reaping on the sabbath in Ex 34.21. The legality of activities on the sabbath (Ex 20.8-11; Deut 5.12-15) was extensively debated within Judaism; see also Lk 14.1-6. 2.25 A biblical counterquestion in rabbinic style. 2.26 In 1 Sam 21.1-6 Ahimelech, not his son Abiathar (1 Sam 22.20), was high priest (cf. Mt 12.4; Lk 6.4). On the bread of the Presence, see Ex 25.30; Lev 24.5-9. 2.28 The Son of Man could refer to "humankind" (cf. Ps 8.4); more likely, it is Jesus' authoritative self-designation (see note on 2.10). 3.1-6 Cf. Mt 12.9-14; Lk 6.6-11. Healing and controversy are entwined, further illustrating 2.27-28 (see Lk 13.10-17; 14.1-6; Jn 5.1-18; see also note on 2.1-12). 3.4 Is it lawful. See note on 2.24. Jesus' contemporaries would have accepted a violation of the sabbath to save life but probably would have questioned its relevance in this case. 3.5 Hardness of heart, or stubborn obtuseness (see 6.52; 8.17; 10.5; see also Ex 9.34-35; 1 Sam 6.6; 2 Chr 36.13; Ps 95.8; Eph 4.18). 3.6 The Pharisees. See note on 2.16. The identity of the Herodians remains conjectural; Mark probably intends some Pharisaic conspiracy with Roman authorities (see also 6.14-29; 8.15; 12.13; Mt 22.15-16). This is the first of Mark's four references to a conspiracy to destroy Jesus (see also 11.18; 12.12; 14.1; cf. 1.37; 2.20). 3.7-12 Cf. Mt 4.24-25; 12.15-16; Lk 6.17-19. A transitional "summary report" (see note on 1.14-15) underscoring Jesus' popularity (see also 1.28, 35-37, 45) and foreshadowing his ministry beyond Palestine (see 7.24-31). 3.8 Judea,

Jesus Appoints the Twelve

¹³ He went up the mountain and called to him those whom he wanted, and they came to him. ¹⁴And he appointed twelve, whom he also named apostles,^y to be with him, and to be sent out to proclaim the message, ¹⁵and to have authority to cast out demons. ¹⁶So he appointed the twelve:^z Simon (to whom he gave the name Peter); ¹⁷James son of Zebedee and

John the brother of James (to whom he gave the name Boanerges, that is, Sons of Thunder); ¹⁸and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the Cananaean, ¹⁹and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed him.

Jesus and Beelzebul

Then he went home; ²⁰and the crowd came together again, so that they could not even eat. ²¹When his family heard it, they went out to restrain him, for people were saying, "He has gone out of his mind." ²²And the scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, "He has Beelzebul, and by the ruler of the demons he casts out demons." ²³And he called them to Jerusalem. See note on 1.5. The region of Idumea ("Edom" in Gen 32.3) lay southeast of Judea; the area beyond the Jordan (Perea), lay northeast of Judea and southeast of Galilee; the cities of Tyre and Sidon, lay northwest of Galilee. 3.10 To touch him. See also 5.27–28; 6.56. 3.11 The unclean spirits, or demons (see also 1.23; 3.30), fell down before him in submission (see also 5.22, 33; 7.25); they, not humans, recognize Jesus as the Son of God (see also 1.24; 5.7; cf. 15.39). 3.12 On Jesus' injunctions to silence, see notes on 1.34; 1.44.

3.13–6.6a Another major section of Mark, presenting Jesus' parabolic teaching (4.1–34) and mighty deeds (4.35–5.43), bracketed by the appointment of the Twelve (3.13–19a) and rejection by his family (3.19b–35) and hometown (6.1–6a). 3.13–19a Cf. Mt 10.1–4; Lk 6.12–16. 3.13 As in the OT (e.g., Ex 19.3–25; 1 Kings 19.8), the mountain (or "hill country") may symbolize a place of divine disclosure (see also Mk 9.2–13), but such usage is not consistent throughout Mark (cf. 5.5, 11; 6.46; 11.1, 23; 13.3, 14; 4.26). 3.14 Appointed, lit. "made" (see also 3.16; 1 Kings 13.33; 2 Chr 2.18; Heb 3.2). Twelve, probably a symbolic representation of the twelve tribes of Israel (see Num 1.4–16; 13.1–16; Mt 19.28; Lk 22.30). Rare in Mark (elsewhere only in 6.30), the term apostles probably refers to emissaries authorized to discharge a specific commission (see 6.7–13). 3.16–19a For variation in the names and ordering of the Twelve, cf. Mt 10.2–4; Lk 6.14–16; Jn 1.40–49; 21.2; Acts 1.13.

3.16 The Greek word for "stone" or "rock" may be the origin of the name Peter (Mt 16.18–19); in Aramaic, "Cephas" (e.g., Jn 1.42; 1 Cor 1.12; Gal 1.18). 3.17 Despite Mark's translation, both the derivation and meaning of Boanerges remain obscure. 3.18 Cananaean probably derives from an Aramaic term denoting religious zeal (see Lk 6.15; Acts 1.13). 3.19a The meaning of Iscariot is cloudy; it could be rooted in different Semitic terms for "a fraud" or "a man from Kerieth" (see Josh 15.25; Jer 48.24), or in a Latin word for an "assassin." 3.19b–35 A controversy about exorcism and forgiveness (3.22–30; see also Mt 12.22–32; Lk 11.14–23; 12.10) is inserted into an episode about Jesus' family (3.19b–21, 31–35; see Mt 12.46–50; Lk 8.19–21; see also note on 2.1–12). 3.19b Home, a typical site for much of Jesus' ministry in Mark (see, e.g., 1.29, 32–33; 2.1). 3.20 They could not even eat. See also 6.31. 3.21 The people mentioned in 3.31 prompt the translation of an ambiguous phrase here as his family. As implied by 3.22, insanity in the ancient world was attributed to demonic possession (see also Jn 7.20; 8.48–52; 10.20). 3.22 See note on 1.22. Jerusalem. See 10.32–34. Though probably a reference to Satan (3.23; see also 1.13; Mt 9.34), Beelzebul defies certain derivation; it could have originated from Semitic phrases that mean "lord of the dwelling" (see Mt 10.25) or "lord of the flies" (see 2 Kings 1.2). 3.23 Parables are enigmatic proverbs or riddling stories, provocative if not always illuminating (3.24–27; 4.3–9, 21–32;

him, and spoke to them in parables, "How can Satan cast out Satan? ²⁴If a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. ²⁵And if a house is divided against itself, that house will not be able to stand. ²⁶And if Satan has risen up against himself and is divided, he cannot stand, but his end has come. ²⁷But no one can enter a strong man's house and plunder his property without first tying up the strong man; then indeed the house can be plundered.

²⁸"Truly I tell you, people will be forgiven for their sins and whatever blasphemies they utter; ²⁹but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit can never have forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin" — ³⁰for they had said, "He has an unclean spirit."

The True Kindred of Jesus

³¹ Then his mother and his brothers came; and standing outside, they sent to him and called him. ³²A crowd was sitting around him; and they said to him, "Your mother and your brothers and sisters^a are outside, asking for you." ³³And he replied, "Who are my mother and my brothers?" ³⁴And looking at those who sat around him, he said, "Here are my mother and my brothers! ³⁵Whoever does the will of God is my brother and sister and mother."

The Parable of the Sower

4 Again he began to teach beside the sea. Such a very large crowd gathered around him that he got into a boat on the sea and sat there, while the whole crowd was beside the sea on the land. ²He began to teach them many things in parables, and in his teaching he said to them: ³"Listen! A sower went out to sow. ⁴And as he sowed, some seed fell on the path, and the birds came and ate it up. ⁵Other seed fell on rocky ground, where it did not have much soil, and it sprang up quickly, since it had no depth of soil. ⁶And when the sun rose, it was scorched; and since it had no root, it withered away. ⁷Other seed fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no grain. ⁸Other seed fell into good soil and brought forth grain, growing up and increasing and yielding thirty and sixty and a hundredfold." ⁹And he said, "Let anyone with ears to hear listen!"

The Purpose of the Parables

¹⁰ When he was alone, those who were around him along with the twelve asked him about the parables. ¹¹And he said to them, "To you has been given the secret^b of the kingdom of God, but for

See note on 2.6. 3.29 To link the Holy Spirit (see 1.8, 10, 12) or the Spirit's agent (3.30; Lk 11.20) with demons is to be guilty of an eternal sin (cf. 1 Jn 5.16). 3.31 See note on 3.21. The absence of Jesus' father with his mother and his brothers is of disputed significance; as in 6.3 (see also Jn 2.12; 7.3, 5, 10; Acts 1.14; 1 Cor 9.5; Gal 1.19), reference to his brothers suggests Mark's ignorance of the later doctrine of Mary's perpetual virginity. 3.32 Asking for you, lit. "searching for you"; see note on 1.37. 3.35 Common in Paul's Letters (e.g., Rom 1.10; 12.2; 1 Cor 1.1; Gal 1.4), the phrase the will of God appears only here in Mark (but cf. 14.36; see also Jn 7.16-17). The existence of female disciples in the early church may be reflected in the reference to Jesus' sister(s) (see also 3.32, text note ^a).

4.1-20 Cf. Mt 13.1-23; Lk 8.4-15. The first in a series of parables. 4.1 A very large crowd, perhaps enlarging the audience suggested by 3.7, 9, 20. 4.2 Parables. Private explanation often follows public instruction in Mark (4.34; 7.17; 9.28; 10.10; 13.3). 4.11 In Daniel (2.18-19, 27-30, 47), the Dead Sea Scrolls, Paul's Letters (e.g., Rom 11.25; 1 Cor 2.1, 7; 4.1), and Revelation (1.20; 10.7; 17.5, 7), the secret, or "mystery," refers to God's cosmic

Then how will you understand all the parables? ¹⁴The sower sows the word. ¹⁵These are the ones on the path where the word is sown: when they hear, Satan immediately comes and takes away the word that is sown in them. ¹⁶And these are the ones sown on rocky ground: when they hear the word, they immediately receive it with joy. ¹⁷But they have no root, and endure only for a while; then, when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, immediately they fall away.^c ¹⁸And others are those sown among the thorns: these are the ones who hear the word, ¹⁹but the cares of the world, and the lure of wealth, and the desire for other things come in and choke the word, and it yields nothing. ²⁰And these are the ones sown on the good soil: they hear the word and accept it and bear fruit, thirty and sixty and a hundredfold."

A Lamp Under a Bushel Basket

The Parable of the Growing Seed

²⁶ He also said, "The kingdom of God is as if someone would scatter seed on the ground, ²⁷and would sleep and rise night and day, and the seed would sprout and grow, he does not know how. ²⁸The earth produces of itself, first the stalk, then the head, then the full grain in the head. ²⁹But when the grain is ripe, at once he goes in with his sickle, because the harvest has come."

The Parable of the Mustard Seed

³⁰ He also said, "With what can we compare the kingdom of God, or what parable will we use for it? ³¹It is like a mustard seed, which, when sown upon the ground, is the smallest of all the seeds on earth; ³²yet when it is sown it grows up

See note on 3.23. 4.12 As elsewhere (Jn 12.40; Acts 28.26–27; cf. Rom 11.1–10), Isa 6.9–10 has been adapted to interpret disbelief of the Christian proclamation. Mark's harsh view of parables, told in order that perception and forgiveness may not occur, is softened in Mt 13.13; Lk 8.10. 4.13–20 Probably a later Christian interpretation of Jesus' parable, accentuating missionary hardships and the difficulty of discipleship (see also Rom 8.35; 2 Cor 4.8–9; 2 Thess 1.4). 4.13 Do you not understand, a recurring criticism of the disciples in Mark (see, e.g., 6.52; 8.17, 21). 4.14 The seed of the parable is inconsistently interpreted in terms of the word, i.e., the gospel (vv. 14, 15b; see note on 1.45), and various responses to the word (vv. 15a, 16–20). For a comparable inconsistency, see 2 Esd 8.41–44; 9.31. 4.15 Satan. See note on 1.13; see also 8.31–33. 4.17 They fall away, lit. "they are scandalized" to the point of apostasy (see

These sayings about disclosure and reception are linked by catchwords: lamp, light (vv. 21, 22); hear (vv. 23, 24); more, given (vv. 24, 25); see also 4.10–12. 4.21 The lamp is a flexible metaphor in the OT (2 Sam 21.17; 22.29; Ps 119.105; Zech 4.2; Wis 18.4). Bushel basket, a dry measure of about 2 gallons. 4.24 Pay attention to what you hear, lit. "Look what you hear" (see also 4.3, 9, 12). 4.25 For a kindred proverb, see 2 Esd 7.25. 4.26–29 The only parable in Mark without parallel in the other Gospels (cf. Mt 13.24–30). 4.26 Kingdom of God (also 4.30). See note on 1.15. 4.29 Sickle and harvest are sometimes associated with the final judgment (Joel 3.13; Rev 14.14–20). 4.30–32 Cf. Mt 13.31–32; Lk 13.18–19. The Use of Parables

33 With many such parables he spoke the word to them, as they were able to hear it; ³⁴he did not speak to them except in parables, but he explained everything in private to his disciples.

Jesus Stills a Storm

35 On that day, when evening had come, he said to them, “Let us go across to the other side.” ³⁶And leaving the crowd behind, they took him with them in the boat, just as he was. Other boats were with him. ³⁷A great windstorm arose, and the waves beat into the boat, so that the boat was already being swamped. ³⁸But he was in the stern, asleep on the cushion; and they woke him up and said to him, “Teacher, do you not care that we are perishing?” ³⁹He woke up and rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, “Peace! Be still!” Then the wind ceased, and there was a dead calm. ⁴⁰He said to them, “Why are you afraid? Have you still no faith?” ⁴¹And they were filled with great awe and said to one another, “Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?”

Jesus Heals the Gerasene Demoniac

5 They came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the Gerasenes.^d ²And when he had stepped out of the boat, immediately a man out of the tombs with an unclean spirit met him. ³He lived among the tombs; and no one could restrain him any more, even with a chain; ⁴for he had often been restrained with shackles and chains, but the chains he wrenched apart, and the shackles he broke in pieces; and no one had the strength to subdue him. ⁵Night and day among the tombs and on the mountains he was always howling and bruising himself with stones. ⁶When he saw Jesus from a distance, he ran and bowed down before him; ⁷and he shouted at the top of his voice, “What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I adjure you by God, do not torment me.” ⁸For he had said to him, “Come out of the man, you unclean spirit!” ⁹Then Jesus^e asked him, “What is your name?” He birds . . . can make nests in its shade, an allusion to a common OT image that suggests protection (Ezek 17.23; 31.6; Dan 4.12, 21). 4.33–34 Cf. Mt 13.34–35. Concluding summary. 4.33 The word. See note on 1.45. As they were able to hear it is ambiguous, suggesting that Jesus' parables were told either to relieve or to heighten his listeners' incomprehension (see note on 4.12). 4.34 In private to his disciples. See notes on 4.10; 4.11.

4.35–5.43 A series of four mighty works of Jesus, beyond Galilee into the Decapolis (4.35; 5.1; see note on 5.20). 4.35–41 Cf. Mt 8.23–27; Lk 8.22–25. 4.36 Just as he was, as obscure in Greek as in English (cf. Mt 8.23; Lk 8.22). 4.37 The windstorm, waves, and boat . . . being swamped recall Ps 107.23–25; Jon 1.4. 4.38 Asleep, a typical posture of trust in God (Job 11.18–19; Pss 3.5; 4.8; but cf. Jon 1.5). Even in its stridency (Pss 35.23; 44.23–24; 59.4b; Isa 51.9a; cf. Mt 8.25; Lk 8.24), the disciples' plea for deliverance echoes the OT (Pss 69.1–2, 14–15; 107.26–28a). 4.39 Like the unclean spirit (1.25), the wind is rebuked and “silenced” (Be still!). See also Ps 104.6–7). 4.40 The tension between being afraid (here, “cowardly”) and having faith recurs in Mark (5.33–34, 36; 6.50). 4.41 Great awe or fear is characteristic of human response to divine manifestations (see, e.g., 6.51; 9.15; 16.8; Ex 3.1–6; Isa 6.1–5; Jon 1.10, 16; Lk 2.9). The quelling of chaotic waters implies divine power (Gen 1.2, 6–9; Job 38.8–11; Pss 65.5–8; 74.12–14; 89.8–10; 93.3–4; 107.28b–30; Isa 51.10; Jer 5.22; 2 Esd 6.41–43).

The second of four exorcisms in Mark (see 1.21–28; 7.24–30; 9.14–29), detailing a contest (vv. 1–13) and its consequences (vv. 14–20). 5.1 The other side of the sea, the east bank of the Sea of Galilee (see note on 1.16). Over thirty miles from the sea, the country of the Gerasenes (modern Jerash) seems an unlikely setting for the action described in 5.2, 13; alternative locations of “Gergesa” and “Gadara” (Mt 8.28) in other versions reflect this uncertainty (see text note d). 5.2 The tombs, the realm of the dead and of social outcasts (see also Isa 65.1–7). An unclean spirit. See note on 1.23. 5.6 Bowed down before him. See note on 3.11. 5.7 The Most High God, a title applied to Israel's God by Gentiles (Gen 14.18–20; Num 24.16; Isa 14.14; Dan 3.26; 4.2; cf. replied, "My name is Legion; for we are many." ¹⁰He begged him earnestly not to send them out of the country. ¹¹Now there on the hillside a great herd of swine was feeding; ¹²and the unclean spirits^f begged him, "Send us into the swine; let us enter them." ¹³So he gave them permission. And the unclean spirits came out and entered the swine; and the herd, numbering about two thousand, rushed down the steep bank into the sea, and were drowned in the sea.

¹⁴ The swineherds ran off and told it in the city and in the country. Then people came to see what it was that had happened. ¹⁵They came to Jesus and saw the demoniac sitting there, clothed and in his right mind, the very man who had had the legion; and they were afraid. ¹⁶Those who had seen what had happened to the demoniac and to the swine reported it. ¹⁷Then they began to beg Jesus^g to leave their neighborhood. ¹⁸As he was getting into the boat, the man who had been possessed by demons begged him that he might be with him. ¹⁹But Jesus^h refused, and said to him, "Go home to your friends, and tell them how much the Lord has done for you, and what mercy he has shown you." ²⁰And he went away and began to proclaim in the Decapolis how much Jesus had done for him; and everyone was amazed.

A Girl Restored to Life and a Woman Healed

²¹ When Jesus had crossed again in the boatⁱ to the other side, a great crowd gathered around him; and he was by the sea. ²²Then one of the leaders of the synagogue named Jairus came and, when he saw him, fell at his feet ²³and begged him repeatedly, "My little daughter is at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, so that she may be made well, and live." ²⁴So he went with him.

And a large crowd followed him and pressed in on him. ²⁵Now there was a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years. ²⁶She had endured much under many physicians, and had spent all that she had; and she was no better, but rather grew worse. ²⁷She had heard about Jesus, and came up behind him in the crowd and touched his cloak, ²⁸for she said, "If I but touch his clothes, I will be made well." ²⁹Immediately her hemorrhage stopped; and she felt in her body that she was healed of her disease. ³⁰Immediately aware that power had gone forth from him, Jesus turned about in the crowd and said, "Who touched my clothes?" ³¹And his disciples said to him, "You see the crowd pressing

See note on 4.41. 5.15 They were afraid, either awestruck in the presence of the supernatural (see note on 4.41) or fearful of Jesus' power (see 5.17). 5.19 Tell them. Cf. 1.44; 3.12; 5.43; 7.36. Elsewhere (Acts 26.20; 1 Cor 14.25; Heb 2.12; 1 Jn 1.2, 3), though not everywhere (cf. Mk 5.14; 1 Thess 1.9), the verb translated "tell" signifies Christian missionary proclamation. The Lord, i.e., God (thus 1.3[?]; 11.9; 12.11, 29–30, 36; 13.20; cf. Lk 8.39), although the title is occasionally used of Jesus (5.20; see also 2.28; 7.28; 11.3; 12.37; 13.35). See also note on 11.3. 5.20 The Decapolis, a group of ten cities lying within a predominantly gentile region east of the Jordan River (see also 7.31). See note on 1.22.

in on you; how can you say, 'Who touched me?'" ³²He looked all around to see who had done it. ³³But the woman, knowing what had happened to her, came in fear and trembling, fell down before him, and told him the whole truth. ³⁴He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace, and be healed of your disease."

³⁵ While he was still speaking, some people came from the leader's house to say, "Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the teacher any further?" ³⁶But overhearing^j what they said, Jesus said to the leader of the synagogue, "Do not fear, only believe." ³⁷He allowed no one to follow him except Peter, James, and John, the brother of James. ³⁸When they came to the house of the leader of the synagogue, he saw a commotion, people weeping and wailing loudly. ³⁹When he had entered, he said to them, "Why do you make a commotion and weep? The child is not dead but sleeping." ⁴⁰And they laughed at him. Then he put them all outside, and took the child's father and mother and those who were with him, and went in where the child was. ⁴¹He took her by the hand and said to her, "Talitha cum," which means, "Little girl, get up!" ⁴²And immediately the girl got up and began to walk about (she was twelve years of age). At this they were overcome with amazement. ⁴³He strictly ordered them that no one should know this, and told them to give her something to eat.

6 He left that place and came to his hometown, and his disciples followed him. ²On the sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue, and many who heard him were astounded. They said, "Where did this man get all this? What is this wisdom that has been given to him? What deeds of power are being done by his hands! ³Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary^k and brother of James and Josés and Judas and Simon, and are not his sisters here with us?" And they took offense^l at him. ⁴Then Jesus said to them, "Prophets are not without honor, except in their hometown, and among

8.45–46) recall their protest in 4.38. 5.33 The woman's fear and trembling were in reaction to what had happened to her (see notes on 4.41; 5.15), not in response to having been found out (cf. Lk 8.47). Fell down before him. See also 3.11; 5.22. 5.34 Daughter (see also 5.23, 35), your faith has made you well. See notes on 2.5; 5.23. Go in peace, a common Semitic farewell (Judg 18.6; 1 Sam 1.17; 20.42; Lk 7.50; Acts 16.36; Jas 2.16), suggests the wholeness associated with being healed. 5.36 Do not fear, only believe recalls a similar shift in 5.33–34 (cf. 4.40). 5.37 Seclusion from the public is a conventional feature of some ancient miracle stories (see also 5.40; 7.33; 8.23; 1 Kings 17.19; 2 Kings 4.4, 33; Acts 9.40). Along with Andrew (1.16–20, 29; 13.3), Peter, James, and John are prominent among the Twelve in Mark (3.16–17; 9.2; 14.33). 5.38 Weeping and wailing. The mourners here may have been hired professionals. 5.39 Partly because sleeping is a common euphemism for death in the NT (e.g., Eph 5.14; 1 Thess 5.10), Jesus' assessment of the child's condition is unclear. 5.40 They laughed at him, i.e., skeptically (see also 5.31, 35; 2 Kings 5.11; Jn 11.39). 5.41 He took her by the hand, thereby incurring defilement (Num 19.1–22; see also Mk 1.31; Acts 3.7; notes on 5.23; 5.25). Talitha cum, one of several Semitic expressions interpreted by

Mark (3.17[?]; 7.11, 34; 11.9–10; 14.36; 15.22, 34, 42), is reminiscent of incantations in ancient miracle stories. The different Greek words for the child's arising (vv. 41, 42) were also used by Jews and Christians with reference to resurrection (e.g., 6.14, 16; 8.31; 12.23, 25–26; 16.6; Acts 2.24; 1 Cor 15.12–20). 5.42 The significance of the girl's age is uncertain, though note the oblique correspondence with 5.25. Overcome with amazement. See note on 1.22. 5.43 On Jesus' injunction to silence, see notes on 1.34; 1.44. 6.1–6a Cf. Mt 13.53–58; Lk 4.16–30. Jesus' rejection in his homeland sums up a major section of Mark's narrative, which began at 3.13 (see note on 3.13–6.6a). 6.2 Astounded. See note on 1.22. Where did this man get all this? See also 3.22; Jn 7.15. Jesus' wisdom likely refers to his teaching, represented in Mk 4.1–34. On deeds of power, see 4.35–5.43. 6.3 The Greek word translated here as the carpenter (cf. Mt 13.55) can also refer to an artisan in stone, metal, or wood. Because Jewish lineage was traced through one's father (cf. Jn 6.42), the son of Mary is an unexpected phrase of debatable significance; see also notes on 3.31; 3.35. They took offense, lit. "they were scandalized"; see also note on 4.17 (cf. 1 Cor 1.23; Gal 5.11). 6.4 This saying appears in various forms in Lk 4.24; Jn 4.44 and some noncanonical Gospels.

their own kin, and in their own house."⁵ And he could do no deed of power there, except that he laid his hands on a few sick people and cured them. ⁶ And he was amazed at their unbelief.

The Mission of the Twelve

Then he went about among the villages teaching. ⁷ He called the twelve and began to send them out two by two, and gave them authority over the unclean spirits. ⁸ He ordered them to take nothing for their journey except a staff; no bread, no bag, no money in their belts; ⁹ but to wear sandals and not to put on two tunics. ¹⁰ He said to them, "Wherever you enter a house, stay there until you leave the place. ¹¹ If any place will not welcome you and they refuse to hear you, as you leave, shake off the dust that is on your feet as a testimony against them." ¹² So they went out and proclaimed that all should repent. ¹³ They cast out many demons, and anointed with oil many who were sick and cured them.

The Death of John the Baptist

14 King Herod heard of it, for Jesus' ^m name had become known. Some wereⁿ saying, "John the baptizer has been raised from the dead; and for this reason these powers are at work in him." ¹⁵ But others said, "It is Elijah." And others said, "It is a prophet, like one of the prophets of old." ¹⁶ But when Herod heard of it, he said, "John, whom I beheaded, has been raised."

¹⁷ For Herod himself had sent men who arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, because Herod^o had married her. ¹⁸ For John had been telling Herod, "It is not lawful for you to have your brother's wife." ¹⁹ And Herodias had a grudge against him, and wanted to kill him. But she could not, ²⁰ for Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and he protected him. When he heard him, he was greatly perplexed;^p and yet he liked to listen to him. ²¹ But an opportunity came when Herod on his birthday gave a banquet for his courtiers and officers and for the leaders of Galilee. ²² When his daughter Herodias^q came in and danced,

Like Ahab (1 Kings 21.1-16), Herod is portrayed as a weak governor, manipulated by his wife (Mk 6.26). 6.22 Herod's daughter (named Salome, according to Josephus) is strangely identified as Herodias, which was she pleased Herod and his guests; and the king said to the girl, "Ask me for whatever you wish, and I will give it."²³ And he solemnly swore to her, "Whatever you ask me, I will give you, even half of my kingdom."²⁴ She went out and said to her mother, "What should I ask for?" She replied, "The head of John the baptizer."²⁵ Immediately she rushed back to the king and requested, "I want you to give me at once the head of John the Baptist on a platter."²⁶ The king was deeply grieved; yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he did not want to refuse her.²⁷ Immediately the king sent a soldier of the guard with orders to bring John's^r head. He went and beheaded him in the prison,²⁸ brought his head on a platter, and gave it to the girl. Then the girl gave it to her mother.²⁹ When his disciples heard about it, they came and took his body, and laid it in a tomb.

30 The apostles gathered around Jesus, and told him all that they had done and taught.³¹ He said to them, "Come away to a deserted place all by yourselves and rest a while." For many were coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat.³² And they went away in the boat to a deserted place by themselves.³³ Now many saw them going and recognized them, and they hurried there on foot from all the towns and arrived ahead of them.³⁴ As he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he began to teach them many things.³⁵ When it grew late, his disciples came to him and said, "This is a deserted place, and the hour is now very late;³⁶ send them away so that they may go into the surrounding country and villages and buy something for themselves to eat."³⁷ But he answered them, "You give them something to eat." They said to him, "Are we to go and buy two hundred denarii's worth of bread, and give it to them to eat?"³⁸ And he said to them, "How many loaves have you? Go and see." When they had found out, they said, "Five, and two fish."³⁹ Then he ordered them to get all the people to sit down in groups on the green grass.⁴⁰ So they sat down in groups of hundreds and of fifties.⁴¹ Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to his disciples to set before the people; and he divided the two fish among them all.⁴² And all ate and were filled;⁴³ and they took up twelve baskets full of broken pieces and of the fish.⁴⁴ Those who had eaten the loaves numbered five thousand men.

dismissed the crowd. ⁴⁶After saying farewell to them, he went up on the mountain to pray.

⁴⁷ When evening came, the boat was out on the sea, and he was alone on the land. ⁴⁸When he saw that they were straining at the oars against an adverse wind, he came towards them early in the morning, walking on the sea. He intended to pass them by. ⁴⁹But when they saw him walking on the sea, they thought it was a ghost and cried out; ⁵⁰for they all saw him and were terrified. But immediately he spoke to them and said, "Take heart, it is I; do not be afraid." ⁵¹Then he got into the boat with them and the wind ceased. And they were utterly astounded, ⁵²for they did not understand about the loaves, but their hearts were hardened.

Healing the Sick in Gennesaret

⁵³ When they had crossed over, they came to land at Gennesaret and moored the boat. ⁵⁴When they got out of the boat, people at once recognized him, ⁵⁵and rushed about that whole region and began to bring the sick on mats to wherever they heard he was. ⁵⁶And wherever he went, into villages or cities or farms, they laid the sick in the marketplaces, and begged him that they might touch even the fringe of his cloak; and all who touched it were healed.

The Tradition of the Elders

7 Now when the Pharisees and some of the scribes who had come from Jerusalem gathered around him, ²they noticed that some of his disciples were eating with defiled hands, that is, without washing them. ³(For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, do not eat unless they thoroughly wash their hands,^t thus observing the tradition of the elders; ⁴and they do not eat anything from the market unless they wash it;^u and there are also many other traditions that they observe, the washing of cups, pots, and bronze kettles.^v) ⁵So the Pharisees and the scribes asked him, "Why do your disciples not live^w according to the tradition of the elders, but eat with defiled hands?" ⁶He said to them, "Isaiah prophesied rightly about you hypocrites, as it is written,

'This people honors me with

but their hearts are far

8 You abandon the commandment of God and hold to human tradition."

9 Then he said to them, "You have a fine way of rejecting the commandment of God in order to keep your tradition! 10 For Moses said, 'Honor your father and your mother'; and, 'Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must surely die.' 11 But you say that if anyone tells father or mother, 'Whatever support you might have had from me is Corban' (that is, an offering to God*)— 12 then you no longer permit doing anything for a father or mother, 13 thus making void the word of God through your tradition that you have handed on. And you do many things like this."

14 Then he called the crowd again and said to them, "Listen to me, all of you, and understand: 15 there is nothing outside a person that by going in can defile, but the things that come out are what defile."^y

17 When he had left the crowd and entered the house, his disciples asked him about the parable. 18 He said to them, "Then do you also fail to understand? Do you not see that whatever goes into a person from outside cannot defile, 19 since it enters, not the heart but the stomach, and goes out into the sewer?" (Thus he declared all foods clean.) 20 And he said, "It is what comes out of a person that defiles. 21 For it is from within, from the human heart, that evil intentions come: fornication, theft, murder, 22 adultery, avarice, wickedness, deceit, licentiousness, envy, slander, pride, folly. 23 All these evil things come from within, and they defile a person."

The Syrophoenician Woman's Faith

24 From there he set out and went away to the region of Tyre.^z He entered a house and did not want anyone to know he was there. Yet he could not escape notice, 25 but a woman whose little daughter had an unclean spirit immediately heard about him, and she came and bowed down at his feet. 26 Now the woman was a Gentile, of Syrophoenician origin. She begged him to cast the demon out of her daughter. 27 He said to her, "Let the children be fed first, for it is not fair to take the children's food and throw it to the dogs." 28 But she answered him, "Sir,^a even the dogs under the table eat the children's crumbs." 29 Then he said to her, "For saying that, you may go—the demon has left your daughter." 30 So she went home, found the child lying on the bed, and the demon gone.

Feeding the Four Thousand

8 In those days when there was again a great crowd without anything to eat, he called his disciples and said to them, ²“I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat. ³If I send them away hungry to their homes, they will faint on the way—and some of them have come from a great distance.” ⁴His disciples replied, “How can one feed these people with bread here in the desert?” ⁵He asked them, “How many loaves do you have?” They said, “Seven.” ⁶Then he ordered the crowd to sit down on the ground; and he took the seven loaves, and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to his disciples to distribute; and they distributed them to the crowd. ⁷They had also a few small fish; and after blessing them, he ordered that these too should be distributed. ⁸They ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. ⁹Now there were about four thousand people. Peter's Declaration About Jesus 27 Jesus went on with his disciples to the villages of Caesarea Philippi; and on the way he asked his disciples, “Who do people say that I am?” 28 And they answered him, “John the Baptist; and others, Elijah; and still others, one of the prophets.” 29 He asked them, “But who do you say that I am?” Peter answered him, “You are the Messiah.”ⁱ 30 And he sternly ordered them not to tell anyone about him.

And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. 33 But turning and looking at his disciples, he rebuked Peter and said, “Get behind me, Satan! For you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.”

34 He called the crowd with his disciples, and said to them, “If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and

The Healing of a Boy with a Spirit

14 When they came to the disciples, they saw a great crowd around them, and some scribes arguing with them. 15 When the whole crowd saw him, they were immediately overcome with awe, and they ran forward to greet him. 16 He asked them, "What are you arguing about with them?" 17 Someone from the crowd answered him, "Teacher, I brought you my son; he has a spirit that makes him unable to speak; 18 and whenever it seizes him, it dashes him down; and he foams and grinds his teeth and becomes rigid; and I asked your disciples to cast it out, but they could not do so." 19 He answered them, "You faithless generation, how much longer must I be among you? How much longer must I put up with you? Bring him to me." 20 And they brought the boy^p to him. When the spirit saw him, immediately it convulsed the boy,^p and he fell on the ground and rolled about, foaming at the mouth. 21 Jesus^q asked the father, "How long has this been happening to him?" And he said, "From childhood. 22 It has often cast him into the fire and into the water, to destroy him; but if you are able to do anything, have pity on us and help us." 23 Jesus said to him, "If you are able!—All things can be done for the one who believes." 24 Immediately the father of the child cried out,^r "I believe; help my unbelief!" 25 When Jesus saw that a crowd came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to it, "You spirit that keeps this boy from speaking and hearing, I command you, come out of him, and never enter him again!" 26 After crying out and convulsing him terribly, it came out, and the boy was like a corpse, so that most of them said, "He is dead." 27 But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him up, and he was able to stand. 28 When he had entered the house, his disciples asked him privately, "Why could we not cast it out?" 29 He said to them, "This kind can come out only through prayer."^s

Jesus Again Foretells His Death and Resurrection

30 They went on from there and passed through Galilee. He did not want anyone to know it; 31 for he was teaching his disciples, saying to them, "The Son of Man is to be betrayed into human hands, and they will kill him, and three days after being killed, he will rise again." 32 But they did not understand what he was saying and were afraid to ask him.

Who Is the Greatest?

33 Then they came to Capernaum; and when he was in the house he asked them, "What were you arguing about on the way?" 34 But they were silent, for on the way they had argued with one another who was the greatest. 35 He sat down, called the twelve, and said to them, "Who-

Another Exorcist

³⁸ John said to him, "Teacher, we saw someone^t casting out demons in your name, and we tried to stop him, because he was not following us." ³⁹But Jesus said, "Do not stop him; for no one who does a deed of power in my name will be able soon afterward to speak evil of me. ⁴⁰Whoever is not against us is for us. ⁴¹For truly I tell you, whoever gives you a cup of water to drink because you bear the name of Christ will by no means lose the reward."

Teaching About Divorce

10 He left that place and went to the region of Judea and^z beyond the Jordan. And crowds again gathered around him; and, as was his custom, he again taught them.

² Some Pharisees came, and to test him they asked, "Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?" ³He answered them, "What did Moses command you?" ⁴They said, "Moses allowed a man to write a certificate of dismissal and to divorce her." ⁵But Jesus said to them, "Because of your hardness of heart he wrote this command-

So they are no longer two, but one flesh. ⁹Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate."

¹⁰ Then in the house the disciples asked him again about this matter. ¹¹He said to them, "Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her; ¹²and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery."

Jesus Blesses Little Children

¹³ People were bringing little children to him in order that he might touch them; and the disciples spoke sternly to them. ¹⁴But when Jesus saw this, he was indignant and said to them, "Let the little children come to me; do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of God belongs. ¹⁵Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will never enter it." ¹⁶And he took them up in his arms, laid his hands on them, and blessed them.

The Rich Man

¹⁷ As he was setting out on a journey, a man ran up and knelt before him, and asked him, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" ¹⁸Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. ¹⁹You know the commandments: 'You shall not murder; You shall not commit adultery; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; You shall not defraud; Honor your father and mother.'" ²⁰He said to him, "Teacher, I have kept all these since my youth." ²¹Jesus, looking at him, loved him and said, "You lack one thing; go, sell what you own, and give the money^b to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me." ²²When he heard this, he was shocked and went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

²³ Then Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, "How hard it will be for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God!" ²⁴And the disciples were perplexed at these words. But Jesus said to them again, "Children, how hard it is^c to enter the kingdom of God! ²⁵It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." ²⁶They were greatly astounded and said to one another,^d "Then who can be saved?" ²⁷Jesus looked at them and said, "For

A Third Time Jesus Foretells His Death and Resurrection

32 They were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was walking ahead of them; they were amazed, and those who followed were afraid. He took the twelve aside again and began to tell them what was to happen to him, 33 saying, "See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and the scribes, and they will condemn him to death; then they will hand him over to the Gentiles; 34 they will mock him, and spit upon him, and flog him, and kill him; and after three days he will rise again."

The Request of James and John

35 James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came forward to him and said to him, "Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask of you." 36 And he said to them, "What is it you want me to do for you?" 37 And they said to him, "Grant us to sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your glory." 38 But Jesus said to them, "You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I drink, or be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?" 39 They replied, "We are able." Then Jesus said to them, "The cup that I drink you will drink; and with the baptism with which I am baptized, you will be baptized; 40 but to sit at my right hand or at my left is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared."

41 When the ten heard this, they began to be angry with James and John. 42 So Jesus called them and said to them, "You know that among the Gentiles those whom they recognize as their rulers lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them. 43 But it is not so among you; but whoever wishes to become great among you must be your servant, 44 and whoever wishes to be first among you must be slave of all. 45 For the Son of Man

The Healing of Blind Bartimaeus

46 They came to Jericho. As he and his disciples and a large crowd were leaving Jericho, Bartimaeus son of Timaeus, a blind beggar, was sitting by the roadside. 47 When he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to shout out and say, "Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!" 48 Many sternly ordered him to be quiet, but he cried out even more loudly, "Son of David, have mercy on me!" 49 Jesus stood still and said, "Call him here." And they called the blind man, saying to him, "Take heart; get up, he is calling you." 50 So throwing off his cloak, he sprang up and came to Jesus. 51 Then Jesus said to him, "What do you want me to do for you?" The blind man said to him, "My teacher,^f let me see again." 52 Jesus said to him, "Go; your faith has made you well." Immediately he regained his sight and followed him on the way.

Jesus' Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem

11 When they were approaching Jerusalem, at Bethphage and Bethany, near the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples ²and said to them, "Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately as you enter it, you will find tied there a colt that has never been ridden; untie it and bring it. ³If anyone says to you, 'Why are you doing this?' just say this, 'The Lord needs it and will send it back here immediately.'" ⁴They went away and found a colt tied near a door, outside in the street. As they were untying it, ⁵some of the bystanders said to them, "What are you doing, untying the colt?" ⁶They told them what Jesus had said; and they allowed them to take it. ⁷Then they brought the colt to Jesus and threw their cloaks on it; and he sat on it. ⁸Many people spread their cloaks on the road, and others spread leafy branches that they had cut in the fields. ⁹Then those who went ahead and those who followed were shouting,

"Hosanna!

Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord!

10 Blessed is the coming kingdom of our ancestor David!

Hosanna in the highest heaven!"

11 Then he entered Jerusalem and went into the temple; and when he had looked around at everything, as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the twelve.

10.46–52 Cf. Mt 20.29–34 (see also 9.27–31); Lk 18.35–43. Mark's central section concludes with a story that recalls the earlier restoration of sight to the blind (8.22–26; cf. 8.18). 10.46 Jericho, a city in the Jordan Valley, about twenty miles northeast of Jerusalem. Bartimaeus, lit. son of Timaeus. See note on 5.41. 10.47–48 Whereas Mark seems to question its appropriateness for Jesus (see 12.35–37), Son of David was a title used by some Jews with expectant reference to a royal messiah (see 2 Sam 7.4–17; Ps 89.3–4). 10.51 What do you want me to do for you? See also 10.36. 10.52 Your faith has made you well. See also 5.34; notes on 2.5; 5.23. Followed him. See also 1.18; 2.14.

11.1–13.37 Another major section of Mark, comprising Jesus' ministry in Jerusalem (11.1–12.44) and address to the disciples about the last days (13.1–37). 11.1–11 Compared with that in the other Gospels (Mt 21.1–11; Lk 19.28–40; Jn 12.12–19), the description of Jesus' arrival in the city is muted in Mark. 11.1 Jerusalem. See note on 10.32. The location of Bethphage is uncertain; Bethany was about two miles southeast of Jerusalem (see Jn 11.18). The Mount of Olives, a high hill to the east of Jerusalem, associated with both the city's defeat (2 Sam 15.13–30) and hope for God's end-time triumph (Zech 14.4). 11.2 The colt may be an allusion to the humble king's conveyance in Zech 9.9 (see Mt 21.5; Jn 12.15); its having never been ridden is reminiscent of unyoked, consecrated animals in the OT (Num 19.2; Deut 21.3; 1 Sam 6.7). 11.3 The Lord, the most exalted use of the title in Mark with direct reference to Jesus (apart from the disputed 16.19). See also note on 5.19. 11.8 The spreading of cloaks and leafy branches on the road recalls Israel's royal or festal processions (2 Kings 9.13; 1 Macc 13.51; 2 Macc 10.7). 11.9–10 The acclamation approximates the wording of Ps 118.25–26. Hosanna, lit. "Save now!" (see note on 5.41), became a liturgical formula for the praise of God (v. 10). Our ancestor David. Cf. Mt. 21.9; Lk 1.32–33; see note on Mk 10.47–48. 11.11 The temple, Israel's religious and political center, refurbished by Herod the Great (37–4 B.C.E.) and later razed by the Roman legion (70 C.E.; see Lk 19.41–44).

Jesus Curses the Fig Tree

12 On the following day, when they came from Bethany, he was hungry. ¹³Seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see whether perhaps he would find anything on it. When he came to it, he found nothing but leaves, for it was not the season for figs. ¹⁴He said to it, "May no one ever eat fruit from you again." And his disciples heard it.

Jesus Cleanses the Temple

15 Then they came to Jerusalem. And he entered the temple and began to drive out those who were selling and those who were buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves; ¹⁶and he would not allow anyone to carry anything through the temple. ¹⁷He was teaching and saying, "Is it not written,

'My house shall be called a house
of prayer for all the nations'?

But you have made it a den
of robbers."

¹⁸And when the chief priests and the scribes heard it, they kept looking for a way to kill him; for they were afraid of him, because the whole crowd was spell-bound by his teaching. ¹⁹And when evening came, Jesus and his disciples^g went out of the city.

The Lesson from the Withered Fig Tree

20 In the morning as they passed by, they saw the fig tree withered away to its roots. ²¹Then Peter remembered and said to him, "Rabbi, look! The fig tree that you cursed has withered." ²²Jesus answered them, "Have^h faith in God. ²³Truly I tell you, if you say to this mountain, 'Be taken up and thrown into the sea,' and if you do not doubt in your heart, but believe that what you say will come to pass, it will be done for you. ²⁴So I tell you, whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have receivedⁱ it, and it will be yours.

²⁵ "Whenever you stand praying, forgive, if you have anything against anyone; so that your Father in heaven may also forgive you your trespasses."^j

Jesus' Authority Is Questioned

27 Again they came to Jerusalem. As he was walking in the temple, the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders came to him ²⁸and said, "By what authority are you doing these things? Who gave you this authority to do them?" ²⁹Jesus said to them, "I will ask you one question; answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things. ³⁰Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin? Answer me." ³¹They argued with one another, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why then did you not believe him?'" ³²But shall we say, 'Of human origin?' — they were afraid of the crowd, for all regarded John as truly a prophet. ³³So they answered Jesus, "We do not know." And Jesus said to them, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things."

The cursing of the fig tree (vv. 12-14, 20-25) and the cleansing of the temple (vv. 15-19) are interwoven, each interpreting the other; see note on 2.1-12. 11.13 Israel is likened to a fruitless fig tree by the OT prophets (Jer 8.13; Hos 9.10, 16-17; Joel 1.7; Mic 7.1) and in Luke (13.6-9). It was not the season, or "time appointed [by God]," for figs. See notes on 1.37; 3.6. 11.21 Then Peter remembered, foreshadowing a similar response in 14.72. 11.22-25 Apparently a chain of originally independent exhortations, now connected by catchwords (see note on 9.42-50): faith, believe (or "have faith"; vv. 22, 23, 24); prayer, praying (vv. 24, 25). 11.23 See 10.27; Mt 17.20; Lk 17.6; 1 Cor 13.2. Truly I tell you. See note on 3.28. 11.24 See 9.28-29; Mt 18.19; Jn 14.13-14; 15.7; 16.23. 11.25 Stand praying, customary posture in Jewish worship (1 Kings 8.14; Neh 9.4; Ps 134.1; Mt 6.5; Lk 18.11, 13). The addition of v. 26 (see text note j) in some manuscripts was probably influenced by Mt 6.14-15.

The Parable of the Wicked Tenants

12 Then he began to speak to them in parables. "A man planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a pit for the wine press, and built a watchtower; then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. ²When the season came, he sent a slave to the tenants to collect from them his share of the produce of the vineyard. ³But they seized him, and beat him, and sent him away empty-handed. ⁴And again he sent another slave to them; this one they beat over the head and insulted. ⁵Then he sent another, and that one they killed. And so it was with many others; some they beat, and others they killed. ⁶He had still one other, a beloved son. Finally he sent him to them, saying, 'They will respect my son.' ⁷But those tenants said to one another, 'This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.' ⁸So they seized him, killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard. ⁹What then will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the tenants and give the vineyard to others. ¹⁰Have you not read this scripture:

'The stone that the builders
rejected
has become the cornerstone;^k

¹¹ this was the Lord's doing,
and it is amazing in our eyes?'"

¹² When they realized that he had told this parable against them, they wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowd. So they left him and went away.

The Question About Paying Taxes

¹³ Then they sent to him some Pharisees and some Herodians to trap him in what he said. ¹⁴And they came and said to him, "Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality, but teach the way of God in accordance with truth. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not? ¹⁵Should we pay them, or should we not?" But knowing their hypocrisy, he said to them, "Why are you putting me to the test? Bring me a denarius and let me see it." ¹⁶And they brought one. Then he said to them, "Whose head is this, and whose title?" They answered, "The emperor's." ¹⁷Jesus said to them, "Give to the emperor the things that are the emperor's, and to God the things that are God's." And they were utterly amazed at him.

The Question About the Resurrection

18 Some Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, came to him and asked him a question, saying, ¹⁹“Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man’s brother dies, leaving a wife but no child, the man^l shall marry the widow and raise up children for his brother. ²⁰There were seven brothers; the first married and, when he died, left no children; ²¹and the second married the widow^m and died, leaving no children; and the third likewise; ²²none of the seven left children. Last of all the woman herself died. ²³In the resurrectionⁿ whose wife will she be? For the seven had married her.”

²⁴ Jesus said to them, “Is not this the reason you are wrong, that you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God? ²⁵For when they rise from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels in heaven. ²⁶And as for the dead being raised, have you not read in the book of Moses, in the story about the bush, how God said to him, ‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob’? ²⁷He is God not of the dead, but of the living; you are quite wrong.”

The First Commandment

²⁸ One of the scribes came near and heard them disputing with one another, and seeing that he answered them well, he asked him, “Which commandment is the first of all?” ²⁹Jesus answered, “The first is, ‘Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one; ³⁰you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength.’ ³¹The second is this, ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ There is no other commandment greater than these.” ³²Then the scribe said to him, “You are right, Teacher; you have truly said that ‘he is one, and besides him there is no other’; ³³and ‘to love him with all the heart, and with all the understanding, and with all the strength,’ and ‘to love one’s neighbor as oneself,’—this is much more important than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.” ³⁴When Jesus saw that he answered wisely, he said to him, “You are not far from the kingdom of God.” After that no one dared to ask him any question.

The Question About David’s Son

³⁵ While Jesus was teaching in the temple, he said, “How can the scribes say that the Messiah^o is the son of David? ³⁶David himself, by the Holy Spirit, declared, Levirate marriage is presupposed in Gen 38.8. 12.25 To be like angels in heaven seems here to refer to celibacy; elsewhere (see 1 Cor 15.35–50) resurrection is associated with spiritual bodies. 12.26 The assertion of God’s present dominion over the patriarchs, derived from the story about the bush (Ex 3.6, 15–16), is intended to confirm the reality of resurrection. The argument resembles rabbinic exegesis. 12.28–34 Cf. Mt 22.34–40; Lk 10.25–28. 12.28 Scribes typically oppose Jesus in Mark (see note on 1.22), but this one simply inquires about first principles, a question extensively debated among the rabbis.

can he be his son?” And the large crowd was listening to him with delight.

Jesus Denounces the Scribes

³⁸ As he taught, he said, “Beware of the scribes, who like to walk around in long robes, and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, ³⁹and to have the best seats in the synagogues and places of honor at banquets! ⁴⁰They devour widows’ houses and for the sake of appearance say long prayers. They will receive the greater condemnation.”

The Widow's Offering

⁴¹ He sat down opposite the treasury, and watched the crowd putting money into the treasury. Many rich people put in large sums. ⁴²A poor widow came and put in two small copper coins, which are worth a penny. ⁴³Then he called his disciples and said to them, “Truly I tell you,
this poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing to the treasury. ⁴⁴For all of them have contributed out of their abundance; but she out of her poverty has put in everything she had, all she had to live on.”

The Destruction of the Temple Foretold

13 As he came out of the temple,
one of his disciples said to him, “Look, Teacher, what large stones and what large buildings!” ²Then Jesus asked him, “Do you see these great buildings?
Not one stone will be left here upon another; all will be thrown down.”

³ When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, Peter, James, John, and Andrew asked him privately, ⁴“Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign that all these things are about to be accomplished?” ⁵Then Jesus began to say to them, “Beware that no one leads you astray. ⁶Many will come in my name and say, ‘I am he!’^p and they will lead many astray. ⁷When you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not be alarmed; this must take place, but the end
is still to come. ⁸For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; there will be earthquakes in various places; there will be famines. This is but the beginning of the birth pangs.

But the one who endures to the end will be saved.

The Desolating Sacrilege

¹⁴ "But when you see the desolating sacrilege set up where it ought not to be (let the reader understand), then those in Judea must flee to the mountains; ¹⁵the one on the housetop must not go down or enter the house to take anything away; ¹⁶the one in the field must not turn back to get a coat. ¹⁷Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days! ¹⁸Pray that it may not be in winter. ¹⁹For in those days there will be suffering, such as has not been from the beginning of the creation that God created until now, no, and never will be. ²⁰And if the Lord had not cut short those days, no one would be saved; but for the sake of the elect, whom he chose, he has cut short those days. ²¹And if anyone says to you at that time, 'Look! Here is the Messiah!' ^r or 'Look! There he is!' — do not believe it. ²²False messiahs^s and false prophets will appear and produce signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, the elect. ²³But be alert; I have already told you everything.

²⁴ "But in those days, after that suffering,

the sun will be darkened,
and the moon will not give
its light,

from heaven,
and the powers in the heavens
will be shaken.

The Necessity for Watchfulness

32 “But about that day or hour no one knows, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father. ³³Beware, keep alert;^u for you do not know when the time will come. ³⁴It is like a man going on a journey, when he leaves home and puts his slaves in charge, each with his work, and commands the doorkeeper to be on the watch. ³⁵Therefore, keep awake—for you do not know when the master of the house will come, in the evening, or at midnight, or at cockcrow, or at dawn, ³⁶or else he may find you asleep when he comes suddenly. ³⁷And what I say to you I say to all: Keep awake.”

The Plot to Kill Jesus

14 It was two days before the Passover and the festival of Unleavened Bread. The chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to arrest Jesus^v by stealth and kill him; ²for they said, “Not during the festival, or there may be a riot among the people.”

The Anointing at Bethany

3 While he was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper,^w as he sat at the table, a woman came with an alabaster jar of very costly ointment of nard, and she broke open the jar and poured the ointment on his head. ⁴But some were there who said to one another in anger, “Why was the ointment wasted in this way? ⁵For this ointment could have been sold for more than three hundred denarii,^x and the money given to the poor.” And they scolded her. ⁶But Jesus said, “Let her alone; why do you trouble her? She has performed a good service for me. ⁷For you always have the poor with you, and you can show kindness to them whenever you wish; but you will not always have me. ⁸She has done what she could; she has anointed my body beforehand for its burial. ⁹Truly I tell you, wherever the good news^y is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her.”

Judas Agrees to Betray Jesus

10 Then Judas Iscariot, who was one of the twelve, went to the chief priests in order to betray him to them. ¹¹When they heard it, they were greatly pleased, and promised to give him money. So he began to look for an opportunity to betray him.

The Passover with the Disciples

12 On the first day of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, his disciples said to him, "Where do you want us to go and make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?" ¹³So he sent two of his disciples, saying to them, "Go into the city, and a man carrying a jar of water will meet you; follow him, ¹⁴and wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house, 'The Teacher asks, Where is my guest room where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?' ¹⁵He will show you a large room upstairs, furnished and ready. Make preparations for us there." ¹⁶So the disciples set out and went to the city, and found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

17 When it was evening, he came with the twelve. ¹⁸And when they had taken their places and were eating, Jesus said, "Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me, one who is eating with me." ¹⁹They began to be distressed and to say to him

one after another, "Surely, not I?" ²⁰He said to them, "It is one of the twelve, one who is dipping bread^z into the bowl^a with me. ²¹For the Son of Man goes as it is written of him, but woe to that one by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that one not to have been born."

The Institution of the Lord's Supper

22 While they were eating, he took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to them, and said, "Take; this is my body." ²³Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, and all of them drank from it. ²⁴He said to them, "This is my blood of the^b covenant, which is poured out for many. ²⁵Truly I tell you, I will never again drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God."

Peter's Denial Foretold

26 When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives. ²⁷And Jesus said to them, "You will all become deserters; for it is written,

Jesus Prays in Gethsemane

³² They went to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, “Sit here while I pray.” ³³He took with him Peter and James and John, and began to be distressed and agitated. ³⁴And he said to them, “I am deeply grieved, even to death; remain here, and keep awake.” ³⁵And going a little farther, he threw himself on the ground and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him. ³⁶He said, “Abba,^c Father, for you all things are possible; remove this cup from me; yet, not what I want, but what you want.” ³⁷He came and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, “Simon, are you asleep? Could you not keep awake one hour? ³⁸Keep awake and pray that you may not come into the time of trial;^d the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.” ³⁹And again he went away and prayed, saying the same words. ⁴⁰And once more he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were very heavy; and they did not know what to say to him.

⁴¹He came a third time and said to them, “Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? Enough! The hour has come; the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. ⁴²Get up, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand.”

The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus

⁴³ Immediately, while he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived; and with him there was a crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders. ⁴⁴Now the betrayer had given them a sign, saying, “The one I will kiss is the man; arrest him and lead him away under guard.” ⁴⁵So when he came, he went up to him at once and said, “Rabbi!” and kissed him. ⁴⁶Then they laid hands on him and arrested him. ⁴⁷But one of those who stood near drew his sword and struck the slave of the high priest, cutting off his ear. ⁴⁸Then Jesus said to them, “Have you come out with swords and clubs to arrest me as though I were a bandit? ⁴⁹Day after day I was with you in the temple teaching, and you did not arrest me. But let the scriptures be fulfilled.” ⁵⁰All of them deserted him and fled.

Jesus Before the Council

53 They took Jesus to the high priest; and all the chief priests, the elders, and the scribes were assembled. ⁵⁴Peter had followed him at a distance, right into the courtyard of the high priest; and he was sitting with the guards, warming himself at the fire. ⁵⁵Now the chief priests and the whole council were looking for testimony against Jesus to put him to death; but they found none. ⁵⁶For many gave false testimony against him, and their testimony did not agree. ⁵⁷Some stood up and gave false testimony against him, saying, ⁵⁸"We heard him say, 'I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and in three days I will build another, not made with hands.'" ⁵⁹But even on this point their testimony did not agree. ⁶⁰Then the high priest stood up before them and asked Jesus, "Have you no answer? What is it that they testify against you?" ⁶¹But he was silent and did not answer. Again the high priest asked him, "Are you the Messiah,^e the Son of the Blessed One?" ⁶²Jesus said, "I am; and 'you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Power,' and 'coming with the clouds of heaven.'"

⁶³Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, "Why do we still need witnesses?

⁶⁴You have heard his blasphemy! What is your decision?" All of them condemned him as deserving death. ⁶⁵Some began to spit on him, to blindfold him, and to strike him, saying to him, "Prophecy!" The guards also took him over and beat him.

Peter Denies Jesus

66 While Peter was below in the courtyard, one of the servant-girls of the high priest came by. ⁶⁷When she saw Peter warming himself, she stared at him and said, "You also were with Jesus, the man from Nazareth." ⁶⁸But he denied it, saying, "I do not know or understand what you are talking about." And he went out into the forecourt.^f Then the cock crowed.^g ⁶⁹And the servant-girl, on seeing him, began again to say to the bystanders, "This man is one of them." ⁷⁰But again he denied it. Then after a little while the bystanders again said to Peter, "Certainly you are one of them; for you are a Galilean." ⁷¹But he began to curse, and he swore an oath, "I do not know this man you are talking about." ⁷²At that moment the cock crowed for the second time. Then Peter remembered that Jesus had said to him, "Before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times." And he broke down and wept.

Jesus Before Pilate

15 As soon as it was morning, the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council. They bound Jesus, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate. ²Pilate asked him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" He answered him, "You say so." ³Then the chief priests accused him of many things. ⁴Pilate asked him again, "Have you no answer? See how many charges they bring against you." ⁵But Jesus made no further reply, so that Pilate was amazed.

Pilate Hands Jesus over to Be Crucified

⁶ Now at the festival he used to release a prisoner for them, anyone for whom they asked. ⁷Now a man called Barabbas was in prison with the rebels who had committed murder during the insurrection. ⁸So the crowd came and began to ask Pilate to do for them according to his custom. ⁹Then he answered them, "Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews?" ¹⁰For he realized that it was out of jealousy that the chief priests had handed him over. ¹¹But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to have him release Barabbas for them instead. ¹²Pilate spoke to them again, "Then what do you wish me to do^h with the man you callⁱ the King of the Jews?" ¹³They shouted back,

"Crucify him!" ¹⁴Pilate asked them, "Why, what evil has he done?" But they shouted all the more, "Crucify him!" ¹⁵So Pilate, wishing to satisfy the crowd, released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

The Soldiers Mock Jesus

¹⁶ Then the soldiers led him into the courtyard of the palace (that is, the governor's headquarters j); and they called together the whole cohort. ¹⁷And they clothed him in a purple cloak; and after twisting some thorns into a crown, they put it on him. ¹⁸And they began saluting him, "Hail, King of the Jews!" ¹⁹They struck his head with a reed, spat upon him, and knelt down in homage to him. ²⁰After mocking him, they stripped him of the purple cloak and put his own clothes on him. Then they led him out to crucify him.

The Crucifixion of Jesus

²¹ They compelled a passer-by, who was coming in from the country, to carry his cross; it was Simon of Cyrene, the father of Alexander and Rufus. ²²Then they brought Jesus^k to the place called ²⁵ It was nine o'clock in the morning when they crucified him. ²⁶The inscription of the charge against him read, "The King of the Jews." ²⁷And with him they crucified two bandits, one on his right and one on his left. ²⁸Those who passed by derided^m him, shaking their heads and saying, "Aha! You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, ²⁹save yourself, and come down from the cross!" ³⁰In the same way the chief priests, along with the scribes, were also mocking him among themselves and saying, "He saved others; he cannot save himself. ³¹Let the Messiah,ⁿ the King of Israel, come down from the cross now, so that we may see and believe." Those who were crucified with him also taunted him.

The Death of Jesus

³³ When it was noon, darkness came over the whole land^o until three in the afternoon. ³⁴At three o'clock Jesus cried out with a loud voice, "Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani?" which means, "My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?"^p ³⁵When some of the bystanders heard it, they said, "Listen, he is calling for Elijah." ³⁶And someone ran, filled a sponge with sour wine, put it on a stick, and gave it to him to drink, saying, "Wait, let us see whether Elijah will come to take him down." ³⁷Then Jesus gave a loud cry and breathed his last. ³⁸And the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom. ³⁹Now when the centurion, who stood facing him, saw that in this way he^q breathed his last, he said, "Truly this man was God's Son!"^r

⁴⁰ There were also women looking on from a distance; among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joses, and Salome. ⁴¹These used to follow him and provided for him when he was in Galilee;

The Burial of Jesus

42 When evening had come, and since it was the day of Preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath, ⁴³ Joseph of Arimathea, a respected member of the council, who was also himself waiting expectantly for the kingdom of God, went boldly to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. ⁴⁴ Then Pilate wondered if he were already dead; and summoning the centurion, he asked him whether he had been dead for some time. ⁴⁵ When he learned from the centurion that he was dead, he granted the body to Joseph. ⁴⁶ Then Joseph^s bought a linen cloth, and taking down the body,^t wrapped it in the linen cloth, and laid it in a tomb that had been hewn out of the rock. He then rolled a stone against the door of the tomb. ⁴⁷ Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joseph^s saw where the body^s was laid.

The Resurrection of Jesus

16 When the sabbath was over, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices, so that they might go and anoint him. ² And very early on the first day of the week, when the sun had risen, they went to the tomb. ³ They had been saying to one another, "Who will roll away the stone for us from the entrance to the tomb?" ⁴ When they looked up, they saw that the stone, which was very large, had already been rolled back. ⁵ As they entered the tomb, they saw a young man, dressed in a white robe, sitting on the right side; and they were alarmed. ⁶ But he said to them, "Do not be alarmed; you are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He has been raised; he is not here. Look, there is the place they laid him. ⁷ But go, tell his disciples and Peter that he is going ahead of you to Galilee; there you will see him, just as he told you." ⁸ So they went out and fled from the tomb, for terror and amazement had seized them; and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid."^u

THE LONGER ENDING OF MARK

Jesus Appears to Mary Magdalene

9 [Now after he rose early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons. ¹⁰She went out and told those who had been with him, while they were mourning and weeping. ¹¹But when they heard that he was alive and had been seen by her, they would not believe it.

Jesus Appears to Two Disciples

12 After this he appeared in another form to two of them, as they were walking into the country. ¹³And they went back and told the rest, but they did not believe them.

Jesus Commissions the Disciples

14 Later he appeared to the eleven themselves as they were sitting at the table; and he upbraided them for their lack of faith and stubbornness, because they had not believed those who saw him after he had risen.^w ¹⁵And he said to them, "Go into all the world and proclaim the good news^x to the whole creation. ¹⁶The one who believes and is baptized will be saved; but the one who does not believe will be condemned. ¹⁷And these signs will accompany those who believe: by using my name they will cast out demons; they will speak in new tongues; ¹⁸they will pick up snakes in their hands,^y and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them; they will lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover."

The Ascension of Jesus

19 So then the Lord Jesus, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven and sat down at the right hand of God. ²⁰And they went out and proclaimed the good news everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the message by the signs that accompanied it.^z]

LUKE

Author

THIS BOOK BEARS THE NAME of Luke, “the beloved physician” of Col 4.14 (see also 2 Tim 4.11; Philem 24), and is generally identified as the Third Gospel. Both of these identifications probably originate with the inclusion of the book in an early Christian collection of Gospels. This may also have been the time when this story about Jesus was separated from its companion volume, The Acts of the Apostles. The continuity of story and the literary similarity of the two volumes have led modern scholars to refer to them as “Luke-Acts,” although in that extended story neither volume ever mentions Luke’s name or speaks of the “acts of the apostles.” It may be finally impossible to prove or disprove the traditional identification of the author, but the name Luke may be used without making too much of it.

Date and Place of Composition

The book also gives no direct indication of the time or place it was written. Because of its apparent use of the Gospel of Mark, scholars generally date it in the last third of the first century c.e. There also seem to be allusions to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 c.e. (see esp. 19.41–44; 21.20–24), but these are traditional prophetic oracles that other interpreters regard as proving only Jesus’ and Luke’s dependence on the scriptures of Israel.

Similarly the prominence of the mission to the Gentiles in Luke-Acts does not provide the grounds for dating that were once assumed. Christian communities probably had various Jewish and gentile memberships throughout the latter half of the first century (see Rom 9–11), and nothing conclusive is known about where Luke was written.

Style and Genre

Generations of readers and interpreters have agreed on the literary elegance of Luke. This is a tale well told with a beginning (chs. 1–2), a middle (chs. 3–21), and an end (chs. 22–24) that anticipates its sequel in Acts (see esp. Lk 24.44–53; Acts 1.1–11). Several episodes in the story, such as the birth of Jesus (2.1–20), are classics in Christian tradition and public usage, in part because of the author's narrative skill.

The book bears traits of several literary genres. The prologue (1.1–4) displays the author's mastery of the complex Hellenistic art of introducing a narrative. The literary elegance of these verses reflects the mode in which Hellenistic histories were often written. Luke's account of the lack of recognition of the risen Jesus by his disciples (24.1–43) also reflects the artistic narrative style of the first century. This book, however, is also a scriptural commentary, attesting the fulfillment of "everything written about me [Jesus] in the law of Moses, the prophets, and the psalms" (24.44). The stylized prologue is followed by several lengthy stories written in the mode of the scriptural histories of Israel (1.5–2.52; 3.1–38).

Theology and Religious Background

Luke's view of truth and history are thoroughly theological. The plot is driven by the divine necessity of Jesus' mission (see 9.22, 31; 22.37; 24.7, 26, 44). God's will and reign are at work in human history, in contention with the collusion of human and demonic powers against God's "holy servant Jesus" (see 22.1–6; Acts 4.27). Jesus' contemporaries are also depicted as not understanding the character of the conflict (see esp. 13.31–34; 19.39–44). The apparent triumph of the will of the mob in Jesus' execution (23.25) is attested by Luke as the fulfillment of God's will and way of mercy (see 22.42; 24.25–26; Acts 4.24–28).

Luke, however, is not merely a literary fiction. This story is about a historical person in the midst of conflicts in Israel. This consideration makes the story more interesting, powerful, and even dangerous. The danger is especially strong in regard to Jesus' conflicts with the religious leaders of Israel. Once this story became the almost exclusive possession of non-Jewish (gentile) Christians, the conflicts among Jewish leaders seemed less like a struggle within the family over the fulfillment of the scriptural promises and more like an anti-Jewish story. It is crucial to note that almost all of the followers of Jesus in Luke are Jewish. Furthermore, all of the Jewish participants in the narrative, whether or not they accept Jesus as the Messiah, are subject to the rule of the Roman occupation of Judea and Galilee. The story is a fascinating and dire depiction of how conquered people are divided or even pitted against each other.

Readers will discover that the frequent references to OT passages in the notes are an excellent point of entry to Luke's account. Since Luke's story of Jesus emphasizes the fulfillment of the scriptures, it is not surprising to find the narrative full of scriptural allusions. Of course, those in Israel who did not accept Jesus as the Messiah would have contested such an interpretation of passages from Isaiah, Deuteronomy, and other books, but the narrative advances Luke's claim that Israel's heritage legitimates Jesus as the Messiah and Savior promised by God. David L. Tiede

Dedication to Theophilus

1 Since many have undertaken to set down an orderly account of the events that have been fulfilled among us, ²just as they were handed on to us by those who from the beginning were eyewitnesses and servants of the word, ³I too decided, after investigating everything carefully from the very first,^a to write an orderly account for you, most excellent Theophilus, ⁴so that you may know the truth concerning the things about which you have been instructed.

The Birth of John the Baptist Foretold

5 In the days of King Herod of Judea, there was a priest named Zechariah, who belonged to the priestly order of Abijah. His wife was a descendant of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. ⁶Both of them were righteous before God, living blamelessly according to all the commandments and regulations of the Lord. ⁷But they had no children, because Elizabeth was barren, and both were getting on in years.

8 Once when he was serving as priest before God and his section was on duty, ⁹he was chosen by lot, according to the custom of the priesthood, to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and offer incense. ¹⁰Now at the time of the incense offering, the whole assembly of the people was praying outside. ¹¹Then there appeared to him an angel of the Lord, standing at the right side of the altar of incense. ¹²When Zechariah saw him, he was terrified; and fear overwhelmed him. ¹³But the angel said to him, "Do not be afraid, Zechariah, for your prayer has been heard. Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you will name him John. ¹⁴You will have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth, ¹⁵for he will be great in the sight of the Lord. He must never drink wine or strong drink; even before his birth he will be filled with the Holy Spirit. ¹⁶He will turn many of the people of Israel to the Lord their God. ¹⁷With the spirit and power of Elijah he will go before him, to turn the hearts of parents to their children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the righteous, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord." ¹⁸Zechariah said to the angel, "How will I know that this is so? For I am an old man, and my wife is getting on in years." ¹⁹The angel replied, "I am Gabriel. I stand in the presence of God, and I have been sent to speak to you and to bring you this good news. ²⁰But now, because you did not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in their time, you will become mute, unable to speak, until the day these things occur."

a Or for a long time

1.1-4 Luke begins in the style of a first-century historian with references to other sources and a formal dedication. 1.1 We do not know how many others sought to provide an orderly account. Reference to the events that have been fulfilled indicates the importance of scriptural promises in Luke's narrative (see also 24.26-27, 44). 1.2 Traditional stories have been handed on from eyewitnesses to the events and servants of the word, who were probably Christian interpreters (see 4.20-21; Acts 13.5). The author does not claim to be an eyewitness. 1.3 Theophilus (see also Acts 1.1) was probably the author's patron but is otherwise unknown.

1.5-2.52 Luke's mode of writing now imitates the scriptural historians (see 1-2 Samuel; 1-2 Kings). 1.5-25 The announcement of John's birth foreshadows that of Jesus. 1.5 The days of the rule of Herod the Great (see Mt 2; see also "The Herods: A Simplified Family Tree," p. 1862) spanned several decades (37-4 B.C.E.). Aaron is the ancestor of Israel's priestly line (see Ex 40.12-15); thus John's parents both came from priestly families. 1.7 Their lack of children in advanced age is like that of Sarah and Abraham (Gen 18.11) and Hannah and Elkanah (1 Sam 1-2). 1.8 Each group of priests was probably on duty for two appointed cycles each year. 1.9 Individuals chosen by lot were understood to be divinely appointed (see Acts 1.24-26). Only the priest could enter the sanctuary and approach the divine presence. 1.11-12 An angel of the Lord is a heavenly messenger, causing mortals to fear for their lives (Isa 6.5-6). 1.13 Do not be afraid, common words of heavenly reassurance (see 1.30; 2.10; 5.10; 8.50; see also Gen 15.1; Dan 10.12; Acts 18.9; 27.24). Samuel's birth was also an answer to prayer in the temple (1 Sam 1.9-11). 1.15 Samson (Judg 13.4) and Samuel (1 Sam 1.11) were also children of divine promise, required to abstain from strong drink so that only the Holy Spirit would fill them. 1.17 The spirit and power of Elijah defines John's prophetic task of turning the people in repentance (3.3; Mal 4.5-6). 1.18 Zechariah's question expresses doubt (see also Sarah in Gen 18.12-14; cf. Mary in Lk 1.34). 1.19 Gabriel, an official emissary of God's court (see 1.26; Dan 8.16; 9.21).

21 Meanwhile the people were waiting for Zechariah, and wondered at his delay in the sanctuary. 22 When he did come out, he could not speak to them, and they realized that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary. He kept motioning to them and remained unable to speak. 23 When his time of service was ended, he went to his home.

24 After those days his wife Elizabeth conceived, and for five months she remained in seclusion. She said, 25 "This is what the Lord has done for me when he looked favorably on me and took away the disgrace I have endured among my people."

The Birth of Jesus Foretold

26 In the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent by God to a town in Galilee called Nazareth, 27 to a virgin engaged to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David. The virgin's name was Mary. 28 And he came to her and said, "Greetings, favored one! The Lord is with you."^b 29 But she was much perplexed by his words and pondered what sort of greeting this might be. 30 The angel said to her, "Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found favor with God. 31 And now, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you will name him Jesus. 32 He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God will give to him the throne of his ancestor David. 33 He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there will be no end." 34 Mary said to the angel,

"How can this be, since I am a virgin?"^c

35 The angel said to her, "The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore the child to be born^d will be holy; he will be called Son of God. 36 And now, your relative Elizabeth in her old age has also conceived a son; and this is the sixth month for her who was said to be barren. 37 For nothing will be impossible with God." 38 Then Mary said, "Here am I, the servant of the Lord; let it be with me according to your word." Then the angel departed from her.

Mary Visits Elizabeth

39 In those days Mary set out and went with haste to a Judean town in the hill country, 40 where she entered the house of Zechariah and greeted Elizabeth. 41 When Elizabeth heard Mary's greeting, the child leaped in her womb. And Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit 42 and exclaimed with a loud cry, "Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb. 43 And why has this happened to me, that the mother of my Lord comes to me? 44 For as soon as I heard the sound of your greeting, the child in my womb leaped for joy. 45 And blessed is she who believed that there would be^e a fulfillment of what was spoken to her by the Lord."

46 And Mary^f said,

1.22 Zechariah's enforced silence keeps Gabriel's message a secret until Zechariah speaks prophetically (1.67-79). 1.25 Childlessness was considered a disgrace in Israel (see Gen 16.4; 30.23), requiring God's intervention.

1.26-38 Gabriel again announces a blessed conception and birth (see also 1.13-17). 1.26 This is the sixth month of Elizabeth's pregnancy (see 1.24, 36). Nazareth was an unimportant village in Galilee, north of Judea (see Jn 1.46). 1.27 The term virgin emphasizes both Mary's youth and the holiness of this conception (1.34-35; see also Isa 7.14; Mt 1.20-23). Jesus' royal lineage is traced through Joseph to David (see 2.4; 3.23; 2 Sam 7.12-17). 1.31 Jesus is a common form of the name Joshua. 1.32 Son of the Most High. See 1.35; 8.28; 9.35; cf. 1.76; 6.35; Acts 16.17. 1.33 His kingdom with no end is the fulfillment of the promise to David (2 Sam 7.16; Isa 9.7; see also Dan 7.14). 1.35 In the OT God's presence is often conceived of as a light hidden in a cloud to overshadow mortals without harm (see Ex 16.10; 24.15-18; 40.34-35; see also Lk 9.34). This holy Son of God surpasses David and his royal heirs, who were adopted sons of God (Ps 2.7). 1.37 Cf. God's word to Sarah in Gen 18.14. 1.38 Hannah also described herself as God's obedient servant (1 Sam 1.11). Mary's word let it be echoes her question How can this be? (1.34).

1.39-56 Mary and Elizabeth give praise to God. 1.41 Filled with the Holy Spirit. Elizabeth's speech is prophetic as John's mother acclaim Jesus' mother (see 1.67). 1.45 Mary is blessed for her trust in the angel's message about her pregnancy (1.30-38; see also 1.42; 11.27-28). 1.46-55 This hymn of praise (traditionally called her home.

The Birth of John the Baptist

57 Now the time came for Elizabeth to give birth, and she bore a son. ⁵⁸Her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had shown his great mercy to her,
 and they rejoiced with her.

59 On the eighth day they came to circumcise the child, and they were going to name him Zechariah after his father.
 60 But his mother said, "No; he is to be called John." ⁶¹They said to her, "None of your relatives has this name." ⁶²Then
 they began motioning to his father to find out what name he wanted to give him.
 63 He asked for a writing tablet and wrote,
 "His name is John." And all of them were amazed. ⁶⁴Immediately his mouth was opened and his tongue freed, and he began to speak, praising God. ⁶⁵Fear came over all their neighbors, and all these things were talked about throughout the entire hill country of Judea. ⁶⁶All who heard them pondered them and said,
 "What then will this child become?" For, indeed, the hand of the Lord was
 with him.

67 Then his father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke this prophecy:

68 "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel,
 for he has looked favorably on his people and redeemed
 them.
 69 He has raised up a mighty savior^g for us
 in the house of his servant
 David,

 of his holy prophets from our enemies and from the hand of all who hate us.

The Birth of Jesus

2 In those days a decree went out from Emperor Augustus that all the world should be registered. ²This was the first registration and was taken while Quirinius was governor of Syria. ³All went to their own towns to be registered. ⁴Joseph also went from the town of Nazareth in Galilee to Judea, to the city of David called Bethlehem, because he was descended from the house and family of David. ⁵He went to be registered with Mary, to whom he was engaged and who was expecting a child. ⁶While they were there, the time came for her to deliver her child. ⁷And she gave birth to her firstborn son and wrapped him in bands of cloth, and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the inn.

The Shepherds and the Angels

8 In that region there were shepherds living in the fields, keeping watch over their flock by night. ⁹Then an angel of the Lord stood before them, and the glory of the Lord shone around them, and they were terrified. ¹⁰But the angel said to them, “Do not be afraid; for see—I am bringing you good news of great joy for scription. Dating this census has confounded historians. Herod the Great died in 4 B.C.E. (see 1.5; Mt 2.1). all the people: ¹¹to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is the Messiah,ⁱ the Lord. ¹²This will be a sign for you: you will find a child wrapped in bands of cloth and lying in a manger.” ¹³And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host,^j praising God and saying,

¹⁴ “Glory to God in the highest heaven,
and on earth peace among those whom he favors!”^k

¹⁵ When the angels had left them and gone into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, “Let us go now to Bethlehem and see this thing that has taken place, which the Lord has made known to us.” ¹⁶So they went with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the child lying in the manger. ¹⁷When they saw this, they made known what had been told them about this child; ¹⁸and all who heard it were amazed at what the shepherds told them. ¹⁹But Mary treasured all these words and pondered them in her heart. ²⁰The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen, as it had been told them.

Jesus Is Named and Presented in the Temple

²¹ After eight days had passed, it was time to circumcise the child; and he was called Jesus, the name given by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

²² When the time came for their purification according to the law of Moses, they brought him up to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord ²³(as it is written in the law of the Lord, “Every firstborn male shall be designated as holy to the Lord”), ²⁴and they offered a sacrifice according to what is stated in the law of the Lord, “a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.”

²⁵ Now there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon;^l this man was righteous and devout, looking forward to the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit rested on him. ²⁶It had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not see death before he had seen the Lord’s Messiah.^m ²⁷Guided by the Spirit, Simeonⁿ came into the temple; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him what was customary under the law, ²⁸Simeon^o took him in his arms and praised God, saying,

²⁹ “Master, now you are dismissing

2.11 City of David. See 2.4. The title Savior is rare in the Gospels (see 1.47; Jn 4.42; see also Acts 5.31; 13.23) but was commonly used of the Roman emperor. Israel had long used this political title for God (see Isa 43.3, 11). The titles Messiah and Lord are again combined in Peter’s acclamation of Jesus in Acts 2.36. The Messiah, or Christ, is an anointed ruler (see Acts 10.38). 2.12 The sign of a child in a manger is literally fulfilled (2.16) and alludes to Isaiah’s prophecy of a child (Isa 7.14; see also Mt 1.22-23). 2.13 Heavenly host, the armies of heaven, whose testimony reveals the divine meaning of this birth. 2.19 On Mary’s pondering, see 2.34-35, 51. 2.20 The shepherds’ praise of God for what they had heard and seen echoes the praise of the angelic armies (2.13-14).

(see also Lk 1.35). 2.24 A sacrifice of turtledoves or . . . pigeons was acceptable for those who could not afford a sheep (see Lev 12.8). 2.25 Simeon’s credentials as righteous and devout express his fidelity to the law (see 1.6). The consolation of Israel, i.e., the promised restoration of Israel’s independence (see Isa 40.1; 49.6; 61.2). The presence of the Holy Spirit with Simeon (see also 2.26, 27) confirms the prophetic nature of his oracles. The language of “seeing” is prominent in these verses. 2.27 Guided by the Spirit. Simeon’s recognition of the infant Jesus is itself inspired. 2.28-32 Simeon’s first oracle praises God and again declares God’s saving purposes (see 2.14). The words are often used at the close of Christian worship as the Nunc Dimittis, Latin for now you are dismissing (v. 29). This is the language of a royal court. 2.31 On the manifestation of a great rule in the presence of all peoples, see Isa 40.3-5 (cited in Lk 3.6); 52.10. 2.32 The logic is that of Isa 49.6: i.e., Israel’s glory is to be a light for revelation to the

and for glory to your people Israel."

33 And the child's father and mother were amazed at what was being said about him. 34 Then Simeon^q blessed them and said to his mother Mary, "This child is destined for the falling and the rising of many in Israel, and to be a sign that will be opposed 35 so that the inner thoughts of many will be revealed—and a sword will pierce your own soul too."

36 There was also a prophet, Anna^r the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher. She was of a great age, having lived with her husband seven years after her marriage, 37 then as a widow to the age of eighty-four. She never left the temple but worshiped there with fasting and prayer night and day. 38 At that moment she came, and began to praise God and to speak about the child^s to all who were looking for the redemption of Jerusalem.

39 When they had finished everything required by the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, to their own town of Nazareth. 40 The child grew and became strong, filled with wisdom; and the favor of God was upon him.

The Boy Jesus in the Temple

41 Now every year his parents went to Jerusalem for the festival of the Passover. 42 And when he was twelve years old, they went up as usual for the festival. 43 When the festival was ended and they started to return, the boy Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem, but his parents did not know it. 44 Assuming that he was in the group of travelers, they went a day's journey. Then they started to look for him among their relatives and friends. 45 When they did not find him, they returned to Jerusalem to search for him. 46 After three days they found him in the temple, sitting among the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions. 47 And all who heard him were amazed at his understanding and his answers. 48 When his parents^r saw him they were astonished; and his mother said to him, "Child, why have you treated us like this? Look, your father and I have been searching for you in great anxiety." 49 He said to them, "Why were you searching for me? Did you not know that I must be in my Father's house?"^u 50 But they did not understand what he said to them. 51 Then he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them. His mother treasured all these things in her heart.

52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and in years,^v and in divine and human favor.

Gentiles. 2.34 Simeon's second oracle sounds a prophetic warning. How the child is destined to cause the falling and the rising of many will become clear in the conflict between God's saving purpose and human opposition to this sign (see 2.12; Isa 8.18). 2.35 The inner thoughts of many implies human resistance and rejection (see 5.21-22; 6.8; 11.17; 20.14). The sword of division will also cause pain for Mary and her family (see 8.19-21; 11.27-28; 12.51-53). 2.36-37 Anna's ancestry in Israel (the tribe of Asher; see Deut 33.24-25) and her credentials as a prophet (cf. Philip's daughters in Acts 21.9) and a widow (cf. Acts 6.1; 9.41) indicate her special status. She gives another inspired temple oracle (see 2.27). 2.38 Anna's words echo Simeon's prophetic speech. The redemption of Jerusalem is analogous to the consolation of Israel (see note on 2.25). 2.39 The fulfillment of the law of the Lord is crucial to this story (see 2.23). Nazareth. See 2.4; note on 1.26. 2.40 The child grew and became strong. See note on 1.80.

2.41-52 Only Luke provides a story of Jesus' boyhood. 2.41 The Passover pilgrimage was an observance of Israel's liberation from Egyptian bondage (Ex 12.1-27; 23.15; Num 9.2-14; Deut 16.16). Jesus returns to Jerusalem at Passover in 19.28-48. 2.42 At twelve years old, Jesus was approaching the traditional time of formal teaching in the law. 2.46 The temple is again the site (see 2.22-38) where Israel's teachers of the law encounter the child of promise. 2.49 Jesus must be in the temple because it accords with God's plan (see also 4.43; 9.22; 13.33; Acts 1.7). 2.51-52 Jesus was obedient to his earthly mother and father when it did not conflict with God's will (see 8.21). The growth refrain (see also 1.80; 2.40) thus affirms both divine and human favor.

3.1-20 Cf. Mt 3.1-12; 14.3-4; Mk 1.2-8; 6.17-18. Luke again adopts a historian's mode (see 1.1-4), locating the beginning of John's

Philip ruler^x of the region of Ituraea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias ruler^x of Abilene, ²during the high priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, the word of God came to John son of Zechariah in the wilderness. ³He went into all the region around the Jordan, proclaiming a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins, ⁴as it is written in the book of the words of the prophet Isaiah,

"The voice of one crying out in the wilderness:

'Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.

5 Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be made low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways made smooth;

6 and all flesh shall see the salvation of God.'"

7 John said to the crowds that came out to be baptized by him, "You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? ⁸Bear fruits worthy of repentance. Do not begin to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our ancestor'; for I tell you, God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham. ⁹Even now the ax is lying at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire."

10 And the crowds asked him, "What then should we do?" ¹¹In reply he said to them, "Whoever has two coats must share with anyone who has none; and whoever has food must do likewise." ¹²Even tax collectors came to be baptized, and they asked him, "Teacher, what should we do?" ¹³He said to them, "Collect no more than the amount prescribed for you." ¹⁴Soldiers also asked him, "And we, what should we do?" He said to them, "Do not extort money from anyone by threats or false accusation, and be satisfied with your wages."

15 As the people were filled with expectation, and all were questioning in their hearts concerning John, whether he might be the Messiah,^y ¹⁶John answered all of them by saying, "I baptize you with water; but one who is more powerful than I is coming; I am not worthy to untie the thong of his sandals. He will baptize you with^z the Holy Spirit and fire. ¹⁷His winnowing fork is in his hand, to clear his threshing floor and to gather the wheat into his granary; but the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire."

18 So, with many other exhortations, he proclaimed the good news to the people. ¹⁹But Herod the ruler,^x who had preaching with reference to the calendar and authority structures of the empire, the local rulers, and the high-priesthood. 3.1 Tiberius was emperor during John's and Jesus' public activity (14-37 C.E.), and Pilate (see also 13.1; 23.1-52) was governor in Judea for most of that time (26-36 C.E.). Herod Antipas was the son of Herod the Great, whom the Romans had named "King of the Jews" (1.5; see Mt 2.1-12). Antipas unsuccessfully sought this title from Rome (perhaps accounting for the tension with Pilate in 23.12). 3.2 The high priests, Annas and Caiaphas, were subject to regulation and annual appointment by Rome. The word of God came to John indicates the call of a prophet (see Jer 1.4, 11; Hos 1.1; Joel 1.1). 3.3 A baptism of repentance is a ritual of cleansing, signifying a return to God with the expectation of forgiveness. 3.4-6 Isa 40.3-5 serves to identify John with traditional hopes for Israel's restoration among the nations. 3.6 The salvation of God is declared evident for all to see, perhaps in contrast to the empty claims of other gods and rulers to be saviors (Isa 45.20-23; see also notes on Lk 2.1; 2.11). 3.7 God's coming kingdom will be wrath for those unprepared for its judgment. 3.8 Abraham is known as the friend of God (2 Chr 20.7) and the father of Israel (Lk 16.23; see also Gen 17; Isa 51.2; Jn 8.33-40), but his offspring must also prepare to receive God's reign. 3.11 The content of repentance is that all are asked to share food and clothing (see also Acts 2.44-47; 4.32-35). 3.12-14 Tax collectors and soldiers do not appear in Matthew's or Mark's versions (see also Lk 5.27-30; 7.2-10, 29, 34; 15.1; 18.9-14). John's requirements fit the reputations of these groups (see note on 5.30). 3.15 The Messiah is Israel's Davidic king (see notes on 1.33; 2.11). 3.16 John declares the Messiah's baptism to be with the Holy Spirit and fire of judgment (3.9, 17). In Acts, the Holy Spirit and tongues of fire fall on the disciples at Pentecost also as a sign of promise (see Acts 2.1-21, 38-39). 3.17 The images of threshing and winnowing, or separating, grain are commonly used for judgment (Isa 41.15-16; Jer 15.7; Rev 14.14-20). 3.19 The marriages of Herod Antipas (see note on 3.1) were notorious for their political intrigue.

been rebuked by him because of Herodias, his brother's wife, and because of all the evil things that Herod had done, ²⁰added to them all by shutting up John in prison.

The Baptism of Jesus

21 Now when all the people were baptized, and when Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, the heaven was opened, ²²and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in bodily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven, "You are my Son, the Beloved;^a with you I am well pleased."^b

The Ancestors of Jesus

23 Jesus was about thirty years old when he began his work. He was the son (as was thought) of Joseph son of Heli, ²⁴son of Matthat, son of Levi, son of Melchi, son of Jannai, son of Joseph, ²⁵son of Mattathias, son of Amos, son of Nahum, son of Esli, son of Naggai, ²⁶son of Maath, son of Mattathias, son of Semein, son of Josech, son of Joda, ²⁷son of Joanan, son of Rhesa, son of Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel,^c son of Neri, ²⁸son of Melchi, son of Addi, son of Cosam, son of Elmadam, son of Er, ²⁹son of Joshua, son of Eliezer, son of Jorim, son of Matthat, son of Levi, ³⁰son of Simeon, son of Judah, son of Joseph, son of Jonam, son of Eliakim, ³¹son of Melea, son of Menna, son of Mattatha, son of Nathan, son of David, ³²son of Jesse, son of Obed, son of Boaz, son of Sala,^d son of Nahshon, ³³son of Amminadab, son of Admin, son of Arni,^e son of Hezron, son of Perez, son of Judah, ³⁴son of Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham, son of Terah, son of Nahor, ³⁵son of Serug, son of Reu, son of Peleg, son of Eber, son of Shelah, ³⁶son of Cainan, son of Arphaxad, son of Shem, son of Noah, son of Lamech, ³⁷son of Methuselah, son of Enoch, son of Jared, son of Mahalaleel, son of Cainan, ³⁸son of Enos, son of Seth, son of Adam, son of God.

The Temptation of Jesus

4 Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness, ²where for forty days he was tempted by the devil. He ate nothing at all during those days, and when they were over, he was famished. ³The devil said to him, "If you are the Son of God, command this stone to become a loaf of bread." ⁴Jesus answered him, "It is written, 'One does not live by bread alone.'"

5 Then the devil^f led him up and showed him in an instant all the kingdoms of the world. ⁶And the devil^f said to him, "To you I will give their glory and all this authority; for it has been given over to me, and I give it to anyone I please. ⁷If you, then, will worship me, it will all be yours." ⁸Jesus answered him, "It is written,

'Worship the Lord your God,
and serve only him.'"

3.21-22 Cf. Mt 3.13-17; Mk 1.9-11. Luke mentions Jesus' baptism after reporting John's imprisonment. 3.22 Jesus is acclaimed from heaven as God's Son, the Beloved (see Gen 22.2; Ps 2.7; Isa 42.1; see also Lk 4.1-13; Acts 4.27).

3.23-38 Cf. Mt 1.1-17. Jesus' ancestry is traced through Joseph's ostensible paternity (see also 2.41, 48). 3.23 Jesus' age of about thirty years implies full maturity and fits with the middle of Tiberius's reign. 3.23b-31 Most of the persons in the genealogical list up to David are otherwise unknown. 3.31 David's place in the genealogy is not highlighted (cf. Mt 1.6, 17); see, however, 1.32, 69; 18.38-39; cf. 20.41-44. 3.38 Luke establishes Jesus as son of David in the line of Adam, son of God (see 3.22), thus emphasizing his significance for all humankind. He is legitimately God's anointed ruler.

4.1-13 Cf. Mt 4.1-11; Mk 1.12-13. The reign of the newly "anointed" Son of God is tested (see 1 Kings 3.1-14). 4.1-2 Forty days in the wilderness fits the pattern of Moses' and Elijah's fasts (Ex 34.28; Deut 9.9, 18; 1 Kings 19.8) and God's testing of Israel for forty years in the wilderness (Deut 8.2-5; Ps 95.10). 4.3 If here means "since" (see also 23.37), granting that Jesus is the Son of God (see 1.32; 2.49; 4.41) but challenging how he will exercise that authority (4.6). 4.4 Jesus' three responses (also 4.8; 4.12) refer to Deuteronomy, here Deut 8.3. 4.7 The devil's request for worship meant an acknowledgment of legitimate dominion. 4.8 Jesus quotes

lem, and placed him on the pinnacle of the temple, saying to him, "If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here,"¹⁰ for it is written,

'He will command his angels concerning you, to protect you,'

¹¹and

'On their hands they will bear you up, so that you will not dash your foot against a stone.'"

¹²Jesus answered him, "It is said, 'Do not put the Lord your God to the test.'"

¹³When the devil had finished every test, he departed from him until an opportune time.

The Rejection of Jesus at Nazareth

¹⁴ Then Jesus, filled with the power of the Spirit, returned to Galilee, and a report about him spread through all the surrounding country. ¹⁵He began to teach in their synagogues and was praised by everyone.

¹⁶ When he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up, he went to the synagogue on the sabbath day, as was his custom. He stood up to read, ¹⁷and the scroll of the prophet Isaiah was given to him. He unrolled the scroll and found the place where it was written:

¹⁸ "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor.

He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives

and recovery of sight to the blind,

to let the oppressed go free,
¹⁹ to proclaim the year of the Lord's favor."

²⁰ And he rolled up the scroll, gave it back to the attendant, and sat down. The eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed on him. ²¹Then he began to say to them, "Today this scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing." ²²All spoke well of him and were amazed at the gracious words that came from his mouth. They said, "Is not this Joseph's son?" ²³He said to them, "Doubtless you will quote to me this proverb, 'Doctor, cure yourself!' And you will say, 'Do here also in your hometown the things that we have heard you did at Capernaum.'" ²⁴And he said, "Truly I tell you, no prophet is accepted in the prophet's hometown. ²⁵But the truth is, there were many widows in Israel in the time of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, and there was a severe famine over all the land; ²⁶yet Elijah was sent to none of them except to a widow at Zarephath in Sidon. ²⁷There were also many lepers^g in Israel in the time of the prophet Elisha, and none of them was cleansed except Naaman the Syrian." ²⁸When they heard this, all in the synagogue were filled with rage. ²⁹They got up, drove him out of the town, and led him to the brow of the hill on which their town was built, so that they might hurl him off the cliff. ³⁰But he passed through the midst of them and went on his way.

^g The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

from Deut 6.13. 4.10-11 The devil quotes Ps 91.11-12, which counsels trusting God, not testing. 4.12 Jesus quotes from Deut 6.16. 4.13 On the opportune time of the devil's return, see 22.3-6.

4.14-30 Cf. Mt 13.53-58; Mk 6.1-6a. The story of Jesus' rejection in his hometown foreshadows the opposition that his ministry will evoke. 4.14 Luke again highlights the agency of the Spirit at the beginning of Jesus' ministry (see also 3.22; 4.1, 18). 4.16 As was his custom. Jesus is faithful to Israel's practices, here observing synagogue worship on the sabbath (see also 2.21-38). The guest was invited to read from the prophetic scroll (4.17) and comment (see Acts 13.15). 4.18-19 The reading includes portions of Isa 61.1-2; 58.6 (see also Lk 7.22). The poor. See 1.52;

6.20; 7.22; 14.13, 21; 16.20, 22. The year of the Lord's favor was a "year of jubilee" and restoration in Lev 25.8-12. 4.20 According to Jewish custom, one stood to read scripture but sat down to teach (see also 5.3). 4.21 Fulfillment in your hearing does not guarantee acceptance (see Isa 6.9-10; Acts 28.26-27). 4.22 Joseph's son. Cf. 2.48-49; 3.22-23. 4.23 This proverb (lit. "parable"; see note on 6.39) was common in Greek and Jewish lore. In Luke's story, Jesus arrives only later in Capernaum (4.31). 4.25-28 The stories of Elijah in Sidon (1 Kings 17.1-16) and Elisha and the Syrian (2 Kings 5.1-14) recall times of judgment on Israel. 4.29-30 To hurl him off the cliff may imply the stoning of a heretic, but somehow Jesus continues on his determined way (see 9.51-56; 13.31-35).

The Man with an Unclean Spirit

31 He went down to Capernaum, a city in Galilee, and was teaching them on the sabbath. 32 They were astounded at his teaching, because he spoke with authority. 33 In the synagogue there was a man who had the spirit of an unclean demon, and he cried out with a loud voice, 34 "Let us alone! What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God." 35 But Jesus rebuked him, saying, "Be silent, and come out of him!" When the demon had thrown him down before them, he came out of him without having done him any harm. 36 They were all amazed and kept saying to one another, "What kind of utterance is this? For with authority and power he commands the unclean spirits, and out they come!" 37 And a report about him began to reach every place in the region.

Healings at Capernaum

38 After leaving the synagogue he entered Simon's house. Now Simon's mother-in-law was suffering from a high fever, and they asked him about her. 39 Then he stood over her and rebuked the fever, and it left her. Immediately she got up and began to serve them.

40 As the sun was setting, all those who had any who were sick with various kinds of diseases brought them to him; and he laid his hands on each of them and cured them. 41 Demons also came out of many, shouting, "You are the Son of God!" But he rebuked them and would not allow them to speak, because they knew that he was the Messiah.^h

42 At daybreak he departed and went into a deserted place. And the crowds were looking for him; and when they reached him, they wanted to prevent him from leaving them. 43 But he said to them, "I must proclaim the good news of the kingdom of God to the other cities also; for I was sent for this purpose." 44 So he continued proclaiming the message in the synagogues of Judea.ⁱ

Jesus Calls the First Disciples

5 Once while Jesus^j was standing beside the lake of Gennesaret, and the crowd was pressing in on him to hear the word of God, 2 he saw two boats there at 4.31–37 Cf. Mt 4.13; 7.28–29; Mk 1.21–28. Luke now tells of Jesus' healings in Capernaum (see 4.23), which were narrated earlier in Mark's sequence. 4.32 They were astounded. The context is again sabbath teaching (see 4.16), but the astonishment of these hearers is evidently positive. 4.33 With a loud voice. See 8.28. 4.34 The Holy One of God. See 1.35; 2.23. For the evil spirits' recognition of Jesus as Son of God, see 4.3, 9, 41; 8.28; cf. the misguided human identification of Jesus in 4.22. 4.35 Jesus' rebuke of the demon is a power confrontation, demonstrating his dominion over evil (Deut 18.9–18). 4.36 Jesus' authority and power are demonstrated, but not on the devil's terms (see 4.1–13).

4.38–44 Cf. Mt 8.14–17; 4.23; Mk 1.29–39. Additional Capernaum episodes illustrate a successful and popular ministry (cf. 4.28–29). 4.38 In Luke's sequence, Jesus appears at Simon's house before Simon is called as a disciple (5.1–11; cf. Mk 1.16–20, 29–31). 4.39 Luke presents Jesus' rebuke of the high fever in the same terms as Jesus' confrontations with the demons (4.35, 41). 4.40–41 These summary verses (see also 4.14–15, 31–32) describe the promised liberation from physical and spiritual forces (see 4.18–19).

Once again, the demons correctly recognize Jesus as the Son of God (see note on 4.34). 4.42–43 Luke's portrait of Jesus often includes retreats to a deserted place for solitude and prayer (see note on 5.16), balanced with the recurring theme of Jesus' determined purpose (see note on 9.51) to declare and inaugurate the kingdom of God. 4.43 The kingdom (or "reign") of God is the substance of Jesus' preaching (see, e.g., chs. 13; 18). It is made present in some sense by Jesus' person and deeds (11.20; 17.21) yet is also spoken of as a future hope (12.31; 22.16, 30). 4.44 The reference to the synagogues of Judea has long confused readers since all of the events narrated thus far have occurred in Galilee (4.14, 16, 31; see text note i). Some interpreters argue that Luke is alluding to an otherwise unmentioned journey into Judea.

5.1–11 Cf. Mt 13.1–3; 4.18–22; Mk 4.1–2; 1.16–20; see Jn 21.1–11. This story echoes earlier scriptural accounts of the calls of Moses while tending sheep (Ex 3), of Gideon while beating wheat (Judg 6), and of Isaiah in the temple (Isa 6). These biblical call stories direct mortals from their usual tasks to God's mission toward the people. 5.1 Lake of Gennesaret, a local name for the Sea of the shore of the lake; the fishermen had gone out of them and were washing their nets. ³He got into one of the boats, the one belonging to Simon, and asked him to put out a little way from the shore. Then he sat down and taught the crowds from the boat. ⁴When he had finished speaking, he said to Simon, "Put out into the deep water and let down your nets for a catch." ⁵Simon answered, "Master, we have worked all night long but have caught nothing. Yet if you say so, I will let down the nets." ⁶When they had done this, they caught so many fish that their nets were beginning to break. ⁷So they signaled their partners in the other boat to come and help them. And they came and filled both boats, so that they began to sink. ⁸But when Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus' knees, saying, "Go away from me, Lord, for I am a sinful man!" ⁹For he and all who were with him were amazed at the catch of fish that they had taken; ¹⁰and so also were James and John, sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. Then Jesus said to Simon, "Do not be afraid; from now on you will be catching people." ¹¹When they had brought their boats to shore, they left everything and followed him.

Jesus Cleanses a Leper

¹² Once, when he was in one of the cities, there was a man covered with leprosy.^k When he saw Jesus, he bowed with his face to the ground and begged him, "Lord, if you choose, you can make me clean." ¹³Then Jesus^l stretched out his hand, touched him, and said, "I do choose. Be made clean." Immediately the leprosy^k left him. ¹⁴And he ordered him to tell no one. "Go," he said, "and show yourself to the priest, and, as Moses commanded, make an offering for your cleansing, for a testimony to them." ¹⁵But now more than ever the word about Jesus^m spread abroad; many crowds would gather to hear him and to be cured of their diseases. ¹⁶But he would withdraw to deserted places and pray.

Jesus Heals a Paralytic

Galilee. 5.3 When Jesus sat down and taught, he was again behaving like a rabbi, but not in a synagogue (see note on 4.20). 5.5 Peter's address to Jesus as Master is deferential to his authority (see 8.24, 45; 9.33, 49; 17.13). 5.8 Now Peter saw much more in this event, falling on his knees in petition (see also 22.41; Acts 7.60; 9.40; 20.36; 21.5) to the Lord (see also 24.34; Isa 6; Acts 2.36). His recognition of being a sinful man indicates his sense of divine presence (cf. Ex 3.6; Judg 6.22; Isa 6.5). 5.9 Their amazement is the mortal fear or awe evoked by an encounter with divine holiness (see notes on 1.11–12; 1.13; Acts 3.10). 5.10 On the image of fishing for people, see also Jer 16.14–16. 5.11 On leaving everything, see 5.28; 9.57–62; 14.33; 18.22–23. And followed. To follow Jesus is a fundamental metaphor in Luke for discipleship in the Messiah's mission (see 5.27–28; 9.23, 49, 57, 59, 61; 18.22, 28, 43; 22.39, 54).

5.12–16 Cf. Mt 8.1–4; Mk 1.40–45. A cure of one who is ritually unclean marks the extension of Jesus' ministry to social outcasts. 5.12 Luke presents a person with an extensive condition of leprosy rather than a leper (but see 4.27; 17.12). The term probably includes what modern diagnosis would identify as several diseases, but ancient Israel understood such unpleasant and disabling skin disorders to require measured separation from the community as much for reasons of ritual purity as hygiene (see Lev 13–14). 5.14 The priest certified a person clean, or healed, according to established standards (see also 17.14). As Moses commanded. Careful observance of the law is also noted in 1.6; 2.22–24. The offering for your cleansing provided a public testimony to the cure. 5.15 The clamor to be cured stands in tension with Jesus' command "to tell no one" (5.14; see also Mk 1.44–45). 5.16 On Jesus' retreat to pray, see note on 4.42–43; see also 3.21; 6.12; 9.18, 28, 29; 11.1; 22.32, 41, 44.

5.17–26 Cf. Mt 9.1–8; Mk 2.1–12. This healing story has a profound theological controversy about forgiveness at its center (5.20b–24a). 5.17 Jesus' teaching is being conducted in the midst of Pharisees, who were recognized authorities on the strict observance of the law (see 15.2; Acts 26.5). The teachers of the law (see also Acts 5.34) may have been scribes of the Pharisaic party (see 5.21; 15.2) or associated with other official groups in Israel (see lists in 19.47; 20.1). The power of the Lord (i.e., of God) indicates the interruption of normal activity by divine agency rusalem); and the power of the Lord was with him to heal.ⁿ 18 Just then some men came, carrying a paralyzed man on a bed. They were trying to bring him in and lay him before Jesus;^o 19 but finding no way to bring him in because of the crowd, they went up on the roof and let him down with his bed through the tiles into the middle of the crowd^p in front of Jesus. 20 When he saw their faith, he said, "Friend,^q your sins are forgiven you." 21 Then the scribes and the Pharisees began to question, "Who is this who is speaking blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?" 22 When Jesus perceived their questionings, he answered them, "Why do you raise such questions in your hearts? 23 Which is easier, to say, 'Your sins are forgiven you,' or to say, 'Stand up and walk'? 24 But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins"—he said to the one who was paralyzed—"I say to you, stand up and take your bed and go to your home." 25 Immediately he stood up before them, took what he had been lying on, and went to his home, glorifying God. 26 Amazement seized all of them, and they glorified God and were filled with awe, saying, "We have seen strange things today."

Questions About Fellowship and Fasting

27 After this he went out and saw a tax collector named Levi, sitting at the tax booth; and he said to him, "Follow me." 28 And he got up, left everything, and followed him.

29 Then Levi gave a great banquet for him in his house; and there was a large crowd of tax collectors and others sitting at the table^r with them. 30 The Pharisees and their scribes were complaining to his disciples, saying, "Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?" 31 Jesus answered, "Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; 32 I have come to call not the righteous but sinners to repentance."

33 Then they said to him, "John's disciples, like the disciples of the Pharisees, frequently fast and pray, but your disciples eat and drink." 34 Jesus said to them, "You cannot make wedding guests fast while the bridegroom is with them, can (see 1.35; 4.14, 36; 6.19; 8.46; Acts 2.22; 10.38). 5.19 The roof tiles, rather than the usual mud roof (cf. Mk 2.4), may suggest a more elegant Hellenistic house. 5.20 Jesus' discernment of their faith shows prophetic insight (see also 2.35; 5.22; 6.8; 9.46–47; 24.38). Your sins are forgiven implies that God is the one who has done so. 5.21 The authorities charge Jesus with speaking blasphemies for daring to speak for God. 5.22–23 Jesus raises new questions in the tradition of what is easier and "lighter" or harder and "heavier" (see 16.17; 18.24–25), increasing the tension even as the forgiven man lies paralyzed. 5.24 Jesus indirectly claims authority on earth to forgive by identifying himself as the Son of Man (see also 6.5; 7.34; 9.22, 26; 11.30; 12.8, 40; 17.22; 18.8; 19.10; 21.36). This title can refer to a prophetic figure (Ezek 2.1, 3), to the end-time judge expected to arrive on the clouds of heaven (Dan 7.13–14), or simply to a mortal human being. 5.26 Filled with awe reflects another experience of divine presence and power (see note on 5.9). Strange things, wonders or miracles beyond human understanding.

5.27–39 Cf. Mt 9.9–17; Mk 2.13–22. These verses set Jesus' fellowship and disciples apart from the standards of the recognized teachers of Israel. 5.27 On the particular role of tax collectors among Jesus' followers, see 3.12; 5.29, 30;

7.29, 34; 15.1; 18.10, 11, 13; 19.2. Levi does not appear among the Twelve (see 6.14–16), but in Mt 9.9 the tax collector is named Matthew, who is listed among the Twelve. 5.28 On leaving everything to follow, see note on 5.11. 5.29 The great banquet illustrates the meal fellowship of Jesus (see also 7.36–50; 9.12–17; 11.37–41; 14.1–15.2). The question of who was sitting at the table was understood to indicate who was acceptable in the kingdom of God (see 14.12–24). 5.30 To eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners was especially offensive in Israel, where food laws separated the properly observant from sinners (see also Acts 10.9–28; Gal 2.11–14). Tax collectors were suspect not only for collaborating with foreign powers but also for dishonesty (see 3.12–13). 5.31 Hellenistic teachers and rabbis were often described as physicians to sick souls. 5.32 On the righteous who need no repentance, see 15.7. On calling sinners to repentance, see 3.3, 8; 15.7, 10; 24.47; Acts 2.38; 3.19. 5.33 John's disciples. See also 7.18–19; 11.1; Jn 1.35–40; 3.25–26; 4.1; Acts 18.25. To fast and pray were common rituals of repentance, subject to criticism for hypocrisy (Mt 6.5–6, 16–18) but appropriate to John's mission of preparation (1.17, 76; 3.3–4). 5.34 The images of the bridegroom and wedding banquet are common for the

Sabbath Conflicts

6 One sabbath^t while Jesus^u was going through the grainfields, his disciples plucked some heads of grain, rubbed them in their hands, and ate them. ²But some of the Pharisees said, "Why are you doing what is not lawful^v on the sabbath?" ³Jesus answered, "Have you not read what David did when he and his companions were hungry? ⁴He entered the house of God and took and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and gave some to his companions?" ⁵Then he said to them, "The Son of Man is lord of the sabbath."

⁶ On another sabbath he entered the synagogue and taught, and there was a man there whose right hand was withered. ⁷The scribes and the Pharisees watched him to see whether he would cure on the sabbath, so that they might find an accusation against him. ⁸Even though he knew what they were thinking, he said to the man who had the withered hand, "Come and stand here." He got up and stood there. ⁹Then Jesus said to them, "I ask you, is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to destroy it?" ¹⁰After looking around at all of them, he said to him, "Stretch out your hand." He did so, and his hand was restored. ¹¹But they were filled with fury and discussed with one another what they might do to Jesus.

festivities of the dawn of God's reign (cf. Mt 22.1–14; 25.1–13; Rev 19.6–9). 5.35 They will fast in those days. See 22.16; Acts 13.2–3; 14.23. 5.36–39 Traditional proverbs, here called parables, were frequently cited at such festivities, often as answers to questions (see Letter of Aristeas 187–300), but here they emphasize the contrast between the old or traditional ways and the new time inaugurated by Jesus. 5.39 This verse may have been added later (see text note ^s). If original, it may concede that those who valued old ways were not attracted to Jesus' fellowship and practices (see also Sir 9.10).

6.1–16 Cf. Mt 12.1–14; 10.1–4; Mk 2.23–28; 3.1–6, 13–19. These two sabbath conflicts and the choosing of the Twelve occur in different contexts in Matthew. 6.1 Plucking a neighbor's grain with the hands (but not with a sickle) is explicitly allowed in Deut 23.25, but Ex 34.21 forbids harvesting on the sabbath. 6.2 The command to observe the sabbath by not working was foundational to Israel (Ex 20.8–11; Deut 5.12–15), but the debates about what was lawful divided interpreters. Some of the Pharisees (see also 13.31; 19.39; Acts 15.5) were more strict in defining work. These Pharisees agreed with the later rabbinic tradition defining plucking as harvesting (Mishnah Shabbat 7.2). 6.3–4 Jesus appeals to the precedent of David's behavior in an emergency (1 Sam 21.1–6; see also Lk 1.32). Every sabbath, the bread of the Presence was placed on a table in the tabernacle or temple (Ex 25.30). The previous week's bread was removed and reserved for the priests to eat in the temple precincts (Lev 24.5–9). 6.5 The title Son of Man here points to Jesus' special authority (see note on 5.24; cf. the more general issue of human need cited in Mk 2.27–28). 6.6 On Jesus' practice of sabbath teaching in a synagogue, see 4.15–16, 31–33; 13.10. 6.7 The Pharisees watched. Their watching is adversarial (see also 14.1; 20.20) because they regarded curing on the sabbath as unlawful work (see 6.1–2). 6.8 On Jesus' discernment of what they were thinking, see 2.35; 5.22; 9.46–47; 24.38. 6.9–10 The question of what is lawful again receives only the indirect answer of a healing (see 5.23–25), which may have intensified the conflict (see 11.19–20). 6.11 The fury and plotting reflect a continuing conflict over Jesus' claim to authority (see 4.28–30; 20.19–20; 22.3–6). 6.12–16 The choosing of the Twelve sets the scene for the Sermon on the Plain (cf. Mk 3.7–19). 6.12 On Jesus at prayer, see note on 5.16; see also 11.1–13. Prayer through the night night in prayer to God. ¹³And when day came, he called his disciples and chose twelve of them, whom he also named apostles: ¹⁴Simon, whom he named Peter, and his brother Andrew, and James, and John, and Philip, and Bartholomew, ¹⁵and Matthew, and Thomas, and James son of Alphaeus, and Simon, who was called the Zealot, ¹⁶and Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor.

The Sermon on the Plain

¹⁷ He came down with them and stood on a level place, with a great crowd of his disciples and a great multitude of people from all Judea, Jerusalem, and the coast of Tyre and Sidon. ¹⁸They had come to hear him and to be healed of their diseases; and those who were troubled with unclean spirits were cured. ¹⁹And all in the crowd were trying to touch him, for power came out from him and healed all of them.

²⁰ Then he looked up at his disciples and said:

"Blessed are you who are poor,
for yours is the kingdom
of God.

²¹ "Blessed are you who are hungry now,
for you will be filled.

"Blessed are you who weep now,
for you will laugh.

²² "Blessed are you when people hate you, and when they exclude you, revile you, and defame you" on account of the Son of Man. ²³Rejoice in that day and leap for joy, for surely your reward is great in heaven; for that is what their ancestors did to the prophets.

²⁴ "But woe to you who are rich,
for you have received your consolation.

²⁵ "Woe to you who are full now,
for you will be hungry.

"Woe to you who are
laughing now,
for you will mourn and weep.

²⁶ "Woe to you when all speak well of you, for that is what their ancestors did to the false prophets.

²⁷ "But I say to you that listen, Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, ²⁸bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you. ²⁹If anyone strikes you on the cheek, offer the other also;

may signal a crucial decision (see 22.39-46). 6.13 The number twelve is closely linked with the twelve tribes of Israel (see 22.30; Acts 7.8; 26.7). Apostles are delegates, sent with authority (9.1-6; see also 24.33, 44-49; Acts 1.1-8). 6.14 Simon . . . named Peter, James, and John have already been called (5.1-11), but now they are chosen to be apostles. 6.16 On the replacement of Judas after he became a traitor (22.3-5, 47-48), see Acts 1.15-26.

6.17-49 Cf. Mt 4.24-5.12, 39-48; 7.1-5, 15-27; 12.33-35; Mk 3.7-13a; 4.24-25. Jesus' "Sermon on the Plain" (see v. 17), the Messiah's second major address in Luke (see 4.16-30), closely parallels the "Sermon on the Mount" in Matthew (chs. 5-7). 6.17-19 A typical summary statement sets the scene (see also 4.14-15, 40-41; 5.15, 17). 6.17 A level place. Cf. Mt 5.1. A great crowd of his disciples suggests more than the twelve apostles (see 6.13). On the multitude from many places, see also 5.17; 7.9; 12.1. 6.19 On Jesus' touch and power in healing stories, see 5.12-17; 8.46. Here Jesus' deeds set the context for his teaching. 6.20 Blessed, i.e., happy or favored by God (see 7.23; 10.23; 11.27-28; 14.15; Deut 33.29; Pss 127.5; 128.1; Acts 3.25). You. Jesus' words in Luke are in the form of direct address to his disciples, who have left everything

(5.11; cf. Mt 5.1-3). On the poor as a focus of Jesus' mission, see 4.18; 7.22; see also 14.13, 21; 16.20, 22; 18.22; 19.8; 21.2-3; cf. Mt 5.3. Kingdom of God. See note on 4.43. 6.21 Hungry. See 1.53; cf. Mt 5.6. You who weep now. Cf. Mt 5.4; see Ps 126.6; Isa 61.2-3; 65.18-19. 6.22 Defame you, lit. "cast out your name as evil" (text note w). On the loss of reputation of Jesus' followers, see Acts 5.41; 9.16. Son of Man. See notes on 5.24; 6.5. 6.23 To leap for joy is a prophetic fulfillment (Isa 35.6; Mal 4.2; see also Lk 1.41, 44; Acts 3.8). On the treatment of the prophets, see 11.47-51; 13.33-34; Acts 7.52. 6.24 Declarations of woe or "alas" are common in oracles of prophetic judgment ("Ah," Isa 5.8-23; Am 6.1; Hab 2.6-19; see also Lk 10.13; 11.42-52; 17.1; 21.23; 22.22). You have received your consolation. Cf. 2.25. 6.26 Israel's prophets denounced as false those prophets who spoke what the people wanted to hear instead of the word of God (see Isa 30.9-11; Jer 5.30-31; 6.13-14; 23.16-17). 6.27 The section in 6.27-49 is addressed to a broader audience of you that listen (cf. 6.20). The contrast between Jesus' instructions and the accepted order is not as profound as in 6.20-26, but the behavior advocated alters usual practices. Love your enemies. See also 6.35; Mt 5.44. 6.29 Takes away your coat, i.e., the outer garment, either in theft or pledge and from anyone who takes away your coat do not withhold even your shirt.³⁰ Give to everyone who begs from you; and if anyone takes away your goods, do not ask for them again.³¹ Do to others as you would have them do to you.

32 "If you love those who love you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners love those who love them.³³ If you do good to those who do good to you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners do the same.³⁴ If you lend to those from whom you hope to receive, what credit is that to you? Even sinners lend to sinners, to receive as much again.³⁵ But love your enemies, do good, and lend, expecting nothing in return.^x Your reward will be great, and you will be children of the Most High; for he is kind to the ungrateful and the wicked.³⁶ Be merciful, just as your Father is merciful.

37 "Do not judge, and you will not be judged; do not condemn, and you will not be condemned. Forgive, and you will be forgiven;³⁸ give, and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, will be put into your lap; for the measure you give will be the measure you get back."

39 He also told them a parable: "Can a blind person guide a blind person? Will not both fall into a pit?⁴⁰ A disciple is not above the teacher, but everyone who is fully qualified will be like the teacher.⁴¹ Why do you see the speck in your neighbor's^y eye, but do not notice the log in your own eye?⁴² Or how can you say to your neighbor,^z 'Friend,^z let me take out the speck in your eye,' when you yourself do not see the log in your own eye? You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your neighbor's^y eye.

43 "No good tree bears bad fruit, nor again does a bad tree bear good fruit;⁴⁴ for each tree is known by its own fruit. Figs are not gathered from thorns, nor are grapes picked from a bramble bush.⁴⁵ The good person out of the good treasure of the heart produces good, and the evil person out of evil treasure produces evil; for it is out of the abundance of the heart that the mouth speaks.

46 "Why do you call me 'Lord, Lord,' and do not do what I tell you?⁴⁷ I will show you what someone is like who comes to me, hears my words, and acts on them.⁴⁸ That one is like a man building a house, who dug deeply and laid the foundation on rock; when a flood arose, the river burst against that house but could not shake it, because it had been well built.^a ⁴⁹ But the one who hears and does not act is like a man who built a house on the ground without a foundation. When the river burst against it, immediately it fell, and great was the ruin of that house."

Jesus Heals a Centurion's Servant

The language of finance makes forgiveness (6.37-38) concrete. 6.35 Children of the Most High. See Ps 82.6; see also Dan 3.26; 7.18-27; Lk 1.32; 8.28; Acts 16.17. 6.36 On measuring human generosity by the standards of God, see Lev 19.2; Deut 10.17-19; Mt 5.48. 6.37 The future passive verbs (you will not be . . .) indicate God's action. 6.38 A good measure is an amply filled basket (see 8.18; 19.26). 6.39 In Luke, the word parable may be used quite precisely for a kind of comparison story (8.4; 12.16; 15.3; 18.1, 9; 19.11; 20.9) or, as in this text, more generally for a proverb (4.23; 5.36; 21.29). The blind guide is a common image of foolish behavior

(see Eccl 2.14; Mt 15.14; 23.16-26; Rom 2.19). 6.42 You hypocrite, Jesus' frequent verdict on his opponents (see 12.1, 56; 13.15). The term is used extensively in the controversies in Matthew, especially Mt 23.13-30. 6.43 The image of the tree, like that of the house foundation (6.48-49), suggests character that cannot be disguised in hypocrisy (see also 3.9; 13.6-9; Mt 7.16-20; 12.33-37). 6.45 On the disclosure of a person's heart, see 2.35; 5.22. 6.46 A follower may call Jesus Lord yet not possess the commitment necessary for discipleship (see 9.59, 61; 13.25; 22.33). 6.47 On hearing and acting, see also Jas 2.14-26. 6.48 Houses in Palestine did not usually need an elaborate foundation, but this symbol of security was well understood (see Mt. 7.24-27; 1 Cor 3.10-15; Eph 2.19-20; Rev 21.14).

who was ill and close to death. ³When he heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to him, asking him to come and heal his slave. ⁴When they came to Jesus, they appealed to him earnestly, saying, "He is worthy of having you do this for him, ⁵for he loves our people, and it is he who built our synagogue for us." ⁶And Jesus went with them, but when he was not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to say to him, "Lord, do not trouble yourself, for I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; ⁷therefore I did not presume to come to you. But only speak the word, and let my servant be healed. ⁸For I also am a man set under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes, and to another, 'Come,' and he comes, and to my slave, 'Do this,' and the slave does it." ⁹When Jesus heard this he was amazed at him, and turning to the crowd that followed him, he said, "I tell you, not even in Israel have I found such faith." ¹⁰When those who had been sent returned to the house, they found the slave in good health.

Jesus Raises the Widow's Son at Nain

11 Soon afterwards^c he went to a town called Nain, and his disciples and a large crowd went with him. ¹²As he approached the gate of the town, a man who had died was being carried out. He was his mother's only son, and she was a widow; and with her was a large crowd from the town. ¹³When the Lord saw her, he had compassion for her and said to her, "Do not weep." ¹⁴Then he came forward and touched the bier, and the bearers stood still. And he said, "Young man, I say to you, rise!" ¹⁵The dead man sat up and began to speak, and Jesus^d gave him to his mother. ¹⁶Fear seized all of them; and they glorified God, saying, "A great prophet has risen among us!" and "God has looked favorably on his people!" ¹⁷This word about him spread throughout Judea and all the surrounding country.

Messengers from John the Baptist

18 The disciples of John reported all these things to him. So John summoned two of his disciples ¹⁹and sent them to the Lord to ask, "Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?" ²⁰When the men had come to him, they said, "John the Baptist has sent us to you to ask, 'Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?'" ²¹Jesus^e had just then cured many people of diseases, plagues, and evil spirits, and had story of Jewish-Gentile relations has a precedent in the traditions about Elisha (2 Kings 5.1-14; see also Lk 4.27). 7.1 Capernaum. See 4.31. 7.2 A centurion had charge over one hundred soldiers in the Roman army (see also 23.47; Acts 10.1-48; 22.25-26; 24.23; 27.1, 6, 11, 31, 43). 7.3 Jewish elders here are probably local synagogue leaders, but later the title will be linked closely with Jerusalem officials, especially from the temple, who opposed Jesus and the apostles (see 9.22; 20.1; 22.52; Acts 4.5, 8, 23; 6.12; 23.14; 24.1; 25.15). 7.4-5 Worthy implies acceptability by the standards of Jewish law as well as gratitude for the building of the synagogue. A Roman officer could be a "friend of the Jews" or one who "feared God" (see Acts 10.2, 22) but would not have been permitted by Rome to undergo circumcision as a convert. 7.6 The centurion's address of Jesus as Lord implies respect for Jesus' authority (see 7.8) but is not necessarily a confession of faith. A Jew who came under a Gentile's roof would risk defilement (see Acts 10.28; 11.2-3). 7.9 Jesus defines the centurion's response as faith (see 5.20; 7.50; 8.25, 48; 17.19; 18.42). On the contrast with Israel, see 4.25-27; see also 3.8-9; Rom 9-11.

She would have no legal inheritance and would be dependent upon charity (see Deut 26.12; 27.19; cf. Pss 68.5; 146.9). 7.13 Jesus' compassion is here depicted as a deep visceral response (Greek esplanchnisthē; see also 10.33; 15.20). 7.14 Touching the bier (or coffin) was a dramatic act, violating Jewish purity laws (Num 19.11, 16). Rise! Jesus' word is again efficacious (see 7.7; 1 Kings 17.22). 7.15 Jesus gave him to his mother, an exact quote from 1 Kings 17.23 (see also Lk 9.42). 7.16 Fear again denotes an awareness of a divine visitation (see notes on 1.11-12; 1.65; 2.9; 2.10). On Jesus as a prophet, see 4.24-27; 7.39; 13.33; 24.19; Acts 3.22-23; 7.37. Looked favorably. See note on 1.68.

²⁴ When John's messengers had gone, Jesus^g began to speak to the crowds about John:^h "What did you go out into the wilderness to look at? A reed shaken by the wind? ²⁵What then did you go out to see? Someoneⁱ dressed in soft robes? Look, those who put on fine clothing and live in luxury are in royal palaces. ²⁶What then did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. ²⁷This is the one about whom it is written,

'See, I am sending my messenger ahead of you,
who will prepare your way before you.'

²⁸I tell you, among those born of women no one is greater than John; yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he." ²⁹(And all the people who heard this, including the tax collectors, acknowledged the justice of God,^j because they had been baptized with John's baptism. ³⁰But by refusing to be baptized by him, the Pharisees and the lawyers rejected God's purpose for themselves.)

³¹ "To what then will I compare the people of this generation, and what are they like? ³²They are like children sitting in the marketplace and calling to one another,

Wisdom's children are those who hear and follow God's instruction (see 21.15; Acts 6.3, 10; Prov 1-8).

7.36-50 Cf. Mt 26.6-13; Mk 14.3-9. A meal with a Pharisee provides an occasion to discuss who is acceptable in God's kingdom (see also 14.1-15.2). 7.36 No motive for the Pharisee's invitation is given (see also 11.37; 14.1), but it implies his acceptance of Jesus (cf. 5.30; 15.2). 7.37 The woman's sin is not identified. An alabaster jar would have been costly. Ointment, a perfumed oil. 7.38 Bathing the feet was a common sign of hospitality for guests (see 7.44; Gen 18.4;

with the ointment. ³⁹Now when the Pharisee who had invited him saw it, he said to himself, "If this man were a prophet, he would have known who and what kind of woman this is who is touching him—that she is a sinner." ⁴⁰Jesus spoke up and said to him, "Simon, I have something to say to you." "Teacher," he replied, "speak." ⁴¹"A certain creditor had two debtors; one owed five hundred denarii,^k and the other fifty. ⁴²When they could not pay, he canceled the debts for both of them. Now which of them will love him more?" ⁴³Simon answered, "I suppose the one for whom he canceled the greater debt." And Jesus^l said to him, "You have judged rightly." ⁴⁴Then turning toward the woman, he said to Simon, "Do you see this woman? I entered your house; you gave me no water for my feet, but she has bathed my feet with her tears and dried them with her hair. ⁴⁵You gave me no kiss, but from the time I came in she has not stopped kissing my feet. ⁴⁶You did not anoint my head with oil, but she has anointed my feet with ointment. ⁴⁷Therefore, I tell you, her sins, which were many, have been forgiven; hence she has shown great love. But the one to whom little is forgiven, loves little." ⁴⁸Then he said to her, "Your sins are forgiven." ⁴⁹But those who were at the table with him began to say among themselves, "Who is this who even forgives sins?" ⁵⁰And he said to the woman, "Your faith has saved you; go in peace."

Some Women Accompany Jesus

8 Soon afterwards he went on through cities and villages, proclaiming and bringing the good news of the kingdom of God. The twelve were with him,² as well as some women who had been cured of evil spirits and infirmities: Mary, called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had gone out,³ and Joanna, the wife of Herod's steward Chuza, and Susanna, and many others, who provided for them^m out of their resources.

The Parable of the Sower

4 When a great crowd gathered and people from town after town came to him, he said in a parable: ⁵"A sower went out to sow his seed; and as he sowed, some fell on the path and was trampled on, and the birds of the air ate it up. ⁶Some fell on the rock; and as it grew up, it withered for lack of moisture. ⁷Some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew with it and choked it. ⁸Some fell into good soil, and when it grew, it produced a hundred-fold." As he said this, he called out, "Let anyone with ears to hear listen!"

9 Then his disciples asked him what this parable meant. ¹⁰He said, "To you it has been given to know the secretsⁿ of

A strict reading of Lev 5.1–5 indicates a risk of defilement upon even touching (or being touched by) a sinner. 7.40 Simon invites Jesus to speak as a rabbi (teacher). 7.41 The denarius was a day's wage. Both debts are significant. 7.42 Love in this case means having gratitude. 7.44–46 The usual gestures of Near Eastern hospitality (water for my feet, a kiss, and oil) are extravagantly outdone by the woman. 7.49 The scandal again derives from Jesus' claim to speak for God in forgiving sins (see also 5.21–24). 7.50 On the saving power of faith, see 8.12, 48; 17.19; 18.42. Go in peace (Hebrew shalom) are the traditional words of parting (see 8.48; 1 Sam 1.17; Acts 16.36), but peace is also the mark of God's reign or kingdom (see 1.79; 2.14; Isa 52.7).

attend Jesus' burial and resurrection (23.49, 55; 24.10). Evil spirits and infirmities were afflictions to be healed, not sins to be forgiven. Seven demons indicates the severity of afflictions.

8.4–15 Cf. Mt 13.1–23; Mk 4.1–20. The parable of the sower illustrates the contrast between the impossible odds faced by Jesus' kingdom preaching and its ultimate success. 8.4 Luke again stresses the presence of a large crowd (see 5.17; 6.17; 8.42; 9.18, 37; 11.29). 8.8 The hundredfold yield is large, but not unusual (cf. the various yields in Mk 4.8). He called out (lit. "he kept calling out"), emphasizing the message of the parable. The charge to listen raises the question of who has ears to hear (see also 8.10). 8.10 Full understanding of the secrets, or mysteries (text note n), of the kingdom comes only after the resurrection (see 9.45; 18.34; 24.25–27, 44–47; see also Wis 2.22). In the NT, parables are usually comparison stories intended to communicate a truth about the kingdom (see note on 6.39). Here the kingdom of God; but to others I speak^o in parables, so that

'looking they may not perceive,
and listening they may not
understand.'

11 "Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God. 12 The ones on the path are those who have heard; then the devil comes and takes away the word from their hearts, so that they may not believe and be saved. 13 The ones on the rock are those who, when they hear the word, receive it with joy. But these have no root; they believe only for a while and in a time of testing fall away. 14 As for what fell among the thorns, these are the ones who hear; but as they go on their way, they are choked by the cares and riches and pleasures of life, and their fruit does not mature. 15 But as for that in the good soil, these are the ones who, when they hear the word, hold it fast in an honest and good heart, and bear fruit with patient endurance.

A Lamp Under a Jar

16 "No one after lighting a lamp hides it under a jar, or puts it under a bed, but puts it on a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light. 17 For nothing is hidden that will not be disclosed, nor is anything secret that will not become known and come to light. 18 Then pay attention to how you listen; for to those who have, more will be given; and from those who do not have, even what they seem to have will be taken away."

The True Kindred of Jesus

19 Then his mother and his brothers came to him, but they could not reach him because of the crowd. 20 And he was told, "Your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to see you." 21 But he said to them, "My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and do it."

Jesus Calms a Storm

22 One day he got into a boat with his disciples, and he said to them, "Let us go across to the other side of the lake." So they put out, 23 and while they were sailing he fell asleep. A windstorm swept down on the lake, and the boat was filling with water, and they were in danger. 24 They went to him and woke him up, shouting, "Master, Master, we are perishing!" And he woke up and rebuked the wind and the raging waves; they ceased, and there was a calm. 25 He said to them, "Where is your faith?" They were afraid and amazed, and said to one another, "Who then is this, that he commands even the winds and the water, and they obey him?"

they function as prophetic speech (see Isa 6.9–10, partially cited here), further confounding those unprepared to hear. 8.12 On the activities of the devil, see 4.5–13; 10.17–20; 22.3, 31. 8.13 A time of testing. See 4.1–13; 22.28–34, 39–46. 8.15 On endurance as the critical mark of faithfulness, see 21.12–19.

8.16–18 Cf. Mt 5.15; 10.26; 7.2; 13.12; Mk 4.21–25. Various sayings comment on the proper response to Jesus' preaching. 8.18 Luke focuses on how you listen (see note on 8.8; cf. Mk 4.24). On the giving of more to those who have, see 19.26. The reference here is not to money or material gains, but to the word of God (see 8.15, 21).

8.19–21 Cf. Mt 12.46–50; Mk 3.31–35. Jesus' family is defined in terms of obedience. Early Christian usage of this "fictive kinship" language was distinctive (see, e.g., 1 Cor 1.10; 7.15; 15.6). 8.19 On Jesus' mother, see also 1.43;

2.33–51; Acts 1.14. Jesus' brothers are sometimes understood to be more distant blood relatives, but actual siblings are probably meant (see Mk 6.3; Jn 7.3–5; Acts 1.14; Gal 1.19).

8.22–56 Three demonstrations of the power of the Messiah's word. 8.22–25 Cf. Mt 8.23–27; Mk 4.35–41. 8.22 Luke refers to the Sea of Galilee as a lake (see 5.1; 8.33). 8.24 Master. See note on 5.5. Jesus rebuked the wind and water just as earlier he rebuked unclean spirits (4.35, 41), both times demonstrating authority over evil powers (see also Job 26.11–12; Ps 89.8–9). 8.25 Where is your faith? The question is also a rebuke (see also 12.28; cf. 5.20; 7.9, 50; 8.48; 17.5–6, 19; 18.42; 22.32). Afraid and amazed. See notes on 1.11–12; 2.9; 2.10.

27 As he stepped out on land, a man of the city who had demons met him. For a long time he had worn^q no clothes, and he did not live in a house but in the tombs. 28 When he saw Jesus, he fell down before him and shouted at the top of his voice, "What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me"— 29 for Jesus^r had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. (For many times it had seized him; he was kept under guard and bound with chains and shackles, but he would break the bonds and be driven by the demon into the wilds.) 30 Jesus then asked him, "What is your name?" He said, "Legion"; for many demons had entered him. 31 They begged him not to order them to go back into the abyss.

32 Now there on the hillside a large herd of swine was feeding; and the demons^s begged Jesus^t to let them enter these. So he gave them permission. 33 Then the demons came out of the man and entered the swine, and the herd rushed down the steep bank into the lake and was drowned.

34 When the swineherds saw what had happened, they ran off and told it in the city and in the country. 35 Then people came out to see what had happened, and when they came to Jesus, they found the man from whom the demons had gone sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind. And they were afraid. 36 Those who had seen it told them how the one who had been possessed by demons had been healed. 37 Then all the people of the surrounding country of the Gerasenes^u asked Jesus^v to leave them; for they were seized with great fear. So he got into the boat and returned. 38 The man from whom the demons had gone begged that he might be with him; but Jesus^r sent him away, saying, 39 "Return to your home, and declare how much God has done for you." So he went away, proclaiming throughout the city how much Jesus had done for him.

40 Now when Jesus returned, the crowd welcomed him, for they were all waiting for him. 41 Just then there came a man named Jairus, a leader of the synagogue. He fell at Jesus' feet and begged him to come to his house, 42 for he had an only daughter, about twelve years old, who was dying.

As he went, the crowds pressed in on him. 43 Now there was a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years; and though she had spent all she had on physicians,^v no one could

Living in the tombs implies perpetual uncleanness (see Num 19.11, 16; see also Isa 65.1–5). 8.28 Shouted at the top of his voice, apparently a sign of demon possession (see 4.33; Acts 16.17). On the demons' recognition of Jesus as Son of the Most High God, see 4.34, 41; Acts 16.17; see also 1.32. 8.29 The wilds, or wildernesses, were thought to be favored haunts of demons (see 11.24). 8.30 Knowledge of the correct name was thought to provide controlling power over a person or (as here) demon. In the Roman army, a legion was a battle force of four to six thousand soldiers. 8.31 Abyss, the bottomless pit reserved for God's enemies (see Rev 9.1–11; 11.7; 17.8; 20.1–3). 8.32 According to Jewish law, swine are unclean animals (Lev 11.7; Deut 14.8). Permission, though granted, indicates Jesus' strong authority. 8.33 According to traditional lore, demons are destroyed by drowning (see 11.24). 8.35 A disciple sits at the feet of the teacher (see also Acts 22.3). Clothed and in his right mind. Cf. 8.27. They were afraid. See note on 7.16. 8.39 The former demoniac declares what God has done in terms of what Jesus has done (see also 7.16).

8.40–56 Cf. Mt 9.18–26; Mk 5.21–43. 8.41 The leader of the synagogue presided over meetings and enjoyed considerable status in the community (see also 13.14; Acts 13.15; 18.8, 17). 8.42 An only daughter. See 7.12. 8.43 Hemorrhages for twelve years indicates abnormal menstrual flow, making her constantly unclean and untouchable (Lev 15.19–30). 8.44 The fringe was a required part of the Jewish male's clothes (see Num 15.38–39; Deut 22.12; Mt 23.5). 8.45 Who touched me? cure her. ⁴⁴She came up behind him and touched the fringe of his clothes, and immediately her hemorrhage stopped. ⁴⁵Then Jesus asked, "Who touched me?" When all denied it, Peter^w said, "Master, the crowds surround you and press in on you." ⁴⁶But Jesus said, "Someone touched me; for I noticed that power had gone out from me." ⁴⁷When the woman saw that she could not remain hidden, she came trembling; and falling down before him, she declared in the presence of all the people why she had touched him, and how she had been immediately healed. ⁴⁸He said to her, "Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace."

⁴⁹ While he was still speaking, someone came from the leader's house to say, "Your daughter is dead; do not trouble the teacher any longer." ⁵⁰When Jesus heard this, he replied, "Do not fear. Only believe, and she will be saved." ⁵¹When he came to the house, he did not allow anyone to enter with him, except Peter, John, and James, and the child's father and mother. ⁵²They were all weeping and wailing for her; but he said, "Do not weep; for she is not dead but sleeping." ⁵³And they laughed at him, knowing that she was dead. ⁵⁴But he took her by the hand and called out, "Child, get up!" ⁵⁵Her spirit returned, and she got up at once. Then he directed them to give her something to eat. ⁵⁶Her parents were astounded; but he ordered them to tell no one what had happened.

9 Then Jesus^x called the twelve together and gave them power and authority over all demons and to cure diseases, ²and he sent them out to proclaim the kingdom of God and to heal. ³He said to them, "Take nothing for your journey, no staff, nor bag, nor bread, nor money—not even an extra tunic. ⁴Whatever house you enter, stay there, and leave from there. ⁵Wherever they do not welcome you, as you are leaving that town shake the dust off your feet as a testimony against them." ⁶They departed and went through the villages, bringing the good news and curing diseases everywhere.

Herod's Perplexity

7 Now Herod the ruler^y heard about all that had taken place, and he was perplexed, because it was said by some that John had been raised from the dead, ⁸by some that Elijah had appeared, and by others that one of the ancient prophets had arisen. ⁹Herod said, "John I beheaded; but who is this about whom I hear such things?" And he tried to see him.

The belief that at death the spirit departed from the body is widely attested (see 23.46; Acts 7.59; see also 1 Kings 17.21–22). Giving her something to eat confirms the reality of her resurrection (see also 24.41–43). 8.56 Tell no one. See also 5.14.

9.7–9 Cf. Mt 14.1–2; Mk 6.14–16. Herod's perplexity introduces an ominous note (see 13.31–35; 23.6–12; Acts 4.25–27). 9.8 The return of Elijah was promised in Mal 4.5 as a precursor to the impending judgment (see 1.17; see also 9.19, 30). 9.9 John I beheaded. This execution is not described in Luke (cf. 3.19–20; Mt 14.3–12; Mk 6.17–29). Who is this? Herod's question about Jesus recalls John's (see 7.19; see also 9.18–20). He tried to see him, and succeeded after Jesus' arrest (see 23.8; cf. 13.31).

9.10–17 Cf. Mt 14.13–21; Mk 6.30–44. 9.10 Bethsaida had been recently built by Herod with him and withdrew privately to a city called Bethsaida. ¹¹When the crowds found out about it, they followed him; and he welcomed them, and spoke to them about the kingdom of God, and healed those who needed to be cured.

¹² The day was drawing to a close, and the twelve came to him and said, "Send the crowd away, so that they may go into the surrounding villages and countryside, to lodge and get provisions; for we are here in a deserted place." ¹³But he said to them, "You give them something to eat." They said, "We have no more than five loaves and two fish—unless we are to go and buy food for all these people." ¹⁴For there were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, "Make them sit down in groups of about fifty each." ¹⁵They did so and made them all sit down. ¹⁶And taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke them, and gave them to the disciples to set before the crowd. ¹⁷And all ate and were filled. What was left over was gathered up, twelve baskets of broken pieces.

Peter's Confession

¹⁸ Once when Jesus^a was praying alone, with only the disciples near him, he asked them, "Who do the crowds say that I am?" ¹⁹They answered, "John the Baptist; but others, Elijah; and still others, that one of the ancient prophets has arisen." ²⁰He said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" Peter answered, "The Messiah^b of God."

²¹ He sternly ordered and commanded them not to tell anyone, ²²saying, "The Son of Man must undergo great suffering, and be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised."

The Nature of Discipleship

²³ Then he said to them all, "If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross daily and follow me. ²⁴For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will save it. ²⁵What does it profit them if they gain the whole world, but lose or forfeit themselves? ²⁶Those who are ashamed of me and of my words, of them the Son of Man will be ashamed when he comes in his glory and the glory of the Father and of the holy angels. ²⁷But truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death before they see the kingdom of God."

The Transfiguration

And they kept silent and in those days told no one any of the things they had seen.

Jesus Heals a Boy with a Demon

³⁷ On the next day, when they had come down from the mountain, a great crowd met him.³⁸ Just then a man from the crowd shouted, "Teacher, I beg you to look at my son; he is my only child."³⁹ Suddenly a spirit seizes him, and all at once he^f shrieks. It convulses him until he foams at the mouth; it mauls him and will scarcely leave him.⁴⁰ I begged your disciples to cast it out, but they could not."⁴¹ Jesus answered, "You faithless and perverse generation, how much longer must I be with you and bear with you? Bring your son here."⁴² While he was coming, the demon dashed him to the ground in convulsions. But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, healed the boy, and gave him back to his father.⁴³ And all were astounded at the greatness of God.

Jesus Again Foretells His Death

While everyone was amazed at all that he was doing, he said to his disciples,⁴⁴ "Let these words sink into your ears: The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into human hands."⁴⁵ But they did not understand this saying; its meaning was concealed from them, so that they could not perceive it. And they were afraid to ask him about this saying.

True Greatness

⁴⁶ An argument arose among them as to which one of them was the greatest.⁴⁷ But Jesus, aware of their inner thoughts, took a little child and put it by his side,⁴⁸ and said to them, "Whoever welcomes this child in my name welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes the one who sent me; for the least among all of you is the greatest."

9.30 Both Moses and Elijah were expected to return before the final judgment (see Deut 18.15; Mal 4.5). Both also had visions of God on a mountain (Ex 24.15-18; 1 Kings 19.8-13). 9.31 Glory, a sign of divine presence (see Ex 24.17; 40.34). The departure (Greek exodos) probably refers to Jesus' death, resurrection, and ascension, all of which will occur in Jerusalem (see esp. 9.51; 12.50; 24.50-53). 9.32 Weighed down with sleep. See also 22.45-46. 9.33 The three dwellings suggest the Feast of Booths, a harvest festival commemorating the exodus from Egypt (see 9.31; Deut 16). 9.34 The cloud signifies God's presence (see Ex 16.10; 19.9; 24.15-18). 9.35 My son, my Chosen. See 3.22; 23.35; Isa 42.1. Listen to him. See Deut 18.15; Acts 3.22.

Another Exorcist

49 John answered, "Master, we saw someone casting out demons in your name, and we tried to stop him, because he does not follow with us." 50 But Jesus said to him, "Do not stop him; for whoever is not against you is for you."

A Samaritan Village Refuses to Receive Jesus

51 When the days drew near for him to be taken up, he set his face to go to Jerusalem. 52 And he sent messengers ahead of him. On their way they entered a village of the Samaritans to make ready for him; 53 but they did not receive him, because his face was set toward Jerusalem. 54 When his disciples James and John saw it, they said, "Lord, do you want us to command fire to come down from heaven and consume them?"^g 55 But he turned and rebuked them. 56 Then^h they went on to another village.

Would-Be Followers of Jesus

57 As they were going along the road, someone said to him, "I will follow you wherever you go." 58 And Jesus said to him, "Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head." 59 To another he said, "Follow me." But he said, "Lord, first let me go and bury my father." 60 But Jesusⁱ said to him, "Let the dead bury their own dead; but as for you, go and proclaim the kingdom of God." 61 Another said, "I will follow you, Lord; but let me first say farewell to those at my home." 62 Jesus said to him, "No one who puts a hand to the plow and looks back is fit for the kingdom of God."

The Mission of the Seventy

10 After this the Lord appointed seventy^j others and sent them on ahead of him in pairs to every town and place where he himself intended to go. 2 He said to them, "The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest. 3 Go on your way. See, I am sending you out like lambs into the midst of wolves. 4 Carry no purse, 9.49–50 Cf. Mt 10.42; Mk 9.38–41. 9.49 In your name, i.e., by invoking Jesus' name as a source of power (see Acts 3.16; 16.18). Magical incantations of this period often contained the names of many gods. 9.50 Whoever is not against you is for you. See Num 11.26–30; cf. Lk 11.23; Acts 8.14–24.

9.51–19.27 The journey to Jerusalem is a major central section of Luke's narrative with few parallels to Mark. References to the journey's destination seem to divide the section into three phases (9.51–13.21; 13.22–17.10; 17.11–19.27). 9.51–56 These opening verses depict Jesus on a prophetic mission. 9.51 Taken up. The reference is probably to all the events associated with Jesus' "departure" (see note on 9.31) but with special emphasis on the ascension (see Acts 1.2, 11, 22; see also 2 Kings 2.11). He set his face, expressing determination or mission (see Isa 50.7; Ezek 21.1–2). To Jerusalem. Jesus' destination is repeatedly emphasized (see 13.22; 17.11; 18.31; 19.11, 28). 9.52 On sending messengers ahead, see also 7.27; Ex 23.20. The Samaritans, who traced their lineage to the old Northern Kingdom (Israel), were in Jewish eyes neither Jews nor Gentiles. They were usually regarded with hostility by Jews (see Mt 10.5; Jn 4.9; 8.48) and here reject Jesus' mission, though elsewhere in Luke-Acts they are positively portrayed (see 10.30–37; 17.11–19; Acts 1.8; 8.1–25). 9.54 Fire . . . from heaven may come when the time of repentance is past (see 10.12–16; see also 2 Kings 1.10).

9.57–62 Cf. Mt 8.18–22. Warnings on the cost of discipleship. 9.57 The road, or "way," to Jerusalem becomes symbolic of discipleship. An early name for the Christian movement was "The Way" (see Acts 9.2; 18.25; 19.23; 22.4; 24.22). 9.58 Son of Man. See note on 5.24. 9.59 A proper burial for one's father was a strong traditional obligation (Gen 50.5; Tob 4.3). 9.61 Let me first say farewell. See 1 Kings 19.19–21.

10.1–24 The mission of the Seventy moves beyond the mission of the Twelve in 9.1–10. 10.1 Seventy may reflect the seventy nations in Gen 10 (seventy-two in the Septuagint; see text note j) or the seventy elders chosen by Moses from the twelve tribes (see Ex 24.1, 9; Num 11.16, 24). On traveling in pairs, see Acts 8.14; 13.2; 15.32, 39–40. 10.2 The harvest is the intended gathering of Israel (Isa 27.12), not primarily the judgment (cf. Mt 13.30, 39). 10.3 On wolves threatening the flock, see also Ezek 22.27; Jn 10.12; Acts 20.28–31. 10.4 See note on 9.3.

no bag, no sandals; and greet no one on the road. ⁵Whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house!' ⁶And if anyone is there who shares in peace, your peace will rest on that person; but if not, it will return to you. ⁷Remain in the same house, eating and drinking whatever they provide, for the laborer deserves to be paid. Do not move about from house to house. ⁸Whenever you enter a town and its people welcome you, eat what is set before you; ⁹cure the sick who are there, and say to them, 'The kingdom of God has come near to you.'^k ¹⁰But whenever you enter a town and they do not welcome you, go out into its streets and say, ¹¹'Even the dust of your town that clings to our feet, we wipe off in protest against you. Yet know this: the kingdom of God has come near.'^l ¹²I tell you, on that day it will be more tolerable for Sodom than for that town.

Woes to Unrepentant Cities

13 "Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the deeds of power done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. ¹⁴But at the judgment it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon than for you. ¹⁵And you, Capernaum,

will you be exalted to heaven?

No, you will be brought down to Hades.

16 "Whoever listens to you listens to me, and whoever rejects you rejects me, and whoever rejects me rejects the one who sent me."

The Return of the Seventy

17 The seventy^m returned with joy, saying, "Lord, in your name even the demons submit to us!" ¹⁸He said to them, "I watched Satan fall from heaven like a flash of lightning. ¹⁹See, I have given you authority to tread on snakes and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing will hurt you. ²⁰Nevertheless, do not rejoice at this, that the spirits submit to you, but rejoice that your names are written in heaven."

21 At that same hour Jesusⁿ rejoiced in the Holy Spirit^o and said, "I thank^p you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the intelligent and have revealed them to infants; yes, Father, for such was your gracious will.^q ²²All things have been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is except the Father, or who the Father is Greet no one on the road, implying an urgent journey (see also 2 Kings 4.29). 10.5 The early Christian mission was closely linked with private houses (see Acts 10.22; 11.12; 12.12; 16.15, 34; 18.7; 20.20; 21.8, 16). Peace, though a traditional greeting (see note on 7.50; see also 24.36; 1 Sam 25.6), here signifies the peace of salvation (see 2.14; see also Gal 6.16). 10.9 Like the word of peace (10.5–6), the proclamation of the kingdom of God (see note on 4.42–43) is a word of blessing to those who receive the disciples but a word of judgment to those who reject them (10.11). 10.11 Even the dust . . . we wipe off. The return of the Seventy parallels the return of the Twelve in 9.10. 10.17 Their joy is itself a sign of the dawning of the kingdom (see 1.14, 44; 2.10; 8.13; 24.41, 52). 10.18–19 On the fall of Satan and the triumph of the kingdom over the power of the enemy, see 4.2–13; 11.18; 13.16; 22.3, 31–32; cf. Rev 12.9–12. Snakes and scorpions represent evil (see 11.11–12; see also Ps 58.3–4; Sir 21.2; Mk 16.18; Acts 28.1–6). 10.20 Those whose names are written in heaven are allies of God in the warfare against evil powers (see 12.33; 18.22; Rev 3.5). 10.21 Jesus' joy in the Holy Spirit recalls the Spirit's descent to Mary (1.47; see also Acts 2.46). On contrasts between hidden and revealed, the wise and infants, see 8.17; 1 Cor 1.18–3.23. 10.22 No other portion of Luke explicates the relationship of the Father and the Son so directly (cf. 10.16; Jn 3.35; 6.65; 10.15; 13.3; 14.7–13;

except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him."

23 Then turning to the disciples, Jesus^r said to them privately, "Blessed are the eyes that see what you see! 24 For I tell you that many prophets and kings desired to see what you see, but did not see it, and to hear what you hear, but did not hear it."

The Parable of the Good Samaritan

25 Just then a lawyer stood up to test Jesus.^s "Teacher," he said, "what must I do to inherit eternal life?" 26 He said to him, "What is written in the law? What do you read there?" 27 He answered, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself." 28 And he said to him, "You have given the right answer; do this, and you will live."

29 But wanting to justify himself, he asked Jesus, "And who is my neighbor?" 30 Jesus replied, "A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell into the hands of robbers, who stripped him, beat him, and went away, leaving him half dead. 31 Now by chance a priest was going down that road; and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. 32 So likewise a Levite, when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. 33 But a Samaritan while traveling came near him; and when he saw him, he was moved with pity. 34 He went to him and bandaged his wounds, having poured oil and wine on them. Then he put him on his own animal, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. 35 The next day he took out two denarii,^t gave them to the innkeeper, and said, 'Take care of him; and when I come back, I will repay you whatever more you spend.' 36 Which of these three, do you think, was a neighbor to the man who fell into the hands of the robbers?" 37 He said, "The one who showed him mercy." Jesus said to him, "Go and do likewise."

Jesus Visits Martha and Mary

38 Now as they went on their way, he entered a certain village, where a woman named Martha welcomed him into her home. 39 She had a sister named Mary, who sat at the Lord's feet and listened to what he was saying. 40 But Martha was distracted by her many tasks; so she came to him and asked, "Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to do all the work by myself? Tell her then to help me." 41 But the Lord answered her, "Martha, Martha, you are worried and distracted by many things; 42 there is need of only one thing.^u Mary has chosen the better part, which will not be taken away from her."

Both he and the priest may have been concerned about impurity from contact with a half dead person (10.30; see Num 19.10b–13). 10.33 The Samaritan was an alien far from home (see note on 9.52). 10.34 Oil and wine were used for medicinal purposes (see Isa 1.6). 10.36 Jesus' question changes the definition of neighbor from one who receives (cf. 10.27, 29) to one who bestows kindness.

10.38–42 See also Jn 11.1; 12.1–3. Interpreters find in the story of Martha and Mary conflicting messages on service and listening. 10.39 Sat at the Lord's feet. Mary is depicted as a disciple (see note on 8.35). This was exceptional for women. 10.40 Many tasks, lit. "much service." Discipleship is later defined in terms of service (see 22.24–27). For the active service of other women, see 8.2–3; 23.55–56; 24.22–24; Acts 9.36–39; 16.14–15; 18.2–3, 18.

The Lord's Prayer

11 He was praying in a certain place, and after he had finished, one of his disciples said to him, "Lord, teach us to pray, as John taught his disciples." ²He said to them, "When you pray, say:

Father,^v hallowed be your name.

Your kingdom come.^w

³ Give us each day our daily bread.^x

⁴ And forgive us our sins, for we ourselves forgive everyone indebted to us.

And do not bring us to the time of trial."^y

⁵ And he said to them, "Suppose one of you has a friend, and you go to him at midnight and say to him, 'Friend, lend me three loaves of bread; ⁶for a friend of mine has arrived, and I have nothing to set before him.' ⁷And he answers from within, 'Do not bother me; the door has already been locked, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot get up and give you anything.' ⁸I tell you, even though he will not get up and give him anything because he is his friend, at least because of his persistence he will get up and give him whatever he needs.

⁹ "So I say to you, Ask, and it will be given you; search, and you will find; knock, and the door will be opened for you. ¹⁰For everyone who asks receives, and everyone who searches finds, and for everyone who knocks, the door will be opened. ¹¹Is there anyone among you who, if your child asks for^z a fish, will give a snake instead of a fish? ¹²Or if the child asks for an egg, will give a scorpion?

¹³If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit^a to those who ask him!"

Jesus and Beelzebul

¹⁴ Now he was casting out a demon that was mute; when the demon had gone out, the one who had been mute spoke, and the crowds were amazed. ¹⁵But some of them said, "He casts out demons by Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons." ¹⁶Others, to test him, kept demanding from him a sign from heaven. ¹⁷But he knew what they were thinking and said to them, "Every kingdom divided against itself becomes a desert, and house falls on house. ¹⁸If Satan also is divided against himself, how will his kingdom stand? — for you say that I cast out the demons by Beelzebul. ¹⁹Now if I cast out the demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your exorcists^b cast them out? Cf. Mt 12.22-30, 43-45; Mk 3.22-27. The Beelzebul controversy sharpens the question of where God's power is at work. 11.14 The Greek word kôphos can mean either deaf or mute (see 1.20, 62). On the symbolic force of such healings, see Isa 35.6. 11.15 Beelzebul, a variant of the name of a Philistine god (see 2 Kings 1.2-16), which came to be used as one of the names of Satan. 11.16 On the test of Jesus' ability to produce a sign, see 4.9-13, 23; 11.29; 23.8. 11.17 House falls on house, warfare in households or dynasties (see 12.53). 11.20 Finger of God, an allusion to Ex 8.19, where Pharaoh's magicians recognized God's true power at work in Moses and Aaron (see also 5.17). 11.21 A strong man here refers to Satan. 11.22 Jesus claims to be the stronger one who has invaded Satan's domain which he trusted and divides his plunder. ²³Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me scatters.

²⁴ “When the unclean spirit has gone out of a person, it wanders through waterless regions looking for a resting place, but not finding any, it says, ‘I will return to my house from which I came.’ ²⁵When it comes, it finds it swept and put in order. ²⁶Then it goes and brings seven other spirits more evil than itself, and they enter and live there; and the last state of that person is worse than the first.”

²⁷ While he was saying this, a woman in the crowd raised her voice and said to him, “Blessed is the womb that bore you and the breasts that nursed you!” ²⁸But he said, “Blessed rather are those who hear the word of God and obey it!”

The Sign of Jonah

²⁹ When the crowds were increasing, he began to say, “This generation is an evil generation; it asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah. ³⁰For just as Jonah became a sign to the people of Nineveh, so the Son of Man will be to this generation. ³¹The queen of the South will rise at the judgment with the people of this generation and condemn them, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and see, something greater than Solomon is here! ³²The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment

The Light of the Body

³³ “No one after lighting a lamp puts it in a cellar,^c but on the lampstand so that those who enter may see the light. ³⁴Your eye is the lamp of your body. If your eye is healthy, your whole body is full of light; but if it is not healthy, your body is full of darkness. ³⁵Therefore consider whether the light in you is not darkness. ³⁶If then your whole body is full of light, with no part of it in darkness, it will be as full of light as when a lamp gives you light with its rays.”

Jesus Denounces Pharisees and Lawyers

³⁷ While he was speaking, a Pharisee invited him to dine with him; so he went in and took his place at the table. ³⁸The Pharisee was amazed to see that he did not first wash before dinner. ³⁹Then the Lord said to him, “Now you Pharisees clean the outside of the cup and of the dish, but inside you are full of greed and wickedness. ⁴⁰You fools! Did not the one who made the outside make the inside also? ⁴¹So give for alms those things that are within; and see, everything will be clean for you.

See note on 6.24. The Pharisees gave a tithe, or tenth part, of the harvest to the temple (Lev 27.30–33; Deut 14.22–29; 26.12–15; Mal 3.8–10). You . . . neglect justice, a classic prophetic indictment (see Isa

For you love to have the seat of honor in the synagogues and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces. ⁴⁴Woe to you! For you are like unmarked graves, and people walk over them without realizing it."

⁴⁵ One of the lawyers answered him, "Teacher, when you say these things, you insult us too." ⁴⁶And he said, "Woe also to you lawyers! For you load people with burdens hard to bear, and you yourselves do not lift a finger to ease them. ⁴⁷Woe to you! For you build the tombs of the prophets whom your ancestors killed. ⁴⁸So you are witnesses and approve of the deeds of your ancestors; for they killed them, and you build their tombs. ⁴⁹Therefore also the Wisdom of God said, 'I will send them prophets and apostles, some of whom they will kill and persecute,' ⁵⁰so that this generation may be charged with the blood of all the prophets shed since the foundation of the world, ⁵¹from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who perished between the altar and the sanctuary. Yes, I tell you, it will be charged against this generation. ⁵²Woe to you lawyers! For you have taken away the key of knowledge; you did not enter yourselves, and you hindered those who were entering."

⁵³ When he went outside, the scribes

and the Pharisees began to be very hostile toward him and to cross-examine him about many things, ⁵⁴lying in wait for him, to catch him in something he might say.

A Warning Against Hypocrisy

12 Meanwhile, when the crowd gathered by the thousands, so that they trampled on one another, he began to speak first to his disciples, "Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees, that is, their hypocrisy. ²Nothing is covered up that will not be uncovered, and nothing secret that will not become known. ³Therefore whatever you have said in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have whispered behind closed doors will be proclaimed from the housetops.

The Parable of the Rich Fool

13 Someone in the crowd said to him, “Teacher, tell my brother to divide the family inheritance with me.” ¹⁴But he said to him, “Friend, who set me to be a judge or arbitrator over you?” ¹⁵And he said to them, “Take care! Be on your guard against all kinds of greed; for one’s life does not consist in the abundance of possessions.” ¹⁶Then he told them a parable: “The land of a rich man produced abundantly. ¹⁷And he thought to himself, ‘What should I do, for I have no place to store my crops?’ ¹⁸Then he said, ‘I will do this: I will pull down my barns and build larger ones, and there I will store all my grain and my goods. ¹⁹And I will say to my soul, Soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years; relax, eat, drink, be merry.’ ²⁰But God said to him, ‘You fool! This very night your life is being demanded of you. And the things you have prepared, whose will they be?’ ²¹So it is with those who store up treasures for themselves but are not rich toward God.”

Do Not Worry

22 He said to his disciples, “Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat, or about your body, what you will wear. ²³For life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. ²⁴Consider the ravens: they neither sow nor reap, they have neither storehouse nor barn, and yet God feeds them. Acts 27.34). 12.8 The wording is strange here, suggesting that the Son of Man was a figure different from Jesus (see also 9.26; 17.22–30). The issue is widely debated (see also note on 5.24). In civil trials, Christians were compelled to acknowledge or deny their faith (see 21.12–19). 12.10 In Luke-Acts, denial of Jesus was forgiven (Lk 22.32, 54–62), but sins against the Holy Spirit risked dire judgment (Acts 5.1–11; 7.51; 8.14–24). 12.11 On trials before the synagogues, the rulers, and the authorities, see 21.12; Acts 4.1–22; 5.17–42; 17.1–9; 22.1–23.11; 24.1–21; 26.1–29.

12.13–21 The peril of wealth is demonstrated with a parable. 12.13 A teacher, or rabbi, could be expected to interpret the inheritance laws (Num 27.1–11; 36.6–9; Deut 21.15–17). 12.14 Friend, lit. “man” (Greek anthrōpe). See

Watchful Slaves

³⁵ "Be dressed for action and have your lamps lit; ³⁶be like those who are waiting for their master to return from the wedding banquet, so that they may open the door for him as soon as he comes and knocks. ³⁷Blessed are those slaves whom the master finds alert when he comes; truly I tell you, he will fasten his belt and have them sit down to eat, and he will come and serve them. ³⁸If he comes during the middle of the night, or near dawn, and finds them so, blessed are those slaves.

⁴¹ Peter said, "Lord, are you telling this parable for us or for everyone?" ⁴²And the Lord said, "Who then is the faithful and prudent manager whom his master will put in charge of his slaves, to give them their allowance of food at the proper time? ⁴³Blessed is that slave whom his master will find at work when he arrives. ⁴⁴Truly I tell you, he will put that one in charge of all his possessions. ⁴⁵But if that slave says to himself, 'My master is delayed in coming,' and if he begins to beat the other slaves, men and women, and to eat and drink and get drunk, ⁴⁶the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour that he does not know, and will cut him in pieces,^k and put him with the unfaithful. ⁴⁷That slave who knew what his master wanted, but did not prepare himself or do what was wanted, will receive a severe beating. ⁴⁸But the one who did not know and did what deserved a beating will receive a light beating. Repent or Perish

13 At that very time there were some present who told him about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. ²He asked them, "Do you think that because these Galileans suffered in this way they were worse sinners than all other Galileans? ³No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish as they did. ⁴Or those eighteen who were killed when the tower of Siloam fell on them—do you think that they were worse offenders than all the others living in Jerusalem? ⁵No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish just as they did."

⁶ Then he told this parable: "A man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came looking for fruit on it and found none. ⁷So he said to the gardener, 'See here! For three years I have come looking for fruit on this fig tree, and still I find none. Cut it down! Why should it be wasting the soil?' ⁸He replied, 'Sir, let it alone for one more year, until I dig around it and put manure on it. ⁹If it bears fruit next year, well and good; but if not, you can cut it down.'"

Jesus Heals a Crippled Woman

¹⁰ Now he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. ¹¹And just then there appeared a woman with a spirit that had crippled her for eighteen years. She was bent over and was quite unable to stand up straight. ¹²When Jesus saw her, he called her over and said, "Woman, you are set free from your ailment." ¹³When he laid his hands on her, immediately she stood up straight and began praising God. ¹⁴But the leader of the synagogue, indignant because Jesus had cured on the sabbath, kept saying to the crowd, "There are six days on which work ought to be done; come on those days and be cured, and not on the sabbath day." ¹⁵But the Lord answered him and said, "You hypocrites! Does not each of you on the sabbath untie his ox or his donkey from the manger, and lead it away to give it water? ¹⁶And ought not this woman, a daughter of Abraham whom Satan bound for eighteen long years, be set free from this bondage on the sabbath day?" ¹⁷When he said this, all his opponents were put to shame; and the entire crowd was rejoicing at all the wonderful things that he was doing.

The healing is presented as a conquest over evil powers (see also 4.39; 6.18; 7.21; 8.2; 9.1, 42).

Parables of Growth

18 He said therefore, "What is the kingdom of God like? And to what should I compare it? ¹⁹It is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in the garden; it grew and became a tree, and the birds of the air made nests in its branches."

20 And again he said, "To what should I compare the kingdom of God? ²¹It is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with ^m three measures of flour until all of it was leavened."

The Narrow Door

22 Jesusⁿ went through one town and village after another, teaching as he made his way to Jerusalem. ²³Someone asked him, "Lord, will only a few be saved?" He said to them, ²⁴"Strive to enter through the narrow door; for many, I tell you, will try to enter and will not be able. ²⁵When once the owner of the house has got up and shut the door, and you begin to stand outside and to knock at the door, saying, 'Lord, open to us,' then in reply he will say to you, 'I do not know where you come from.' ²⁶Then you will begin to say, 'We ate and drank with you, and you taught in our streets.' ²⁷But he will say, 'I do not know where you come from; go away from me, all you evildoers!' ²⁸There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth when you see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrown out. ²⁹Then people will come from east and west, from north and south, and will eat in the kingdom of God. ³⁰Indeed, some are last who will be first, and some are first who will be last."

The Lament over Jerusalem

31 At that very hour some Pharisees came and said to him, "Get away from here, for Herod wants to kill you." ³²He said to them, "Go and tell that fox for me," ^o 'Listen, I am casting out demons and performing cures today and tomorrow, and on the third day I finish my work. ³³Yet today, tomorrow, and the next day I must be on my way, because it is impossible for a prophet to be killed outside of Jerusalem.' ³⁴Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to it! Jesus Heals the Man with Dropsy

14 On one occasion when Jesus^q was going to the house of a leader of the Pharisees to eat a meal on the sabbath, they were watching him closely. ²Just then, in front of him, there was a man who had dropsy. ³And Jesus asked the lawyers and Pharisees, "Is it lawful to cure people on the sabbath, or not?" ⁴But they were silent. So Jesus^q took him and healed him, and sent him away. ⁵Then he said to them, "If one of you has a child^r or an ox that has fallen into a well, will you not immediately pull it out on a sabbath day?" ⁶And they could not reply to this.

Humility and Hospitality

⁷ When he noticed how the guests chose the places of honor, he told them a parable. ⁸"When you are invited by someone to a wedding banquet, do not sit down at the place of honor, in case someone more distinguished than you has been invited by your host; ⁹and the host who invited both of you may come and say to you, 'Give this person your place,' and then in disgrace you would start to take the lowest place. ¹⁰But when you are invited, go and sit down at the lowest place, so that when your host comes, he may say to you, 'Friend, move up higher'; then you will be honored in the presence of all who sit at the table with you. ¹¹For all who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted."

¹² He said also to the one who had invited him, "When you give a luncheon or a dinner, do not invite your friends or your brothers or your relatives or rich neighbors, in case they may invite you in return, and you would be repaid. ¹³But when you give a banquet, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind. ¹⁴And you will be blessed, because they cannot repay you, for you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous."

The Parable of the Great Dinner

¹⁵ One of the dinner guests, on hearing this, said to him, "Blessed is anyone who will eat bread in the kingdom of God!" ¹⁶Then Jesus^q said to him, "Someone gave a great dinner and invited many. ¹⁷At the time for the dinner he sent his slave to say to those who had been invited, 'Come; for everything is ready now.' ¹⁸But they all alike began to make excuses. The first said to him, 'I have bought a piece of land, and I must go out and see it; please accept my regrets.' ¹⁹Another said, 'I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am going to try them out; please accept my regrets.' ²⁰Another said, 'I have just been married, and therefore I cannot come.' ²¹So the slave returned and reported this to his master. Then the owner of the house became angry and said to his slave, 'Go out at once into the streets and lanes of the town and bring in the poor, the crippled, the blind, and the lame.' ²²And the slave said, 'Sir, what you ordered has been done, and there is still

14.1-24 A meal with lawyers and Pharisees provides the backdrop for a healing controversy and several dinner-table teachings on the kingdom. 14.1-6 The fourth conflict over sabbath observance (6.1-5; 6.6-11; 13.10-17) and the third meal with a Pharisee (7.36-50; 11.37-54; see also 5.29-32; 15.1-2). 14.1 The watching is unfriendly (see 11.53-54). 14.2 Dropsy, a condition of severe fluid retention. 14.3 Lawyers. 14.7-14 Traditional wisdom about taking a modest place at a feast (Prov 25.6-7) illustrates a proverb (14.11) about being humbled or exalted. 14.7 Parable here refers to sage advice (see note on 6.39). 14.8 Wedding banquet, an image of the heavenly feast (cf. Mt 22.1-14; see Lk 13.29; 14.14-15). 14.11 See 18.14. 14.13 Inviting the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind is not customary etiquette, but it conforms to the priorities of the kingdom (see 4.18; 7.22; 14.21).

14.15-24 Cf. Mt 22.1-14. A final teaching set at the Pharisee's banquet (see 14.1) conveys a pointed warning about the consequences of refusing an invitation to enter the kingdom. 14.15 Eat bread in the kingdom. See note on 13.29. 14.18-20 The excuses here correspond

The Cost of Discipleship

²⁵ Now large crowds were traveling with him; and he turned and said to them, ²⁶"Whoever comes to me and does not hate father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, yes, and even life itself, cannot be my disciple. ²⁷Whoever does not carry the cross and follow me cannot be my disciple. ²⁸For which of you, intending to build a tower, does not first sit down and estimate the cost, to see whether he has enough to complete it? ²⁹Otherwise, when he has laid a foundation and is not able to finish, all who see it will begin to ridicule him, ³⁰saying, 'This fellow began to build and was not able to finish.' ³¹Or what king, going out to wage war against another king, will not sit down first and consider whether he is able with ten thousand to oppose the one who comes against him with twenty thousand? ³²If he cannot, then, while the other is still far away, he sends a delegation and asks for the terms of peace. ³³So therefore, none of you can become my disciple if you do not give up all your possessions.

³⁴ "Salt is good; but if salt has lost its taste, how can its saltiness be restored?"

³⁵It is fit neither for the soil nor for the manure pile; they throw it away. Let anyone with ears to hear listen!"

The Parable of the Lost Sheep

15 Now all the tax collectors and sinners were coming near to listen to him. ²And the Pharisees and the scribes were grumbling and saying, "This fellow welcomes sinners and eats with them."

roughly to legitimate exemptions from a call to holy war (Deut 20.5–8). 14.23 Roads and lanes would be outside the town, probably an allusion to those "outside" Israel, i.e., the Gentiles (see 3.8; Deut 32.21; Acts 13.46; 18.6; 28.23–28).

14.25–35 Cf. Mt 10.37–38; 5.13; Mk 9.49–50. These verses recall the loyalty tests of holy war (Ex 32.25–29; Deut 33.8–9). 14.26 Hate, prophetic hyperbole for the uncompromising loyalty required toward Jesus and the true family of disciples (8.19–21; 9.59–60; see also 18.28–30). 14.27 Carry the cross. See 9.23–27. 14.33 Give up all your possessions. See 12.33; 18.22; see also Acts 5.1–11. 14.34 In its Lucan context, the saying on salt probably refers to the need for disciples to maintain their firm loyalty (cf. Mk 9.50). 14.35 On the warning to listen, see note on 8.8; see also 15.1.

15.1–32 Three parables on the lost and found. Only the first has a parallel in Matthew

(see note on 15.3–7). 15.1–2 These verses introduce the parables and define the "lost." 15.1 Tax collectors and sinners. See note on 5.30; see also 7.29–30. 15.2 On the Pharisees' grumbling about Jesus' meal fellowship, see 5.30; 7.39; 19.7; see also note on 15.25–30.

15.3–7 Cf. Mt 18.12–14. This parable closely parallels the next (15.8–10). 15.4 On concern for the lost, see 15.6, 9, 24, 32; 19.10; see also Ezek 34.16. 15.6 The party with friends and neighbors is extravagant (see also 15.9, 22–24). 15.7 Joy in heaven. See also 15.10, 32. In Luke, repentance is not only an obligation (see 3.3, 8–9; 13.3, 5; see also Acts 2.38; 3.19; 8.22; 17.30; 26.20) but a gift or opportunity (5.31–32; 16.30; see also Acts 5.31; 11.18).

15.8–10 The second of the paired parables focuses on the intensity of the search. 15.8 The coins are drachmas (see text note u), which had only small value in this era.

The Parable of the Prodigal and His Brother

11 Then Jesus^v said, "There was a man who had two sons. ¹²The younger of them said to his father, 'Father, give me the share of the property that will belong to me.' So he divided his property between them. ¹³A few days later the younger son gathered all he had and traveled to a distant country, and there he squandered his property in dissolute living. ¹⁴When he had spent everything, a severe famine took place throughout that country, and he began to be in need. ¹⁵So he went and hired himself out to one of the citizens of that country, who sent him to his fields to feed the pigs. ¹⁶He would gladly have filled himself with^w the pods that the pigs were eating; and no one gave him anything. ¹⁷But when he came to himself he said, 'How many of my father's hired hands have bread enough and to spare, but here I am dying of hunger! ¹⁸I will get up and go to my father, and I will say to him, "Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; ¹⁹I am no longer worthy to be called your son; treat me like one of your hired hands." ' ²⁰So he set off and went to his father. But while he was still far off, his father saw him and was filled with compassion; he ran and put his arms around him and kissed him. ²¹Then

the son said to him, 'Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; I am no longer worthy to be called your son.'^x ²²But the father said to his slaves, 'Quickly, bring out a robe—the best one—and put it on him; put a ring on his finger and sandals on his feet. ²³And get the fatted calf and kill it, and let us eat and celebrate; ²⁴for this son of mine was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found!' And they began to celebrate.

²⁵ "Now his elder son was in the field; and when he came and approached the house, he heard music and dancing. ²⁶He called one of the slaves and asked what was going on. ²⁷He replied, 'Your brother has come, and your father has killed the fatted calf, because he has got him back safe and sound.' ²⁸Then he became angry and refused to go in. His father came out and began to plead with him. ²⁹But he answered his father, 'Listen! For all these years I have been working like a slave for you, and I have never disobeyed your command; yet you have never given me even a young goat so that I might celebrate with my friends. ³⁰But when this son of yours came back, who has devoured your property with prostitutes, you killed the fatted calf for him!' ³¹Then the father^v said to him, 'Son, you are always with me, and all that is mine is yours. ³²But we had to celebrate and rejoice, because this brother of yours was dead and has come to life; he was lost and has been found.' 15.11–32 Only Luke tells this story of the lost son and the loving father. 15.12 Traditional wisdom counseled against giving an inheritance before one's death (Sir 33.20–24). That wisdom also counseled against giving to sinners (Sir 12.4–6). 15.13 Dissolute living is not defined, except by the elder brother (15.30). 15.15–16 It would be shameful for a Jewish boy to feed pigs and eat their food (see note on 8.32). 15.17–19 The younger son's sober speech to himself begins his return, or repentance. 15.18 Against heaven, i.e., against God (cf. Ex 10.16). 15.19 The concept of being worthy is generally tied to observance of the law (see note on 7.4–5). 15.20 On the father's response of compassion, see 7.13; see also Jer 30.18; 31.18–20; Hos 11.1–9. 15.22 The festive clothes display the extravagance of the celebration (see Gen 41.42). 15.23 Meat was not often eaten, so killing the fatted calf was a sign of special celebration. 15.25–30 The portrayal of the elder son and his resentment may be a subtle criticism of the grumbling Pharisees and scribes (15.1–2). 15.30 This son of yours. The elder son distances himself from both his brother and his father (cf. 15.32, "this brother of yours"). 15.31 The inheritance rights of the elder son are protected (see also 5.30–32). 15.32 We had to celebrate. The words reflect the obligation or necessity of mercy (see note on 2.49; 11.42).

The Parable of the Dishonest Manager

16 Then Jesus^y said to the disciples, "There was a rich man who had a manager, and charges were brought to him that this man was squandering his property. ²So he summoned him and said to him, 'What is this that I hear about you? Give me an accounting of your management, because you cannot be my manager any longer.' ³Then the manager said to himself, 'What will I do, now that my master is taking the position away from me? I am not strong enough to dig, and I am ashamed to beg. ⁴I have decided what to do so that, when I am dismissed as manager, people may welcome me into their homes.' ⁵So, summoning his master's debtors one by one, he asked the first, 'How much do you owe my master?' ⁶He answered, 'A hundred jugs of olive oil.' He said to him, 'Take your bill, sit down quickly, and make it fifty.' ⁷Then he asked another, 'And how much do you owe?' He replied, 'A hundred containers of wheat.' He said to him, 'Take your bill and make it eighty.' ⁸And his master commended the dishonest manager because he had acted shrewdly; for the children of this age are more shrewd in dealing with their own generation than are the children of light. ⁹And I tell you, make friends for yourselves by means of dishonest wealth^z so that when it is gone, they may welcome you into the eternal homes.^a

¹⁰ "Whoever is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much; and whoever is dishonest in a very little is dishonest also in much. ¹¹If then you have not been faithful with the dishonest wealth,^z who will entrust to you the true riches? ¹²And if you have not been faithful with what belongs to another, who will give you what is your own? ¹³No slave can serve two masters; for a slave will either hate the one and love the other, or be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth."^z

The Law and the Kingdom of God

¹⁴ The Pharisees, who were lovers of money, heard all this, and they ridiculed him. ¹⁵So he said to them, "You are those who justify yourselves in the sight of others; but God knows your hearts; for what is prized by human beings is an abomination in the sight of God.

16.1–31 Jesus warns of the dangers of wealth. 16.1–13 Cf. Mt 6.24. An enigmatic parable is given several applications. 16.1 The audience is again the disciples (cf. 15.1–2). Manager. See note on 12.42–43. Squandering could be merely inept management (see 15.13), but later the manager is called dishonest (16.8). 16.2 The accounting is probably an inventory of possessions and transactions in anticipation of a new manager. 16.5–7 The dishonest man uses his last opportunity as manager to obligate his master's debtors to himself (see also 7.41–43). Some interpret his actions as eliminating his own personal commission from the debt. 16.8 Commended. The commendation is either ironic, or approval of his prudent elimination of the commission, or acknowledgment of his cleverness in dealing with an urgent situation. Shrewd (Greek phronimos) can also be translated "prudent" (see 12.42). Children of light, a term used in the NT for Christian disciples (see Jn 12.36; Eph 5.8; 1 Thess 5.5). 16.9 This verse seems to offer a second conclusion to the parable, perhaps as an ironic question: How will friends made from dishonest wealth (lit. "the mammon of wickedness") be able to welcome you into the eternal homes? (See 6.24; 16.25;

18.25.) 16.10–12 A separate application focuses on the issue of responsible behavior. 16.11 On the value of the true riches, see also 12.33–34. 16.12 What belongs to another, what is your own, perhaps contrasting worldly goods with the disciples' true possession, the kingdom of God (see 6.20; 14.33). 16.13 A final, general application of the parable. Serve. The issue is not greed but idolatry (Ex 20.3; Deut 5.7; 6.13).

16.14–18 Cf. Mt 11.12–13; 5.18; 19.9; Mk 10.11–12. Three unrelated sayings (vv. 14–15, 16–17, 18) provide a rough transition to the parable of Lazarus and the rich man. 16.14 Opposing teachers regularly accused each other of being lovers of money. 16.15 Justify yourselves. See 10.29; cf. 18.14. God knows your hearts. See Prov 21.2; 24.12; Acts 1.24; 15.8. What is prized by human beings here refers to idolatrous love of money. Abomination. See Deut 7.25. 16.16 In Luke, John the Baptist stands at the apex of the age of the law and the prophets (see note on 7.28). The time of the proclamation of the kingdom of God is a new regime (4.43; 8.1; Acts 8.12). Everyone tries to enter it by force. This difficult phrase should probably be translated with emphasis on the passive force of the verb: "And everyone is constrained [Greek

The Rich Man and Lazarus

19 "There was a rich man who was dressed in purple and fine linen and who feasted sumptuously every day. 20 And at his gate lay a poor man named Lazarus, covered with sores, 21 who longed to satisfy his hunger with what fell from the rich man's table; even the dogs would come and lick his sores. 22 The poor man died and was carried away by the angels to be with Abraham.^c The rich man also died and was buried. 23 In Hades, where he was being tormented, he looked up and saw Abraham far away with Lazarus by his side.^d 24 He called out, 'Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue; for I am in agony in these flames.' 25 But Abraham said, 'Child, remember that during your lifetime you received your good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things; but now he is comforted here, and you are in agony. 26 Besides all this, between you and us a great chasm has been fixed, so that those who might want to pass from here to you cannot do so, and no one can cross from there to us.' 27 He said, 'Then, father, I beg you to send him to my father's house— 28 for I have five brothers—that he may warn them, so that they will not also come into this place of torment.'

29 Abraham replied, 'They have Moses and the prophets; they should listen to them.' 30 He said, 'No, father Abraham; but if someone goes to them from the dead, they will repent.' 31 He said to him, 'If they do not listen to Moses and the prophets, neither will they be convinced even if someone rises from the dead.'

Some Sayings of Jesus

17 Jesus^e said to his disciples, "Occasions for stumbling are bound to come, but woe to anyone by whom they come! 2 It would be better for you if a millstone were hung around your neck and you were thrown into the sea than for you to cause one of these little ones to stumble. 3 Be on your guard! If another disciple^f sins, you must rebuke the offender, and if there is repentance, you must forgive. 4 And if the same person sins against you seven times a day, and turns back to you seven times and says, 'I repent,' you must forgive."

5 The apostles said to the Lord, "Increase our faith!" 6 The Lord replied, "If you had faith the size of a g mustard seed, you could say to this mulberry tree, 'Be uprooted and planted in the sea,' and it would obey you."

7 "Who among you would say to your slave who has just come in from plowing or tending sheep in the field, 'Come here at once and take your place at the table'? 8 Would you not rather say to him, 'Prepare supper for me, put on your apron and serve me while I eat and drink; later

16.19–31 The parable of the reversal of the states of the rich man and poor Lazarus recalls Jesus' statements in 6.20–25. 16.20 This Lazarus does not seem related to the dead man resuscitated in Jn 11. 16.21 Dogs, a sign of Lazarus's outcast status (see 1 Kings 21.19, 24; Ps 22.16; Mt 15.26–27; Mk 7.27–28). 16.22 On the honored place with Abraham, see 3.8; 13.28–29; see also

See also Acts 2.40. 16.29 The resurrected Jesus teaches from Moses and the prophets (see 24.26–27, 44–48; see also 16.16–17). 16.31 Even if someone rises from the dead, an obvious allusion to Jesus' resurrection. See 9.22; Acts 1.22.

17.1–10 The second phase of Jesus' journey to Jerusalem (13.22–17.10) concludes with diverse sayings to the disciples. 17.1 Occasions for stumbling, i.e., apostasy (see 7.23). Woe. Inevitability and divine necessity do not eliminate personal responsibility (see also 22.22). 17.2 These little ones, probably the disciples (see 10.21; 12.32).

Jesus Cleanses Ten Lepers

11 On the way to Jerusalem Jesus^h was going through the region between Samaria and Galilee. ¹²As he entered a village, ten lepersⁱ approached him. Keeping their distance, ¹³they called out, saying, "Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!" ¹⁴When he saw them, he said to them, "Go and show yourselves to the priests." And as they went, they were made clean. ¹⁵Then one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, praising God with a loud voice. ¹⁶He prostrated himself at Jesus' feet and thanked him. And he was a Samaritan. ¹⁷Then Jesus asked, "Were not ten made clean? But the other nine, where are they? ¹⁸Was none of them found to return and give praise to God except this foreigner?" ¹⁹Then he said to him, "Get up and go on your way; your faith has made you well."

The Coming of the Kingdom

20 Once Jesus^h was asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God was coming, and he answered, "The kingdom of God is not coming with things that can be observed; ²¹nor will they say, 'Look, here it is!' or 'There it is!' For, in fact, the kingdom of God is among^k you."

22 Then he said to the disciples, "The days are coming when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, and you will not see it. ²³They will say to you, 'Look there!' or 'Look here!' Do not go, do not set off in pursuit. ²⁴For as the lightning flashes and lights up the sky from one side to the other, so will the Son of Man be in his day.^l ²⁵But first he must endure much suffering and be rejected by this generation. ²⁶Just as it was in the days of Noah, so too it will be in the days of the Son of Man. ²⁷They were eating and drinking, and marrying and being given in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed all of them. ²⁸Likewise, just as it was in the days of Lot: they were eating and drinking, buying and selling, planting and building, ²⁹but on the day that Lot left Sodom, it rained fire and sulfur from heaven and destroyed all of them ³⁰—it will be like that on the day that the Son of Man is revealed. ³¹On that day, anyone on the housetop who has belongings in the house must not come down to take them away; and likewise anyone in the field must not turn back. ³²Remember Lot's wife. ³³Those who try to make their

17.5 Apostles, the twelve closest delegates (see 6.13). 17.10 Worthless slaves implies those to whom nothing is owed.

17.11–19.27 Jesus approaches Jerusalem in the third phase of the journey (see note on 9.51–19.27). 17.11–19 The healing of the ten lepers contains echoes of the healing in 5.12–14. 17.11 Luke's reference to the region between Samaria and Galilee moves the journey along but the intended location is not at all clear. 17.12 Keeping their distance, as the Jewish law required (see Lev 13.46; Num 5.2–3). 17.14 Show yourselves to the priests, i.e., for examination (see Lev 13.2–8; 14.2–3). 17.16 A Samaritan. See note on 9.52. 17.19 Your faith has made you well. See also 7.50; 8.48; 18.42.

17.20–37 The advent of the kingdom and the coming of the Son of Man are treated here and again in 21.7–36. 17.20 As in Acts 1.6–8, the question of when the kingdom of God was coming is misguided and seeks signs (see also 21.7). 17.21–22 Like the word of God in Deut

30.11–14, the kingdom is already present as it is announced among you (see note on 4.43; see also 6.20; 8.1; 9.2; 10.9, 11; 11.20; 12.32; 16.16). The days of the Son of Man, however, await the full revelation of the last judgment (17.30; see also Dan 7.9–14). 17.24 As the lightning flashes. The return of the Son of Man will be a sudden, highly visible appearance. 17.25 See also 9.22; 24.26. First may imply a heavenly timetable that gives opportunity for repentance (see Acts 3.17–26). This generation. See Gen 19.1–25. Eating . . . building. The list depicts ordinary activities, not the corruption usually associated with Sodom (cf. Ezek 16.49–50). 17.29 Fire . . . from heaven. See 9.54; 10.12. 17.32 The fate of Lot's wife, who looked back to view the destruction of Sodom (see Gen 19.26), serves as a warning not to turn back (17.31). 17.33 See also 9.24; Mt 10.39;

life secure will lose it, but those who lose their life will keep it. ³⁴I tell you, on that night there will be two in one bed; one will be taken and the other left. ³⁵There will be two women grinding meal together; one will be taken and the other left."^m ³⁷Then they asked him, "Where, Lord?" He said to them, "Where the corpse is, there the vultures will gather."

The Parable of the Widow and the Unjust Judge

18 Then Jesusⁿ told them a parable about their need to pray always and not to lose heart. ²He said, "In a certain city there was a judge who neither feared God nor had respect for people. ³In that city there was a widow who kept coming to him and saying, 'Grant me justice against my opponent.' ⁴For a while he refused; but later he said to himself, 'Though I have no fear of God and no respect for anyone, ⁵yet because this widow keeps bothering me, I will grant her justice, so that she may not wear me out by continually coming.'"^o ⁶And the Lord said, "Listen to what the unjust judge says. ⁷And will not God grant justice to his chosen ones who cry to him day and night? Will he delay long in helping them? ⁸I tell you, he will quickly grant justice to them. And yet, when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on earth?"

The Parable of the Pharisee and the Tax Collector

⁹ He also told this parable to some who trusted in themselves that they were righteous and regarded others with contempt: ¹⁰"Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. ¹¹The Pharisee, standing by himself, was praying thus, 'God, I thank you that I am not like other people: thieves, rogues, adulterers, or even like this tax collector. ¹²I fast twice a week; I give a tenth of all my income.' ¹³But the tax collector, standing far off, would not even look up to heaven, but was beating his breast and saying, 'God, be merciful to me, a sinner!' ¹⁴I tell you, this man went down to his home justified rather than the other; for all who exalt themselves will be humbled, but all who humble themselves will be exalted."

Jesus Blesses Little Children

¹⁵ People were bringing even infants to him that he might touch them; and when the disciples saw it, they sternly ordered them not to do it. ¹⁶But Jesus called for them and said, "Let the little children come to me, and do not stop m Other ancient authorities add verse 36, "Two will be in the field; one will be taken and the other left."

Like Amos's "day of the Lord," the day of the Son of Man is "darkness, not light" for many (Am 5.18–20).

18.1–8 This parable provides instruction on how to prepare for the coming days. 18.1 On endurance in prayer (not to lose heart), see 11.5–13. 18.2 One who has not feared God would lack the wisdom to judge equitably (see Prov 1.7; see also Acts 10.2, 22, 35; 13.16, 26). 18.3 A widow had a particular claim for justice in Israel (Deut 10.17–18; 24.17; 27.19; Sir 35.12–25; see also Lk 7.12; 20.47; Acts 6.1). 18.6 Listen. It is not the judge's indifference (18.4) but his eventual yielding to the widow's complaint (18.5) that is the point of the parable. 18.7 On God's granting justice or vindication, see Deut 32.34–38; Pss 18.47; 34.17–18; 94.1; 149.7. 18.9–14 The Pharisee and tax collector are stock examples of how contempt for others is the regular corollary of self-righteousness (see 5.29–32; 7.29–30; 15.1–2; see also 10.29; 16.15). 18.11 Praying, lit. The plea for God to be merciful is a prayer for pardon (see Pss 25.11; 51.1; 65.3; 78.38; 79.9). 18.14 Justified, i.e., vindicated as truly righteous. This must come from God, not from one's own claim of righteousness (see 14.11; Rom 3.21–26).

18.15–17 Cf. Mt 19.13–15; Mk 10.13–16. The parallels with Mark's Gospel, broken off at 9.51, now resume. 18.15 Sternly ordered, lit. "re-

The Rich Ruler

18 A certain ruler asked him, "Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?" ¹⁹Jesus said to him, "Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. ²⁰You know the commandments: 'You shall not commit adultery; You shall not murder; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; Honor your father and mother.'" ²¹He replied, "I have kept all these since my youth." ²²When Jesus heard this, he said to him, "There is still one thing lacking. Sell all that you own and distribute the money^p to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me." ²³But when he heard this, he became sad; for he was very rich. ²⁴Jesus looked at him and said, "How hard it is for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God! ²⁵Indeed, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God."

²⁶Those who heard it said, "Then who can be saved?" ²⁷He replied, "What is impossible for mortals is possible for God."

²⁸Then Peter said, "Look, we have left our homes and followed you." ²⁹And he said to them, "Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or wife or brothers or parents or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, ³⁰who will not get back very much more in this age, and in the age to come eternal life."

Jesus Again Foretells His Death and Resurrection

³¹Then he took the twelve aside and said to them, "See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and everything that is written about the Son of Man by the prophets will be accomplished. ³²For he will be handed over to the Gentiles; and he will be mocked and insulted and spat upon. ³³After they have flogged him, they will kill him, and on the third day he will rise again." ³⁴But they understood nothing about all these things; in fact, what he said was hidden from them, and they did not grasp what was said.

A Blind Beggar Recognizes the Son of David

³⁵As he approached Jericho, a blind man was sitting by the roadside begging. ³⁶When he heard a crowd going by, he asked what was happening. ³⁷They told him, "Jesus of Nazareth^q is passing by." ³⁸Then he shouted, "Jesus, Son of David, buked." Cf. 9.55. 18.17 The qualities of openness, low status, and no claim to achievement characterize the little child.

^p Gk lacks the money ^q Gk the Nazorean

18.18–30 Cf. Mt 19.16–30; Mk 10.17–31. An encounter with a rich ruler continues the teaching on how to inherit eternal life (see also 18.9–17). 18.18 The ruler's question is the same as the lawyer's in 10.25. On Jesus as a Teacher, or interpreter of the law, see 7.40; 8.49; 9.38; 10.25; 11.45; 12.13; 19.39; 20.21, 28, 39; 21.7; 22.11. 18.19 No one is good but God alone. God's goodness is a consistent theme in Israel's worship (1 Chr 16.34; Pss 34.8; 106.1; 118.1, 29; see also Lk 11.13). 18.20 For the list of commandments, see Ex 20.12–16; Deut 5.16–20 (cf. Lk 10.26–27). 18.22 Discipleship to this teacher is not simply better observance of the law; the one thing lacking requires all (see also 12.33). On care for the poor, see note on 6.20. 18.25 A camel . . . through the eye of a needle, an image of extreme difficulty (see also 6.41–42; 16.17). 18.26 Who can be saved? Cf. 13.23. 18.27 All is possible for God (see also 1.37; Gen 18.14), thus even a rich person can enter the kingdom (see 19.1–10). 18.28 See 5.11. 18.29–30 These verses restate the assurances of 12.22–34.

have mercy on me!" ³⁹Those who were in front sternly ordered him to be quiet; but he shouted even more loudly, "Son of David, have mercy on me!" ⁴⁰Jesus stood still and ordered the man to be brought to him; and when he came near, he asked him, ⁴¹"What do you want me to do for you?" He said, "Lord, let me see again." ⁴²Jesus said to him, "Receive your sight; your faith has saved you." ⁴³Immediately he regained his sight and followed him, glorifying God; and all the people, when they saw it, praised God.

Jesus and Zacchaeus

19 He entered Jericho and was passing through it. ²A man was there named Zacchaeus; he was a chief tax collector and was rich. ³He was trying to see who Jesus was, but on account of the crowd he could not, because he was short in stature. ⁴So he ran ahead and climbed a sycamore tree to see him, because he was going to pass that way. ⁵When Jesus came to the place, he looked up and said to him, "Zacchaeus, hurry and come down; for I must stay at your house today." ⁶So he hurried down and was happy to welcome him. ⁷All who saw it began to grumble and said, "He has gone to be the guest of one who is a sinner." ⁸Zacchaeus stood there and said to the Lord, "Look, half of my possessions, Lord, I will give to the poor; and if I have defrauded anyone of anything, I will pay back four times as much." ⁹Then Jesus said to him, "Today salvation has come to this house, because he too is a son of Abraham. ¹⁰For the Son of Man came to seek out and to save the lost."

The Parable of the Ten Pounds

¹¹ As they were listening to this, he went on to tell a parable, because he was near Jerusalem, and because they supposed that the kingdom of God was to appear immediately. ¹²So he said, "A nobleman went to a distant country to get royal power for himself and then return. ¹³He summoned ten of his slaves, and gave them ten pounds,^r and said to them, 'Do business with these until I come back.' ¹⁴But the citizens of his country hated him and sent a delegation after him, saying, 'We do not want this man to rule over us.' ¹⁵When he returned, having received royal power, he ordered these slaves, to whom he had given the money, to be summoned so that he might find out what they had gained by trading. ¹⁶The first came forward and said, 'Lord, your pound has made ten more pounds.' ¹⁷He said to him, 'Well done, good slave! Because you have been trustworthy in a very small thing, take charge of ten cities.' ¹⁸Then the second came, saying, 'Lord, your pound has made five pounds.' ¹⁹He

See also 1.32, 69; 2.4, 11; 3.31; 20.41-44. 18.42 The command receive your sight recalls the reading in 4.18 (see also 7.22; Acts 9.17-18). Your faith has saved you. See 7.50; 8.48; 17.19. 18.43 All the people . . . praised God. See 5.25-26; 7.16; 8.39; 13.13; 17.15.

19.1-10 The story of Zacchaeus illustrates earlier statements concerning tax collectors (5.29-32), the rich (18.25-27), and the lost (ch. 15). 19.2 Zacchaeus was a common Jewish name (Ezra 2.9; Neh 7.14; 2 Macc 10.19) meaning "innocent" or "clean." A chief tax collector played a role in the Roman bureaucracy that many Jews regarded as traitorous to their law (see 20.22; see also note on 5.30). 19.5 I must stay at your house. The comment implies divine necessity (see note on 2.49). 19.7 The crowd's reaction recalls those in 5.30; 7.34, 39; 15.2. 19.8 Zacchaeus's promise to give half to the poor is voluntary (cf. 18.18-25). I will pay back four times as much, fulfilling the strictest laws of restitution (see Ex 22.1; Lev 5.16; Num 5.7). 19.9 Today stresses the present reality of salvation (see note on 4.43; see also 2.11; 4.21; 5.26; 23.43; Deut 26.16-19). Son of Abraham, i.e., an Israelite (see also 3.8; 13.16; cf. Gal 3.29). 19.10 To save the lost. See note on 15.4.

19.11-27 Cf. Mt 25.14-30; Mk 13.34. This parable concludes the extended journey to Jerusalem (9.51-19.27) and again corrects misunderstandings about the present reality and future appearance of the kingdom of God (see 17.20-37; 21.7-36; Acts 1.6-8). 19.12 To get royal power, i.e., to acquire the status of a vassal king from an overlord (see note on 3.1). This allegorical detail alludes to Jesus' own imminent departure and exaltation (24.26; Acts 2.32-35). 19.13 The pounds, or "minas" (see text note ^r), are distributed equally (cf. Mt 25.15). Each was worth 100 drachmas (see note on 15.8). 19.14 Another allegorical detail seems to refer to Jesus' rejection (see 23.18). 19.17 Take charge of ten cities.

said to him, 'And you, rule over five cities.' ²⁰Then the other came, saying, 'Lord, here is your pound. I wrapped it up in a piece of cloth, ²¹for I was afraid of you, because you are a harsh man; you take what you did not deposit, and reap what you did not sow.' ²²He said to him, 'I will judge you by your own words, you wicked slave! You knew, did you, that I was a harsh man, taking what I did not deposit and reaping what I did not sow? ²³Why then did you not put my money into the bank? Then when I returned, I could have collected it with interest.' ²⁴He said to the bystanders, 'Take the pound from him and give it to the one who has ten pounds.' ²⁵(And they said to him, 'Lord, he has ten pounds!') ²⁶'I tell you, to all those who have, more will be given; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. ²⁷But as for these enemies of mine who did not want me to be king over them—bring them here and slaughter them in my presence.'

Jesus' Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem

²⁸ After he had said this, he went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem.

²⁹ When he had come near Bethphage and Bethany, at the place called the Mount of Olives, he sent two of the disciples, ³⁰saying, "Go into the village ahead of you, and as you enter it you will find tied there a colt that has never been rid-

den. Untie it and bring it here. ³¹If anyone asks you, 'Why are you untying it?' just say this, 'The Lord needs it.'" ³²So those who were sent departed and found it as he had told them. ³³As they were untying the colt, its owners asked them, "Why are you untying the colt?" ³⁴They said, "The Lord needs it." ³⁵Then they brought it to Jesus; and after throwing their cloaks on the colt, they set Jesus on it. ³⁶As he rode along, people kept spreading their cloaks on the road. ³⁷As he was now approaching the path down from the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to praise God joyfully with a loud voice for all the deeds of power that they had seen, ³⁸saying,

"Blessed is the king who comes in the name of
the Lord!
Peace in heaven,
and glory in the highest heaven!"

³⁹Some of the Pharisees in the crowd said to him, "Teacher, order your disciples to stop." ⁴⁰He answered, "I tell you, if these were silent, the stones would shout out."

Jesus Weeps over Jerusalem

⁴¹ As he came near and saw the city, he wept over it, ⁴²saying, "If you, even you, had only recognized on this day the things that make for peace! But now they are hidden from your eyes. ⁴³Indeed, the days will come upon you, when your ene-

The rewards are dispensed in direct proportion to performance. 19.26 See also 8.18; Mt 13.12; 25.29; Mk 4.25. 19.27 The conclusion of the story portrays with harsh realism how oriental kings could treat their enemies (19.14; see also 20.9–16). The detail may allude to the destruction of Jerusalem (see 21.20–24).

19.28–40 Cf. Mt 21.1–9; Mk 11.1–10; Jn 12.12–19. The journey that began in 9.51 now reaches its climax in Jerusalem. 19.29 Bethphage and Bethany, villages about two miles from Jerusalem, on the lower slope of the Mount of Olives (see also 24.50; Mt 21.1; 26.6; Mk 11.1; 14.3; Jn 11.1, 18; 12.1). The Mount of Olives is just east of Jerusalem; God was expected to appear there on the day of the Lord and become "king over all the earth" (see Zech 14.4–9). The two disciples are advance agents preparing for a royal entrance (see also 10.1). 19.30 The unridden colt marks a direct enactment of Zech 9.9 (see Mt 21.4–5; see also 1 Kings 1.33–35). 19.34 The Lord needs it. The colt is requisitioned as a royal prerogative.

19.36 Luke does not mention festal branches (cf. Mt 21.8; Mk 11.8; Jn 12.13), but spreading their cloaks has royal significance (cf. 2 Kings 9.13). 19.37 The multitude of the disciples again stresses Jesus' large following (see also 18.15, 36, 43; 19.3). 19.38 Blessed . . . in the name of the Lord. The acclamation (from Ps 118.26) is the usual greeting for Passover pilgrims (but with the word king added), and it also fulfills Jesus' royal prediction of 13.33. Peace in heaven. Cf. 2.14; 10.5–6; 12.51; 19.42. 19.39 The caution of some of the Pharisees recalls 13.31. 19.40 Jesus' response (lit. "the stones will cry out") is prophetic (cf. Hab 2.11).

19.41–44 Jesus' lament over Jerusalem is filled with allusions to oracles of destruction (2 Kings 8.11–12; Ps 137.9; Isa 29.3–10; 48.18; Jer 6.6–20; 8.18–21; 15.5; 23.38–40). 19.42 The attempt to keep the peace by silencing the acclamation (19.39) produces divine judgment. 19.43 The ramparts imply siege warfare such as Titus used against Jerusalem in 70 C.E., but also

mies will set up ramparts around you and surround you, and hem you in on every side. ⁴⁴They will crush you to the ground, you and your children within you, and they will not leave within you one stone upon another; because you did not recognize the time of your visitation from God.”^s

⁴⁵ Then he entered the temple and began to drive out those who were selling things there; ⁴⁶and he said, “It is written, ‘My house shall be a house of prayer’; but you have made it a den of robbers.”

⁴⁷ Every day he was teaching in the temple. The chief priests, the scribes, and the leaders of the people kept looking for a way to kill him; ⁴⁸but they did not find anything they could do, for all the people were spellbound by what they heard.

20 One day, as he was teaching the people in the temple and telling the good news, the chief priests and the scribes came with the elders ²and said to him, “Tell us, by what authority are you doing these things? Who is it who gave you this authority?” ³He answered them, “I will also ask you a question, and you tell me: ⁴Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin?”

⁵They discussed it with one another, saying, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say, ‘Why did you not believe him?’ ⁶But if we say, ‘Of human origin,’ all the people will stone us; for they are convinced that John was a prophet.” ⁷So they answered that they did not know where it came from. ⁸Then Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things.”

⁹ He began to tell the people this parable: “A man planted a vineyard, and leased it to tenants, and went to another country for a long time. ¹⁰When the season came, he sent a slave to the tenants in order that they might give him his share of the produce of the vineyard; but the tenants beat him and sent him away empty-handed. ¹¹Next he sent another slave; that one also they beat and insulted and sent away empty-handed. ¹²And he sent still a third; this one also they wounded and threw out. ¹³Then the owner of the vineyard said, ‘What shall I do? I will send my beloved son; perhaps they will respect him.’ ¹⁴But when the tenants saw him, they discussed it among themselves and said, ‘This is the heir; let us kill him so that the inheritance may be ours.’ ¹⁵So they threw him out of the vineyard and killed him. What then will the owner of the vineyard do to them?”

cf. Isa 29.3 (see also Introduction). 19.44 They will not leave . . . one stone upon another. See also 19.40; 21.6. The fault lies in their failure to recognize Jesus as God’s visitation, intended to save (1.68; 7.16) but now become judgment (Isa 29.6).

19.45–48 Cf. Mt 21.12–13; Mk 11.15–19; Jn 2.13–17. 20.1–21.4 In a series of conflicts in the temple, Jesus’ adversaries ask insincere questions to entrap or ridicule him, yet he still finds ways to teach with integrity. 20.1–8 Cf. Mt 21.23–27; Mk 11.27–33. 20.1 Jesus’ daily teaching in the temple is linked with his “proclaiming,” or telling

16 He will come and destroy those tenants and give the vineyard to others." When they heard this, they said, "Heaven forbid!" 17 But he looked at them and said, "What then does this text mean:

The stone that the builders
has become the cornerstone?'

18 Everyone who falls on that stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls." 19 When the scribes and chief priests realized that he had told this parable against them, they wanted to lay hands on him at that very hour, but they feared the people.

The Question About Paying Taxes

20 So they watched him and sent spies who pretended to be honest, in order to trap him by what he said, so as to hand him over to the jurisdiction and authority of the governor. 21 So they asked him, "Teacher, we know that you are right in what you say and teach, and you show deference to no one, but teach the way of God in accordance with truth. 22 Is it lawful for us to pay taxes to the emperor, or not?" 23 But he perceived their craftiness and said to them, 24 "Show me a denarius. Whose head and whose title does it bear?" They said, "The emperor's." 25 He said to them, "Then give to the emperor the things that are the emperor's, and to God the things that are God's." 26 And they were not able in the presence of the people to trap him by what he said; and being amazed by his answer, they became silent.

The Question About the Resurrection

27 Some Sadducees, those who say there is no resurrection, came to him 28 and asked him a question, "Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man's brother dies, leaving a wife but no children, the man^u shall marry the widow and raise up children for his brother. 29 Now there were seven brothers; the first married, and died childless; 30 then the second 31 and the third married her, and so in the same way all seven died childless. 32 Finally the woman also died. 33 In the resurrection, therefore, whose wife will the woman be? For the seven had married her."

34 Jesus said to them, "Those who belong to this age marry and are given in marriage; 35 but those who are considered worthy of a place in that age and in the resurrection from the dead neither marry nor are given in marriage. 36 Indeed they cannot die anymore, because they are like angels and are children of God, being children of the resurrection. 37 And the fact that the dead are raised Moses himself showed, in the story about the bush, where he speaks of the Lord as the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. 38 Now he is God not of the 20.17 The text quoted is Ps 118.22, also quoted in Acts 4.11; 1 Pet 2.7. Another verse of this psalm is quoted in 13.35; 19.38. 20.18 The rejected but exalted stone (an allusion to Jesus' crucifixion and resurrection; see 9.22) will become an occasion for stumbling and judgment (see also 2.34; Isa 8.14–15; 1 Pet 2.6–8). 20.19 The division continues between the people and the rulers (see 19.47–48).

20.20–26 Cf. Mt 22.15–22; Mk 12.13–17. The second controversy in the temple (see also 20.1–8). 20.20 They watched him. See also 6.7; 14.1. The governor is Pilate (see 3.1; 23.1–2). 20.21 The traditional compliments (see Lev 19.15; Deut 1.17; 16.19) are patently hypocritical. 20.22 The question was difficult for Jews because of theological claims of the Roman order (see note on 20.24) and the dangers of opposing Rome. 20.24 A Roman denarius of this era bore the image of Tiberius Caesar (cf. Ex 20.4; Deut 5.8) and the inscription "TIBERIUS CAESAR, SON OF THE DIVINE AUGUSTUS, AUGUSTUS" (cf. Ex 20.23).

20.25 Jesus' answer changes the question from what one owes the emperor to what belongs to God (see also Rom 13.1–7; 1 Pet 2.13–17).

20.27–40 Cf. Mt 22.23–33; Mk 12.18–27. The third controversy introduces new opponents (cf. 20.1–8; 20.20–26). 20.27 The Sadducees denied the Pharisaic teachings of resurrection and angels (see also Acts 23.6–10) and were closely linked with the temple leadership (Acts 4.1; 5.17). 20.28–33 The case cited by the Sadducees is absurd but refers to the law of levirate (brother-in-law) marriage that kept a deceased husband's name alive (Deut 25.5–6; see also Gen 38.8). 20.34 Marry, i.e., to procreate. This is no longer necessary for those who inherit eternal life in the age to come. 20.37 Moses himself. Sadducees recognized only the authority of the books of Moses (the written Torah), which contain no explicit references to the resurrection. Jesus finds an implicit reference in Ex 3.6. 20.38 Moses is speaking of the living (i.e., resurrected) because the dead could not have a God at all.

dead, but of the living; for to him all of them are alive." ³⁹Then some of the scribes answered, "Teacher, you have spoken well." ⁴⁰For they no longer dared to ask him another question.

The Question About David's Son

41 Then he said to them, "How can they say that the Messiah^v is David's son? ⁴²For David himself says in the book of Psalms,

"The Lord said to my Lord,

"Sit at my right hand,

⁴³ until I make your enemies your footstool."

⁴⁴David thus calls him Lord; so how can he be his son?"

Jesus Denounces the Scribes

45 In the hearing of all the people he said to the^w disciples, ⁴⁶"Beware of the scribes, who like to walk around in long robes, and love to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, and to have the best seats in the synagogues and places of honor at banquets. ⁴⁷They devour widows' houses and for the sake of appearance say long prayers. They will receive the greater condemnation."

The Widow's Offering

21 He looked up and saw rich people putting their gifts into the treasury; ²he also saw a poor widow put in two small copper coins. ³He said, "Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all of them; ⁴for all of them have contributed out of their abundance, but she out of her poverty has put in all she had to live on."

The Destruction of the Temple Foretold

5 When some were speaking about the temple, how it was adorned with beautiful stones and gifts dedicated to God, he said, ⁶"As for these things that you see, the days will come when not one stone will be left upon another; all will be thrown down."

7 They asked him, "Teacher, when will this be, and what will be the sign that this is about to take place?" ⁸And he said, "Beware that you are not led astray; for many will come in my name and say, 'I am he!'^x and, 'The time is near!'^y Do not go after them.

9 "When you hear of wars and insurrections, do not be terrified; for these things must take place first, but the end will not follow immediately." ¹⁰Then he said to them, "Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; ¹¹there will be great earthquakes, and in various places famines and plagues; and there will be dreadful portents and great signs from heaven.

For a somewhat different use of this text, see Acts 2.25-36. 20.44 Since elsewhere the messianic title son of David is applied to Jesus (18.38-39; see also 1.32, 69), the meaning here is that this title, though correct, is not adequate, especially insofar as it suggests Jesus' subordination to David.

20.45-47 Cf. Mt 23.1-36; Mk 12.37b-40. Jesus' concluding attack on the scribes recalls his denouncement of the Pharisees in 11.37-52. 21.5-36 Luke's version of the "synoptic apocalypse" (cf. Mt 24; Mk 13) is located at the temple and rivals the Sermon on the Plain (6.20-49) for length and significance. 21.5-24 Cf. Lk 6.22).

12 "But before all this occurs, they will arrest you and persecute you; they will hand you over to synagogues and prisons, and you will be brought before kings and governors because of my name. 13 This will give you an opportunity to testify. 14 So make up your minds not to prepare your defense in advance; 15 for I will give you words^z and a wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to withstand or contradict. 16 You will be betrayed even by parents and brothers, by relatives and friends; and they will put some of you to death. 17 You will be hated by all because of my name. 18 But not a hair of your head will perish. 19 By your endurance you will gain your souls.

The Destruction of Jerusalem Foretold

20 "When you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then know that its desolation has come near.^a 21 Then those in Judea must flee to the mountains, and those inside the city must leave it, and those out in the country must not enter it; 22 for these are days of vengeance, as a fulfillment of all that is written. 23 Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days! For there will be great distress on the earth and wrath against this people; 24 they will fall by the edge of the sword and be taken away as captives among all nations; and Jerusalem will be trampled on by the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles are fulfilled.

The Coming of the Son of Man

25 "There will be signs in the sun, the moon, and the stars, and on the earth distress among nations confused by the roaring of the sea and the waves. 26 People will faint from fear and foreboding of what is coming upon the world, for the powers of the heavens will be shaken. 27 Then they will see 'the Son of Man coming in a cloud' with power and great glory. 28 Now when these things begin to take place, stand up and raise your heads, because your redemption is drawing near."

29 Then he told them a parable: "Look at the fig tree and all the trees; 30 as soon as they sprout leaves you can see for yourselves and know that summer is already near. 31 So also, when you see these things taking place, you know that the kingdom of God is near. 32 Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all things have taken place. 33 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

34 "Be on guard so that your hearts are not weighed down with dissipation and drunkenness and the worries of this life, and that day does not catch you unexpectedly, 35 like a trap. For it will come upon all who live on the face of the whole earth. 36 Be alert at all times, praying that you may have the strength to escape all these things that will take place, and to stand before the Son of Man."

37 Every day he was teaching in the temple, and at night he would go out and spend the night on the Mount of Olives, as it was called. 38 And all the people would get up early in the morning to listen to him in the temple.

The Plot to Kill Jesus

22 Now the festival of Unleavened Bread, which is called the Passover, was near. 2 The chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to put Jesus^b to death, for they were afraid of the people.

3 Then Satan entered into Judas called Iscariot, who was one of the twelve; 4 he went away and conferred with the chief priests and officers of the temple police about how he might betray him to them. 5 They were greatly pleased and agreed to give him money. 6 So he consented and began to look for an opportunity to betray him to them when no crowd was present.

The Preparation of the Passover

7 Then came the day of Unleavened Bread, on which the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed. 8 So Jesus^c sent Peter and John, saying, "Go and prepare the Passover meal for us that we may eat it." 9 They asked him, "Where do you want us to make preparations for it?" 10 "Listen," he said to them, "when you have entered the city, a man carrying a jar of water will meet you; follow him into the house he enters 11 and say to the owner of the house, 'The teacher asks you, "Where is the guest room, where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?"' 12 He will show you a large room upstairs, already furnished. Make preparations for us there." 13 So they went and found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

The Institution of the Lord's Supper

14 When the hour came, he took his place at the table, and the apostles with him. 15 He said to them, "I have eagerly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer; 16 for I tell you, I will not eat it^d until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God." 17 Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he said, "Take this and divide it among yourselves; 18 for I tell you that from now on I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes." 19 Then he took a loaf of bread, and when he had given thanks, he broke it and gave it to them, saying, "This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me." 20 And he did the same with the cup after supper, saying, "This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood." 21 But see,

Events at Passover reveal conflicting preparations by Jesus' adversaries (vv. 2–6) and his disciples (vv. 7–13). 22.1 Passover. See note on 2.41. 22.2 See also 19.47–48. 22.3 This seems to be the opportune time (4.13) Satan has been awaiting since the temptation in 4.1–13 (see also 22.31; Jn 13.27; Acts 5.3). Judas . . . Iscariot. See 6.16; Acts 1.16–20. The twelve. See note on 6.13. 22.7 The day of Unleavened Bread is inexact usage. Unleavened bread was eaten all seven days of the Passover festival (see Ex 12.7–8, 15–20). 22.8 Peter and John are again singled out in the story (see note on 8.51). The Passover meal (also 22.11) was usually eaten with families (see 8.21). 22.13 They . . . found everything as he had told them. Jesus' explicit instructions (22.10–11) are understood to have been prophetic (see also 19.32).

22.14–23 Cf. Mt 26.20, 26–29; Mk 14.17, 22–25. Jesus reinterprets the Passover meal in terms of his coming death and the coming kingdom. 22.14 The hour is the beginning of Passover, but it also anticipates the dire hour of Jesus' arrest (22.53). 22.15 Suffer (Greek paschein) refers here specifically to Jesus' death (see also 24.46; Acts 1.3; 3.18; 17.3; Heb 13.12; 1 Pet 2.21–23). 22.18 On the anticipation of the kingdom and its banquet, see 9.27; 13.22–30. 22.19 In remembrance of me. Passover was already a feast of remembrance (i.e., of God's deliverance of Israel from bondage in Egypt; see Ex 12.14). 22.20 Only Luke refers to a cup before (22.17) and after supper, recalling the several cups of wine of the Passover feast (cf. 1 Cor 11.23–26). New covenant. See Jer 31.31–34; 1 Cor 11.25. Blood is treated as sacred to God because it is life (Gen 9.4; Deut 12.23) with atoning power (Lev 17.11; Heb 9.22). It was used to seal the old covenant between God and Israel (see Ex 24.3–8). 22.21 His hand the one who betrays me is with me, and his hand is on the table. ²²For the Son of Man is going as it has been determined, but woe to that one by whom he is betrayed!" ²³Then they began to ask one another which one of them it could be who would do this.

The Dispute About Greatness

²⁴ A dispute also arose among them as to which one of them was to be regarded as the greatest. ²⁵But he said to them, "The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them; and those in authority over them are called benefactors. ²⁶But not so with you; rather the greatest among you must become like the youngest, and the leader like one who serves. ²⁷For who is greater, the one who is at the table or the one who serves? Is it not the one at the table? But I am among you as one who serves.

²⁸ "You are those who have stood by me in my trials; ²⁹and I confer on you, just as my Father has conferred on me, a kingdom, ³⁰so that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

Jesus Predicts Peter's Denial

³¹ "Simon, Simon, listen! Satan has demanded^f to sift all of you like wheat, ³²but I have prayed for you that your own faith may not fail; and you, when once you have turned back, strengthen your brothers." ³³And he said to him, "Lord, I am ready to go with you to prison and to death!" ³⁴Jesus^g said, "I tell you, Peter, the cock will not crow this day, until you have denied three times that you know me."

Purse, Bag, and Sword

³⁵ He said to them, "When I sent you out without a purse, bag, or sandals, did you lack anything?" They said, "No, not a thing." ³⁶He said to them, "But now, the one who has a purse must take it, and likewise a bag. And the one who has no sword must sell his cloak and buy one. ³⁷For I tell you, this scripture must be fulfilled in me, 'And he was counted among the lawless'; and indeed what is written about me is being fulfilled." ³⁸They said, "Lord, look, here are two swords." He replied, "It is enough."

Prayer and Agony on the Mount of Olives

22.24–30 Cf. Mt 20.24–28; 19.28; Mk 10.41–45. Only Luke records the dispute about who is the greatest (see also 9.46) in the context of the betrayal, underscoring the apostles' lack of understanding (see also 9.44–45; 18.34). 22.25 Benefactors, a title often given to gods and kings in the Hellenistic world. 22.26 On the reversal of status that characterizes the kingdom, see also 6.20–26; 9.48. Like one who serves. Disciples will also experience trials (see 12.8–12; 21.12–19; 22.31–34). 22.29 I confer on you . . . a kingdom. See 12.32. 22.30 You may eat . . . in my kingdom. 22.31–34 Cf. Mt 26.30–35; Mk 14.26–31; Jn 13.36–38. Peter's imminent denial is defined in terms of Satan's activity. 22.31 On Satan claiming the right to test or try the apostles, see 4.1–13; 22.28; cf. Job 1.6–12; 2.1–7. 22.32 Once you have turned back (i.e., repented). Jesus' prayer for their endurance anticipates their failure (cf. 10.18–22). 22.34 Jesus' prophecy is fulfilled in 22.54–62.

22.35–38 Jesus modifies his earlier advice on mission preparations (cf. 9.3; 10.4). 22.36 On the use of the sword, see 22.49–51. 22.37–38 It is enough. Jesus permits only a limited, symbolic arming for an enactment of this scripture (i.e., Isa 53.12; see also Lk 23.32).

22.39–53 Cf. Mt 26.36–56; Mk 14.32–52; Jn 18.1–11. Luke's version of Jesus' garden agony and arrest highlights the need for prayer in the "hour of darkness." 22.39 As was his custom. See 21.37. 22.40 The time of trial (also 22.46) indicates spiritual struggle (see 4.1–13; 11.4;

Get up and pray that you may not come into the time of trial.”^h

The Betrayal and Arrest of Jesus

47 While he was still speaking, suddenly a crowd came, and the one called Judas, one of the twelve, was leading them. He approached Jesus to kiss him; 48 but Jesus said to him, “Judas, is it with a kiss that you are betraying the Son of Man?” 49 When those who were around him saw what was coming, they asked, “Lord, should we strike with the sword?” 50 Then one of them struck the slave of the high priest and cut off his right ear. 51 But Jesus said, “No more of this!” And he touched his ear and healed him. 52 Then Jesus said to the chief priests, the officers of the temple police, and the elders who had come for him, “Have you come out with swords and clubs as if I were a bandit? 53 When I was with you day after day in the temple, you did not lay hands on me. But this is your hour, and the power of darkness!”

Denial and Rejection

54 Then they seized him and led him away, bringing him into the high priest’s house. But Peter was following at a distance. 55 When they had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard and sat down together, Peter sat among them. 56 Then a servant-girl, seeing him in the firelight, stared at him and said, “This man also was with him.” 57 But he denied it, saying, “Woman, I do not know him.” 58 A little later someone else, on seeing him, said, “You also are one of them.” But Peter said, “Man, I am not!” 59 Then about an hour later still another kept insisting, “Surely this man also was with him; for he is a Galilean.” 60 But Peter said, “Man, I do not know what you are talking about!” At that moment, while he was still speaking, the cock crowed. 61 The Lord turned and looked at Peter. Then Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said to him, “Before the cock crows today, you will deny me three times.” 62 And he went out and wept bitterly.

63 Now the men who were holding Jesus began to mock him and beat him; 64 they also blindfolded him and kept asking him, “Prophecy! Who is it that struck you?” 65 They kept heaping many other insults on him.

The kiss was a common gesture of respectful greeting (7.45), but see Prov 27.6. 22.48 Betraying (or “handing over”) the Son of Man. See 9.44; 18.32; 20.20; 22.4, 6, 21–22; 24.7. 22.49 Sword. See 22.36–38. 22.52 On treating Jesus as a bandit or insurrectionist, see the charges in 23.5, 14,

19, 25. 22.53 The hour of the adversaries is a limited moment in God’s timetable (see, e.g., 21.24; Acts 4.27–28; Rom 13.11) and their power, or authority (Greek exousia), is the evil dominion of darkness (4.6; 22.3; Eph 6.12; cf. Lk 1.79; Acts 26.18; 1 Thess 5.4–8).

22.54–71 Cf. Mt 26.57–68; Mk 14.53–65. Passion predictions begin to be fulfilled (see 22.34; 18.32; 9.22). 22.54 The high priest’s house was probably an official residence. In following Jesus, Peter was keeping his promise (22.33). 22.59 Mt 26.73 indicates that Peter’s Galilean dialect gave him away. 22.60 The cock crowed. See 22.34. 22.61 The Lord . . . looked at Peter. Only Luke mentions this direct gaze. 22.62 Peter’s weeping shows that his predicted repentance (22.32) has already begun. 22.63–64 Prophecy! The first mocking (see also 18.32; 23.11, 36) calls attention to Jesus as prophet (see 7.39; 13.34; 24.19). 22.65 Many other insults recalls other

66 When day came, the assembly of the elders of the people, both chief priests and scribes, gathered together, and they brought him to their council. ⁶⁷They said, "If you are the Messiah,^j tell us." He replied, "If I tell you, you will not believe; ⁶⁸and if I question you, you will not answer. ⁶⁹But from now on the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God." ⁷⁰All of them asked, "Are you, then, the Son of God?" He said to them, "You say that I am." ⁷¹Then they said, "What further testimony do we need? We have heard it ourselves from his own lips!"

Jesus Before Pilate

23 Then the assembly rose as a body and brought Jesus^k before Pilate. ²They began to accuse him, saying, "We found this man perverting our nation, forbidding us to pay taxes to the emperor, and saying that he himself is the Messiah, a king."^l ³Then Pilate asked him, "Are you the king of the Jews?" He answered, "You say so." ⁴Then Pilate said to the chief priests and the crowds, "I find no basis for an accusation against this man." ⁵But they were insistent and said, "He stirs up the people by teaching throughout all Judea, from Galilee where he began even to this place."

Jesus Before Herod

6 When Pilate heard this, he asked whether the man was a Galilean. ⁷And when he learned that he was under Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him off to Herod, who was himself in Jerusalem at that time. ⁸When Herod saw Jesus, he was very glad, for he had been wanting to see him for a long time, because he had heard about him and was hoping to see him perform some sign. ⁹He questioned him at some length, but Jesus^m gave him no answer. ¹⁰The chief priests and the scribes stood by, vehemently accusing him. ¹¹Even Herod with his soldiers treated him with contempt and mocked him; then he put an elegant robe on him, and sent him back to Pilate. ¹²That same day Herod and Pilate became friends with each other; before this they had been enemies.

generalized summaries in 3.18; 8.3; Acts 15.35. 22.66 Council, i.e., the Sanhedrin, the supreme court of chief priests and elders in Jerusalem that interpreted and defended Jewish law (see also Acts 4.5–6, 22). In Luke the trial before this body occurs during the day (see note on Mt 26.59) and has none of the fierce charges or verdicts of Mt 26.61, 65–66 or Mk 14.58, 63–64. 22.67 If you are the Messiah. See 23.35; cf. 4.41. 22.67b–69 Jesus' answer first rephrases Jeremiah's response to King Zedekiah (Jer 38.15), then points to the heavenly Son of Man who will come in triumph and judgment (Ps 110.1; Dan 7.13; see also Lk 11.30–32; 12.8–9; Acts 2.32–36). 22.70 You say that I am. Jesus' ambiguous answer (see also 23.3) implies an affirmative. 22.71 We have heard it ourselves from his own lips. With unintended irony, the council indicts itself (see 22.67; see also 18.34).

23.1–5 Cf. Mt 27.1–2, 11–14; Mk 15.1–5. The Jewish authorities accuse Jesus before the local representative of the Roman government. 23.1 Pilate's seat of government, normally in Caesarea Maritima, was moved to Jerusalem during Passover to keep the peace. 23.2 The three charges are all phrased with political overtones to interest the Roman procurator. Pervverting (or subverting) our nation (see also 23.5, 13) risked offending careful understandings between the Jews and Rome (see Jn 11.48) and could be understood as fomenting revolt; forbidding . . . taxes was seditious (cf. 20.20–26); and only the Romans could appoint a king (see Jn 19.12; cf. Lk 19.38; 23.37–38). 23.3 Are you the king of the Jews? Later Pilate ironically confirms this title (23.38). See also 22.70. 23.4 The first of several affirmations of Jesus' innocence (see 23.14–15, 22, 41, 47; see also Acts 3.14; 7.52). 23.5 This geographical summary brings the whole story to this place (i.e., Jerusalem), and Acts 1.8 moves it out from Jerusalem to the ends of the earth.

23.6–12 A hearing before Herod, found only in Luke, brings more mocking and another verdict of innocence (23.15). 23.7 Herod Antipas, tetrarch of the northern regions of Galilee and Perea (see note on 3.1), was in Jerusalem for the Passover. 23.8 Herod's interest in Jesus is ominous (9.7–9; 13.31). On the desire for a sign, see 11.29. 23.11 The elegant robe suggests a royal mockery (see also 22.63; cf. Mk 15.16–20). 23.12 The friendship of Herod and Pilate is an unholy collusion (see Acts 4.26–30, citing Ps 2.2; cf. 1 Cor 2.8).

Jesus Sentenced to Death

13 Pilate then called together the chief priests, the leaders, and the people,¹⁴ and said to them, “You brought me this man as one who was perverting the people; and here I have examined him in your presence and have not found this man guilty of any of your charges against him.¹⁵ Neither has Herod, for he sent him back to us. Indeed, he has done nothing to deserve death.¹⁶ I will therefore have him flogged and release him.”ⁿ

18 Then they all shouted out together, “Away with this fellow! Release Barabbas for us!”¹⁹ (This was a man who had been put in prison for an insurrection that had taken place in the city, and for murder.)²⁰ Pilate, wanting to release Jesus, addressed them again; ²¹but they kept shouting, “Crucify, crucify him!” ²²A third time he said to them, “Why, what evil has he done? I have found in him no ground for the sentence of death; I will therefore have him flogged and then release him.” ²³But they kept urgently demanding with loud shouts that he should be crucified; and their voices prevailed.²⁴ So Pilate gave his verdict that their demand should be granted.²⁵ He released the man they asked for, the one who had been put in prison for insurrection and murder, and he handed Jesus over as they wished.

Crucifixion, Death, and Burial

26 As they led him away, they seized a man, Simon of Cyrene, who was coming from the country, and they laid the cross on him, and made him carry it behind Jesus.²⁷ A great number of the people followed him, and among them were women who were beating their breasts and wailing for him.²⁸ But Jesus turned to them and said, “Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children.²⁹ For the days are surely coming when they will say, ‘Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bore, and the breasts that never nursed.’³⁰ Then they will begin to say to the mountains, ‘Fall on us’; and to the hills, ‘Cover us.’³¹ For if they do this when the wood is green, what will happen when it is dry?”

³² Two others also, who were criminals, were led away to be put to death with him.³³ When they came to the place that is called The Skull, they crucified Jesus^o there with the criminals, one on his right and one on his left. ³⁴Then Jesus said, “Father, forgive them; for they do not know what they are doing.”^p And they

23.13–25 Cf. Mt 27.15–26; Mk 15.6–15. The final phase of the trial stresses Jesus’ innocence and Pilate’s capitulation. 23.13–14 The people are present to hear the charge that Jesus was perverting the people (see 23.2). Not . . . guilty. See notes on 13.1; 23.4. 23.18 Release Barabbas for us. Mt 27.15–23 and Mk 15.6–15 give a rationale for the request. Nothing further is known of this custom or this individual. 23.21 Crucify him. Crucifixion was a brutal form of Roman execution, reserved for slaves and the worst criminals. Only the procurator could command it. 23.23 Their voices prevailed. Luke construes Pilate’s verdict as acquiescing to the crowd’s will (see also v. 24 their demand; v. 25, as they wished), yet Pilate also seems to be provoking them (v. 22). The questions of whose will is being done and who is on trial are complex.

23.26–56 Cf. Mt 27.31b–61; Mk 15.20b–47. The crucifixion, death, and burial of Jesus. 23.26 Simon, otherwise unknown (cf. Mk 15.21).

Cyrene, a city on the coast of northern Africa, had a sizable Jewish colony (see Acts 2.10; 6.9; 11.20). 23.27 Wailing for him, perhaps an allusion to Zech 12.10–14 (see also 2 Sam 1.24; Jer 9.17–22). 23.28 Daughters of Jerusalem, a term often used in the OT (see Song 1.5; 2.7; 5.16; 8.4; Isa 37.22; Zeph 3.14; Zech 9.9). 23.29–30 Jesus’ prophetic oracle of judgment compares closely with the dire effects of siege warfare described in 19.41–44. 23.29 Blessed are the barren. See also 21.23; Isa 54.1; cf. Lk 11.27. 23.30 See Hos 10.8; Rev 6.16. 23.31 The saying is enigmatic, though a contrast seems to be drawn between the present relative prosperity and the harsh future days of the Roman destruction (see Ezek 20.47). 23.32 Criminals. See 22.37; Isa 53.12. 23.33 The Skull, a descriptive name for a prominent rock or hill marking the execution site. 23.34a See note on 22.43–44. The theme of pardonable ignorance appears also in Acts 3.17; 7.60; 13.27; 17.30.

cast lots to divide his clothing. ³⁵And the people stood by, watching; but the leaders scoffed at him, saying, “He saved others; let him save himself if he is the Messiah^q of God, his chosen one!” ³⁶The soldiers also mocked him, coming up and offering him sour wine, ³⁷and saying, “If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!” ³⁸There was also an inscription over him, ^r“This is the King of the Jews.”

³⁹One of the criminals who were hanged there kept deriding^s him and saying, “Are you not the Messiah?^q Save yourself and us!” ⁴⁰But the other rebuked him, saying, “Do you not fear God, since you are under the same sentence of condemnation? ⁴¹And we indeed have been condemned justly, for we are getting what we deserve for our deeds, but this man has done nothing wrong.” ⁴²Then he said, “Jesus, remember me when you come into^t your kingdom.” ⁴³He replied, “Truly I tell you, today you will be with me in Paradise.”

⁴⁴It was now about noon, and darkness came over the whole land^u until three in the afternoon, ⁴⁵while the sun’s light failed;^v and the curtain of the temple was torn in two. ⁴⁶Then Jesus, crying with a loud voice, said, “Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.” Having said this, he breathed his last. ⁴⁷When the centurion saw what had taken place, he praised God and said, “Certainly this man was innocent.”^w ⁴⁸And when all the crowds who had gathered there for this spectacle saw what had taken place, they returned home, beating their breasts. ⁴⁹But all his acquaintances, including the women who had followed him from Galilee, stood at a distance, watching these things.

⁵⁰Now there was a good and righteous man named Joseph, who, though a member of the council, ⁵¹had not agreed to their plan and action. He came from the Jewish town of Arimathea, and he was waiting expectantly for the kingdom of God. ⁵²This man went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. ⁵³Then he took it down, wrapped it in a linen cloth, and laid it in a rock-hewn tomb where no one had ever been laid. ⁵⁴It was the day of Preparation, and the sabbath was beginning.^x ⁵⁵The women who had come with him from Galilee followed, and they saw the tomb and how his body was laid. ⁵⁶Then they returned, and prepared spices and ointments.

On the sabbath they rested according to the commandment.

The Resurrection of Jesus

24 But on the first day of the week, at early dawn, they came to the tomb, taking the spices that they had prepared.² They found the stone rolled away from the tomb,³ but when they went in, they did not find the body.⁴ While they were perplexed about this, suddenly two men in dazzling clothes stood beside them.⁵ The women^z were terrified and bowed their faces to the ground, but the men^a said to them, "Why do you look for the living among the dead? He is not here, but has risen.^b Remember how he told you, while he was still in Galilee,⁷ that the Son of Man must be handed over to sinners, and be crucified, and on the third day rise again."⁸ Then they remembered his words,⁹ and returning from the tomb, they told all this to the eleven and to all the rest.¹⁰ Now it was Mary Magdalene, Joanna, Mary the mother of James, and the other women with them who told this to the apostles.¹¹ But these words seemed to them an idle tale, and they did not believe them.¹² But Peter got up and ran to the tomb; stooping and looking in, he saw the linen cloths by themselves; then he went home, amazed at what had happened.^c

The Walk to Emmaus

13 Now on that same day two of them were going to a village called Emmaus, about seven miles^d from Jerusalem,¹⁴ and talking with each other about all these things that had happened.¹⁵ While they were talking and discussing, Jesus himself came near and went with them,¹⁶ but their eyes were kept from recognizing him.¹⁷ And he said to them, "What are you discussing with each other while you walk along?" They stood still, looking sad.^e 18 Then one of them, whose name was Cleopas, answered him, "Are you the only stranger in Jerusalem who does not know the things that have taken place there in these days?" 19 He asked them, "What things?" They replied, "The things about Jesus of Nazareth,^f who was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people,²⁰ and how our chief priests and leaders handed him over to be condemned to death and crucified him.²¹ But we had hoped that he was the one to redeem Israel.^g Yes, and besides all this, it is now the third day since these things took place.²² Moreover, some women of our group astounded us. They were at the tomb early this morning,²³ and when they did not find his body there, they came back and told us that they had indeed seen a vision of angels who said that he was alive.²⁴ Some of those who were with us went to the tomb and found it just as the women had said; but they did not see him."²⁵ Then he said to them, "Oh, how foolish you are, and
